Russell R. Sutley, clerk in the Clanton postoffice, was born near Jemison, September 11, 1904. He attended the Oak Grove school for all his education. He entered the postoffice at Clanton on January 16, 1929. He is unmarried. Mr. Sutley tells me that he lives in the same house in which he was born, and has never lived anywhere else. That's what I would call staying at home and living at the same place. He is one of the most popular of a very popular postal force in our town. I know very little of Mr. Sutley, as I have known him only since he has been connected with the office here, but I share the general opinion of the patrons of the Clanton office, that he is very efficient and painstaking young man. He is a man who desn't talk much, and I couldn't get him to loosen up and tell me anything about himself. But he is a friendly kind of fellow to know, and when you drop around for your mail, just get to talking with him. He'll listen to your pet joke, laugh with you, and then come back with a rib-tickler himself. Yep, he is a nice boy to know, and, being unmarried, he has to stand for lots of jokes by the office force, but he takes it all with a smile. If you want to know more about Russell you'll have to do your own snooping. When I asked for some particulars of his life, he answered: "Well, there isn't much to tell. I, like David, "just growed," I reckon, and here I am. That's all there is to tell." I haven't told you much of him, but's that all I know.—Man in the Moon.

Distress Calls Again

A devastating storm swept over a large area near Clanton on Sunday, February 25. Destruction of property to the extent of perhaps $50,000 was inflicted upon about twenty-five farm homes and buildings.

Fortunately, no lives were lost. No immediate personal distress, beyond the ability of the community to absorb for a time, was created among the people in the area.

But the destruction of property, clothing and household goods left half a dozen families facing a bleak and hopeless future, with no home, no place to live and make a living, no clothing.

These people in these half a dozen families need help. They have no means whereby they can take care of themselves. Their immediate neighbors, while caring for them nobly and sacrificial so far, can not continue to bear the added burden.

Appeal is made this week through the American Legion and the American Red Cross for contributions of clothing, household goods, and money to aid them.

Will we respond to the appeal?

Those of us who can spare a dollar or a bit of clothing must not turn down the distress call which comes up from our neighbors only three miles away. If we do turn it down, then we are not worthy of the goodness of a generous God who has given us all our comforts and pleasures.

Let us not wait to be begged or solicited to do our duty to our neighbors who are in distress.

Bring or send something to Reuben Lowe's Store — something that will give warmth and comfort to the shivering bodies of those little children whose clothing was swept away by the angry winds. Bring something with which their fathers and mothers may provide a warm, comfortable place for them to sleep at night—a bed, a blanket, or a pillow.

Bring to Mell Martin, Secretary of the Red Cross, a dollar, or five dollars, or more if you are able—with which one of those helpless, exhausted neighbors will be able to carry on his farm operations this year, keep his family at home, and make bread for them to eat.

Chilton County must take care of its own emergency at this time. We can do it. Will we do it? Will we respond to the call of need and of our duty?

EUROPE'S QUARRELS ARE NOT OURS

A typical American response to the tragic and dramatic events in Austria last week might be expressed in the words: It is not our fight. In being able to assume this negative attitude, the United States is vastly more fortunate than some other nations. We can say, first, that the Austrians should settle their political problems in their own way. We can say, secondly, that Europe should settle its problems.

But at this point there naturally arises a qualm of doubt. Europe was settling its problems in its own sweet way in 1914, but the United States was eventually and, as it seems, unavoidably, involved in Europe's heritage of hate, war, debt and social upheaval.

So we ask, dubiously: Is Austria dragging Europe into another war? And will the issue finally reach out and enmesh the peaceful homes and firesides of America?

The answer generally is that if we hold rigidly aloof we can escape the pit that Europe is digging for itself. This answer begs many questions which our experience of 1914-1918 did not serve to clarify.

But, in spite of the experience of 1914-1918, there is still a strong feeling in this country that Europe's wars need not be our wars. In a time of crisis such as the present, it is necessary to remind ourselves that we have no part in starting Europe's quarrels and that we must take no part in ending them.

That should be the keystone of American policy and practice. No more war in Europe, if we can help it. If we cannot help it, European war must not involve the United States.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

MOLTON HOTEL
FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

PETE B. JARMAN, STATE SECRETARY TO RUN FOR CONGRESSIONAL SEAT

Pete B. Jarman, Alabama secretary of state, former state commander of the American Legion and descendant of a distinguished West Alabama family, Saturday qualified at his office in Montgomery as a candidate for Representative in Congress from the Sixth District. He is the third candidate to qualify for the race in the Democratic primaries, May 1 and June 12.

PETE B. JARMAN, JR.

Congressman William B. Oliver of Tuscaloosa filed recently for re-election and Thomas H. Maxwell of Maxwell's Station has also qualified.

Mr. Jarman's official entry into the congressional race confirms rumors which had been current for several weeks. It marks his second departure into district politics, the other resulting in his election as a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee from this district in 1926. He also took part in the 1930 state primary, being elected secretary of state with a plurality of 30,225.

Born In Greensboro

He is a native of Greensboro in Hale County, born October 31, 1892, the son of Judge and Mrs. P. B. Jarman. His father, who died just a few weeks ago, was later probate judge of Sumter County for a number of years, residing in Livingston. The younger Jarman attended old Southern University at Greensboro from 1907 to 1910, then entered the University of Alabama to receive his A.B. degree in 1913. He was a member of the S. A. E. fraternity.

From graduation until May, 1917 he served as chief clerk in the probate office of his father, then entered the first officers training camp at Fort McPherson, Ga. There he launched a military career which brought him signal honors. In August he was commissioned a second lieutenant with the 327th Infantry regiment of the 82nd Division. The following January found him promoted to first lieutenant.

In May, 1918 he sailed to France where he took part in the drives of St. Mihiel and Argonne Forest, serving as adjutant of the third battalion of the 327th Infantry. On October 11 he was slightly wounded under the chin by machine gun fire, in the Argonne Forest drive.

Inspector For Guard

After the armistice he attended for four months the University of Montpellier in France, an institution which was founded in 1389. He was discharged from the army service in September, 1919, but remained active in military affairs. He was given a rank of major and appointed inspector general of the Alabama National Guard in 1922 and in 1924 was promoted to lieutenant colonel as inspector for the National Guard Division, composed of troops of Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana.

In November, 1919, shortly after his return from France, Mr. Jarman was appointed an assistant state examiner of accounts by Governor Thomas Kilby. He continued to serve in this capacity for 11 years, under Governor W. W. Brandon and Governor Bibb Graves. During this period he conducted what were regarded as some of the most far-reaching investigations of county affairs in the history of the state.

Mr. Jarman married Miss Beryl Bricken, daughter of Supreme Court Justice Charles R. Bricken on February 25, 1930. In January, 1931, he entered the office of secretary of state at Montgomery.

Prominent In Legion

He has been a prominent figure in American Legion affairs of the state since the veterans organization was formed. While still in France, July, 1919, he was chosen the first commander of the Legion post in Sumter County. In July, 1926, he was elected vice-commander of the third district in the Alabama Department and a year later he was chosen commander of the state department. He led the parade in the national Legion convention in Paris that year.

During his term as commander, the department achieved a high rating for membership and in 1928 he again led the parade at San Antonio, sharing this honor with the new commander. Mr. Jarman thus holds the unusual honor of being the only Legionnaire ever to lead two national Legion parades. He has been since 1931 a member of the National Distinguished Guest Committee of the Legion.

PERCY M. PITTS

Republican Candidate for REPRESENTATIVE IN THE LEGISLATURE

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

In seeking the nomination as your candidate in the next general election as your Representative in the State Legislature, I fully realize the responsibility and importance of this position. During the time I have served you in this capacity in the Legislative Halls at Montgomery I have endeavored to stand for and work for those measures which, in my judgment, were most desired by the majority of my constituents, and for their interest. By reason of the experience you have allowed me to have in the past, I believe that I am better fitted to be of service to my county and state, should you see fit to nominate and elect me to succeed myself as your Representative.

I shall favor those measures which will give every boy and girl an equal chance to obtain at least a high school education. By reason of the fact that in the state we have a law making school attendance compulsory, I am thoroughly convinced that she should provide free public schools, without the present incidental fees, which many of the parents are unable to pay. This is accomplished in many other states at the present, that have less resources than Alabama. One of the greatest assets of any county is its youth, and it is the duty of each state to provide them with an elementary education at least. Also our teachers should be paid promptly for their services, as other public officials.

In the past I believe our public schools have suffered by reason of the state having spent huge amounts of money on the higher institutions of learning, many of which are "top heavy" with palatial buildings, which are yet unpaid for, and are still a financial burden to the state. In my judgment, we should provide every child with a public school education first, before making elaborate appropriations for our state colleges. That is my idea of fair play. I shall work with this aim in view, should I be elected a member of the next legislature.

I also favor cutting out more of the overhead expenses born by the state, which is apparently a great political machine, in the form of the State Educational Department in Montgomery. What we need in this state is more local self government, and less centralization of power at Montgomery. Our various county superintendents and teachers over the state are more able to know the real needs of our children than those who sit in elaborate offices at the state capitol, draw their large salaries, and give orders.

I shall also sponsor laws permitting the delinquent poll tax payer to renew his qualifications with the payment of only two years of poll tax in order to become a qualified voter. By reason of the depression many good citizens have been denied the privilege of casting a vote, for the lack of funds to pay up several years back poll tax. This would encourage many to again become qualified, and at the same time be of financial aid to the schools which receive all the poll tax money.

In the past session I voted for all economy measures and all salary cutting bills. I still believe there are many state departments that should be combined or abolished at a great saving to the state. Our people are overburdened by taxes, and I hope that in some way the next legislature may be able to economize in some way, in order that some plan may be devised whereby a person may be exempted from the payment of taxes on a homestead valued up to $2,000.

Automobiles are carrying too heavy a tax burden, and I will work for a measure to reduce the tag license to the minimum charge, and oppose any additional tax on gasoline, as I did in the last session of the legislature.

I believe that the fairest of all taxes is the income tax, which I worked for in the past, and which the county voted for in the last amendment election; however, I worked just as hard against the consumer's sale tax, and was one of those who led a successful scrap on the floor of the house in defeating this bill, which received the backing, the last time it was up for passage, from the administration.

Thanking you for past consideration, and should you see fit to give me your vote and influence in the coming primary, assuring you of my appreciation, I am,

Respectfully yours,
PERCY M. PITTS.

BATES-ROBINSON WEDDING

Mr. W. G. Bates and Miss Iris Robinson were married last Saturday night. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. W. W. Robinson at his home near Providence, in Beat 16.

Mr. Bates is the son of Mrs. W. L. Bates, of Clanton. He has been an employee of Clanton Motors for several years.

His bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Robinson, of Union Grove. She has been employed by the Southern Bell Telephone Company in Clanton for quite a while.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bates join in extending congratulations and best wishes.

MR. TIFFIN'S FATHER DIED AT RED BAY MONDAY, FEB. 5

Mr. J. B. Tiffin was called to Red Bay, in Franklin County last week, on account of the illness of his father, Mr. E. Tiffin, age 90 years, whose death occured Monday night. Mr. Tiffin remained there for the funeral and burial, and returned home Wednesday afternoon.

E. Tiffin is survived by his wife, Mrs. Loucrecia Tiffin, age 90 years; three sons, Robert Tiffin, of Red Bay; William Tiffin, of Belmont Miss.; James B. Tiffin, of Clanton; three daughters, Mrs. J. R. Thorn, of Maud, Okla.; Mrs. Oscar Gober, of Maud, Okla.; Mrs. John Hopkins, of Red Bay.

OLD TIME SINGING

There will be a old time singing in the Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony books at Bethsalem church on Sunday afternoon March 11. Everybody invited to come and bring books.—John Askew.

OLD MAIDS MATRIMONIAL CLUB

The Old Maids will return Friday night, March 9, in "The Old Maids Matrimonial Club." You who haven't seen it can't afford to miss it, and if you have seen it, you must see it again. The variety program preceding the play is entirely different. The pantomime "That Old Sweetheart of Mine", one of the main numbers on the variety program is well worth the price for the whole play. The old maids, too, have something new that will make you laugh till you cry.

The admission is only 10 and 20c. The place is at the Chilton County High School. The time is 8:00 o'clock, Friday night, March 9th.

WOODMEN OF THE WORLD PRESIDENT HONORED THROUGHOUT U. S. FOR 35 YEARS OF SERVICE

Bradshaw's Long, Faithful Devotion to Duty Celebrated During March

Woodmen of the World members throughout the entire country are celebrating the month of March in a gigantic campaign in honor of De E. Bradshaw, president, who has served W. O. W. in an official capacity for thirty-five years.

Thousands of W. O. W. camps in every state will hold special celebrations and programs during March to pay tribute to the long and faithful service of Mr. Bradshaw.

Mr. Bradshaw, whose life has been typical of the log cabin boy who has risen to dizzy heights, was honored at his birthplace in Izard county, Arkansas, where local and national W. O. W. officials gathered for a special celebration. His mother, 97 years old, still lives near his birthplace.

Mr. Bradshaw has always been a strong church worker, having served as president of the Arkansas Sunda, School association. He was also president of the Arkansas Humane Society and has participated in scores of charitable and civic endeavors.

His first national W. O. W. office was Sovereign Sentry in 1899 in Little Rock. He later went to W. O. W. headquarters in Omaha as General Attorney and his work was so outstanding that it brought him national prominence as the leading fraternal life insurance counsellor in the country.

"The record of Mr. Bradshaw is so outstanding and noteworthy that the spirit of fraternalism in W. O. W. has never before been greater," said Col. T. E. Patterson, vice president. "Mr. Bradshaw has endeared himself to every member because he not only has been progressive in expansion, but his wisdom in safe investments and protection for policyholders is a shining example for the entire country."

A giant bulletin board has been erected in Mr. Bradshaw's office upon which are posted daily results of a campaign to exceed all past records for a month. It is expected that the total will exceed eight million dollars.

The Woodmen of the World Life Insurance association is showing evidence that the "corner of prosperity" has been reached, its assets having been increased during last year by more than $4,200,000 and its certificates by more than 55,000. It now has assets of more than $115,000,000 and is considered the strongest fraternal life insurance associations in the world.

The Woodmen of the World operates Radio Station WOW in Omaha and has a tuberculosis hospital and chapel in San Antonio, Texas.

W. O. W. is now moving to its new quarters in the Insurance Building in the heart of Omaha. The Insurance Building, which is owned by W. O. W., has been transformed into one of the most modern buildings in the city. It has a huge vault formerly occupied by a bank and trust company. More than $105,000,000 of securities were recently moved under the care of forty armed men and armored cars down the main street of Omaha to the new burglar-proof vaults.

More than ninety-five per cent of W. O. W.'s assets are in the highest grade government, state, city and county bonds of nearly every state in which W. O. W. does business.

C. R. DAWKINS BURIED AT COX CHAPEL CEMETERY

The death of C. R. (Dad) Dawkins, age 73 years, came suddenly and unexpectedly at the home of his son, R. D. Dawkins, Superintendent of Martin Dam, on Monday morning, February 26th. After eating his breakfast as usual, Dad went into the living room, put on his vest and coat, adjusted his watch chain, lighted his pipe and sat down in his chair. Suddenly his pipe fell to the floor, and his body was limp and lifeless.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at Tallassee Methodist Church, by the pastor, Rev. S. B. Trotter, after which the body was brought to Cox's Chapel, a few miles north of Maplesville, and buried. The pallbearers were the following employees of Martin Dam: J. C. Golden, John Haywood, Clyde Harkins, J. T. Robertson, W. F. Hagwood.

The grave of Mr. Dawkins was made in the Cox Chapel cemetery by the side of the resting place of his wife, who, before their marriage, was Miss Mollie Morgan.

SURVEY BEGUN ON SELMA ROAD

Surveyors of the State Highway Department have already begun their work on the Selma Highway preparatory to making estimate for bids on pavement of the Selma Highway west from Clanton, beginning at the pavement on the Birmingham Highway.

Allotment of approximately $35,000 has been set aside for this job, and it is estimated this amount will place a hard surface asphalt-gravel road about a distance of three miles from the point of beginning.

No information is available as to when the actual work of paving will begin. It is understood that bids will be asked on the job after the engineers have completed all specifications.

Contract will be awarded to the successful bidder, it is said, after which the work will start and carry through to completion.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The next war! That is what men are talking about everywhere. We want peace, but this world cannot have peace as long as men reject the Prince of Peace. The trouble with our peace plans and all of our reform movements is that we are building upon a false assumption. We assume that man is inherently good. But he isn't. He was born in sin. He was conceived in sin. The first man and woman accepted the devil's lie that man can by asserting his independence become like God in the pursuit of knowledge. So man wants to believe that he can live without God. He can't, He can't even build a permanent civilization independent of God. The history of the human race is a story of cities builded and cities destroyed. Why can't the statesmen of the world see that what the world needs is Christ.

Get your Bible. Open it to the first chapter of Luke. Begin at the thirty-first verse. "Thou shalt conceive in thy womb." That was literally fulfilled. "And bring forth a son." That was literally fulfilled. "And shalt call his name Jesus." That was literally fulfilled. "He shall be great." That was literally fulfilled. "And shall be called the Son of the Highest." That was literally fulfilled. "And He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of His Kingdom there shall be no end." That has not been fulfilled. Jesus has never had the throne of David. He is the heir to the throne. God promised it to Him. The throne of David is a literal throne in Jerusalem. It will be rebuilt. Jesus, if the scripture means what it says and says what it means, will come back some day and sit on David's throne. Jerusalem will be the capitol of the world. Then, and not until then, will we be the capitol of the world. Then, and not until then, will we have universal and permanent peace on the earth.

MRS. F. H. BATTON DIED

Sarah Rebecca Pearson Batton, age 79 years, wife of F. H. Batton, of Plantersville, Ala., whose death occurred at her home at 2:50 p.m., February 24th, 1934, and was buried at Plantersville Christian cemetery on Monday following at 2 o'clock, the funeral being held from the Christian church of which she was a member. The Rev. J. A. Lee, pastor, assisted by Rev. Noble R. Edwards, of Bessemer Christian church, and Rev. Stanley Bentley, Baptist pastor, of Plantersville, conducted the funeral.

She was born and reared about five miles west of Plantersville, where most of her entire life was spent. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Pearson. She leaves besides her husband, a large family connection, consisting of seven children, W. M. Batton, of Birmingham; F. P. Batton, Fayette; Mrs. Minnie Idona Gay, Stanton; T. E. Batton, H. G. Batton, Silsbee, Texas; J. F. Batton, Tulsa, Okla.; and J. D. Batton, Bessemer; two half sisters, Mrs. Susie Jones, Lamesa, Texas; Mrs. Georgia Bess, Tatum, New Mexico.

Grandchildren who survive her are: Frank Preston Batton, Ollie Bell Batton, Eddie Batton, Nellie Batton, William M. Batton, Henry Batton, Emma Sue Batton, J. D. Gay, C. C. Gay, Jr., Ila Ruth Gay, Thomas Edward Baton, Jr., Lillian Rebecca Batton, (Juanita, daughter of H. G. and Minnie at the age of 10 years went to her heavenly home more than 15 years ago) Margaret Elizabeth Batton and many more relatives and friends.

The six sons were the pallbearers.

We feel that everything was done that loving hands could do, but God, in His infinite wisdom saw fit to take her from our midst to a better home beyond.

Of course we all loved her dearly, husband, children kindred and friends, but let's console our hearts for we are out and she is in. What we have lost, heaven has gained. Weep not, dear father and brothers, for God has said in His blessed word, "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe in me also. In my father's house are many mansions, if it were not so, I would have told you."

Nothing is truer of my dear mother than this poem written by an unknown author:

My Mother

She carried me under her heart;
Loved me before I was born;
Took God's hand in hers and walked thru the Valley of Shadows that I might live;
Bathed me when I was helpless;
Clothed me when I was naked;
Gave me warm milk from her own body when I was hungry;
Rocked me to sleep when I was weary;
Pillowed me on pillows softer than down and sang to me in the voice of an angel;
Held my hands when I learned to walk;
Nursed me when I was sick;
Suffered with my sorrow;
Laughed with my joy;
Glowed with my triumph, and while I knelt at her side she taught my lips to pray;
Through all the days of my youth she gave strength for my weakness, courage for my despair and hope to fill my hopeless heart;
Was loyal when others failed;
Was my friend when other friends were gone;
Prayed for me through all the days when flooded with sunshine or saddened by shadows;
Loved me when I was unlovely, and led me into man's estate to walk triumphantly on the King's highway and play a manly part.
Though we may lay down our lives for her, we can never pay the debt we owe a Christian mother.

Her loving daughter,
—Minnie Idona Gay.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Fox left Monday morning for Kansas City, where Mr. Fox will undergo treatment for cancer.

Lesson for March 11

THE PARABLES OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 13:31-33, 44-52.

GOLDEN TEXT—Of the increase of his government and peace, there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this.—Isaiah 9:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Story Jesus Told.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Story Picture of the Kingdom's Success.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Our Religion Means to Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Pictures of the Kingdom.

In this chapter of Matthew the "mysteries" of the kingdom are unfolded (v. 11). By "mystery" in the Scriptures is meant truth undiscoverable by human reason, made known by revelation. The teaching set forth in these parables sets forth the admixture of moral and spiritual interests which characterize the period between Christ's rejection and his triumphant kingdom.

I. The Mustard Seed (vv. 31, 32).

1. Its unimportant beginning (v. 31). It begins as the least of all seeds. Not only was Christ, the king, of humble parentage, but his disciples were unlettered fishermen.

2. Its vigorous growth (v. 32). Though small at its inception, the work inaugurated by Christ, has become wide in extent and mighty in power.

3. Its lodging capacity (v. 32). The birds which find lodgment in the tree represent predatory individuals who have found shelter in the church but are not part of it. The birds which lodge in the branches are the "fowls" which devoured the seed that fell by the wayside (v. 4).

II. The Leavened Meal (v. 33).

1. The meal. Meal in the Scriptures means something nutritious and wholesome. Examples of its character and use are found in Gen. 18:6; I Kings 4:22; II Kings 4:41. Also it was used in one of the sweet savour offerings which typified Jesus Christ (Lev. 2:1-3 R. V.).

2. The woman. The woman is the administrator of the home. Her responsibility is to take the bread provided by the head of the home and prepare and distribute it to the children. Observe:

a. Her act. She hid the leaven in the meal.

b. Its issue. It leavened the meal. The meal was not turned into leaven but was affected by the leaven.

3. The leaven. In the Scripture leaven is invariably a type of evil (Exod 12:15, Matt. 16:6, 12; I Cor. 5:6-8; Gal. 5:8, 9). The teaching of this parable, therefore, is that in this age the truth of God and the wholesome institutions established by God would be corrupted by error, worldliness, and unbelief. The woman representing the administrator of affairs in the world would introduce false doctrine and thus corrupt the children's bread.

III. The Hid Treasure (v. 44).

1. The field (v. 38). Christ's own interpretation makes this to be the world.

2. The treasure. This doubtless means Israel, the chosen people (Ps. 135:4; Deut. 7:6-8).

3. The purchaser. This represents Jesus Christ (John 3:16).

4. The purchase price (I Pet. 1:13, 19). This was the precious blood of Jesus Christ, God's beloved Son.

IV. The Merchantman Seeking Goodly Pearls (vv. 45, 46).

1. The merchantman is Christ (Luke 19:10). The Son of Man came to seek and to save that which was lost.

2. The purchase price (Phil. 2:6-8). Christ impoverished himself in order to purchase the pearl of great price.

3. The pearl of great price (Col. 1:18). This is not Jesus Christ but the Church purchased by his blood.

V. The Dragnet (v. 47-50).

1. The sea. Sea in the Scripture denotes people and multitudes (Dan. 7:3; Rev. 17:15).

2. The dragnet cast into the sea (v. 47). This means the sowing of the Word by the Son of Man (v. 37).

3. The dragnet drawn to shore when full (v. 48). When God's purpose is made full concerning the present age, an account will be made.

4. The separation (vv. 48, 49). This separation is made by the angels, and will take place at the end of the age.

5. The destiny (vv. 49-50). The angels, God's ministers, shall separate the wicked from among the just and shall cast them into the furnace of fire where there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. The good shall be set aside for the pleasure and service of the Lord.

Love One Another

St. John says: "Brethren, let us love one another, for love is of God." Matthew Arnold says a beautiful thing on the same matter, but from a different angle. "Brethren," he says, in effect, "let us love one another, for we have each other for such a short time."

Liberty

The sweetest word in the language, next to love, is liberty. God and his angels respect the perfect freedom of man.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trotter, of Martin Dam, were visitors in Clanton Tuesday.

APPOINTMENTS ARE MADE TO STATE ADJUSTMENT BOARD

The personnel of the State Adjustment Board for the National Recovery Administration has been chosen and approved, consisting of Mr. John L. Busby, Attorney, Member, selected by employees, Mr. J. D. Sample, Executive Vice President, McWane Cast Iron Pipe Company, Member, selected by employers, and Dr. Guy E. Snavely, President, Birmingham Southern College, selected by the above named appointees, as impartial member. Messrs. Busby and Sample received their appointments from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and Dr. Snavely received his appointment as Chairman of the Board from President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The State Adjustment Board is not an administrative body but its function is to hear cases presented to it by the State Director of the National Emergency Council, on his own motion, or at the request of a Complainant or Respondent, on complaints involving questions of provision of approved Codes of Fair Competition. It will be this Board's duty to attempt to adjust such cases so presented, or make recommendations to the State Director as to what action should be taken.

Judge John D. Petree, State Director, National Emergency Council, wishes to impress upon the citizens of the State of Alabama that Dr. Guy E. Snavely, Mr. John L. Busby and Mr. J. D. Sample were chosen after being firmly convinced that these gentlemen represented the highest type of citizenship and could be depended upon to handle such a position in a dignified and capable manner, assuring employers and employees a fair and just hearing.

NATIONAL RESTAURANT ASS'N. DISTRICT MANAGER WILL MAKE TOUR OF THE SOUTH

The office of the State Director of the National Emergency Council was notified today, by letter, that the District Manager of the National Restaurant Association of the Southeren District is going to make an extensive tour of the Southern States, holding meetings with Local Restaurant Associations, explaining the provisions of the Code of Fair Competition for the Restaurant Industry, which was effective Monday, February 26, 1934.

This office will give out definite information through the Alabama press as to time and place of such meetings.

E. N. DYRHOVD DIED AT THORSBY

E. N. Dyrhovd, died last Thursday at his home in Thorsby. Funeral services were held Sunday at the Swedish Lutheran church, in Thorsby. Burial by Martin in Concordia cemetery.

Mr. Dyrhovd was a native of Norway.

Kin Vinson has bought from W. A. Reynolds the old Charley Cox property on the Selma Road one block west of the Presbyterian church. A new brick bungalow is being erected on the property, and will be occupied by the Vinson family when completed.

One of the churches in a little Western town has a young woman for its pastor. She was called to the door of the parsonage one day and saw there a much embarrassed young farmer of the German type.

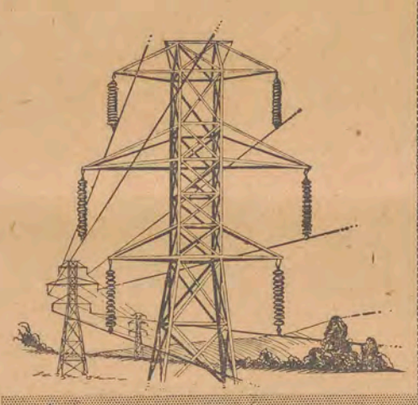
"Dey say der minister liffed in dis house," he said.

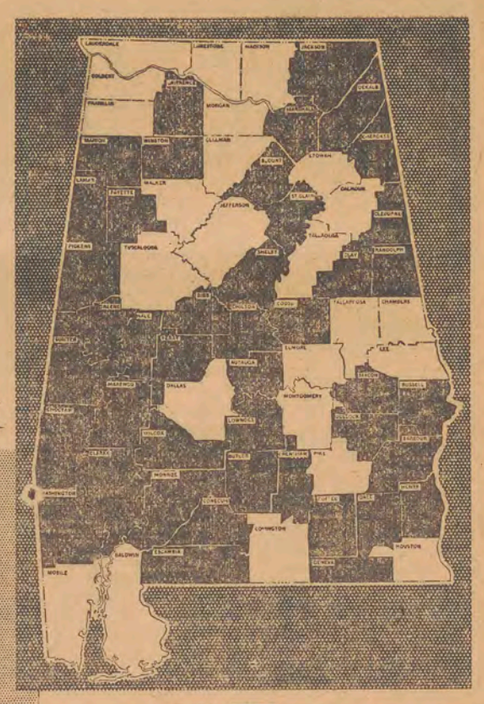
"Yes," replied the fair pastor.

"Vell, I—I want to kit merrit."

"To get married? Very well; I can marry you."

"Oh, but I got a girl already," was the disconcerted reply.





ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

Is Alabama's Largest Taxpayer

ALABAMA Power Company, by harnessing falling water, by transforming latent energy in coal into electricity and by constructing a statewide transmission and distribution system, has created taxable wealth where scarcely any existed before.

In 1914, the year the Company placed in operation its first power plant on the Coosa river, its tax bill was only $5000. In 1933 this bill had increased to $2,000,000., which amount is greater than the entire taxes paid into the State Treasury by the Tax Collectors of the 43 counties shown in black on the above state map.

If the Company should be relieved of taxes, the tax bill of every other Alabama taxpayer would have to be increased or the schools and municipal and state governments would have to operate at less cost. Yet this is the effect when privately owned electric systems are replaced by municipally owned systems which thus become non-taxpayers.

ALABAMA POWER CO.

WILL PUT ON FIDDLERS ENTION FRIDAY, MARCH 16

ilton County Post No. 6 of the erican Legion will sponsor a fid- rs convention at the courthouse in lanton Friday night, March 16th. The money raised by this entertainment will be given for relief of families of ex-soldiers in Chilton County who suffered losses in the storm of Sunday, February 25.

At a meeting of the Post Monday night Dr. H. F. Downs, John Armstrong and R. W. Lowe were designated as a committee to make arrangements for the program of music and entertainment.

Several extraordinary features are contemplated. More complete details will be announced in next week's paper.

Taking Unknown Drugs A Great Folly

Doctors throughout the world agree there is no greater folly than to buy and take unknown drugs. Ask your own doctor.

So—when you go into a store for real Bayer Aspirin, see that you get it.

Remember that doctors endorse Genuine Bayer Aspirin as SAFE relief for headache, colds, sore throat, pains of rheumatism and neuritis, etc.

Just remember this. Demand and get Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

John D. Martin, of Wetumpka, was here Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. W. I. Mullins.

Wifey—Here's an advertisement of a new kind of shirt that hasn't any buttons.

Hubby—Huh? That's nothing new. I've been wearing that kind for years.

Him—Why do you say that Adam was like a radio.

Him 2—Because they took part of him and made a loudspeaker.

"Ma! I just saw daddy kissing the maid."

"The little runt! I didn't think he was tall enough."

A SPECIAL SESSION NEED EMPHASIZED

Washington, March 4.—Representative Jeffers, Alabama, Saturday night said a special session of the state legislature would be necessary to qualify Alabama for additional allotments from the Public Works Administration.

Jeffers said public works officials had not suggested calling of the legislature, but had pointed out requirements which he said could be met only by doing so.

The representative added that in addition to technical details two obstacles stood in the way of additional allotments to Alabama of between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000.

A guarantee that counties would continue receiving their share of the state gasoline tax.

Relaxation of state laws defining indebtedness of counties and cities so as to circumvent constitutional limitations on debt incurment by political subdivisions.

Explanation of the Public Works Adiministration's view was made to Jeffers when he called with Ed Pettus, Selma, chairman of the Alabama Democratic Executive Committee, to urge approval of a $565,000 road-building allotment to Dallas County, in which Selma is located.

"Doc, what I need is something to stir me up—something to put me in fighting trim. Have you anything like that in this prescription?"

"No. You'll find that in my bill.

Sap—When two bodies come together is heat generated?

Tap—Not always, the other night I got knocked cold.

The waiter—Steak medium or well done, sir?

Absent-minded parson—Well done, thou good and faithful servant.

Boss—You ask high wages for a man with no experience.

Applicant—But it's so much harder work when you don't know anything about it.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION TO BE AT CONCORD

The P.-T. A. of Concord Jr. is sponsoring a fiddlers convention to be held Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

There will be a prize for every fiddler. Everyone is invited and a special invitation is extended to the fiddlers. A small admission of ten and fifteen cents will be charged. Bring your friends and enjoy an evening of wholesome entertainment.

FOR MEMBER OF CONGRESS

I wish to represent you in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, composed of Bibb, Chilton, Green, Hale, Perry, Shelby, Sumpter and Tuscaloosa Counties. I pledge my best efforts to serve my district, my party and my nation well. I want your vote and influence. Thank you.

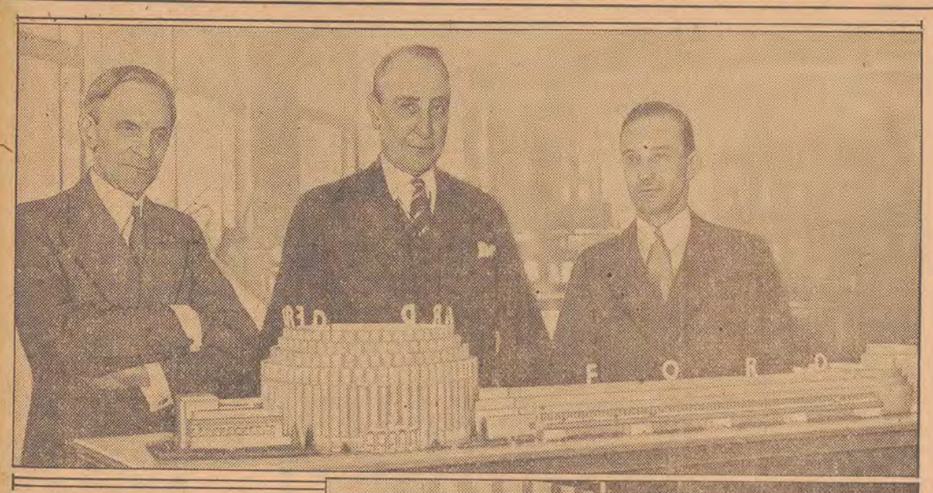
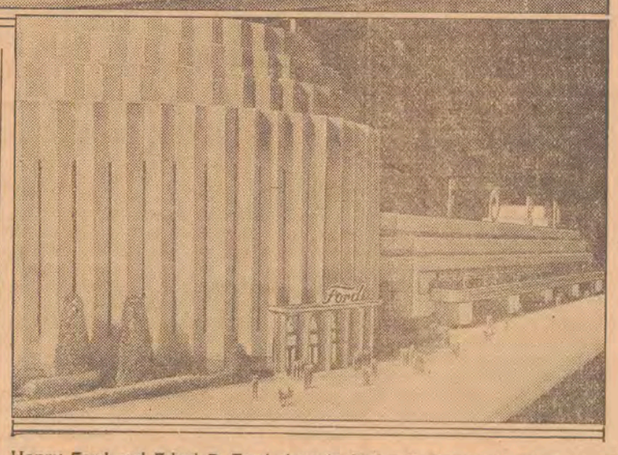
FORD TO BUILD HUGE EXPOSITION AT THE 1934 CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR





Henry Ford and Edsel B. Ford show to Rufus C. Dawes (center), president of the World's Fair, the scale model of the giant Ford Exposition building to be built at the 1934 Fair. (Lower) The Ford building as it will be seen from Leif Eriksen drive. Opposite the building will be a huge park bordering Lake Michigan.

A GREAT Ford Exposition, portraying the tremendous part the arts, sciences and virtually every other industry plays in the manufacture of today's motor cars, is planned by the Ford Motor Company for the 1934 World's Fair.

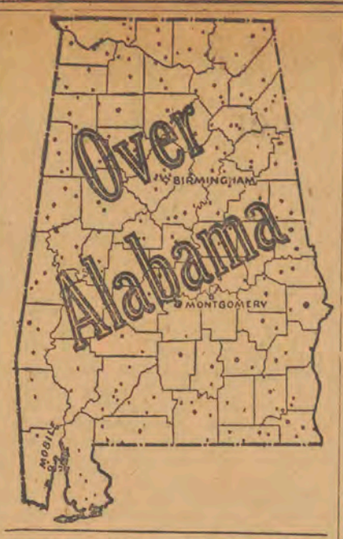
The Ford Exposition will be housed in a giant building 860 feet long to be built in the heart of the fair grounds on an 11-acre plot bordering Lake Michigan and flanking the main fair boulevard. Construction of the building will start Mar. 1.

In the dominant central building will be housed Henry Ford's "Drama of Transportation," depicting the development of wheeled vehicles from the chariots of ancient Egyptian kings to modern motor cars. Every model of Ford car made since 1903 will be included.

In the smaller building to the left will be housed some of the priceless historic exhibits from the Edison Institute at Dearborn, Mich., including the one-story brick workshop, complete with the original tools, where Mr. Ford in 1893 built with his own hands his first motor car. This first car will be displayed inside the shop.

The main exposition building will display an imposing array of exhibits, most of them in action, show how steel, aluminum and other metals, soy beans, corn, wool, cotton and other farm products and the products of myriad industries are converted into car parts. The building also will house displays of cars and a big movie theater. Along the east side will be an open-air balcony equipped with chairs and lounges where hundreds may relax.

Across the drive fronting the lake will be a big Ford Park, beautifully landscaped and also fitted with seats and other comforts for fair crowds.



STATE NEWS PARAGRAPHED

A Resume Of The More Important Events Of Interest Condensed To An Epitomized Form

Mrs. B. M. Miller, wife of Alabama's Governor, is critically ill at the Mansion. She has been ill for three weeks.

An increase in the demand for radio sets, contrary to the anticipated downward seasonal trend, has been reported by distributors and retail dealers in Birmingham.

King Felix III, monarch of misrule, captured Mobile with its mere toot of the whistle of his royal yacht and a joyful crowd swung into the faster tempo of Mardi Gras.

Eighty-four women students at the University of Alabama have been assigned to some useful work about the campus as results of new appropriations for college students by the CWA.

Eugene L. Turner, member of the Anniston Board of Education, was elected a director of the First National Bank, to succeed his father, the late E. L. Turner, Sr., pioneer Anniston financier.

Mary Frances Combs, 8, of Birmingham, was injured fatally when struck by an automobile. The child was taken by the driver of the automobile to Norwood Hospital, where she died two hours after the accident.

City Beautiful was the theme of the meeting of the Birmingham Real Estate Board at its last weekly meeting. Mark Hodo, President, presided, and Sam F. Clabaugh, Robert Jemison and W. H. Kessler were speakers.

Sixty-nine hardware firms representing various cities in the state were elected to membership and associate membership in the Retail Hardware Association of Alabama at a recent meeting held in Birmingham.

Jasper Homesteads, Incorporated, a $244,000.00 corporation, financed by the federal government, is now ready to receive applications for homesteads to be situated on a 2,000 acre tract of land four miles north of Jasper.

Dr. Paul Harmchell, director of teachers training at Florence State Teachers College, has been elected to represent the college at the annual meeting of Alabama Educational Association in Birmingham, March 22-24.

Double Springs won the finals in both the Junior and Senoir High school basket ball tournaments at Double Springs among Winston County teams. Nine teams participated in the Junior Tournament and four in the Senior.

Alabama gives thanks to Georgia for its newest state park, DeSoto State Park in DeKalk County. Thomas Perry of Rome, Ga., conceived the idea of the park and interested Fred Huron and W. M. McCurdy, adjoining land owners, in his plan for a state park.

The National Power and Light Company has been cited by the Alabama Public Service Commission to appear at a hearing in Birmingham March 20th to show cause why it should not be required to refund $3,200,000.00 in stocks dividends of the Birmingham Electric Co.

Sheriff D. B. Chambliss, of Autauga County, has tendered his immediate resignation to Gov. B. M. Miller. The Governor instructed Probate Judge J. F. Posey of Autauga County to appoint a special coroner to perform the duties of Sheriff until a sucessor could be appointed.

Isaac F. Johnson, of Helena, Ala., was sentenced to six months imprisonment and fined $500.00 by a jury in Judge John P. McCoy's Court in Birmingham that convicted him of sending threatening letters to Roderick Beddow, Birmingham attorney, to provoke a breach of peace.

With preparation under way to circulate a petition for a referendum on the additional one cent a gallon tax on gasoline and two cents a quart on lubricating oils levied by the Birmingham City Commission, motion picture and theatre operators are scheduled to appear before the city commission to protest a ten per cent tax on gross sales of tickets.

Alabama Public Works Advisory Board has been notified not to receive any additional applications for PWA loans "since there seems no chance for it to receive favorable consideration in Washington."

Gov. B. M. Miller granted paroles to four state convicts upon the recommendation of the State Pardon Board. They were Eddie Lee Brown, Jefferson County; J. A. Mims, Dale County; Lloyd Passinger, Tuscaloosa County; all convicted of distilling, and Walter Foster, Tuscaloosa County, assault, with intent to murder.

Ex-Sheriff John L. Gore, of Beat 12, was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

ATTENTION, THOSE WHO WRITE FOR UNION-BANNER

Little do our many good correspondents think what a hardship it works on The Union-Banner force when a whole batch of copy comes into our office Wednesday morning. If everyone else sent theirs on Monday and only yours was left until Wednesday, it could be cared for without ill convenience, but when a dozen or so, together with a half dozen long political spiels, come in during the eleventh hour, the force is going to catch Hail Columbia or else miss No. 10 Wednesday afternoon. And when this is done it means that some of the rural routes will not be delivered until Friday, and then there is Hail Columbia again because the paper got delivered late.

Therefore, let us urge our correspondents to slip forward a day or even two days—if possible, and thus greatly assist us in getting the paper out on time. If it is possible to get in your letter on Saturday, that will be just a whole lot better, and you bet, we will appreciate it. Most all political letters could be gotten in on week ends just as well as Tuesday or Wednesday; and we may adopt a rule not to accept any such letters coming in later than Monday. So, let's all pull together to each other's advantage, and we will all come out better wash day.

CAR CONTEST WILL CLOSE ON SATURDAY NIGHT THIS WEEK

The Clanton Cash Store announces that the toy automobile contest which they have been running for some weeks will come to a close Saturday night of this week. No tickets will be issued after that time. All holders of tickets are asked to bring them in to the store some time during the week following Saturday.

The time for giving away the little car will be announced later.

UNCLE JIM MIMS SERIOUSLY ILL

Reports from a Birmingham hospital Wednesday morning stated that Commissioner J. M. Mims was not expected to live through the day.

Mr. Mims has been in ill health for many months, and unable to attend to his business duties. This week he was carried to a hospital in Birmingham, but little hope is held out for his recovery.

PASTURE GRASSES

We have just received 2,000 lbs. of Dallas, Carpet Grass and Lespedeza. Now is the time to plant. Our prices are right.

For a soil builder, nothing can beat a sowing of 25 lbs of Lespedeza on an acre of oats. See us for further detailed information on planting.

We have the most complete line of Seeds in Chilton County. Seed men from over the state tell us we have one of the most complete Seed Stores in the South.

We appreciate your business. You are the means of our success.

THE WEAVERS OF SPEECH

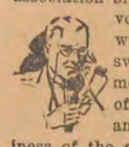
By T. E. Harris,
DISTRICT MANAGER

SOUTHERN BELL
Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Continually as upon a magic loom, the world is bound together by telephone. Operators at switchboards all over the world are forever weaving, in a tapestry of words, the story of many lives and the pattern of countless activities.

In and out of the switchboards move the cords that intertwine the voices of communities and continents. Swiftly, skillfully, the operators pick up the threads of speech and guide them across the miles, over high mountains and desert wastes, to moving ships or to distant lands across the seas.

In the truest sense, your telephone operator is both friend and neighbor. Often ties of kinship and association bind her to those whose voices come across the wires. Through her switchboard pass many messages daily that are of the greatest importance to the life and business of the community.



Bright and early in the morning she puts through a call that helps a farmer order a spare part for his tractor. Another connection finds out if Jim Thomas, "over near Bogard," is feeding a bunch of calves and needs any shelled corn. Another gets the latest price on heavy hogs for Bill Simpson. Through the day she aids in calling a doctor for Mrs. Moore, whose baby is ill. Puts through a long distance call for Bob Roberts, at the state college. Then, through the night, stands ever ready to help those in need.

Constantly in her mind and activities is one guiding purpose . . . "Speed the call!"

And the further thought that she serves best when she serves with courtesy and sympathetic understanding.

In the bustle of the city, as in town and country, that is the fixed purpose of every telephone employe.

Thorsby Institute News

Miss Lois Thompson of Piedmont College, according to a recent report, holds first place among the women honor students of the freshmen class, and second place in the honor list of all women students. Miss Thompson is a graduate of Thorsby Institute in the class of 1933. We quote from the report: "She takes a normal healthy interest in social activities as well as her class room work. Her personality is the sort we like to see cultivated in Piedmont."

On Friday night the faculty of Thorsby Institute entertained in the auditorium the parents of the students attending the school. Miss Jenkins welcomed the parents in a short speech to which Mrs. Billingsley responded. After this a song was sung. Then Miss Fairbanks, who has taught for the deaf, using the faculty as her class, showed how the deaf are taught lip-reading. Mrs. Vinson Sutlive and Mrs. H. R. Maddox sang a duet after which Miss Phillips gave a piano solo and Miss Boring gave a reading. A song closed the interesting program which had been well planned by Mr. Sutlive. After the program Miss McKee and Miss Klingelhoefer took charge of the group games which were very much enjoyed. After the games Miss Leech served refreshmnts, assisted by Misses McKee, Phillips and Mrs. H. R. Maddox.

School will be in session March 10, beginning at 8.15 and closing at 10.

God's Remedy For Depression

Editor Union-Banner:

This is God's remedy for business depression. We are living in a period of very unusual conditions in this land of ours, not only in our land but in all Europe and Asia also. All men are looking for a remedy. Of course there are two primary causes. The first is sin, second, machinery.

Mankind has turned away and departed from God. We are a wealthy, proud nation, and people with wealth brings pride. Pride most always brings sin and shame and departure from God. The remedy will be found in II Chronicle, 7th chapter and 14th verse, "If my people will humble themselves and pray and seek my face and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven and forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Our troubles, second, unemployed. If all machinery could be set to one side and we could go back seventy years, when people were poorer than now — and happier also — such thing as unemployment would be unheard of. Machines are doing the farm work as well as shoes and most all manufactured goods. One tractor will do more work or prepare more ground for seed than six mule teams.

One man operating one ditching machine right here will do more work in one day than seventy men could do. Four men to operate it, 66 men off. Just so with all work, machines are doing it. The unemployed are the result of machines. Since the World War we have lived far above our means. Autos have ruined our farmers. If properly used, they are a wonderful blessing, the finest thing that ever came our way. But, alas, many people ride about too much and work too little. Consequently they have come to grief.

Others right here voted bonds to build fine school houses. Now they are hard up against it and can't pay their taxes. There is only one to blame—the people themselves — for a good share of this present depression. "If my people will humble themselves and pray I will forgive their sin and heal their land." The people, many, many of them, will not humble themselves much less pray, but will go to baseball and football games, theaters, movies, horse-racing, all on the Lord's day. Is the Lord pleased with such, while church pews are nearly empty. Be not deceived. God is not mocked. Whatsoever we sow, that shall we also read. Sow to the wind we shall reap the whirlwind. Yes, we are reaping the whirlwind, such as tornadoes, cyclones, earthquakes, floods, famines, pestilence and war.

Know this also. "In the last days perilous times shall come." II Tim. 3rd chapter 1 to 6 verses. "The sea and waves roaring there shall be signs in the sun and moon, distress of nations, men's hearts failing for fear of the things that are coming upon the earth." Luke 21st chapter 25-26 verses. "For the power of heaven shall be shaken then." James 5th chapter, 1 to 6 verses. Go to now, ye rich then weep and howl for your miseries are come upon you.

God is dealing with His people today as in the time of Israel and think not that God will not mete out to each and everyone according as their works shall be. If God's people will humble themselves and pray, yea they will not pray nor repent, ye must repent or you shall all likewise perish. All the evils are come upon us because of sin. There is much sin among high school students, even drunkenness, not only young men but also young women. Be it to their shame. Fathers and mothers are at clubs, children at movies and most of them keep late hours, getting in at twelve o'clock. No wonder divorces are plentiful, and will continue so to be. Pray, who is at fault? Who is to blame for all this divorce? Christian people have no divorce—the society we keep, the life we live. We can all very well look at home for our troubles along that line. Also this would I say, many people lay great stress on cooperation for this depression. Not all, please. Your fast living, voting and floating excessive bonds, too many automobiles, too little real work; also what about farm loans? Nice to get the loan and spend it. Now interest and taxes are due. What about it? Now it hurts. All right, people must get back to the homestead or home, and live a clean and frugal life as we lived fifty years ago, and God will hear from heaven and He will heal our land and forgive our sins.—Sincerely yours, R. H. Gandy, Maplesville, Ala., Route 2.

Rev. P. G. Carter went to Dothan last Sunday and preached at the morning and evening services for one of the Baptist Churches in the city. He and Mrs. Carter, and son, Percy, plan to leave Clanton this week and spend a while with Mrs. Carter's relatives at Louisville, Alabama.

March 17, "The Wanderers," a quartet which Gresham Lowery is managing, will gave a concert at the Thorsby Institute Auditorium. It is sponsored by the Senior class. Admission will be ten cents for students and those under twelve, and twenty cents for all others. The quartet sang in chapel Friday morning and was very much enjoyed. In fact, we think it is the best quartet Mr. Lowery has had. The voices harmonized very well. Everyone is urged to come.

On Saturday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. the faculty and alumni of Thorsby Institute plan to give each a one-act play. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance. The plays are both comedies. So if you want a good laugh, come. The amount of admission will be announced later.

From the night of March 30 through Sunday night, April 1, the young people's Christian Life Conference will be held in the Institute and the Congregational Church.

Term examinations will take place March 15 and 16.

ROOSEVELTS KEEP THEIR INDIVIDUALITIES

Washington, March 4. — Twelve months of living behind the stately columns of the White House and associated with the title of the president of the United States have not erased the identity and individuality of Franklin D. Roosevelt and family.

For the members of the family, the 12 months have been a year and not just the first quarter of Mr. Roosevelt's term of office.

The proud old place with its ever-present psychology of greatness has caused no deviation in Rooseveltian daily habits. They have kept the same spontaneous way of doing things.

There has long been a saying in Washington that the White House subtly transforms all who go to live within its walls. Even the White House staff implicitly believed it. Presidents arrived informal and joking, became burdened with the affairs of state. President's wives came in calling their husbands by their first names, determined that the place should make no difference in their habits, and before they realized it were saying "the president."

Thus far this has not been true of the Roosevelts. Instead of falling into the White House pattern, the entire family set about making White House attaches accustomed to their way of doing things.

Franklin D. Roosevelt kept right on cracking jokes to his negro valet, McDuffie, as well as to dignitaries who came to counsel with him on public affairs.

He kept right on inviting the newspaper men and women in to Sunday night suppers, where he led the conversation off in a merry manner, and then listened to his guests hotly debate every subject under the sun.

There's not a current of present-day thought that hasn't hit the Roosevelt table during the past year, often with the twinkling eyed president artfully leading the debators on.

In some way, too, the president finds time to follow all his hobbies still—stamps, ship prints, marine collecting.

Mrs. Roosevelt, too, has managed to live her own life in the White House, even to minute details of the house management.

Breakfast may be a jolly meal in a sunny upper floor corridor end, instead of sedately served in the family dining room. In place of butlers hovering at all times, anticipating every service, Mrs. Roosevelt uses a tiny silver call bell.

There used to be an unvarying rule at the White House that only the authorized servants could work the automatic elevator. But Mrs. Roosevelt punches buttons as she pleases, though she often prefers to run upstairs.

Daughter Anna Dall, too, goes as unaffected and breezily on her way with old friends as though she lived in Hyde Park still; her small daughter, "Sistie," goes to a school in the same routine as other children, and no more fuss made about it.

The whole fabric of family jokes and customs was taken, in toto, into the executive mansion. Thanksgiving still meant Warm Springs and a foregathering with the crippled children there; Christmas a family party, and the reading of the Christmas carols; the president's birthday the rally of his old "1920 gang"; the wedding anniversary a recalling of St. Patrick's Day 1905, when Theodore Roosevelt went to New York to give his niece away.

OBITUARY

Eric N. Dyrhoved was born April 2, 1855, in Odelberg Parish, Norway; arrived in this country in 1879, and lived some years in Iowa. Came to Thorsby, Alabama in 1901. He was married to the surviving wife in 1883. Became a member of the Lutheran Church at Thorsby on February 9, 1919. Has been a deacon in this church for several years and was re-elected to this office at the last annual business meeting. He died after a lingering illness on March 1, 1934, at the age of 78 years, 10 months and 29 days. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Dyrhovd, and one brother in N. Dadota.

Funeral services were held last Sunday in the Lutheran church, Rev. A. T. Fant officiating.

Mr. Dyrhovd's brother arrived on Monday afternoon from North Dakota, too late for the funeral.

It would be much appreciated if those who have promised money or provisions for the Institute Boarding Department—and not given yet—would do so as soon as possible.

It will be interesting to the many friends of Hazel Maddox—a Thorsby Institute graduate of the class of 1929—to know that during the past semester she was sixth on the list of Piedmont women attaining high honor standing. She is House Chairman of Commons Hall, is vice president of the Theta Zeta Phi Literary Society, and is active in Christian Endeavor and Y. W. C. A. She is also president of the Senior Class. Aside from these responsibilities and honors, she is working a part of her way through college. In it all she is showing a fine spirit of cooperation.

MARION W. MIMS

Republican Candidate for
CLERK OF THE CIRCUIT COURT

Thorsby, Alabama Route 1, March 5, 1934.

Union-Banner:

Since I have not written a letter to the voters of Chilton County, I take this means of getting a few words to the people. As you noticed in my announcement, it is not my purpose to appeal to the voters of this county from the standpoint of a partisan or one who has taken sides with any particular faction, if factions exist. My purpose is to come straight to the people and submit my candidacy impartially and to ask the voters of this county to consider me on my merits as a citizen and a Republican.

As to my qualifications, I submit to you the work done in the high schools of my county as a teacher and principal of such schools. In addition also I have, at all times, found plenty to do on my little farm here at home when not employed in the school work of the state. I have not had time to look for work elsewhere. For this reason I think it will be easy for me to see things pertaining to a county office, from the standpoint of the working man as well as from the professional man's viewpoint.

You will also see that my employment in the school room at present, and until the middle of May, will make it impossible for me to call on every individual at his home. Nevertheless, I want everyone to feel that his or her help in the coming primary will be genuinely appreciated and that I should feel greatly honored by my county if you should give me the nomination in May and carry this nomination to victory in November. Your choice in this primary, May 1st, will be my choice through the fall election.

Thanking you for any help which you may feel like giving me in my race and assuring you that if I am nominated and elected by my party it will be my full purpose to stand by your every interest and to fight for the right "as God gives me to see the right" as long as you may see fit to entrust me with public office, I am,

Most sincerely yours,

MARION W. MIMS.

Our Sunday school met Sunday at 10 o'clock with a good attendance.

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. Everybody is invited to come.

Last Thursday, March 1, being Mr. Zack Lowery's birthday, the family had a surprise birthday dinner for him. He was 51 years old. At noon a bountiful dinner was served. The men spent the day in hunting, and the ladies in quilting. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lowery, Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Littlejohn and little daughter, Nina Fay, Mr. and Mrs. Grady Cooper and little daughter, Mattie Jean, Mrs. Maggie Jones, Mrs. E. P. Littlejohn, Mr. Quincy Littlejohn and Mr. and Mrs. Zack Lowery, Earl and Zane Lowery.

Quite a number in our community are confined to bed with the measles. We hope they will soon be able to attend Sunday school and preaching again.

Several from this community attended the singing at Mt. Pisgah Sunday afternoon.

We are sorry indeed to hear about Mr. Quincey Littlejohn being in the hospital. He underwent an operation for appendicitis Sunday. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Zack Lowery spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Littlejohn.

Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Cotton of Birmingham and Miss Gertrude Jones were visitors to Sunday school Sunday.

Miss Callie and Louetta Cooper were guests of Miss Gladys Turner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lowery were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Littlejohn.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Crow were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Moore.

Mr. Arthur Cox Jr., spent Sunday with Mr. William Lowery.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lowery spent last Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Grady Cooper.

Next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing afternoon. All singers and lovers of music have a special invitation to come.

INK DROPS

from COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

By Dan Smith

Foremost in the news from Chilton County High School for this week is news on the Senior Class Memorial. As it was mentioned week before last, the class decided on leaving an entrance gate for the southern end of the driveway. The materials for this structure have arrived and bids for construction were received during the first part of the week and the work is expected to begin some time during this week. By taking every good opportunity and by hard work, the senior class has put a large sum of money into their treasury. So the senior class of 1933-34 will not leave the entrance gate only, but will also leave other objects for the beautification of the campus and for the further improvement of the school equipment.

The student body and the members of the Senior Class extend their sincere regrets and sympathy to Helen and Joe Moore in their recent bereavement.

As it is the annual custom for the Senior II class to entertain the Senior III class, the Senior II's, under the direction of Miss Margaret Kendrick, class advisor, are laying plans for their annual play. This play will be given in order to raise the necessary funds for the annual Junior-Senior entertainment. Further announcements will be made in the near future.

The response given to the Shakespearian play, "Macbeth," presented at the high school on February 27 by a professional troupe, exceeded the expectations of all. The attendance was large and it is probable that the troupe will return next year with a larger number of players. This play was sponsored by the Senior III class, and they wish to express their appreciation to the Maplesville, Jemison, Thorsby and Isabella communities for their splendid attendance. Other communities were well represented also.

On Monday before the "Macbeth" play, several members of the Senior III English class, who have recently studied Macbeth, presented a brief preview of the play during chapel period. The story, the history and other interesting facts about the play were given in order that those who were familiar with it could easily understand the play. Taking part on this program were Frances Davis, Maralyn Hardy, Roberta Cochran and Virgil Robinson. Roberta Cochran is to be highly commended on the excellent maner in which she told the story of this classical drama. Her recitation won the commendations of a number of the teachers and students. Miss Frances Gulledge is the teacher of the English class.

The Senior I Class, with Miss Frances Gulledge as teacher, is to be lauded for their interest in Shakespeare and their splendid program in chapel last Thursday. Students from this class brought before the student body by splendid acting the "Seven Ages of Man." This is a well know selection taken from Shakespeare's "As You Like It", in which he describes the seven ages that make up a man's life. These seven ages begin with the helpless infant and end up with second childhood and mere oblivion.

It is pleasing to note that the famous and highly recommended screen play, "Little Women," was attended by many of the C.C.H.S. students. As everyone knows, it was adapted from Louise Mae Aleatt's immortal book of the same name.

Although the basketball season has been closed, the Chilton County high school team played the local fire department team last Friday night. Both teams played well and laurels are due to the Chilton team for their superb playing. The score was 33 to 31, in favor of the school after one extra period.

Read the story on the front page about our basketball team.

Ever watchful for an opportunity to broaden the scientific knowledge of his physics students—that is Mr. Varnell, our science instructor. While the Ford Motor Company was displaying their cut-away chassis here, which enables one to see the inside working parts of the car in motion, Mr. Varnell took his physics class to see this. It is in correlation with their study of automobiles, and was a splendid means of allowing them to really see the intricate parts of the automobile which they will study.

Quite a number of students have been absent from school due to the measles, including the writer, which explains the absence of "Ink Drops" last week. The Senior class was sorry to learn that one of their members, Osmond Glenn, suffered small losses during the storms Sunday before last.

Who Am I? . . . Yes, you guessed it last week and I have just come out of my hole to attempt another try. Here goes: I am a girl. I am popular among my set. I have dark hair. I am liked for my friendliness and for my school spirit. And I am admired and respected for my intelligence and manners. Who am I? You're right again. It was John Ezell last week.

A visitor to C. C. H. S. would have his attention drawn to the exhibits on display in the corridor. On tables and on the bulletin boards one would see beautiful examples of booklets, posters, and other work of the students. Novel ideas in colors and form, original ideas in construction, and excellent work are outstanding. These exhibits include booklets and posters on works of Shakespeare made by the Senior I and II English classes; intricate and accurate drawings from the geometry class; realistic drawings from the biology department; exact and "to the point" drawings from the physics class; and other displays which deserve the highest of praise.

So They Say . . . (These articles are the personal expressions of the writer and deal with outside activities of the students) . . . I wonder if "they" will make candy tomorrow as the crowd did one Friday before when they were "absent" from school . . . 'Tis amusing how some "young ladies" act so cold when a certain boy or boys come around. What fools they are. Keep it up . . . But it's fine to notice that one has left this "acting" few. It is sincerely hoped that she remains so . . . If a certain Senior II only knew. It would be lots better for her . . . He's innocent, but I wouldn't use the adjectives, "poor little" . . . Some want to know if a certain Senior II went to Prattville a Saturday night or so ago . . . She surely was disappointed on that same Saturday night but can you blame him?

CANE CREEK

The attendance was not so good at Sunday school last Sunday. But spring is coming now, and we want everybody to come back to Sunday school and attend regularly.

Next Sunday is our preaching day. Everybody be there at 10:00 o'clock, so we can get through with Sunday school by 11:00. Rev. W. E. Robinson will preach Saturday at 11:00, Saturday night, Sunday at 11:00 and Sunday night. Saturday night we are going to give away the quilt we have been selling chances on. So if you have bought a chance be there, you might get it. Everybody invited to all of these services for you will hear some good preaching.

On account of bad weather we could not have our B. Y. P. U. for the last few Sunday nights, but we hope to have some pretty weather now, and next Sunday night we will have a program. We want to have a large crowd. And don't forget next Sunday afternoon is our regular singing afternoon. We invite all singers and those that can't sing also. And remember you always have a warm welcome at Cane Creek at any and all services.

SINGING AT UNION GROVE

Mr. A. H. Glasscock, of Jemison, was in The Banner office Monday afternoon, and asked that the announcement be made of a singing to be held at Union Grove next Sunday afternoon. This will be a meeting of the United Singing Society, and singers from everywhere are urged to attend.

Mr. Glasscock asked that a long write-up be made of this singing, similar to those we have around Clanton. Well, this editor doesn't know much to say except just the facts in the case. But we might add that the the fact that the United Singing Society is behind the singing ought to attract the attention of the music lovers of the county. We had the pleasure of attending our first meeting of this society at this same place—Union Grove—eight years ago, and the organization was old then. It has meant more to the cause of sacred song in Chilton County than any other organization of its kind.

We hope the singers will rally to Mr. Glasscock's invitation and have a real good singing up there next Sunday afternoon. He will have a supply of the new mid-term Morris-Henson books to use and to sell to all who want to buy.

SINGING AT CHESTNUT CREEK

Our singing society met last Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. We had a beautiful day and everybody seemed to enjoy the singing fine. We were especially glad to have the visiting singers. Thank you for your splendid help.

Singing was opened by Chairman L. D. Hughes, singing one song, led in prayer by J. R. Robinson. Directors for the afternoon were as follows: W. M. Devaughn, Paul Hughes, Orvid Hughes, Clayton Miller, J. B. Crew, Floy Devaughn, Dewell Jones, L. T. Grant, O. L. Devaughn, Ralph D. Grant, Pete Wilson, A. O. Boswell, Mr. Bennette and Milton Hughes. All sung one to two songs each. The Frisky Four quartet sung two songs.

A splendid quartet was arranged by Ralph D. Grant, which was enjoyed by everybody; also Mr. Grant sang a solo. The only thing I can say against it is he did not sing but one verse of it.

Pianists for the afternoon were: Claudia Hughes, Ralph D. Grant, Bertie Grant, Louanna Jones. Mr. Grant, Mr. W. M. Devaughn, Mr. O. L. Devaughn and Floy Devaughn sang the closing song. We were dismissed by Rev. J. W. Jones.

Everybody is invited to come back on the first Sunday, providing we don't call it off for the Easter singing. We will put it in the paper later.—Louanna Jones, Secretary.

RUPTURE

SHIELD EXPERT IN MONTGOMERY

H. M. Shevnan, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Jefferson Davis Hotel, Montgomery, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, only, March 10, 11, and 12, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m..

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zoetic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increases the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fit them if desired.

For 15 years assistant to F. H. Seeley, famous rupture expert of Chicago. 1tpd.

Dr. and Mrs. Amzi Gowan and family of Brewton, were here Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. W. I. Mullins, father of Mrs. Gowan.

APPLICATION FOR PAROLE

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Eddie Williams, who was convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton County on January 24, 1934, on a charge of violating the prohibition law, and sentenced to the penitentiary for three months, will make application for pardon or parole.—Eddie Williams. 3-1-2tpd.

MR. T. J. TIPPETT DIED

J. W. Tippett was called to his brother's bedside at Whigham, Ga., on February 8th. Father, mother and I stayed two weeks. He suffered with double pneumonia and other complications. The doctors, nurse, relatives and friends did everything they could for him. On February 22, believing him to be better, we came home. I received a telegram on February 26 stating he was dead. Father Dudley, Arthur and I went to his funeral.

The deceased has many friends in Chilton and Coosa Counties, having served as sheriff of Coosa County. He likewise won many friends in Georgia. He was always willing and anxious to lend a helping hand. He was a member of a church, also a Mason and was buried with Masonic honors. We feel assured that he has gone to rest for he said he was ready to go.

He leaves to mourn his loss, a devoted wife, Mrs. Lola Gothard Tippett, four daughters, Mrs. Mollie B. Foster, Wigham, Ga.; Mrs. Mattie Waldrop, Wigham, Ga.; Mrs. Chellie Burk of Ohio, and Miss Maysel Tippett at home; four sons, T. L. Tippett, Wigham, Ga.; Alvin Tippett, of Ohio, George and Jack Tippett at home; two brothers, J. W. Tippett of Clanton and Joe Tippett, Sylacauga, and a host of other relatives and friends. — Written by a nephew, George Tippett, Clanton.

Season Record Of Basket Ball Team

Deserving Record Scored By Athletic Unit of Chilton County High School

(By Dan Smith)

Ten fine boys, members of the Chilton County High School Basketball Team, sadly marched into the gymnasium and prepared their uniforms for storage until next year and another.

This remarkable basketball team had added a deserving chapter to the athletic history of Chilton County High School, under the efficient and highly successful coaching of Coach J. T. Searcy, the C. C. H. S. basketball team of 1934 went through the season with an enviable record.

Backed by the loyal spirit of their fellow students, and of the members of the faculty, and with laudable team work and personal effort, the boys have won praises far and wide. Not only are these deserved praises given on their superb tactics, but are duly given on their sterling sportmanship and clean playing.

After closing a series of hard games the team ended their basketball season with an exceptional showing at the district tournament. They were not defeated until in the semi-finals. The Chilton team also tied the winners of the tournament, which were the boys from Jemison, and the tie was played off with Chilton losing by only one point. With this marvelous record cleanly written to their credit, the Chilton Tigers closed the basketball season.

Their schedule was composed of games with the strongest of the teams in the state. A Chilton fan looks with pride upon the final check up which reveals seven victories and only four defeats. It is also worth noticing that these defeats were exceedingly small margins. Here is published approximately accurate scores of the games:

Chilton—30	Billingsley—16
Chilton—34	Billingsley—18
Chilton—25	Marbury—13
Chilton—30	Marbury—11
Chilton—20	Wetumpka—24
Chilton—24	Verbena— 7
Chilton—31	Holtville—34
Chilton—19	Jemison—20
Chilton—28	Holtville—19
Chilton—26	Wetumpka—23
Chilton—267	Opponents—185

The boys making up the Chilton High basketball team and those who faithfully did their part throughout the entire season are, Theodore Littlejohn, Willis Baker, James Dennis, Melvin Powell, James Tiffin, Emanuel Cooper, Cecil Jones, Frank Hogan and U. L. Baker.

A checkup upon the scores of the games showed that the boys leading in scores were, in order of number of scores, are; Willis Baker, James Tiffin, and James Dennis.

The highest compliments and praises are due to those boys making up the C. C. H. S. basketball squad and to their coach.

SOME FACTS ABOUT LESPEDEZA

Many farmers have made inquiry about lespedeza for the past few weeks. A few facts stated below will help to answer many questions:

1. Lespedeza, a summer-growing legume, is adapted to most Alabama soils. It will not grow on the strong lime lands and makes little growth on sandy hills.

2. Lespedeza is a valuable pasture plant, a good soil-builder, and on the rich moist bottom lands, especially in the Tennessee and Coosa Valleys, it may grow high enough to cut for hay. The hay is of good quality.

3. Broacast lespedeza the last of February or in March on small grain at the rate of 25 pounds per acre. Cotton land being sown in lespedeza may be disked before sowing. Land freshly plowed should be settled by rains before sowing lespedeza. For pastures lespedeza is usually broadcast on the sod at the rate of about 10 pounds per acre. For soil improvement 8 to 10 pounds per acre may be sowed. It will reseed to a stand the second year.

4. Artificial inoculation of lespedeza is not necessary in Alabama.

5. Lespedeza is ordinarily not fertilized. An application of 200 to 400 pounds per acre of superphosphate or the equivalent in basic slag may increase the yield.

6. Kobe, Tennessee 76, and Common, annual varieties are best for Alabama. Lespedeza sericea is a perennial crop which has not been tried sufficiently to determine its value to Alabama farmers. Many farmers are planting small patches of this variety for observation.

7. The legal weight of common lespedeza is 25 pounds per bushel. Legal weights of Kobe and Lespedeza sericea have not been, established but Kobe is usually considered to weigh 30 pounds per bushel and unhulled sericea 33 to 34 pounds per bushel.

8. Farmers may save a home supply of lespedeza seed. Seed may be saved by attaching a special pan behind the cutter bar of the mowing machine. Methods for saving seed can be had by applying to the county agent.

9. Much of the land being removed from cotton production can well be planted in lespedeza for soil building, for hay or seed purposes and for home use. This will be in keeping with the acreage reduction contract. The productivity of thin lands may be greatly increased by allowing them to remain in lespedeza for a few years.

Seed stores in Clanton carry supplies of seed at reasonable prices. Get some seed and plant as soon as possible.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

Billy Foshee Died Wednesday A. M.

Clanton Night Policeman Expired Early Wednesday Morning at His Home West of Town

William B. Foshee, age 59 years, night policeman of Clanton, died suddenly about seven o'clock Wednesday morning at his home a short distance west of the city.

Mr. Foshee had been sick for a few days past, and had been off duty during that time. He sent word to Chief of Police, Hardy Tuesday that he was feeling better and would be back on duty again Wednesday night.

When he arose from bed Wednesday morning, death suddenly seized him as he was putting on his clothes.

Funeral arrangements, which are in charge of Martin, are announced at Liberty Hill church at two p.m. Thursday.

Mr. Foshee is survived by his wife, Mrs. Susie Foshee, and nine children as follows:

Mrs. Birdie Parrish, Thorsby; Mrs. Tom Littlejohn, Clanton; Mrs. Dolphus Baker, Julius Foshee, Mrs. Odell Headley, Miss Annie Mae Foshee, Lloyd Foshee, J. Foshee and Miss Flora Foshee.

Basketball Tonight

The last basketball game of this season will be played tonight (Thursday) when the Eleventh Avenue Methodist team from Birmingham comes here for another tilt with the Clanton Fire Department, at the high school.

With a modest reserve the Fire Boys express their disappointment at the small attendance their games have received here this season. They say if the Fire Department were as slow and uncertain about going to fires as the people have been in attending their games, the whole town would have burned down long ago.

UNCLE JIM MIMS DIED ON MONDAY

County Commissioner Passed Away After Being Sick A Long Time

County Commissioner, J. M. Mims, age 71 years, died Monday afternoon about two o'clock, at a Birmingham hospital, after an illness of many months. The body was brought to his home in Thorsby by Speigner, and buried at Collins Chapel Tuesday afternoon. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. P. Lowery, assisted by Rev. J. W. Jones and Rev. S. J. Ezell. A great throng of people attended to pay their last respects to the departed friend, citizen and county official.

Mr. Mims is survived by his wife, Mrs. Martha Mims; one son, Elijah Mims, of Collins Chapel; two daughters, Mrs. Spurgeon Calloway, of Clanton and Mrs. Jack Robinson, of Jemison.

Mr. Mims was elected Commissioner of the Second District of Chilton County in 1922, and served his first term from 1923 to 1927. He began his second term in 1931, and would have served until next January, if he had lived.

For some months past his health has prevented him from actively attending to the duties of the office. He had not been able to attend a meeting of the court for several weeks past.

In respect to the departed official all offices in the courthouse were closed at noon Tuesday. All business suspended and the other county officials attended the funeral.

Uncle Jim, as he was affectionately known by his many friends, was a native of the Collins Chapel community. Throughout his long life he has held a place of the highest esteem among his neighbors. He has been one of the prime factors in the development of that part of Chilton County. As a public official he made a splendid record in the administration of public business.

A successor to Mr. Mims as county commissioner will be appointed by Governor Miller. It is understood that recommendations for the appointment of Jim Williams, of Beat 9, have been made by Democrats of Chilton County to the Governor.

Girls Basket Ball

(By Dan Smith)

Not only does Chilton County High School have a boy's basketball team that they can justly boast of, but there is another organization which deserves and receives equal praise—the girl's basketball team. With only a year of experience on the courts these girls gained a place of recognition for the C. C. H. S. basketball team. Deserving a large share in the success of this team is their coach, Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin.

With a well trained and exceedingly capable coach to direct their activities and with that spirit that is necessary for a winning team, this group of girls put out an effort not in vain. Each game of their eleven game schedule was played with the vigor and cleanliness that brings forth commendation from everyone. Whether they were the victors or not, that same evidence of fine sportsmanship was observed in each player. Excellent playing, laudable school spirit and clean sportsmanship are the three phrases that describe Chilton's girl's basketball team and their coach.

Below is printed a sumary of the season's games. The first score is that of Chilton's and the second score is that of the opponent.

Interesting Summary of Work Done By Civil Works In Chilton County

There are hundreds of people in Chilton County who, not being connected with the local Civil Works Administration in any way, are very probably not aware of the real worth the CWA now is and will be to the county in years to come.

Aside from the thousands of dollars that has been put into circulation by work on the several projects, and the provision of employment to hundreds of persons throughout the county during the winter, who otherwise might, and most probably would have been idle, we should consider a few of the main projects that have been put through.

So, we will divide the work up into several divisions, and try to show the effects of each of these.

First, drainage. For years and years the question of draining the swamps around Clanton has been one of great importance. This question has been brought up almost every year for the past several years, but the result was always the same. After investigation, it was always found that the cost of carrying out the work would be too great, and so the work was never done. This drainage question was brought to the attention of the engineers and the CWA board of the county, and approval was given for a great drainage project in the Clanton district. The result is, after a winter of much activity, that we find great ditches and canals to the North, East and South of the county seat, to carry away the excess water in rainy seasons, and to banish the stagnant pools that form in the creeks during the dry summer months, and breed mosquitoes and flies. This project, alone, will be worth much more than it cost and Clanton will benefit from it for years to come. After all, too, it must be remembered that it has been considered impossible until the CWA came along and did it. In addition to this, there has been other work of this kind done in the vicinity of Cooper.

Second, Clanton Airport. With the aid given under C.W.A., plans for the airport call for the erection of hangars, and buildings of various kinds, athletic fields, etc., which will make of this a fine community center. On top of all this, the airport will give Clanton a chance some day to be a regular stop on mail and passenger airlines. The airport is one of the biggest projects, and when finished, should give Clanton something that her people may be proud of.

Third, school buildings. There are four school projects, and one school ground project in the county. A new school, from foundation to roof, is being built at Cooper, of native sandstone. Additions are being made to the school buildings at Collins Chapel, Isabella and Enterprise. The school at Cooper will be one of the most beautiful in the county, and the additions to the other buildings will give the room that has been needed so badly to accommodate the large number of students, and to make these institutions some of the best Junior High Schools in the state. The school ground project is at Thorsby Public School, where the grounds have been graded, terraced and grassed, making it one of the most beautiful school sites in the county.

Fourth, roads and bridges. Numbers of roads over the county have been graded and graveled. Proper shape has been given the beds of these roads, and adequate ditches have been made along them to carry off excess water. To try to go into discussion of each individual road project would take too long, but the work has done much to help in keeping Chilton County's roads up to their high standard. Numerous road boxes and small bridges have been built, and a big bridge over Walnut Creek in the Union Point community has already been finished; this bridge has rock approaches, and rests on rock footings.

Fifth, surveys. There have been numerous surveys made in the county, such as health surveys, a survey of tax delinquency and many others, which should yield much valuable information that will help in solving many problems to be met in community betterment.

And so, the work of the CWA should not be looked upon as something which has provided work, but as something that has really built for the future. The money that has been spent in these projects has been of much help to the unemployed, but the benefits to be derived by the people of the county in years to come will far overshadow the mere monetary benefits.

It is true that much money has been spent, and it may seem that much of it has been wasted, but a close study of the projects separately, and of the work in the county as a whole will show that such is not the case. This work has been needed all along, and the CWA has merely made it possible that these much needed improvements might be realized.

In order to show more fully the financial help that the Civil Works Administration has been to the people of Chilton County, we give below actual figures and estimates on the work.

In all, thirty-nine projects have been worked, including several roads, school grounds, school buildings, an airport, several drainage projects and various surveys.

Of these, twenty-six have been completed. On these completed projects the following figures have been compiled. For labor, $60,772.30; for materials and equipment (including truck, and team hire), $5,049.58; a total of $65,821.88.

There are thirteen projects in progress now. These have spent as follows, to date for labor, $33,937.72; for materials and equipment, $7,028.14; total, $40,965.86.

Estimates have been made up for these thirteen projects, to include approximate expense to April 1. These figures are as follows: For labor, $8,368.35; for material and equipment, $93.22; a total of $8,461.57.

The figures above include all projects carried, except two state projects and the federal projects. The figures are not as yet available.

The above figures show, therefore, that the Civil Works Administration has already spent over $106,000 in our county, and with the estimate for the rest of the program running well over $8,000, the administration will have spent over $115,000 here, up to April 1.

Considering all the above, money spent, real worth while and needful work carried out, one may really see the great help that has been given Chilton County and her people have much to thank the Civil Works Administration for.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

Services will be held at the Congregational church next Sunday, although we cannot announce at this time who will occupy the pulpit. Sunday school and Christian Endeavor will be as usual.

Services at the Lutheran church on next Sunday morning will be in English.

BUSINESS BETTER SURVEY REVEALS

More Than Usual Gain Is Noted For the Month of January

Washington—A more than usual business gain in February and a moderate improvement in January were reported Friday by the official "survey of current business" by the government.

"The expansion in industrial production," the report said, "has done greater than the usual seasonal rise for this period, and the statistics of car loadings also show a favorable trend in primary distribution."

Although employment and payrolls declined between mid-December and mid-January, preliminary data as of mid-February indicated an improvement in private employment and payrolls.

Retail sales data indicated a decline in January of about the usual proportions, following the greater than seasonal increases of December.

Construction contracts have tended to lag since December and the seasonally adjusted index has declined following the rapid rise in the last four months of 1933.

Foreign trade statistics revealed a decrease in exports in January which was only partially accounted for by seasonal factors and a rise in imports.

Commodity prices have tended upward in recent weeks. The wholesale commodity price index was nearly 5 per cent higher in the week ended Feb. 17 than in the third week of December. Retail prices and the cost of living also advanced in January.

Meanwhlie, the problem of stirring activity in the heavy industries continued to receive administration attention. The Interstate Commerce Commission approved one PWA loan to a railroad and received applications from two others for loans to buy steel rails and other new equipment.

The B. & O. Company received approval of a loan of $1,500,000 to assist in buying 35,000 tons of steel rail and fixtures.

Receivers for the Seaboard Airline Railway Company asked permission to borrow $3,500,000 and the Boston & Maine Railroad Company asked for a loan of $1,550,000.

The commission has approved every such application.

The Baltimore & Ohio plans to spend $2,350,500 for rails, fastenings and ballast as well as the necessary labor on the tracks.

Increasing output in most of the major manufacturing industries, and the larger production of coal, resulted in an advance of three points in the adjusted index of industrial production in January to 78 per cent of the 1923-25 average.

Production was substantially higher than in 1933 and was 7 per cent above 1932.

Financial markets in February were featured by a heavy inflow of gold from abroad, which resulted in excess reserves of member banks reaching more than $1,000,000,000, a record total.

The people of Chilton County are urged to read the advertisements in The Chilton County News and The Union-Banner this week, from which you will be able to gather a vivid picture of the opportunities that are offorded you by the local merchants, and the cordial spirit of the local business people in their desire to serve you.

In addition to the exceptional offerings the merchants are making in the mere selling of merchandise you need, there are many added features which will make your participation in this sale of special attractiveness to all.

Prosperity Sale Week comes out of the suggestion made to the merchants of Chilton County through the National Re-Employment Service and the Kiwanis Club of Clanton, to promote re-employment, further distribute business volume, to promote home trade, and impress the people of the county with the greater advantages of doing business with home merchants. Acting upon this suggestion the merchants have demonstrated their willingness to meet the people more than half way in their offerings.

The people of Chilton County are sincerely invited by these merchants to take part in this great event. You are requested to see your home merchant first and consider with him your needs.

Remember, when you trade with any merchant anywhere, who is participating in this sale, you stand in line for any of the special advantages that are offered. The sale starts on next Saturday morning at each and every store which is cooperating. There will be a sign displayed at each of these stores. Wherever you see this sign, you are urged to come right in and make your wants known. The sale will close on Saturday night, March 24.

BILLY SMITH APPOINTED POSTMASTER AT CLANTON

Advice received from Washington Tuesday night stated that Billy Smith, editor of the Chilton County News, has been given temporary appointment as Postmaster at Clanton, succeeding Wiley M. Bean, whose term of office is expired.

When asked for a statement in regard to the matter Wednesday morning Mr. Smith said, "I know nothing about it. I am not an applicant for the position of postmaster."

KIWANIS CLUB ANNIVERSARY

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will celebrate its sixth anniversary at the regular club meeting Thursday night at Exchange Hotel.

A delegation of Kiwanians from Selma will be here to put on the program. The Selma Club sponsored the organization of the Clanton Club, which began its activities in March, 1928.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

NEW SUGAR CANES IN ALABAMA

Many Chilton County farmers are finding it increasingly difficult to grow enough cane for the home supply of syrup. Frequently one hears a farmer say, "Cane won't grow on my land like it used to." Usually the decreased yield is due to the mosiac disease. Signs of this disease are not conspicious, the most prominent being a general paleness of the leaves noticable from a distance. Mosiac seriously stunts the cane.

Growing disease-resistant varieties is the easiest mean of reducing mosiac damage.

P. O. J. and Cayana, resistant varieties, have been introduced and widely distributed in Alabama over the last four years through the efforts of the Alabama Extension Service.

P. O. J. is a reddish or purplish red cane. The syrup has a fine flavor and is somewhat dark in color.

Cayana is a greenish cane and it makes a lighter colored syrup than common cane and P. O. J.

A newer strain, C. P. 807, appears to be more promising than either P. O. J. or Cayana. It is a greenish colored cane and makes a lighter colored syrup than P. O. J., but darker than Cayana. It is more resistant to disease than the other varieties, not having shown any traces of disease up to now, it is claimed. It is very resistant to red rot, whereas others are susceptible. In tests of the bureau of plant industry this cane yielded 10 to 15 per cent more than Cayana and P. O. J.

C. P. 807 has been grown in Barbour and Escambia Counties in 1933 and the indications are that it will be popular. It is suggested that where seed canes can be obtained that small plots of this cane be planted for observation. If it proves to be satisfactory, a supply of planting canes will be quickly available.

While certain farmers and certain communities may have a surplus of syrup yet many farmers still fail to produce the home supply of syrup. Production of a home supply of syrup is another use for some of the abandoned cotton lands. By growing mosiac-resistant canes is necessary in most of Alabama cane-growing counties if satisfactory yields are made.

For further information on sugar cane see United States Department of Agriculture Circular No. 284.

Anyone interested in getting a start with C. P. 807 sugar cane may get in touch with the county agent. We can buy it for $2.00 per 100 stalks, f.o.b shipping point.—J. W. Fant.

More than 900,000 American farm boys and girls are enrolled in 4-H club work. News of this great organization is heard over NBC radio stations on the first Saturday in each month, 11:30 to 12:30 p.m., WAPI in Birmingham being the outlet for Alabama.

Essentials in producing healthy pullets are early hatching, healthy chicks, sanitary brooders and runs, and proper feed, according to H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman at Auburn.

WOMEN AND GIRLS HAVE A RECORD YEAR IN '33 CLUB WORK

Auburn, Ala., March 13.—When the 50,232 farm women and girls of Alabama who are members of home demonstration clubs in 54 of the 67 counties recapitulated their achievements of 1933 they found that $5,814,323.32 was the total value of products which they had produced. They found also that they had received $875,385 in cash from sales of a portion of these products, thereby leaving most of them for home consumption.

The total is a substantial increase over 1932 when the members of these home demonstration clubs for women and 4-H club girls reported $4,011,262.37 as the total value of products which they had produced and either sold or kept for home use.

The increase this year was in step with the spirit of richer home living, economy in operation, and increased income for farm families. The money received from the sale of these products was spent wisely for the use of the farm families—women, girls, men and boys—particularly in this constructive work, which is reported to be remaking farm homes and rapidly changing rural life.

These statistics were released by Miss Helen Johnston, state home demonstration agent, and Miss Margaret Garrett, state leader in food preservation, after they had compiled reports received from county home demonstration agents.

"The year has been," said Miss Johnston, "the best in the history of home demonstration work in Alabama. Larger achievements were attained not only in products produced for sale and for home consumption but in all other home demonstration projects."

Present high prices of cowpeas, sorghum, and other forage crop seed points to the fact that the thrifty Alabama farmer will this year produce his own seed for next season. "Usually," says J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, "the man who has an abundance of good home-grown seed has plenty of food and feed for his family and livestock."

Farmers who buy baby chicks this year will benefit from the provisions of the breeders and hatchery code which became effective in January, according to officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The code does not regulate the price but it does prohibit the selling of chicks and eggs below cost of production.

Fruit forms an important part of any well-regulated diet and the food budget of every Alabama farm family should include a liberal supply of such fruits as can be grown economically in the various sections of the state, says Julian Brown, extension horticulturist at Auburn. Among the fruits that may be grown in Alabama are peaches, apples, plums, cherries, pears, persimmons, figs, satsumas, grapes, strawberries, dewberries, and blackberries. Pecans may often be planted as shade trees along roadsides and drives or as ornamental trees about the home rather than in the orchard.

HOME PRODUCTION OF SOYBEAN SEED URGED FOR IDLE ACRES

Auburn, Ala., March 13.—With the present high price of soybeans, the home production of seed this year on lands taken out of cotton production is urged by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist at Auburn.

"Just now," says Mr. Lowery, "Ototan seed and that of other soybean varieties are so high that most farmers are unable to purchase them. Since soybeans are valuable in both poultry and hog production and as a temporary grazing crop during periods of scant pasture, it will be good business for farmers this year to grow large amounts of soybeans not only for these purposes, but also enough to supply seed for next year."

Mr. Lowery reported that progress in the home production of soybean seed was made in 1933 in Randolph, St. Clair, Etowah, Calhoun, DeKalb, Cullman and Perry Counties.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars each year are sent out of Alabama for the purchase of soybean seed, said Mr. Lowery. "Farmers could save these dollars by growing their own seed."

In producing the home supply of soybean seed, Mr. Lowery makes the following suggestions:

"One-half acre of land as a soybean seed plot will produce sufficient seed for the average two-horse farm. Also soybeans planted between the hills of a few acres of corn when it is planted will give a good supply of seed. This plan has been followed very successfully by many farmers of this state especially in producing Ototan seed.

"Another method is to plant rows of soybeans between watermelon rows, between rows of first-year kudzu, or on terraces. Plant when danger of killing frost is past and by the first of June. If planted alone, have rows wide enough to permit one or two light cultivations.

"Apply either basic slag or superphosphate when planting soybeans.

"Ototans may be left in the field until the leaves have fallen. Cut with a scythe or mow when there is sufficient dew to prevent serious shattering. It is customary with Ototans interplanted in corn to cut the vines out with a hoe, gather up bundles and frail them across the wagon body, later cleaning up the seed thus collected. Mammoth Yellow and Laredos should be mowed after the seed are fully developed but before they are so mature as to permit much shattering."

One of the two flappers in the bus was reading a newspaper.

"I see," she remarked to her companion, "that Mr. So-and-So, the octogenerian, is dead. Now, what on earth is an octogenerian?"

"I'm sure I haven't the faintest idea," replied the other. "But they're a sickly lot. You never hear of one but he's dying."

UNIVERSITY NEWS

Tuscaloosa, Ala., March 13.—Alabama industries maintained a higher level of activity during January than they have in the past 12 months, statistics issued by the Business News, University of Alabama Commerce School publication revealed recently. Only cotton spindle activity was less than the corresponding period for 1933, the survey shows. Every branch of industry in the state rose above January, 1933. The most abrupt rise in industry took place in amount of building contracts awarded. Cotton consumption, in running bales, has approached closest to normal activity, being only 7.5 per cent below the 1926 mark.

Mrs. Albert Thomas, of Auburn, connected with the TVA, is at the university this week for the purpose of gathering data for a project on which she is working for the TVA. Mrs. Thomas is visiting schools in this district that had less than 120 days of school last year for the purpose of learning what children did in their leisure time when they were not in school.

Delta Zeta ranked first among the Greek-letter sororities during the first semester with a scholastic average of 2.230. Kappa Kappa Gamma finished second with 1.913 while Alpha Chi Omega was third with 1.823.

Zeta Beta Tau led all other fraternities in scholraship with an average of 1.849. Phi Delta Theta was second with an average of 1.685, and Phi Beta Delta third with 1.610.

Dean Dabney S. Lancaster, dean of men, and dean Agnes Ellen Harris, dean of women, pointed out that there was a general improvement in the scholarship of both men and women students over the same period of the 1932-33 session.

Forty-eight freshmen were elected to membership in Phi Eta Sigma, freshman honor fraternity for men who make 2.5 or better in scholastic work. Phi Eta Sigma is the highest scholastic honor a freshman can receive. Twenty-nine of the forty-eight selected for membreship are graduates of Alabama high schools.

Sixteen high school basketball teams gathered at the university last week for the annual state high school tournament. Following the tournament, the visiting teams, which were the guests of the fraternities here, watched Alabama's football team in a practice game in Denny Stadium. Two picked elevens played in an exhibition contest.

Baseball and track work are progressing fine, though cold weather has hampered the athletics somewhat. Prospects in both these sports are good, although another championship to add to the football and basketball titles Alabama has won seems unlikely at this time.

Nearly two thousand boys are taking part in intra-mural sports at the university, statistics show. Tournaments and events in a variety of sports are held, to enable every student in school to participate. Basketball, bowling, baseball, track, golf, and tennis are scheduled for the month of March.

POPLAR SPRINGS

The singing was very good here last Sunday. Those who didn't attend just missed a treat. We sung several numbers from the new books and had as our director good old Mr. Devaughn, who is very patient in introducing new songs to us.

The following directed several songs: W. M. Devaughn, Dock Harris, Maston Robinson, Pete Wilson, Osmond Glenn and Floy Devaughn. A duet was rendered by Mr. W. M. and Mr. Floy Devaughn. Two specials were given by the giggling four quartet, which consists of Raymond Gilliland, Osmond Glenn, Louise Mims and Myrtice Smith, with Rose Mary Pickens at the piano.

The pianists for the afternoon were Rose Mary Pickens, Eloise Jones and Dock Harris.

We will have singing here next fourth Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. Everybody come and get in tune for the all day singing here Easter Sunday, April 1st.

T. J. Gulledge, of Mt. Creek, a subscriber of The Union-Banner for the past thirty years, was here Monday to renew his subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp, of Dothan, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Page in Clanton.

NATIONAL FORESTS FOR ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., March 13. — In addition to approximately 6,000,000 acres of privately owned forests placed in production during the past ten years, many Alabama citizens believe that the national forest areas in the state should be substantially increased, according to the state forestry authorities. The present plans of the State Commission of Forestry include a substantial increase for national and state forests, but heretofore the matter of funds has been a limiting factor.

The Federal government has full right and authority to purchase lands in any part of the state, and there is no state law or policy that prevents immediate acquisition. However, the government has imposed upon itself the restriction that the states have an enabling act specifically authorizing this procedure. The legislature of 1931 passed an act drafted by the United States Forest Service, exactly as requested, which included, at the request of the government, only certain lands in an existing area. Two special sessions of the legislature followed, but no further request for enabling legislation was made by the government. During the special session of 1933, however, the State Commission of Forestry, of its own initiative and without waiting for a request on the part of the forest service, prepared a bill extending the provisions of the prior act to include additional part of the state. This bill was passed and signed by the governor April 10, 1933. The new act, in advance of any requests or intimation on the part of the forest service, made available for selection and purchase as national forests an additional 2,000,000 acres of woodland.

More recently, after the adjournment of the legislature, various individuals have advocated national forests in still other sections of the state. The self imposed limitation on the part of the federal government that enabling acts must be passed by the legislature before extension to other regions has effectively blocked the progress in the new additions. The Commission of Forestry believes that here is an opportunity for some Alabama statesmen to be of substantial service to forestry by introducing and sponsoring through to passage an act of congress removing the restriction which the government has imposed upon itself, since there are no present prospects of another session of the legislature until January, 1935.

It has been suggested that the Commission of Forestry by resolution could convey the consent of the state to the purchase of forest lands in sections not covered by existing enabling acts. The question as to whether or not, in view of the statutes on the subject, the passage of such a resolution by the commission of forestry would constitute the consent of the state to the acquisition of national forests in localities other than those covered by existing statutes was placed before the attorney general of Alabama and was answered in the negative, the attorney general stating that " these limitations can be changed by the legislature alone."

According to the Commission of Forestry many of the propositions advanced by citizens of Alabama as to certain areas for national forest purposes are highly meritorious. It is stated by the commission that confusion as to procedure is wholly unnecessary. The Attorney General's ruling on the authority of the commission is definite. However, a special session of the Legislature, called for any purpose, could pass a more general enabling act. The most obvious procedure, in view of the time factor, is for congress, now in session, to relieve the government of its self-imposed restriction. This can be done at once, providing the extension of national forests is viewed with favor by the senators and representatives from Alabama.

Mrs. Louise Higgins will go to St. Margaret's Hospital in Montgomery for an operation the latter part of this week. Her beauty shop will be closed until further notice.

DANIEL SERVED IN THE ARMY

Somehow somebody contrived the question the other day as to whether or not Elly Daniel served in the United States Army during the World War. When the question was referred to Mr. Daniel Monday he gave the following information:

Mr. Daniel, according to his statement, served in the army from his enlistment, September 1918, until he was honorably discharged in December, 1918. He was in the officers training camp at Jacksonville, which was directed by Lieut. K. M. Snider.

At the present time Mr. Daniel is a candidate for county superintendent of Education of Chilton County, which fact gives rise to the question of his war service.

You may make "A" in your studies; you may excel on the athletic field; you may have much popularity; yet there is one seemingly small and unimportant quality that surpasses all others when the "show down" comes. This quality, which has been found lacking recently, has always won out in the long run. No one, whether the most powerful of rulers, the wealthiest of money czars or the most popular man, has ever defeated this one sterling quality. For years and probably for a lifetime the good of this quality may seem absolutely nothing. But, there is one TIME when this fine and noble thing comes FIRST. This quality is HONESTY. It is impossible to find any incident where HONESTY did not reward the person. Also remember that it is NOT too late to be good.

The Senior III class and its officers are to be highly complimented on their rapid and surpassing progress. The entrance gate, only part of the planned memorial, is lacking only a few finishing touches of being completed. When the project has been completely finished, work on another memorial will begin. The second project of this large memorial plan will be a beautiful and ornamental sun dial with accompaning benches. The Senior class of this year with John Ezell as president, will leave to the school one of the largest projects of any Senior class. An effort is being made to leave, not only one memorial, but also others so that the Senior Class of 1934 will always linger in the minds of future students as an example to model after.

The shouts of husky athletes from the ball diamond conveys the interesting news that baseball practice is under way. With Coach Searcey handling the reins, Chilton will produce a baseball team that will attract attention. An encouraging number of boys have reported for practice and it is believed that definite plans for the seasons will be made in a few days. First class equipment will be supplied and with the fine material in the form of fifteen or twenty boys C. C. H. S. will have an outstanding team.

Again this year Prof. Warr has repeated his offer that has created much excitement and interest in the baseball ranks. The first boy to knock the ball over the fence in the fair zones in a game will be presented with a handsome glove of first class quality by Prof. Warr. Last year the winner of this prize was Ted Littlejohn, and he will be a leading contender for it this year. Who will get it

The faculty and student body of C. C. H. S. wish to express their appreciation to the officials of the Town of Clanton for allowing them the free use of the town truck to transport shrubbery from Prattville. Thank you Mayor Smith and your councilmen.

These nine hundred pieces of shrubbery were expertly planted on the school campus by the boys in Mr. Vaughn's agriculture class. That's a fine display of school spirit.

Congratulations to the Junior I class, who, under the direction of Miss Sara Colley, presented in a commendable manner, a playlet on "Health" in chapel on Wednesday of last week. Besides being well presented the principle of the play was of a high standard. By this simple but efficient manner, the students were shown the rules of good health and the importance of keeping them. We hope that all benefited from this program in such a way as to have good health, a priceless possession, for the rest of our lives.

The ever active and highly successful P.-T. A. of C. C. H. S. observed Father's Night at the schol house on Tuesday evening of this week. A splendid program was carried out and refreshments served. Our P.-T. A. has done much for our school, and the students and teachers are proud to have such an organization to work with. To Mrs. Hugh Jones, the president, and to her fellow members, we are greatly indebted for their undying interest in the welfare of the school. Not only do they possess this school spirit, but they have revealed it by their many gifts to the school.

We were glad to see Miss Clyde Smilie back with her classes Monday after a several days absence last week due to illness.

Who am I ? ? ? ? The writer is overwhelmed with joy. No one guessed it last week as he knows of. It was Mary Courtney Jones last week. * * * Now try this one. * * * I am a girl. I wear glasses. I have a remarkable record in school. * * I am well liked, admired and have all the qualities of a lady. Take interest in all school activities. And I play ball the last period. I have dark hear. Who am I?

"Form Your Own Opinions." * * * (These articles in no way are connected with activities at the school. Being written for the entertainment of the sudent readers). * * * In this section last week where I mentioned a certain Senior II going to Prattville, it should have been Friday night instead of Saturday night, as printed. * * * Queer, tho, it applied to either night, as it was later found out. * * * Hope a certain Senior I and Senior II affair doesn't break up. * * * Has a certain Senior III got his eyes on Thorsby for this week. He has, and how. * * It is wondered if certain hard feelings and accusations against a Senior II and a Senior III are justified. Those who know say they are not. * * * Believe it or not. I will actually have something interesting as well as startling next week. * * * It has cost him his popularity but he thought they wanted it. No, he is not asking for sympathy. * * * It's time for another "shake-up" in the "younger society set." Some say the victim will be lucky. I agree with them.

Congratulations to Jesse Frank Foshee and James Tiffin. These two boys, star football players of Chilton, are trying for a place in the football ranks of the University of Alabama. They have the ability to make star players there and if given the chance, C. C. H. S. will boast of them. At the time of this writng the results of their tryouts at the University were unavailable. My personal wishes for good luck.

REGUFE

We had service at this place Sunday and Sunday night, although the crowd was small Sunday night. It seems that some of our folks don't know that we have services at Refuge. It seems like they like to sit by the fire through the winter and just go when it suits them through the summer, but God is not pleased with such worship. We cannot serve God and mammon, so let's drop mammon and get the spirit of God in our hearts, and I believe the crowd at this place will be larger, but if we stay at home on Sunday, we are only satisfying the flesh. He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption.

Rev. Durbin and Rev. Lockhart went to White City Sunday. They returned after services Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mims and daughtre spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Virgie Minor Saturday night.

Bro. Baker was here from Birmingham Sunday. He preached at the 11 o'clock hour. His subject was "Thy Day."

BETHSALEM NEWS

Our Sunday schools meets every Sunday morning at ten o'clock. The attendance was small on account of bad weather and sickness. Preacher Bonnett delivered a good sermon at 11 o'clock. We were sure glad to have him preach for us.

We are sorry to know of so much sickness in the community, but we hope the health will soon be better.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Vinson were the Saturday night and Sunday guests of Mr. Vinson's mother, Mrs. Docie Vinson.

Mr. Pill Vinson and family of Montgomery were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Docie Vinson and Mr. and Mrs. Len Green.

The new Sunday school class enjoyed a singing at Mr. C. L. Wilkins Saturday night.

Our B. Y. P. U. met Sunday night with a small attendance. Let's all come back to Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. every Sunday and Sunday night and make it a better Sunday school and B. Y. P. U.

There was a singing at the church Sunday evening in the old Christian Harmony books. The attendance was small as it was the first attempt. We are going to try to have it every second Sunday evening. Everybody come and help us out.

Miss Edna Spigner was the Sunday dinner guest of Misses Pauline and Flora Strickland.

Let's all remember that next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. Let's all come that can, if the weather permits.

We are proud to learn that Mrs. Lela McGee is going to return home Tuesday morning from the hospital where she underwent an operation. We hope she will soon be able to come back to church again.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

Our Sunday school met Sunday with a small attendance, as there is a lot of sickness at this place. We hope for them to soon get well as we miss them very much.

Next Saturday at 2:30 o'clock is our regular preaching day. Sunday school will meet Sunday at 1:30. We hope for as many as can to come and be with us.

The farmers are getting very far behind with their work here.

Visitors are always welcome to visit us.—A Reader.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the many friends for their kindness and help during the sickness and death of our mother and grandmother.—Mrs. D. B. Ashcraft and Family.

HATCHER BRIDGE NEWS

The farmers of this community greatly appreciate the vocational class being taught by Mr. Wilson Clements each Thursday night at Free Springs.

Mr. Mel Cox is one of the most industrious farmers we have in this community. He tells us that he intends to plant his cotton this week.

We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Bob Green. We hear that they are the proud parents of a fine baby boy, weighing eleven pounds.

We also have another couple to congratulate, Mr. and Mrs. Rick Hamilton. They are the proud parents of twins, both girls. The parents would welcome any names the readers might suggest.

Misses Hazel and Era Killingsworth visited Miss Rosie Green Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Hazel Cox and Miss Ruth Horton visited Miss Otis Day Tuesday. Her friends are sorry she is ill.

Mr. Arch Crumpton and family were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rasberry Sunday.

Mrs. Irma Blewster visited Mrs. Bob Green Monday afternoon.

Mr. Curtis Smitherman, Mr. Wendell Atchison, Mr. Pat Atchison, Mr. Norman Smitherman, Mr. Byrd Killingsworth and Mr. Aubrey Killingsworth were guests of Harry and Cecil Horton Sunday.

Mrs. J. D. Harrell and Mrs. Manual DuBose were the guests of Mrs. Lane Horton last Sunday.

CHESTNUT GROVE

Bro. A. B. Canant filled his regular appointment here Sunday evening at 3 o'clock. We appreciate his good work here.

Brother Horace Nabors of Union Grove preached here the fourth of this month. We were glad to have him with us and hope to have him with us again in the near future.

We wish to have all the parents present at the P.-T. A. meeting next Thursday night at 6:30 o'clock. We will have a program by the children. So let's all come and have a good time. Don't forget the date, March 15th, at 6:30 o'clock, at the school house.

Mr. Herman Simmons and his wife were the happy parents of a fine girl born to them March 3rd. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Bro. R. E. Hyde will preach for us the fourth Sunday at 11 a.m. So let's all come and hear a good sermon.

Mr. William Holcombe was a visitor to Clanton on Tuesday of last week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones spent Saturday night with Mr. G. G. Nabors and family.

JACKSON CHAPEL

We are expecting Rev. M. Lockhart to preach for us next Sunday at 11 o'clock. Also Sunday school at 10 o'clock. Come and hear Bro. Lockhart and let's try to build up our Sunday school.—Ernest Jones, Supt.

Platform of J. E. Daniel, Candidate For County Supt. of Education

Republican Candidate Outlines His Policies Concerning the Most Important Phases of Local School Administration of County

Dear Friends:

The purpose of this article is to set forth my views, policies, and principles relative to the conduction of the Public School System of Chilton County. I sincerely invite your careful consideration of these principles.

My Guiding Principle

The central core of my thoughts and official actions while in office will be to provide ways and means to give every man's child an equal chance to obtain the benefits of the schools of Chilton County. My entire time will be spent in an effort to improve the conditions surrounding the learning process such that the boys and girls of Chilton County may receive the very best training for which the county is able to pay.

What is Educational Administration?

Educational administration, which is the work of the superintendent, consists in so harmonizing all the factors that enter into the maintenance of schools that the system will operate with the least wear and tear and with the highest possible degree of instructional efficiency.

What Does the Administration of a School System Require?

It requires the performance of three functions, namely. Legislative, executive and inspectorial. The first of these functions is performed by the board of education. It is the duty of the superintendent to furnish the board with any and all information which that body might need in formulating and adopting its legislation. The second of these functions is the real work of the superintendent and consists in carrying out the legislation. The third of these functions is performed by the board of education and consists in determining how well the legislation has worked in practice.

The Importance of Education in a Democracy Like Ours

This is a question that touches the hearth-stone of every family in America. Every fabric of American life hinges on education. An educated citizenry is the life blood of American institutions. The superintendent of schools must bear these truths in mind and direct his actions accordingly. It seems to me that we might summarize as follows:

1. Education is one of the most important functions of any state or nation.
2. Education is one of the largest businesses of any state or nation, and the one who would head a school system must have a good working knowledge of how a big business is conducted.
3. Education is the bulwark of democracy.
4. Education is the best guarantee of a progressing democracy.

Cooperative School Improvement Association

If I am elected superintendent, I shall encourage and help to organize what I have chosen to call Cooperative School Improvement Associations. This is a different type of organization heretofore known in the county. The parent, the teacher, and the child, will become members of this association. Space prohibits explaining the entire plan at this time.

Inventory of School Property

I shall apply systematic business principles to everything that I do while in office. The directors of a big industrial enterprise would not dream of trying to operate without knowing to a penny the approximate value of the assets of the business. Through the cooperation of my principals, I shall submit to the people of Chilton County an inventory of school property in the county. It seems to me that the importance of taking these yearly inventories might be summarized as follows:

1. It is good business practice.
2. It helps to prevent loss of the school property.
3. It makes the care of school property a systematic business procedure, and places the responsibility o its care upon someone.
4. It aids in making replacements.
5. It indicates the value of school property.
6. It helps to prevent the buying of equipment when it is not needed.
7. It is a great aid in calculating school costs.

Incidental Fees

Through the cooperation of the principals of the schools, I shall submit a plan to the people of Chilton County which will eliminate this troublesome question of incidental fees. It will take me one year in office to gather the necessary information pertaining to this plan. When all this information is gathered and compiled, I shall submit the plan to the people of the county. There is not a question in my mind about the success of the plan. The workings of this plan will put the schools of Chilton County on a new road of progressiveness.

Uniform County Examinations

If I am elected superintendent, I shall incorporate county uniform examinations from grade one through the Junior High School. Objectives for the year will be set up at the beginning of the school year for each grade. These objectives will be set up by the teachers themselves. In this way the teachers will be working toward the accomplishment of the same objective.

P.-T. A.

We have a number of active P.-T. A.'s in the county, and they have been doing a great work. I shall make it my duty to encourage and assist in the organization of P.-T. A.'s in those schools where they are not organized.

Educational Publicity

The taxpayers, who are the people that support the public schools, have a right to know what the schools are doing. I propose to organize a definite system whereby the people of Chilton County will be informed concerning every phase of the work of the school. It has been by pleasure to study the question of Educational Publicity under Dr. R. E. Garland, who is an authority in this field of educational work at the University of Texas. Nothing will be kept a secret from you. You have a right to know everything concerning the schools.

Educational Inequalities

Every school system in the United States, or in any other country, has, to a certain extent, some of the things we call Educational Inequalities. It will be my duty to remove those things wherever, and as fast as I can. Educational inequalities may take many forms. It would be impossible in any school system to remove them all.

Teacher's Salary Schedule

I shall recommend to the board of Education for adoption of what I have chosen to call, A Graduated Salary Schedule for Teachers. The workings of this salary schedule are based upon the universally accepted eight principles which should be incorporated in any salary schedule. It is the essence of democracy, itself. I wish that I had time and space here to explain its entire workings.

Consolidation

My friends, it is not a question as to whether I believe in consolidation or not. The fact is, we have our consolidated schools with us and they are a blessing to humanity. I shall not tear up any consolidated school. We also have our one teacher schools still with us, and they too are a blessing to us. I shall not tear up any schools of any type. If the people in a given community wish to consolidate with a larger school, I will be in favor of them doing so after their vote shows a two-thirds majority in favor of consolidation.

Transportation

Just as I have said in the case of consolidation, it is not a matter of whether I personally believe in transportation or not. We have transportation with us; therefore, the question must be dealt with. Should I be elected superintendent, I will carefully supervise transportation. I propose to conduct a survey of all the routes of the county. From the information compiled as a result of these surveys, I shall make a definite recommendation to the board of education.

Economy

I will attempt all economy measures that I can possibly find. I am not willing to spend a dollar without the assurance that a dollar's worth of value will come from it. I do not believe in any duplications. I am not in favor of cutting teachers' salaries as an economy measure. That's costly economy.

Length of School Term

The length of the school term will be determined according to the amount of money. No man can run schools without money, I don't care who he is. I will run the schools every day that I have money to run them with. I will not close schools until every source of revenue, or possible source of revenue, has been exhausted.

Selection of Teachers

I am in favor of the policy of using home county teachers. It will be my policy to place home county teachers first. If we do not have a home county teacher especially fitted for a given place, then I will recommend to trustees that they secure the services of an out-of-county teacher.

I am in favor of the trustees and people selecting their own teachers. It will be my duty to furnish trustees with a list of the teachers available. It will also be my duty to tell trustees what I know about the character and ability of teachers. I will not recommend a teacher when I know that teacher to be inefficient.

Since it is the teacher whom you select to teach in your school who ultimately determines whether your school will be efficient or inefficient, I would recommend that you use great caution. Try to select that type of teacher of which Henry Van Dyke has described in his "The Unknown Teacher," then all will be well.

My friends, I do not have very much time to devote to canvassing. I have my assigned duties to perform at the Maplesville High School, and they must be performed in the most intelligent and efficient manner of which I am capable of performing them. I hope to see and talk with as many of you as I possibly can on Saturdays.

I will discuss other questions of school administration from time to time. I want you to know thoroughly the trend of my thinking along lines of school administration.

I come to you offering you my services as superintendent, free of any entanglements of the past. I do not have any axes of any kind to grind. If I am elected, I mean to do the thing I know to be right. Every school, every teacher and every patron will receive justice at my hands. I invite your careful investigation as to my character, training and efficiency as a teacher.—Sincerely yours,

J. ELLY DANIEL.

LUMBER PURCHASED FOR DAM

Approximately 1,400,000 board feet of long leaf pine lumber was purchased today by the Tennessee Valley Authority to use on the construction of Norris Dam. The order, valued at $52,000, was placed with the Jefferson Lumber Company, of Birmingham.

C. H. Garity, director of purchases for the authority, in announcing the purchase said that this timber will be used in the construction of various frames and trestles about the dam site and in building the forms to be used later when actual pouring of concrete begins.

Bids were opened today on the floating equipment required for the mixing and placing of all concrete in the General Joe Wheeler Dam project. Twenty-six bidders participated. Contract awards will be made later on the decision of the authority board.

Republican For C. W. A.

Atticus Mullin, columnist of the Montgomery Advertiser, author of "The Passing Throng," never passes up an opportunity to poke a little fun at Republicans; and he takes special delight in applying his "sharp stick" to Judge Reynolds.

In The Advertiser Tuesday morning, inspired by a recent visit of Reynolds to The Capital City, Atticus cut loose the following observation:

"Judge Louis Reynolds, the very efficient Probate Judge of Chilton County and advocate of the CWA, had a lot of trouble convincing the Republicans of Chilton County that they should share in the CWA money; but he finally did so, and they shared, as did the Democrats and it was a great help to his county. It helped the farmers and laboring men.

"Judge Reynolds was in Montgomery Monday. We can not help from confessing a fondness for this upstanding Republican. Us Democrats in every administration have sicked every state examiner, who was not busy, on his books, and we have never caught him out one penny. If he had ever deviated one iota from the strait and narrow path, we Democrats would have howled our heads off, impeached him and jailed him, if possible."

Atticus, of course, said the above "nice" things about our judge as a joke; but after all, we suspect there is more truth than poetry in what he expressed.

New League Court Drive

According to some reports from Washington, a new and concerted drive to get Uncle Sam into the World Court has started, and the senate is being deluged with material designed to show that the United States ought to get in the European mess by joining this branch of the discredited League of Nations. According to John A. Kennedy, writing in the Washington, D. C., Herald:

"The drive, engineered by groups long active in pacifistic and internationalistic propaganda also has in mind eventual joining of the revised League of Nations.

"Already its effect is being felt in Washington where senators are being deluged with petitions calling for approval for the League Court at this session of Congress.

It is further stated that the propaganda campaign is being directed by a group which includes representatives of the League of Nations Association and 14 other national organizations. Each group is said to be working through scattered local sections of the country, and members are signing identical petitions which are being forwarded to the United States Senate.

One set of petitions, it is claimed, sets forth that the signers are "citizens of the United States, anxious to avoid war and organize peace in which prosperity can thrive."

It will occur to the average citizen who is still able to keep his feet on the ground that the best way to avoid war would be for Uncle Sam to stay at home and mind his own business. Certainly mixing into the affairs of Europe and the Orient, by attempting to help settle quarrels which are none of our business, is not conducive to peace and lasting propsperity. Take the situation in Austria for example. If we were in the League or the League Court we might now be called on to take sides in a question in which we have no interest, and in which, no doubt, both sides are to blame. We say both sides, but in fact there are many sides to the Austrian problem, which is so scrambled that a happy solution seems impossible. Certainly we do not want to put our necks in that halter of European intrigue.

Aside from that, the League of Nations is pretty much of a discredited institution as a pacifier. It failed miserably in trying to settle the Manchurian problem, and it will fail again if it is called on to adjudicate conditions in Austria. Indeed its impotency is now so well realized that the nations of the world are going ahead, trying to solve their differences without reference to the League. And every time the League fails, of course, the reputation of its World Court goes down in an equal degree.

Administration leaders some time ago announced that they did not believe that the present session of Congress was the proper time to consider our adherence to the League Court. We heartily agree with them and hope that the professional internationalists will not fool them into changing this position. Certainly present world conditions would justify the statement that we ought to put off the question of joining the League Court for a hundred years, at least. By that time it won't make much difference.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Going Good Again

Clanton's contribution to big time baseball, Jack Hayes, left for the Chicago White Sox training camp a few days ago, and already we are seeing reports on his work in the papers. He is showing up extra well for so early in the training season. The White Sox are training in Pasadena, California, again this year. Manager Lew Fonseca has started Jack at his regular second base position again this year, and in one of the first practice games with one of the Pacific Coast League teams, the White Sox got away with two double plays, both started by Hayes. Fonseca is building a smooth-working keystone combination around him, and one of the papers quoted the manager as follows: "I expect to have one of the tightest infields in the American League this year with the veteran, Bonura, at first; Hayes, one of the best ball hawks in the league, will be at second; Appling will start at short; and Dykes, who is the hot corner artist we got from the Athletics, should go well again at third. If we get anything at all in the way of a batting attack, and our pitchers come through with any measure of regularity, we'll show some of the big boys up this year. Just watch our smoke." Good for Jack. I expect to keep a daily record on him during the summer, and each week I will give his times at bat, singles, doubles, triples, and home runs, and his batting average. And, just so somebody will not think I am trying to toot the kid up too high, I'll give his errors, if any, also. Watch for these figures when the regular season opens.

Codes and the N. R. A.

If there is anything in this wide world that will cause a good, old time, freedom-loving American's blood to boil, it is to be told that he can't do something that his free-born American citizenship gives him the right to do. That's why the NRA hasn't done so well. Americans have always been used to going about their business without autocratic orders from anyone. The Constitution gives them that right. Our Constitution provides for a law-making machine, selected by the people, themselves. But what happened last year? That bunch of chicken-hearted congressmen went to Washington and voted away from themselves and the American people their right to have a say-so in the affairs of government. These rights were given into a few hand-picked "wiser-than-thou" fellows to dictate as they saw fit. And what a fit they gave us. For a while there was a big hip-hurrah carried on in favor of the NRA and its codes, but when the real results began to come home, that was something different. That thing looked fine on paper, but it wasn't so hot in practice. In short, those weak-kneed congressmen said by their actions: "Here, you take this country and run it. The people elected us for the job, but we are too ignorant or spineless to tackle the job, so, darn the people, we're backing water on our duties." The seeming favor for the codes was only a surface disturbance—underneath it all, very few liked it. As proof, I'll give you a little conversation I overheard. A man started to buy an article, and the merchant gave the price. The purchaser thought it was too high and said so, stating that a few weeks before, he had bought the same thing much cheaper. Said the merchant: "Oh, but the code forces me to get this price." "Oh, damn the code," was the answer. And, if I have heard one such conversation, I've heard a hundred. One merchant says he always had the idea that when he bought something and paid for it, he could take whatever he wanted to for it, or even give it away. But now, since King Hugh Johnson reigns, and the blue eagle has supplanted the American eagle, that's out.

Optomists

Well, the big parade is on. The Republicans have a slate of candidates that looks like a draft order for the army, and the Democrats are not so far behind in numbers of candidates. The fun is about to begin. To tell the truth, it has already started, in some degree. Already, I have seen aspirants for sheriff fraternizing with the dear ones on ever hand, and it makes no difference if they are ministers who have fought crime to a stand-still, or bootleggers and gamblers who break the laws daily. I have seen would-be probate judges putting on the back-slapping act with fellows they don't even know, not even their last names. Then, there are those who would be superintendent of education, hob-nobbing with folks who haven't a child to send to school, and don't expect to have. No, sir, these candidates don't skip 'em—they take 'em "as is"—and, as Shakespeare would say, if he should come back, "the vote's the thing." Speaking of Democrats, though, have you noticed the big string of candidates they have out on the line? What nerve! They actually think they're going somewhere! They have from one to several out for every office, just like they really expected to elect one of them. But now, really and truly, I believe they're only shamming. They've been to the old mill too many times and come away empty-handed to really have hope yet. There is a saying, though, you know, "while there's life there's hope." Oh, well, some folks are gluttons for punishment, you know, and I reckon one more wholesale disappointment would kill them. No, sir. If disappointment were poison, heaven would be full of Democratic angels right now. That's how it looks today. I can't speak for the future, for I'm no fortune teller, but for the present everything looks as comfy as a bug in a rug for the good old county Republican ship. More later. I'll keep us posted.

Claud Matthew Baker

Claud Matthew Baker, city mail carrier at Clanton, was born about one mile northeast of Clanton on what is now the Lay Dam Road, on May 13, 1890. He attended various schools in and around Clanton. The first school he attended was under the direction of Scott E. Chestnut, and was carried on in the old Baptist church, which burned a few years ago. Mr. Baker married Miss Fannie Elizabeth Mims November 6, 1910. They have four children, three of which are living. He taught in the schools of Chilton County from 1910 to 1921, his first school being at Corinth, near Mitchell Dam. He entered government employ under the Department of Game and Fisheries, and was placed at the fish hatchery at Tupelo, Miss., where he remained for 18 months, returning to Clanton to take the position of city carrier for Clanton on January 1, 1924. Mr. Baker has always been a very busy man. Even while teaching, between his school terms he attended school himself, until graduation at Chilton County High School. His favorite study was mathematics. Being a home boy, he is widely known in the Clanton district, and is recognized as a man of strong character and high morals. His work as city carrier is highly satisfactory to his patrons, and he is regarded as one of the main cogs in the highly efficient postal machine that operates at the local office. Quiet and unassuming, Mr. Baker goes about his work in a manner to command the respect of postal officials and the people with whom he must deal in carrying out hi sduties. By his actions, Mr. Baker has proved that he is entirely in accord with the slogan of the postal service, which is: "No matter what happens, the mail must go," and that efficiency is his watchword always. — Man in the Moon.

The Country Newspaper

Turning from city newspapers to small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immortality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by these glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmers' items, and all the thousand and one daily occurences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our national existnece.—Christian Science Monitor.

Public Speaking

Judge L. H. REYNOLDS

Will Speak at

Gulledge Brothers Store

Verbena, Saturday, March 17

at 2:00 o'Clock P. M.

At this time Judge Reynolds will discuss some of the accomplishments during his past term of office, present day issues, and things he will advocate if re-elected.

He has stood for tax reduction in his present term of office and has aided and assisted the taxpayers in getting their taxes reduced. He will continue this policy.

He has advocated the spending of tax money with the people of the county for labor, teams and trucks, and spending as little as possible for road machinery and other equipment where the money goes out of the county. He will continue this policy.

He has advocated assisting the schools of the county as far as the revenue of the county would permit and if re-elected will continue this policy.

He has advocated a better and more permanent road system, and if re-elected, will continue this policy.

He has advocated and helped secure all possible money and supplies from the Federal Government for the assistance of the needy and unemployed of the county, and if re-elected, will continue this policy.

He has stood for and helped accomplish all of these things during his present term of office, and yet even under depressed financial conditions, the County has paid $118,000.00 upon its bonded indebtedness of $200,000.00. If re-elected, he will continue this same policy and expects, if allowed to serve the next six years, to pay off the entire bonded indebtedness of Chilton County, which will not be due until the year 1947.

These are some of the things that have been accomplished during his present term of office, and if re-elected, they will be continued for the next term of office.

All citizens of our county who are interested in the welfare of the County and the common good of the people are cordially invited to be present at this speaking.

The old man dozed off in his rig, leaving the horse to take care of itself. He woke up suddenly to find himself in the ditch.

Crawling out of the buggy, he went up and grabbed the horse by the bridle. "Shay," he said, "you been 'sociating with them automobiles, ain't you?"

Two hunters had been out several hours and one of them had been growing uneasy. Finally panic overtook him. "We're lost!" he cried to his companion. "What on earth shall we do?"

"Keep your shirt on!" said his phlegmatic companion. "Shoot an extra deer and the game warden will be here in a minute and a half."

Father—Now look here, Harold, if you are not a better boy you will never go to heaven.

Harold—I don't want to go to heaven; I want to go with you and mother.

Mrs. J. D. Armstrong spent Monday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Dunlap of Selma are visiting in Clanton this week.

Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night were our regular preaching days. Rev. Nabors delivered three wonderful sermons.

Our singing society met at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. The singing was called to order by A. H. Glasscock, acting as chairman. The following directed two songs: Marvin Campbell, Sam Collins, Akins Collins, Ralph Grant. We also had the Oak Grove quartet, who sang several numbers. The organists for the afternoon were Miss Jessie Dorminey, Mrs. Carrie Shaw, Mr. Ralph Grant. We were glad to have visitors from other communities, and we especially invite you at any and all times.

Cobb Writes To Voters of County

Jemison, Ala., March 12, 1934.

Dear Voters:

I am asking for my second term as Commissioner of the First District in the County, and I assure you that I shall appreciate your vote and influence.

During the three years that I have represented you as Commissioner, I have done the very best that I could. I have helped to manage the affairs of the county with as much interest and thought as if it had been my personal business. Even though taxes have been reduced almost one-third since I became commissioner, we have always lived within our income and have taken up $26,000 of the bonded indebtedness which was created several years ago.

We also built a new jail which cost $35,000, built one new steel bridge which cost $2,500. It has been my policy to permit the property owners to help appraise their own property. The county has paid for all necessary blanks for individuals to file for property tax reductions, and out of the several hundred which have made application for reductions, only two or three have been disallowed. These were due to the state non-approval.

I have favored all reductions because I felt that you were paying "war time" tax and working "panic" prices, and too, I believe that the county could get by on less income.

If you will compare the roads of my district when I became Commissioner and now, I believe that you will find them to be in a better condition now than they were at the beginning of my term.

During the time that I have been Commissioner the court has helped more rural schools than all previous administrations. When important matters have arisen that I was not sure that I knew how you wanted us to vote, we have given you that privilege, without any expense to the county, and have acted according to the vote of the majority.

After you take these facts into consideration, I hope that you will see fit to give me your vote so that I may have the privilege of representing you again in the Commissioners Court; however, if you do not, I assure you that I shall do all I can to help elect the nominee.—Respectfully yours. J. E. COBB.

Lesson for March 18

JESUS RESPONDS TO FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 13:54-58-14:13, 14-15:21-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ask and it shall be given you, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you.—Matt. 7:7.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Helps a Stranger.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When People Trust Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Mother's Love and Faith.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Faith Tested and Triumphant.

I. The Unbelief of Jesus' Own Countrymen (13:54-58).

Jesus shared the common fate of men, unacknowledged in his own country. Even his own brothers did not believe in him until after his resurrection (John 7:3-8; cf. Acts 1:14). Because of this unbelief only a limited work could be done there.

II. Jesus Responding to the Faith of the Multitude (Matt. 14:13, 14).

1. He retired to the desert (v. 13). The news of the cruel death of John the Baptist brought grief to the heart of Jesus and he withdrew to a place of quietness to commune with the heavenly Father. Jesus accepted John's death as typical of his own.

2. Followed by the people (v. 13). The people were so greatly interested in him that they followed him on foot out of the cities.

3. Jesus healing the sick (v. 14). Although the rulers had broken with him, he did not abandon his work. Though desperate and hopeless cases were brought to him, none was found too hard for him.

III. Jesus Responding to the Faith of a Woman of Canaan (Matt. 15:21-31).

1. The mother's awful distress (vv. 21, 22). Her daughter was grievously vexed with a devil. The daughter was the one who was afflicted, but it was the mother who carried the burden. No doubt this Gentile woman had heard of the fame of Jesus. His power to heal had come to her notice and doubtless many times she longed for him to come her way that her daughter might be healed. Now that he was in her neighborhood she came straightway to him.

2. The mother's fervent appeal for help (vv. 23-25). She humbly fell at his feet and pleaded for mercy. She besought him to cast the demon out. Her appeal may be considered as a model prayer.

a. It was sincere and earnest. From the depths of her heart she cried to the Lord for help.

b. It was brief and definite. In a few well chosen words she besought the Lord in behalf of her daughter.

c. It was personal and humble. The Lord is pleased when we beseech him in behalf of personal friends as well as ourselves. She came humbly, for according to Mark's account she fell at his feet (Mark 7:25).

d. It was believing and persistent. Though she was outside of the covenant people, she believed the Lord would hear a cry of need. All who accept Christ are his covenant people. She persistently begged help of the Lord. She would not accept a refusal. The Lord is pleased with the soul who will not let him go until the blessing is granted (Luke 11:5-10, 18:1-8).

3. The woman's faith rewarded (vv. 26-28).

a. Jesus' apparent refusal (v. 23). He answered her not a word. This seems strange that to her distressing cry he was irresponsive. Scarcely ever did anyone have to ask the second time. Frequently he did not wait to be asked. The reason for his silence was that a real difficulty lay in the way. He was sent to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. This woman was a stranger to the covenant people. Her appeal was on the wrong basis. She addressed him as the son of David, which only a child of the kingdom, an Israelite, had a right to do.

b. The woman's quick response (vv. 25-27). As soon as she perceived the difficulty she worshiped him as Lord and cried for help. While only the Israelite could approach him as the son of David, all can come to him and own him as Lord. She willingly took her place as a Gentile "dog," recognizing that salvation is of the Jews. The word for dog is a diminutive term used for the pet or household dog which had a right to the crumbs which fell from the table.

c. The glorious issue of her faith (v. 28). She received more than she asked. Her daughter was healed at once while the instructions she received were worth much to her. She goes down in history with the Savior's commendation of her faith.

When Age Comes

Now they that are younger than I have me in derision, whose fathers I would have disdained to have set with the dogs of my flock. And now I am their song, yea, I am their byword.—Job 30:1, 9.

Liberty

What is your besetting sin? Christ can turn that bondage into liberty and more. What can be more than liberty? To have the power to liberate others.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Everyone remember that on next Saturday morning, March 17, at 9:00 o'clock the school pig will be given away. After this, will come the ladies quilting party. We are expecting a large crowd for the above events, and hope the weather will be favorable. All the ladies are requested to bring your quilting materials, including about two pounds of cotton. Bring your lunches, for we plan to have a lot of fun during the entire day. Remember the date, and be there, rain or shine, for we do not wish to defer the above projects further than that day.

Practice for the Junior High school entertainment is now in full swing. Parts have been assigned and we are centering our intentions upon making it one of the best performances of the season. No one but the students of this school are being used to stage the performance. You'll find more real laughs in the burlesque debate than in a modern Ford Joke Book. You will faily writhe in your seat with gaiety and laughter at the ludicrous arguments, pro and con, unraveled by the debaters. Come on out and let Mary Jo Chandler and Edna Sims convince you why the present calendar should be changed to thirteen months and then listen to Mary Owen and Clara Headley bombard their opponents' arguments full of holes by comic reasoning that the present twelve months calendar should remain just as it is. Due to the fact that A. E. A. is meeting in Birmingham on March 22, 23 and 24 this program will be given on Saturday night, March 31. More announcements concerning it will be given at a later date.

Mr. Johnson, Miss Grant, Miss Manning and Miss Cagle attended services at Sardis church Sunday evening. They sponsored a move to reorganize the B. Y. P. U. by meeting in the afternoon for that purpose. Quite a large number of young people joined.

We are glad to anounce that our piano has just been reconditioned, tuned, cleaned and had new replacements made and is now in good order. George Anderson did the work.

The men and boys connected with the community baseball team have agreed to dig a well for the school, if the trustees will provide lumber or tiling for the curbing. Our hope is that some simple plan can be formulated whereby our school can have its individual water supply, without having to depend upon the homes nearby; and in the mind of the writer, the above plan seems to be the most feasible. We take this opportunity to thank Mr. W. A. Traywick, and Mr. J. R. Short for their kindness in allowing the school to secure water from their wells. We have no right however to ask them to make this concession another year.

Our attendance has been good the past two weeks. We are sorry to note that many other schools in the county are being retarded in their progress by an epidemic of measles. At this writing there is not a single case in any home connected with this school.

Our P.-T. A. will hold its regular meeting next Monday night, March 19. Superintendent Little will be with us. Get your plans fixed to come.

School will dismiss next Wednesday afternoon, Marcn 21, until the following Monday. The faculty plans to attend the Alabama Education Association at Birmingham on March 22, 23, and 24. Hence, the dismissal.

All patrons and friends of our school who have books which would be appropriate for our school library and who feel interested enough to donate them to that cause are requested to do so. A library is a great asset to any school, and any books in the way of histories, bographies, English and American classics, poems, stories, essays, etc., which you have no further need for will be highly appreciated if given to our school library. Also if you have back numbers of many of our popular magazines such as the American, Youth's Companion, Popular Mechanics, Good Housekeeping, Literary Digest, Progressive Farmer, etc., we would be grateful for them also.

HARDEN SINGING CONCERT AT BETHSALEM FRIDAY NIGHT, 23rd

Prof. L. M. (Red) Harden wishes The Union-Baner to announce that the closing exercises of his singing school, which he has been teaching at Pleasant Valley for the past two weeks, will be held at Bethsalem church on Friday night of next week, March 23rd. The program will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The concert is going to be held at Bethsalem because that building furnishes more seating capacity and the lights are better too. The program will consist of quartets, duets, solos, etc. A small admission charge will be collected at the door.

Prof. Harden reports that he is having a fine school at Pleasant Valley. There is a larger enrollment than could be expected, and the interest is exceedingly good.

MRS. MAHALA ROBINSON DIED

A very precious light has gone out at Mr. and Mrs. Joe Powell's. The death of Mrs. Powell's mother, Mrs. Mahala Robinson, takes from that home and from her many friends a dear lady. For her character, for her sweetness and friendliness we shall remember her always.

Mrs. Robinson was 78 years of age, and had been in poor health for some time. Her death was not unexpected although it was sad to see her go. The happy consolation of knowing that all her pains and aches are over brings joy to our sad hearts and helps us to see the silver lining of the clouds.

Mrs. Robinson leaves seven children, five sisters, two brothers, 34 grandchildren, 41 great grandchildren and many friends who will miss her love and presence in the home and community in which she lived.

She now sleeps in Walnut Creek cemetery beside her husband, who preceded her to the grave 45 years ago. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Honeycutt and Rev. Williams, with Spigener in charge.—A Granddaughter.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. Z. T. STEWART HELD LAST SUNDAY

Mrs. Amelia F. Stewart, wife of Z. T. Stewart, age 89 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. D. B. Ashcraft, near Mineral Springs, early Saturday morning. Mrs. Stewart had been a member of the Baptist church since the age of 17. She had many friends and loved ones, and was always a faithful member of the church until she became an invalid several years ago.

Mrs. Stewart left surviving her a husband, Mr. Z. T. Stewart; two children, Mrs. D. B. Ashcraft, of Mineral Springs, and Mr. U. S. Stewart, of Birmingham; 17 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren.

Rev. Grady Williams conducted the funeral services Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial was in the Mineral Springs cemetery.—A Granddaughter.

Florence has signed a contract with TVA for electric power from Wilson Dam and will pay 4 mills per kilowatt hour for the first 100,000; 3 mills for the next 200,000; 2½ mills for the next 700,000, and 2 mills per kilowatt hour for all over 1,000,000 used each month.

Because more than fifty candidates for the legislature have not expressed their views about agriculture in their platforms, poultry dealers and dairymen of Jefferson County called a meeting to discuss plans of having them do so.

Approximately 1,400 employes of Birmingham laundries were returned to work after a decision to permit the Southern Regional Labor Board, of Atlanta, to render final decisions on the status of employes for "higher wages and the right of collective bargaining."

OBITUARY

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say a few words in regard to a departed friend and neighbor.

On Wednesday morning, March 7th, about seven o'clock, the death angel visted the home of Bro. W. B. Foshee and took him from his loving family and many friends. Bro Foshee was a good husband and father, a good neighbor and citizen. He was a man of few words, but lived a life of service to his fellowman.

The writer has never heard a harmful word spoken against Bro. Foshee, a thing of worthy note in the life of anyone. Even as an officer of the law, he had the friendship and good will of the people.

In his boy-hood days Bro. Foshee made profession of faith in Christ as his Savior and we believe he is in that better world, awaiting the coming of his family and friends. We all miss him and shall continue to miss him, and extend our deep sympathy and prayers to the family in their bereavement.—A friend and neighbor, G. G. Williams.

NEW CEDRON NEWS

The W. M. S. met the first week in March at the church.

During the quilting at a quilting for the Baptist Orphans home the monthly missionary program was given, after which a business session was held.

Mrs. Alice Burnett, Mrs. Candy Williams and Mrs. O. L. Rawlinson were thanked by the W. M. S. President for their willing service and eagerness to help in making it possible to finish the quilt for the orphans home. Those at the meeting were, Mrs. Oscar Cox, Mrs. Bork Jones, Miss Nannie Williams, Mrs. Bill Cox, Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Mrs. Alice Burnett, Mrs. Candy Williams and Mrs. O. L. Rawlinson.

Mrs. Bill Cox has given a beautiful quilt top for the benefit of the church. Tender young green and yellow are the colors which make up the top. Mrs. Cox, assisted by Mrs. John Cox, presents a well thought out idea of finishing the quilt. The ladies of the W. M. S. and the members of the Sunday school have accepted the plan. These two ladies will appreciate the help of anyone in carrying out this plan.

A program for the Sunday school will be presented Easter morning at 10 o'clock. A group of children under five years of age are taking part. Others are helping also. Miss Jewel Williams and Mrs. Ernest Wilson are in charge of the program.

The Womans Missionary Society is studying "Why and How of W. M. U.," by Wilma Geneva Bucy. Examination on the book will be taken at an early date.

J. Harmon Broadhead is able to be out again after a throat trouble for several days.

He—You see, if we enter into a companionate marriage, we can live together a while and then, if we find we've made a mistake, we can separate.

She—Yes, but what'll become of the mistake?

"Two things I wanted -

"I found out my trouble"

"...and it was all so simple when I found out my trouble. My physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood.

"The reasonableness of one of the S.S.S. ads caused me to think that S.S.S. Tonic was just what I needed for my let-down feeling, pimply skin and low resistance. I wanted more strength and a clear skin.

"It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal—and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores ... in two convenient sizes ... the larger is more economical.

Complimenting Record of Percy Pitts In Legislature of Alabama

Concerning the present candidacy of Percy Pitts for Representative in the Legislature, it becomes interesting to look back over his past record as Representative and observe something of the manner in which he deported himself.

Of particular significance are some references made to Mr. Pitts by the newspapers of Montgomery a few years ago when he was in the thick of some important legislative battles at the Capitol. The following clippings are presented:

This column has had occasion more than one time to say something about Representative Percy Pitts of Chilton County. Mr. Pitts is a Republican and in this sense is very lonesome in the house, having only two other representatives of like faith to "caucus" with. But Mr. Pitts is taking a strong part in legislative affairs at the present session as he did at the first session.

During the grinding legislative battles in the house caucus Thursday, Mr. Pitts stood loyally to his guns and cemented the friendship of the men who are leading the battle in the house for measures which are calculated to make for the progress of Alabama. And these house leaders appreciate the stand of Representative Pitts.

There is another thing about Mr. Pitts that is interesting. That is the fact that he was a college mate of a number of members of the house, and he has their friendship and regard no matter if he does represent a political party which is distinctly in the minority in Alabama.

The people of Chilton County, according to leaders of the Alabama house, are to be congratulated on their acumen in selecting Mr. Pitts as their representative, if they had to have a Republican to represent them.—Montgomery Advertiser, 1927.

Speaking about Percy Pitts, it might be well to recall it was through his popularity personally that the present government of Chilton County so far as the Commissioners Court is concerned, remains as it is. Scenting a chance at the pie, Democrats of Chilton County attempted to get the legislature to change things up there so that a Democratic Commissioners Court would be certain. But Mr. Pitts was too strong and too popular with the members of the legislature for the scheme to go through and it died aborning.

Percy Pitts comes to Montgomery frequently on legal business. This includes practice before the supreme court and before Judge Clayton of the Federal Court. Chilton and adjoining counties are in Judge Clayton's district and this naturally throws Mr. Pitts into Judge Clayton's court quite frequently because some of the citizens of Mr. Pitts's section of the state make a "wee bit of malt" at times and naturally have business with the federal court.—Montgomery Advertiser, May 10th, 1928.

Birmingham, Ala., April 27, 1933.
Editor Chilton County News:

Please allow me space in your paper to express the appreciation of the merchants and citizens of the state for the loyal support and fine cooperation given by your Representative Percy M. Pitts and Senator J. G. Duncan, Jr., in the defeat of the Sales Tax at the session of the legislature which has just closed.

These gentlemen certainly had the interest of the people of our section at heart when they refused to vote for this iniquitous tax measure.

I hope every citizen in your section will seek Representative Pitts and Senator Duncan personally and thank them for their cooperation in helping defeat this measure.—Thanking you, I am, sincerely yours, Alabama Independent Merchants Association, Inc., B. C. Apperson, secretary.

"Percy Pitts, Representative from Chilton County, and popular member of the house, continues to carry out the wishes of the people of his county in opposing the sales tax."—The Merchants Journal, March, 1933.

Thousands have Ended their Bowel Worries

by taking this advice!

Can constipation be safely relieved? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say the many thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not likely to cure your constipation with salts, pills, tablets, or any of the habit-forming cathartics. But you can correct this condition by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

THE LIQUID TEST:

First: select a properly prepared liquid laxative. Second: take the dose you find suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving of their own accord.

Simple, isn't it? And it works! The right liquid laxative brings thorough bowel action without using force. An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as in the case of mineral drugs.

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. The dose can be measured, and the action controlled. Pills and tablets containing drugs of violent action are hard on the bowels.

If there are children in your household, don't give them any fad form of laxative, but use a healthful, helpful preparation like Syrup Pepsin. Its very taste will tell you it is wholesome, and agreeable to the stomach. Delightful taste, and delightful action; there is no discomfort at the time, or after. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, all ready to take.

BETTER FACULTY MEMBERS IN STATE TEACHERS COLLEGES

Montgomery, Ala., March 13.—Seventeen per cent of the faculty members in the State Teachers Colleges of Alabama now hold earned doctor's degrees, whereas in 1926 only 2 per cent held that degree, according to Dr. Clarence M. Dannelly, of Montgome, who is directing a research study in certain administrative practices among the present educational units in Alabama. The study also shows that 65 per cent now have master's degrees when in 1926 only 19 per cent had this degree; and only a single member in 1933-34 is without at least a bachelor's degree, when in 1919 less than half of the faculties held such a degree.

The faculty improvement is declared by Mr. Dannelly to be evidence of "surprisingly remarkable" progress on the part of these institutions during the past fifteen years, particularly in view of the "tragic conditions" in financial support during the past decade.

The startling feature of this improvement by the teachers colleges is that it was accomplished at the same time the institutions suffered great reduction in income. Total receipts of the combined colleges in 1933 amounted to 28.6 per cent of what they were in 1929; state support declined in 1933 to 23.4 per cent o what it was in 1929.

The study reveals that the State Teachers Colleges of Alabama actually received a much smaller sum in 1933 than they did ten years before. Florence and Livingston in 1933 received only half of their 1923 income; Jacksonville was short $23,000, and Troy by the sum of more than $47,000.

The study claims that "the cost of instruction and the total of educational expenditures in these institutions, both in the aggregate amount and on a per capita basis, exceed the appropriations for support from the state." In 1933, Jacksonville received from the state a total of $28,277; the instruction cost was $44,133, with the total educational expenditures amounting to $70,756. On a per capita basis, the state paid $46.88 whereas the nistruction cost was $70.19 and the educational expenditure was $117.34. Similar conditions are declared to exist in the other institutions.

Such a paradoxical condition of fine faculty with insufficient support is possible, in the opinion of Dr. Dannelly, only by teachers continuing to "tote" an undue proportion of the financial load. "Adequate support of competent instructors," he stated, "is essential if the present fine showing of these colleges be continued."

NATHANIEL GREEN WARD

Nathaniel Green Ward, age 81 years, died early last Sunday morning at his home in the Liberty Hill community. Funeral services were at Liberty Hill church Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. A. J. Davis and Rev. A. L. Foshee. Burial was in charge of Martin at the Childress cemetery.

Mr. Ward is survived by four sons, R. E. L. Ward, of Lomax, D. W., C. C. and W. T. Ward, of Liberty Hill; one daughter, Mrs. Collie Culp.

Wrecked Motorist (opening his eyes)—I had the right of way didn't I?

Bystander—Yeh, but the other fellow had a truck.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

It was the editor's privilege recently to speak on the same platform with Dr. H. C. Morrison, Dr. Paul Rader, and a number of other outstanding ministers of the Gospel. It is my opinion that H. C. Morrison has more elements of a great preacher than any man I know. He is dramatic, eloquent, and courageous. He thinks clearly. He has imagination. He has strong convictions. He preaches a great gospel. Dr. Morrison is seventy-seven years old, but he is "going strong." Paul Rader has had a great Christian experience. He is the son of a Methodist minister. He has culture. When he was young he was sent to college by his godly father to study for the ministry. A college professor stole his faith. He tried to preach without faith. It wouldn't work. He gave up. He became a prize fighter and promoter. The prayers of his parents followed him. Conviction seized him on Wall Street in New York City. He went to his room in a magnificent hotel. For three days and nights he wrestled with God. He came out of that room fill with the spirit. For twenty-two years he has preached the gospel around the world. He is supporting more than one hundred missionaries. No man ever brought a greater blessing to the Bob Jones College students than Paul Rader. He is a great preacher of a great gospel.

There will always be a place for a great preacher. He does not depend upon power or human authority. Sam Jones said that he learned from Simon Peter Richardson that the pulpit is not a prison but a throne. The man who knows the Gospel, who lives the Gospel, and who preaches the Gospel commands the attention of his age. The apostle Paul has influenced the world more than any man for two thousand years. All he did was to give God's message to a distressed world. He erected no church buildings. He organized no governments. He led no army. He preached: "Preaching is the thing with which to catch the conscience of the world." All the world needs today is preaching. One dozen preachers like Knox, Luther, Wesley, Whitfield and Edwards could save civilization. Since we have none of these great preachers, if the ones we have would preach a great Gospel, we could get the needed results.

P. M. MARTIN WRITES

Editor Union-Baner:

Please allow me a space in your letter to the voters of Chilton County.

Well, I guess you have seen my announcement in the paper as a candidate for a member of the board of education. Many of my friends have solicited and helped me in my decision to enter the race.

First, I want to say that the office does not pay salary enough to justify me to make a house to house canvass, so I will make my statement through the paper.

First, I want to say that I am a true Republican. I never voted any other ticket in my life. There are two places on the board to be filled, and four Republicans out for the places. As to the other three, they are good men, as far as I know, and I have nothing to say against them, but I feel like this side of the county needs a member on the board and the other three are in the lower end of the county. And now I will tell you some of the things I stand for, then if you want to vote for me, I will appreciate your vote and influence.

First, I believe in a full term, free school.

Second, I believe in making every child be in reach of school by means of transportation.

Third, I do not believe in moving all of our country schools to town.

Fourth, I believe in high schools enough to take care of the county.

Fifth, I believe in Jr. High Schools enough to take care of all the children.

If I am elected I will ask the chairman of the trustees to make a report of what money has been paid in at the mid-term and at the end of each school year so the parents of each school shall know how the school stands. I will also ask that this be put in the county papers.

I believe in all teachers being paid for their work, and I don't believe in paying some for twelve months and others for the term of school. I believe in the patrons of each school electing their teachers and trustees as long as they can agree.

I have always taken a great interest in schools and if elected in November I shall still stand up for education.

I believe in a portion of God's word being read in each school room every day, and a word of prayer being offered.

I was born in Beat 12, and still live in the same Beat. Now if there is any questions anyone would like to ask I will be glad to answer as to the best of my knowledge.

Now if the voters of Chilton County see fit to vote for me in the primary and the general election as a member of the board of education, I will appreciate your decision. If I am not your choice I will help to put the ticket over in November. — Respectfully, P. M. Martin, Jemison, Ala. Route 1.

MRS. AMELIA F. STEWART

Mrs. Amelia F. Stewart, age 89 years, was found dead in bed at her home in the Mineral Springs community last Saturday morning. Her aged husband first knew she was dead when he attempted to awaken her. It is thought she died early after retiring Friday night.

Burial was at Robinson cemetery, near Mineral Springs Sunday, in charge of Martin.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deep appreciation for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our dear brother and loved one, J. L. Clark. Fspecially do we thank Dr. Horace G. Franklin, of Thorsby, for his interest and efforts. May God's richest blessings ever abide with each of you.—Mrs. R. S. Scroggins, J. C. Clark, Ida Edwards.

FOR MEMBER OF CONGRESS

I wish to represent you in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, composed of Bibb, Chilton, Green, Hale, Perry, Shelby, Sumpter and Tuscaloosa Counties. I pledge my best efforts to serve my district, my party and my nation well. I want your vote and influence. Thank you.

GOING FISHING? HERE IS THE PLACE TO GO NOW

Tom McKee makes an offer that should be quite attractive to those who may have to yield to itching of the ibberjibber, and go off to the river to get relief.

He says if you want to go fishing, and haven't the money to buy or rent a boat, just come on down to his place, Gravel Beach, on Lake Mitchell, and he has a boat all ready for you, and he hopes you have good luck.

Don't accuse Tom of making this offer just because he is a candidate for Tax Collector. That is not true, for he made the same offer to his friends in previous years.

"Yes that's the price for two orchestra seats. Want 'em?"

"No, I think I'll take a Mediterranean cruise instead."

BONDS ISSUED FOR WARRANTS

Chilton Is Among First Counties to Get Exchange On School Funds

Montgomery, Ala., March 19.—The first bonds of $16,840,000 refunding bond issue went to the Autauga County School Board Monday in exchange for outstanding state warrants.

J. H. Hard, Jr., state comptroller, said that warrants held by 12 County Boards of Education were exchanged for state bonds Monday but that the rush of work prevented him from announcing the amount of money involved.

The exchange is being carried out under the supervision of J. A. Porter, and the counties will be handled in alphabetical order until their warrants have been exchanged. Then City School Boards and state institutions will exchange their bonds, and after all educational warrants have been exchanged, warrants held by the general public will be handled.

Those counties receiving bonds for warrants Monday were Autauga, Baldwin, Barbour, Bibb, Blount, Bullock, Butler, Calhoun, Chambers, Cherokee, Chilton and Choctaw.

Under a recent ruling by Thomas E. Knight, Jr., attorney general, the interest-bearing coupons on the bonds will go directly to school teachers if county boards of education have issued non-interest bearing certificates for salary payments using the state warrant as security.

The bonds bear 5 per cent interest from July, 1933, and one coupon in each bond already has fallen due and a sufficient amount has been set aside by the comptroller to meet these interest payments.

Roy Billings, chief of the income tax division, was still struggling through a maze of returns Monday and said he would not have an announcement on the final collections before a day or two.

All funds from the income tax are pledged for the retirement of the refunding bonds.

THOMAS GIRLS CO. CHAMPIONS

By clean sportsmanship and hard fighting, our girls were victorious at the basketball tournament held at Jemison on Saturday, March 17. The girls have played well throughout the season, having lost only one game.

Members of the champion team are: Velma Jones, Claris Thornton, Merle Kelley, Marie Devaughn, Jessie Davis, Louise Moore and Cevie Belle Duke.

Regardless of the fact that Duke is small in size, she occupied an important part on the basketball court. Her alertness and Moore's skill in throwing the ball, made them efficient guards. The center was held by Devaughn and Davis. Devaughn's speed and Davis's accuracy in placing the ball, enabled them to surpass their opponents in passwork.

Ringing the ball certainly didn't seem to be a difficult task for the forwards, Jones, Thornton and Kelley. They made a score of 33 points in the championship game, while the opposing team scored 14 points. Kelley not only played well as a forward, but rated as a guard also, throughout the last half of the game.

YOUNG WOMEN'S S.S. CLASS MEETS FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Homemakers Sunday school class of the Clanton Baptist church meets Friday afternoon, March 23rd, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. J. Lee Smith. The regular monthly meeting will be held, followed with the Blues entertaining the Reds with a party. All members are urged to attend.

Absent-minded professor (going through revolving doors); "Dear me, I can't remember whether I was going out or coming in."

Grammar School Teachers Named

Recommendation Will Be Made By Trustees to County School Board

The Board of Trustees of the Clanton Grammar schools has tentatively agreed upon recommendations for principal and faculty of the Clanton Grammar school for next year. Their recommendations will be made to the County Board of Education at its next meeting for approval by that body.

Following is the list of teachers as will be recommended by the Trustees:

Principal, U. H. Abrams.

First grade, Miss Emma Sue Morris and Mrs. Amye Gandy.

Second grade, Mrs. Samuel Martin and Miss Lucille Sherwood.

Third grade, Mrs. Barney Burnette and Mrs. Searcy.

Fourth grade, Miss Wilnita Campbell.

Fifth grade, Mrs. Curry D. Thomas.

Sixth grade, Miss Bess Thomas.

At the time this information was given out it was stated that the Board of Trustees had not completed its action relative to nominations of principal and teachers for the Chilton County High school.

JONIFER HEADLEY ESTATE SETTLED HERE THURSDAY

Final settlement of the estate of Jonifer Headley was made by the family last Thursday in a meeting at the office of Reynolds & Reynolds, attorneys, in Clanton.

Unanimous agreement was reached by the heirs and members of the family, with counsel and advice of Reynolds & Reynolds, and legal process was not necessary to determine the settlement.

Besides the widow, Mrs. Adeline Headley, the children interested in the settlement of the estate were Mary Tyus, Emma Davison, Aulcey Payton, Horace D. Headley, and Bessie Hand.

34 AIRPORTS TO BE READY APR. 1

Indications Are That the Work Will Be Carried On to July, 1935

Montgomery, Ala. — Col. Sumpter Smith, state CWA airport adviser, announced that 34 airports under construction in Alabama would be in condition for landing planes on April 1.

Col. Smith said that 56 airports are under construction in the state with CWA labor, while sites have been acquired for 21 additional fields. This number, he said, almost doubles the mark of any other Southern state for airport construction.

These new airports open to planes for landing on April 1 are located at Alexander City, Andalusia, Brewton, Camp Hill, Center, Chatom, Clanton, Clayton, Clio, Columbiana, Dadeville, Dothan, Elba, Enterprise, Eufaula, Eutaw, Flomaton, Foley, Geiger, Geneva, Greensboro, Hayneville, Marion, Monroeville, Montevallo, Ozark, Oneonta, Samson, Sheffield, Talladega, Thomasville, Troy, Tuskegee, Uniontown and Valley Head.

Col. Smith stated that at least one runway would be available at these airports on April 1, althought the entire work would not be completed.

He said the work on the airports would continue for approximately 15 months longer since the appropriation for this work does not expire until July, 1935.

INCREASE FOR PUBLIC WORKS

New Federal Program For Rehabilitation of Rural People

Auburn, Ala.—The new federal program for the rehabilitation of rural people now on relief rolls will have the cooperation of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute. Dr. L. N. Duncan, director, said his organization will work with federal forces under Harry Hopkins, of Washington, and Thad Holt, Alabama director, to obtain best results.

The goal in Alabama—as in other states—is to shift from relief to rehabilitation, or from dependence to independence. It will be done under federal direction but the assistance of county agents, home demonstration agents, teachers of vocational agriculture, and all others who are engaged in or interested in rural problems will have an opportunity to participate.

In the United States 600,000 farm families have been on relief rolls this winter. As the initial step, all of these will be encouraged to make arrangements for themselves. Others will be assisted by other means in providing for themselves without public help.

Since the change must be made without further complications to the present agricultural surplus problem, Mr. Hopkins is proposing more public works, federal state and county. This will include roads, bridges, school houses and parks. These are expected to provide income work part of the time for farm people, and thereby give them a purchasing power in addition to a living, most of which they are expected to produce on their farms.

Looking further into the future, Mr. Hopkins is proposing mixing many little industries with agriculture in order to provide work for their farms and thereby give them a cash income in addition to a living.

Donald Comer, Birmingham manufacturer and chairman of the Alabama Rural Rehabilitation Committee, is enthusiastic over the proposal to associate closely industry with agriculture. He declared that this is the paramount need and that the program outlined by Mr. Hopkins at the recent meeting in Atlanta "is the most heartening statement within my memory."

Others of the Alabama delegation attending the Atlanta meeting were as enthusiastic as Mr. Comer over the Hopkins proposal. The delegation included Thad Holt, Ray Crow, J. F. Newcomb, Mary Weber and Lula Dunn, of Montgomery; Robert K. Green, of Greensboro, and J. D. Pope, of Auburn.

"Can you give me a bite to eat?"

"Have you no trade my good men?"

"Yes, I make counterfeit money, but it isn't worth the materials' cost.

People of Town Raise $425 To Match Appropriation of Town Council

The Clanton Grammar School will run another month from Wednesday, March 21, according to announcement of G. C. Armstrong, chairman of the Board of Trustees, after completing a campaign for raising a fund of $425 to match a like amount that was appropriated by the Town Council for the purpose of paying expenses of the extra four weeks.

Solicitation of contributions to help match the town's appropriation was made by a committee composed of G. C. Armstrong, Maurice Lande, and W. M. Wyatt. Practically all business houses in Clanton gave a dollar to the fund. Many individuals who have no children in school gave three dollars to pay for one pupil who was not able to pay his fees. About eighty pupils of the school paid their three dollars for the expenses of the extra month. Several patrons paid three dollars each for their own children and three dollars for an extra one.

The committee found a very ready and hearty response from the people in this appeal for continuation of the school, and a universal endorsement of the action of the Town Council in making the appropriation of $425 for this purpose.

McCord and Dixon Will Speak Here

Candidates For Governor Are Coming Next Saturday and Saturday Week

Two of Alabama's three candidates for governor have announced speaking engagements at the courthouse in Clanton.

Judge Leon McCord will come first when he appears before the people in a public address on next Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

It is understood that Major Frank M. Dixon has put in an engagement for the courthouse on the following Saturday afternoon, March 31st.

A report has been circulated that both McCord and Dixon will speak here next Saturday afternoon. Investigation revealed that this is not correct, as Major Dixon has arranged to come on the following Saturday afternoon, March 31.

Supporters of Col. Bibb Graves say that the people of Chilton County will also have a chance to hear an address by the ex-governor before the campaign comes to a close. No announcement has been made as to the exact date.

Democrats of Chilton County are very much interested in the race for governor. All three of the candidates have an active and aggrsesive organization headed by prominent local people.

MANY CASES OF MEASLES

During the past two weeks an epidemic of measles has been widespread throughout Chilton County. Doctors have been busy answering calls to patients. Many cases have been more than odrinarily severe. Pneumonia following some of the cases. Only a few fatalities have been reported, however. Attendance at some schools has been cut in half on account of the epidemic.

Henry Robinson Succeeds Mims

Appointment Made By Governor Miller on Thursday of Last Week

Henry E. Robinson, Democrat, of Beat 9, has been appointed by Governor Miller, as Commissioner of the Second District of Chilton County, to succeed J. M. Mims, Republican, who died a few days ago. Mr. Robinson received his appointment and commission from the Governor's office last Thursday, and immediately assumed the duties of the office.

Mr. Robinson is a candidate for the office in the Democratic primary of May 1st. He is opposed on the Democratic ticket by Howard Oden, of Beat 3.

Candidates for Commissioner of the Second District in the Republican primary are T. A. Maddox, former commissioner, Andrew J. Davis and Perry Gore.

Under the present appointment Mr. Robinson will serve out the unexpired term of Mr. Mims, which ends next January. The one who is elected in November will begin his term in January and serve for four years.

Auburn Seniors Visiting Plants

Aubrey Taylor, Clanton Boy, Is Member of Class To Graduate

Seniors in three departments at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, were in Birmingham Monday making a tour of industrial plants and business institutions, studying practices and methods of manufacturing and business operations. They are from the engineering, chemistry, and business administration departments, and are following the custom of seniors in visiting there each year as part of their course of study. About 100 students were in the party.

They were accompanied by Prof. W. W. Hill, Prof. C. R. Hixon, Prof. W. C. Crow and Dr. C. A. Basore. The students visited the plants of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Company, Alpha Portland Cement Company, American Steel & Wire Company, McWane Cast Iron Pipe Company, United States Pipe & Foundry Company, Southern Railway shops, Birmingham Electric Company, Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company, Matthews Electric Company, The Birmingham News and Age-Herald, Moore-Handley Hardware Company, Young & Vann Supply Company and other industrial and commercial establishments in the Birmingham and immediate district.

The tour began at the Tutwiler Hotel, going from there to the T. C. I. plants and thence to the others, the program calling for the entire day inspecting and studying at these places.

Mr. Aubrey Taylor, member of the senior class in electrical engineering, was at home in Clanton last week end. He went from here to Birmingham to join his class in the inspection trip as outlined in the foregoing news article, clipped from the Birmingham News.

Mrs. Katherine Moore Monday, of Birmingham, sang at the Clanton Baptist church at Sunday school and preaching Sunday. Mrs. Monday has been blind from birth, but is a talented singer. Her numbers were greatly enjoyed.

MAVIS DONALD WILLIAMS DIED

Mavis Donald Williams, age 11 years, died of appendicitis at the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton last Saturday morning. Burial was at Mt. Nebo Sunday, Martin in charge. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Cecil Ellisor.

The deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Eugene Williams of Sardis community.

More Interest Will Be Shown As the Week Comes To A Close

With Saturday, which will bring to a close the Kiwanis Prosperity Trade Week still three days away, Chilton County merchants and business men are contemplating this week end to make business history in the county.

Featuring some of the most outstanding values ever known in this section, anticipation of an overwhelming business for the remaining three days of the trade week seems to enjoy favorable chances of realization.

Again the business establishments of this county have shown their true colors with unlimited cooperation to make a huge success of this endeavor to promote a rejuvenation of general business. The Prosperity Sale Week came out of a suggestion by Cecil Stokes, county manager of the National Re-employment Service, and was put into effect through the cooperation of the Clanton Kiwanis Club and Chilton County business establishments.

Busy clerks could be seen all this week arranging attractive displays in all of Clanton's stores—marking down prices—planning specials for Saturday, all in an effort to give the county purchaser outstanding bargains during the remaining days of this "better business campaign."

By trading with the establishments participating in this campaign to better business conditions and relieve to some extent the unemployment condition in the county, purchasers are being offered exceptional values, are assured of every courtesy, and in addition will enjoy the opportunity to share in attractive and useful awards, which are being offered as an outstanding feature of this program.

Billy Smith Now Acting Postmaster

Assumed Duties Last Thursday Night, Succeeding Mr. Wiley Bean

Mr. Billy Smith, editor and publisher of The Chilton County News, was appointed postmaster at Clanton, effective at the close of business Thursday, March 15. Mr. Smith was notified of his appointment by telegram from the first assistant postmaster general Wednesday night. He succeeds Wiley M. Bean, whose term expired March 6th.

Mr. Smith issued the following statement as he assumed the duties of acting postmaster: "My appointment as acting postmaster of course does not effect the personnel of the office. The other employees will continue in their present capacities, and it is my hope that I, as acting postmaster, shall be able to give to the public a continuation of that fine service which has been rendered by my predecessor. To this end I solocit the cooperation and support of the patrons of the Clanton office."

Mr. Smith also gave out the statement that his duties as editor and publisher of The Chilton County News and Rockford Chronicle will be taken over by Mr. Vernie Teel.

COLLEGE EDUCATION WORTH $100,000 HIGH SCHOOL $24,000, SAYS EXPERT

In connection with the nationwide observance of Financial Independence Week the value of a high school education was placed at $24,000 and the value of a college education at $100,000 in increased life-time earnings. Several years ago Dr. Everet W. Lord, of Boston University undertook to determine the actual financial value of a college education, disregarding the cultural and social advantages involved. Consequently, he conducted a nationwide survey with the assistance of Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity. From averages secured by interviewing many thousands of individuals carefully selected from all walks of life, the following information was obtained:

"The average untrained boy goes to work at age 14. He reaches his maximum income of about $1,700 a year at age 40. From 14 to 60, he earns a total of $64,000.

"The average high school graduate goes to work at age 18. He passes the untrained man within ten years and reaches his maximum income of $2,800 at age 50. By age 60 he has earned a total of $88,000.

"The college man begins his career about age 22. Before he is 30, however, he has caught up with the man who started to work four years earlier. At age 60, his income is $6,000 to $8,000 a year. His total earnings at age 60 are $160,000 to $200,000.

From these averages, it is evident that in the past, four years spent in high school has been worth $24,000 in increased lifetime savings. An additional four years spent in college, how ever has been worth in the neighborhood of $100,000 in increased lifetime earnings. The general trend is such as to increase this differential rather than to diminish it. Any straight thinking parent who considers these facts in the light of his own son's future, cannot fail but reach the conclusion that a college education will be worth almost any sacrifice in order to assure it.

Same True of Girls

In the case of a daughter, the situation is practically unchanged. A college education brings the same cultural, financial and social advantages to a girl that it brings to a boy. Should she be planning a career for herself, as many girls do these days, a college education is just as necessary as for a boy, perhaps even more so, as business seems to demand more training from a girl than from the average man.

Should a girl prefer a career as homemaker, at first glance it might seem that a college education is not so necessary. But upon second thought, it is apparent that a college education gives her an overwhelming advantage. The college girl will, in almost every case, marry a college trained man. Thus, automatically she places herself on a higher plane, socially, culturally and financially. Now it is time to tage care of the doubting Thomasses. In the first place, almost every neighborhood has some young men who went away to college with a more or less unblemished record, and returned with the ideas and behavior quite strange to his family training. In other words, it must be admitted there are cases where colleges do not improve certain types either morally, or in a practical way.

Hopeless Cases

The answer to this problem is the fact that the individual who is ruined by attending college, ultimately would be ruined anyway. There is a certain intensity about college life which brings out the good or bad in an individual much quicker than would be the case in the regular routine of circumstances.

Then it must be admitted there is a certain percentage of college graduates who never make a success of life. In every community, you find examples, easily pointed out as an argument against college training. Well, it is true that certain types should never go to college. College training can not create mental capability. Its function is limited to instruction and development. For the mind which is incapable of development, college training holds little promise. For the mother or father who want to be certain that their children will be provided with an education five, ten or fifteen years hence, the life insurance companies, as a result of their well established record for stability, can be safely made use of for the creation of an educational fund that can be depended upon to be available when needed.

Judge—It seems to me I have seen you before.

Prisoner—You have, your honor, I gave your daughter singing lessons.

Judge—Thirty years.

Biggest Sack Flour You've Ever Seen

On Display at Clanton Cash Store Friday and Saturday Of This Week

Obie DeLoach, manager of the Clanton Cash Store, is all agog over the big sack of flour which is coming to his store to spend the day Friday and Saturday of this week.

Mr. DeLoach is very much worried about the amount of flour in this uncommonly big sack. In fact, he is so perturbed over the question he wants all his friends and customers to come and take a look at it and help him guess how many pounds of flour there are in the sack, or how many biscuits it will make.

This is an absolutely new brand of flour, a new discovery in the biscuit world. It has in it a blend of malted wheat. Several local people have already tried a sample, and they pronounce it the best ever known.

A full stock of this new flour in two brands, "Light Flake" and "Better Brand," will be stocked at the Clanton Cash Store this week, and the big sack will be here Friday and Saturday.

Pastor—I touched them rather deeply this morning, don't you think so?

Deacon—I'm not sure; I haven't counted up the contributions yet.

You parents who have a child in school, are you taking the right amount of interest in his school work? Do you encourage the child to overcome obstacles? Do you commend him when he does excellent work? Do you try to help him find the trouble when his grades fail? If you do all of the preceding things and more, your child will have no trouble in passing his work. If you do not show interest whatsoever in his work and in his grades, he is not going to do his best. When he comes home with a high grade and runs in to tell you about it, don't just look at him and say "uh-huh;" don't do that, instead, congratulate him, and show him that you are proud of him and I guarantee your child will bring home more good grades to show you.

Those students that fail to reach high marks in their grades after an honest effort will find encouragement if they will read "Character", by Emil Ludwig, in the March issue of the American Magazine. You who are discouraged because of not attaining high positions in life will find a word of cheer in this article.

School is not in session today and will not be tomorrow, since the Alabama Education Association is holding its annual session in Birmingham. All the teachers of C.C.H.S. will attend the A.E.A. in Birmingham on Thursday and Friday of this week.

In looking through the Alabama School Journal the writer noticed that the teachers of Chilton County are listed among those who have paid their A.E.A. dues. That is true to their character.

The entrance gate at the southern end of the driveway has now been finished and stands as an unforgetable gift from a progressive and loyal Senior Class to its school. This school is not merely a school but an organization of which its members are proud.

Rings for the members of the Senior Class have arrived and by this time you will see the Seniors proudly displaying their class rings.

The students were entertained on Tuesday morning with a musical program presented by Mrs. Catherine Munday, of Stanton. Mrs. Muday's blindness seems not to interfere at all with the pursuit of her musical talent as she not only plays the so-called old favorites, but popular music as well.

Reports from the baseball field make the baseball fans of Clanton feel that time at Chilton's games this year will not be wasted. Definite announcements have not been made yet but Coach Searcy is pleased beyond his expectations with the talent available this year.

The school is happy to know that their principal, Mr. L. C. Warr, is serving on several of the important committees in the association this year. This honor was never bestowed upon a man any more deserving than Mr. Warr. With such educators as our principal on its committees the association will make rapid and safe progress this year.

The Junior class has selected its play to be presented soon and from everyone who has read it comes just one comment—"One like it? Never before." The play is scheduled for Friday night, April 6. The story and more announcements will be made next week. You may doubt it now but you'll believe it next week when I say it is "the play."

Not only does our principal attend to the duties as a teacher and business manager of the school, but he looks after the welfare of the building as well. The floors of the school have just recently received a dressing of oil. The oil increases the life of the wood and keeps down germs.

Below is published the honor roll for the month of February. The remaining three grades will be printed next week. To be on this honor roll, a student must have the necessary average of an "A" or "B" on both his studies and deportment. One must also be neither absent nor tardy during the first month.

Senior III—A, Lucille Johnson and Joe Moore; B, Johnnie Blankenship and Virgil Robinson. Senior II, A, Grace Plyler and Wade Alford; B, Magie Logan, Alice Petty, Elsie Vinson, Ethel Wilkinson, Charles Gandy. Junior I, A, Ed Goodgame, Sydney Nelson, Olive Rainer Elmore, Vivian Lowery, Peggy Page, Nell Rockett, Sara Elizabeth Venable and Theda Wyatt; B, Dorothy Carter, Jeanette Culver, Mary Lou Frazier, Annie Pearl Honeycutt, Nell Jones, Ruby Jones, Hazel Nivens, Myrtle Pitts, Hilda Smith, Ruth Thomaston and L. P. Vines.

Who am I? You were right, it was Roberta Cochran last week. A fitting description. Another one this week. I am seventeen years old. I am a blond. Popular with my friends, well thought of in school. I wear glasses. I go around with a girl whom this description might fit. Who am I? Now you dective-brained students, who is this one?

But it will be someone or else a certain unbecoming and disgusting custom will fail. * * * For the sake of all, let's hope that it does fail. * * The writer, for his own benefit, would like to know how many really read this section and want it continued. * * * When you have a chance just speak to him about it. * * * I promised you a real surprise soon. Well, it's coming, and what a surprise. * * * First, they shun him and try to get rid of him and then they beg him. * * * He's got sense and won't consent. He's a Senior II. Saturday night must have been a time of disappointment. Mr. T. J. Mims and family visited Mr. J. A. Thompson and family and they were gone. Mr. J. J. Johnson and family visited Mr. T. J. Mims and family and were gone. Rev. J. H. Hightower and family visited Mr. J. J. Johnson and family and they were gone also. So you see, there was disappointment on every side.

Mrs. J. A. Thompson and Mrs. C. Nolen attended the singing at Maples Springs Church Sunday afternoon.

We are glad to know Mrs. Gladys Mims, who is in the Central Alabama Hospital, is slowly improving.

Rev. C. M. Nolen and family went home with Mr. J. A. Thompson and family from church Sunday.

Rev. C. M. Nolen filled his regular appointment here Sunday. He gave us a picture of a Christian person standing face to face with the world, and how God will give them power to overcome to victory for God and His Kingdom.

We had fifteen present at the C. E. Sunday night. We had a fine subject, "What has Christ Meant to Me?" I am sure He has meant to many, more than they can express. He can mean as much to so many who do not know Him.

Boost the C. E. Tell others what it is doing for you. Invite them to come and tell them how badly we need them to help in making our C. E. a better society.

CONCERT AT BETHSALEM

The people of Bethsalm and surrounding communities are asked to bear in mind the concert which is to be held at Betsalem church Friday night of this week. It is the closing exercises of Prof. L. M. Harden's singing school, which has been running for the past three weeks at Pleasant Valley. It will begin at 7:30 o'clock; a small admission will be charged.

ISABELLA 4-H CLUB

The members of the Isabella 4-H Club met with Miss Ruth Pardue in the home economics department Friday, March 9. We have some new officers who are as follows: President Avolene Jones, vice president, Ruth Martin, secretar-treasurer Elizabeth Mims, reporter Louise Cox.

Our meeting day has been changed from the first Thursday in each month to the second Friday in each month.

Some of the girls are ready for the second project which is the making of a dress.—Reporter.

STORE IS BEING REMODELED

The old W. M. Wilson two-story brick store on Main Street is being remodeled according to plans designed by Mr. J. Renfroe Mullins, present owner of the property.

Mr. Mullins states that it will be about a month before the building will be finished. At the present time he gives out no information as to plans for its occupancy.

We wish to express thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the sickness and death of our father, J. P. Cost. Also for the floral offerings.—The Children.

"I wonder why Peck always goes to a lady dentist."

"I suppose it seems good to hear a woman tell him to open his mouth instead of to shut it."

Our Sunday school is rather small here lately, on account of sickness. We met Sunday morning at our regular time.

Brother Lawley rendered a good sermon after Sunday school which was enjoyed by all.

We are sorry to know that there are so many on the sick list. We hope them a speedy recovery.

Miss Ettie Charles Wilkins was the Sunday dinner guest of Misses Pauline and Flora Strickland.

Mr. Earl Klinner and family were the Sunday guests of Mrs. Docie Vinson.

Mr. John Cox and family were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughey Williams Mrs. Williams's mother and father, Wilkins. were the Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wash Bowles.

Mr. Clem Billingsley and family were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Altman Gray.

Mr. Woodrow Hunter was the Saturday night guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ed McGee.

Our B. Y. P. U. met Sunday night with a small attendance on account of sickness. We hope the health will soon be better so our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. will be larger and better.

Remember next Sunday is our regulaar singing Sunday afternoon. All the singers that will, come and be with us and help us out.—A Reader.

BEE MEETING

Tuesday, March 27th, there will be a meeting of the Chilton County Bee Keepers Association in Clanton. All who have bees are urged to be present and be able to say how many queens and equipment you want. We are planning to order equipment as an association to save on prices and freight.

Let us meet at Mr. Fant's office about eight o'clock and he will designate the meeting place. Mr. Fant will be with us and we plan to make it a helpful meeting.—G. G. Williams.

FOUR TONS CABBAGE AT HILL'S

J. W. McEathern, manager of the Hill Grocery Store in Clanton, said Tuesday: "We have four tons of cabbage coming in to be sold Friday and Saturday of this week at 1¾ cents a pound. We hope this will be enough to supply the wants of all."

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR EASTER SERVICE

The annual Easter service of Clanton Commandery of the Knights Templar will be held on Easter Sunday, April 1, at the Clanton Methodist Church.

All members of the Commandery will attend the services in full dress. Further details of the special program will be announced next week.

There is a good bit of plowing going on here at present.

Brother R. E. Hyde will preach for us next Sunday at 11 a.m., so let's all come and help in the good work.

Mr. Harvey Nabors and wife visited his father and mother here Sunday.

Mrs. Alice Denson visited her daughter, Mrs. Bess Holcombe, Sunday.

Mr. Pat Lucas and wife had a fine girl born to them on March 16th. The mother and baby are doing fine at present.

Mrs. Herbert Williams spent the week end with her husband at Thorsby.

The school children had a good program here on Thursday night of last week. We think our teacher is doing some good work here for us. We hope to have her with us the next term of school, if it is possible.

APPLICATION FOR PARDON OR PAROLE

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Dennis Williams, will apply for pardon or parole. The said Dennis Williams was convicted September 21, 1933 in the Circuit Court of Chilton County on a charge of grand larceny and sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of 2 years and 6 months to 3 years.—Dennis Williams. 3-15-2tpd blood will tell —

ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"... and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their usefulness... yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

But human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in restoring deficient red-blood-cells and a low hemo-glo-bin content. If your condition suggests a blood tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite... your color and skin should improve with increased strength and energy. TIPS ON RAISING CHICKS GIVEN BY AUBURN EXPERT

Auburn, Ala., March 20.—Necessity of good feed and strict sanitation are emphasized by H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman at Auburn, in his 10 suggestions on raising baby chicks.

First of all, one should start with strong, healthy chicks, he says. Otherwise the poulrtyman incurs a severe handicap from the beginning which expert care cannot overcome. The second suggestion is that the brooder be operated two or three days before the chicks are placed in the brooder house. The house should be kept at 90 to 95 degrees Farenheit the first week. Temperature should be reduced about five degrees each week as long as the chicks need artificial heat.

Mr. Bailey's remaining seven suggestions are as follows:

"Feed chicks when they are 24 to 36 hours old. Starting and growing rations should be of good quality materials. Never crowd chicks. Provide one square foot of floor space for every two chicks. It is not advisable to place more than 400 chicks around one brooder stove.

"Chicks must be supplied with clean water and milk at all times. Provide one 4-foot hopper for each 100 chicks, feeding them from both sides of the hopper. Clean the brooder house two or three times each week for the first eight weeks. Be sure that the brooder house is properly ventilated. Prevent crowding, where wire floors are not used, by providing perches for chicks when two or three weeks old."

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Middleton, of Montgomery, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Littlejohn.

COMMERCIAL POULTRYMEN MUST COMPLY NRA CODE

Auburn, Ala., March 20.—Alabama commercial poultry breeders and hatcherymen are required under the NRA code to obtain compliance certificates, according to information received here from J. A. Hannah, managing agent of the coordinating committee with officers in Kansas City, Mo.

"All hatcheries and dealers should have their compliance certificates by March 15," read the communication. "Failure to apply for a compliance certificate is a violation of the code and makes one liable to a fine of $500 per day for each day's operation in violation of the code. All hatchery advertising and sales literature distributed after March 15 must carry the number of the compliance certificates."

Mr. Hannah urges commercial poultrymen who have already secured their certificates to asssit by informing others of the above regulations. He also stated that an investigator would visit Alabama within a few days to check egg size and other phases of code compliance.

Previously, Mr. Hannah explained that the code does not attempt to fix prices but it does prohibit the sale of eggs or chicks below the cost of production. Poultrymen are required to show the cost of production in making their compliance applications.

FRANCIS P. GAINES TO SPEAK AT UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA

University, Ala., March 20. — Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., has accepted an invitation to make the Alumni Day address at commencement exercises at the University of Alabama, President Denny announced Saturday. Dr. Gaines, who is one of the youngest college presidents in the South, will speak during the Alumni banquet in Barnwell gymnasim on Monday, May 7.

President Gaines has been head of Washington and Lee since 1930. He is a graduate of Fork Union Academy. He received the A. B. Degree from Richmond College, the A. M. from Chicago University, and earned his Ph.D. at Columbia. He has been honored by a number of institutions of higher learning. Columbia University and Duke University conferred upon him the degree of doctor of literatures; Furman, Mercer and Wake Forest honored him with the degree of doctor of laws.

From 1914 to 1923 he was professor of English at Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College and during the summer quarter of 1919 directed the summer school of that institution. He was professor of English at Furman from 1923 to 1926. He was a member of the summer school faculty of the University of Virginia in 1923, 24, 25, 26, and in 1927 was with the summer faculty of Columbia University. From 1927 to 1930 he was president of Wake Forest, and he assumed the presidency of W and L in 1930.

Dr. Gaines is the author of "The Southern Plantation." He has served as literary editor of the Greenville Piedmont and has contributed to the Library of Southern Literature and the Dictionary of American Biography.

He is affiliated with Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity; Omricon Delta Kappa, national service fraternity; and Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity. He is a Democrat and a Baptist.

NEWS IN BRIEF

There are more than 26 million milk cows on farms of the nation this year, according to estimates of the United State Department of Agriculture. This represents an increase of nearly 18 per cent from the total of 21,219,000 reported for 1928. This is the greatest number in history of the dairy industry.

All preparations of the brooder house should be completed before the young chicks are introduced, if best results are to be attained, says H. R. Bailey, extension poultryman at Auburn. It is best, he says, to operate the brooder for two or three days before the chicks arrive.

More cheerful homes, needed clothes, new conveniences for the farm wife, and the removal of the dreaded specter of harrassing debt from the threshold, are some of the results of the cotton adjustment campaign of 1933 as experienced by the farm wife of the South. Success of the 1934-35 cotton adjustment campaign will bring more of such benefits to southern farmers.

The treasury closed the first month of the revalued dollar without using its $2,000,000,000 currency stabilization fund. This was disclosed in the February 28th statement of the treasury's cash position and confirmed by Secretary Morgenthau's advisers. The government's purchases of more than $300,000,000 in foreign gold have been without resort to the fund set up out of the $2,800,000,000 profit on dollar devaluation.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

The cast for "Skidding" second production of Blackfriars for the 1933-34 school year has been announced by T. Earle Johnson, director. "Skidding," a comedy by Aurania Rouvenal, will be presented in Montevallo, Bessemer, and Anniston in Alabama, and Columbus and Starkville, in Mississippi.

Easter dances will be given at the University on April 5, 6, and 7. The dances will be staged afternoon and evening in the University gymnasium and music will be furnished by a nationally known orchestra to be announced in a few days.

The annual inspection of the R.O.T.C. at the University of Alabama will be held on April 26 and 27. The inspecting officers will be Major S. R. Tupper, Infantry, on duty with the organized reserves of Birmingham; Major E. S. Seeds, Coast Artillery Corps, P. M. S. & T, Knoxville, Tenn., high schools; Captain R. L. Laird, Corps of Engineers instructor of Alabama National guard, stationed at Huntsville.

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated Monday, March 19, with an elaborate and complete program. Interesting events will fill the morning, a tea dance will be given in the evening, and a formal ball that night will climax the activities of the day. Charlie Agnew and his famous orchestra will play for both dances.

FOREST PLANTING REPORT

Montgomery, Ala., March 20. — The work of the State Forest Nursery for 1933 was necessarily somewhat limited, due to restricted financial resources. However, in addition to the regular maintenance worn, experiments were conducted in the control of damping off through treatment of seed beds. Forest trees were obtained from the nursery during the year by landowners in various parts of the state. The most popular species were Catalpa, Black Walnut and Long Leaf Pine.

Shipments from the nursery were comprised mostly in small lots ranging from a dozen up to several thousand. While some of the seedlings were used for experimental purposes only, the majority were devoted to reforesting blank spots in the woodlands.

The forest plantings of 1933 was in Autauga, Butler, Calhoun, Conecuh, Dale, Elmore, Jefferson, Lee, Macon, Pickens and Pike Counties, a total of eleven counties as compared with seventeen in 1927, thirty-one in 1928, forty-nine in 1929, forty in 1930, thirteen in 1931 and twenty-six in 1932. The leading county was Dale.

FORMER CHILTON PREACHER IS MAKING STRIDES OF PROGRESS

The Union-Banner notes with much interest the progress that is being made by Rev. Orman T. Headley, formerly of Pleasant Grove community in this county but for the past several years a resident and pastor of Wolfeboro, N. H.

A recent news item reports that Rev. Headley was the guest speaker at the Wolfeboro Rotary club at a recent meeting. The report adds: "He gave an exceedingly interesting talk on geological formations hereabouts and in other parts of the country."

It is also noted that Rev. Headley's name appears on the official ballot, and has been elected to the office of Town Auditor. His name appears as the authority for a recent audit of the town library of Wolfeboro.

Rev. Headley is much interested in geology, and often writes long articles on this subject in the Granite State News of Wolfeboro. His articles and lectures on geological formations are both interesting and inspiring. He has conducted exhaustive study and research along these lines, and he reveals some facts that are worth the consideration of all observers interested in this and allied sciences.

Rev. Headley is a brother of Mrs. Elbert Littlejohn of Jemison.

Ralph and Wallace Jones were week end visitors at home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bridges, of Birmingham have returned to their home after a visit to their parents, Judge and Mrs. L. H. Reynolds.

Doctors Give Creosote For Chest Colds

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

PEACE PROPAGANDA

Little patience can be shown with the latest outburst of a well-known peace organization, with headquarters in New York, which not only advocates the abolition of everything savoring of the military but actually urges people to write the president and congress that they will not fight in, nor support, any sort of war.

The United States reached its pre-eminent position in the world because when occasion demanded it was always able to rise and defeat an aggressor. Were the tents of this peace organization to be followed literally the next time an aggressor nation fastened its malice on us it would be the end of this country.

To advocate non-aggression is one thing and highly laudable, but to advocate that no one serve in any sort of war is another, and such a stand is wholly indefensible, even to the reasoning pacifist, who, as a rule, is the first to fight encroachments upon his personal liberty and the safety of his home.

The A. A. A., agricultural adjustment act, has been held constitutional. Now, for the remainder of the alphabet.

Unemployment risks reductio adabsurdum when it is aplied in the case of a loan shark suffering from a lack of suckers.

"Wanted a mule. Must be reasonable." Liner in a Georgia paper. Probably unfilled as they do not grow that kind.

Sharkskin shoes are most durable of all, says the United States Bureau of Standards. Too bad we can't get them now, since all the sharks went down with the 1929 crash.

New York City had a population of 200 in the year 1685 and even then, it is a good bet, most of them were aliens.

The dog is said to be the most sensitive of all animals to sound. No wonder our pup goes to the cellar then, when the radio announcers begin to sell their wares.

China is said to have one of the largest standing armies in the world, but the trouble is that it seldom stands.

If the government keeps on saying it with initials another thing that the country will need will be an auxiliary alphabet.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

The latest of the handful of distinguished Democrats to criticize the New Deal as exemplified by the present administration at Washington is John W. Davis, who was his party's candidate for the Presidency of the United States back in 1924. Mr. Davis is the first Democrat of national prominence to criticise the present program in a formal statement, since the editorial attacks of Governor Al Smith in his magazine a few months ago. In the letter Mr. Davis aligns himself in principle with Governor Smith, Carter Glass and other distinguished members of the conservative wing of the Democratic party. Others who have said little for publication, but who are believed not to be entirely in accord with the new program are former Governor Cox, of Ohio, Democratic presidential candidate in 1920; Newton D. Baker of the same state, Secretary of War in the Wilson cabinet; Governor Ritchie of Maryland, and former Senator Reed, of Missouri.

Mr. Davis' comment was made at the request of the Foreign Policy Association in reply to a pamphlet written by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and entitled "America Must Choose." In the pamphlet, Mr. Wallace outlined three courses for America, economic nationalism, internationalism, or a middle course, but added that whatever course is chosen "a certain degree of regimented opinion is necessary."

In his statement Mr. Davis, in discussing the farm problem says that "the farmer who raises more than he can sell suffers in not being fully paid for his efforts. To avoid this the government steps in and pays him in advance so that he may escape the danger of unrequitted toil. All that has happened in the end is that one man's burden has been shifted to another man's back. As a permanent policy it is obviously unthinkable. The law of supply and demand cannot be thwarted by the governmental price-fixing or even by experiments with the currency. Those who bite on that rock are sure to break their teeth. Wisdom in government, I submit, consists in discovering the natural laws and following them, not in devising hasty expedients whereby they may be circumvented.

Carrying this thought to its logical conclusion Mr. Davis adds: "I do not look for miracles to save us or hope for gold at the foot of the rainbow. I have more faith in the prosaic process of following paths marked out by reason, common sense and the past experience of mankind. This translates, in my opinion, into terms among others, of less restraint on activity, not more."

In these lucid statements Mr. Davis puts himself with the select coterie of conservative Dmocrats who stand for rugged individualism, and who advocate the policy of follow the time-tried economic laws, and the experiences of the past. Just at this time, when the younger Democrats and their liberal allies in the administration at Washington, are conducting a series of rapid experiments in the effort to get us back to prosperity, these so-called "elder statesmen" seem as old-fashioned as Grover Cleveland. Just now they are being ignored in the scheme of things. But it is to be remembered that although apparently few, they wield an influence out of proportion to their numbers. So long as the experiments continue with a reasonable show of success these men may occupy seats on the side-line. But if anything, unexpectedly should happen to the New Deal program, they will grow rapidly in public attention, and perhaps in numbers, too.

France Has Wheat Surplus

According to a United Press dispatch from Paris, the French agricultural industry is approaching a crisis which may make it necessary that the French parliment confer upon Premier Doumergue dictorial powers in an effort to handle the situation. It is stated that during the past year parliament has granted more than $46,000,000 to aid agriculture, enacting laws to fix minimum wheat prices and to faciliate exports by big subsidies. The effort to remedy the situation in this way has failed, however, and it is said that farmers who have been unable to sell wheat, and who have been deprived of their pasturage by drought, are now flooding the Paris market with beef cattle, with the result that beef prices have sunk to the lowest level since before the World War.

As could have been expected, the price fixing and the subsidies have only resulted in the accumulation of great reserves of government owned wheat. The federal action doubtless resulted in a great increase in the production of wheat, and the inevitable surplus. The dispatch from Paris estimates that before the new crop matures in midsummer there will be a stored up surplus of from 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels, quite an oversupply in a country whose normal annual consumption of wheat is 87,000,000 bushels. Of special interest to the American farmer is the following dispatch:

"The prospect is that the nations on the western hemisphere which in 1931 sold 8,000,000 bushels to Fance, and 77,000,000 bushels in 1932, will find the country closed to them except for the small proportion of hard wheats needed for mixing with inferior grades of domestic wheat."

Thus' again does government control of idnustry by price fixing prove unworkable. But what we must remember is that France formerly one of our wheat customers now has a surplus, Italy, another former customer, now raises all the wheat she needs at home, and the same, it is said, will soon be true of Germany under the Hitler program.

Since the World War, when the stimulation of crop production was urged everywhere, nations of the world have been striving desperately to become as nearly self-sufficient as possible, to grow their own food and to manufacture their own products. This has not been due to America's tariff policies but to stern necessity.

Curtailment of crops may help some but will not solve the entire problem. At the time we are curtailing our cotton crop in the United States comes the word that Soviet Russia is preparing to sell cotton to Greece. It begins to look as if we will have to pay more and more attention to our home markets. As more Americans are put back to work and rendered able to buy, they will consume more of our own agricultural products. This market is worth many times more than any we will be able to gain abroad.

It is true that we may in certain instances increase our foreign trade with other nations by trade agreements. But this can only be safely done with nations which will not send us in return for our products goods which will compete with American industry. To open our great market to the cheap labor of Europe will not help. Our farmers will lose more at home, because of additional idleness and misery in our cities, than they could possibly gain abroad.

Watch for Propaganda

No one who reads the foreign dispatches in the daily newspapers can deny that not in a long time has the peace of the world been threatened in so many spots as at present. It is as though we were once more on the verge of a world war. Those of us who remember the last terrible conflict should have learned enough by the experience to do our best to see that Uncle Sam is kept out of the next war.

Yet it seems that many of us have already had the keen edge of our memory dulled in this respect. We hear people every day talking calmly of an approaching conflict between Japan and Russia and speculating on the outcome, just as though it would be more or less an iternational chess game. We hear them talking about the situation in Europe, too, and wondering how long it will be before Germany, France and Italy are at one another's throats on account of Austrian difficulties. They dispose of this little nation or that one in the international lineup as though a football game rather than a bloody war were in prospect. Have we forgotten the horrors of 1914-18?

But worse even than this is the remark we hear almost every day to the effect that when war comes again, Uncle Sam will be unable to keep out of it. From just what source does this remark spring? The next time anybody asks you that question just inquire of him in turn as to how he gets that way!

Why cannot Uncle Sam keep out of the next war? Has he learned nothing from his experiences of seventeen years ago? Did we gain so much in the last terrible conflict that we ought to plunge gaily into the next one, risking life and money in some tragedy with which we have no direct concern? From the last war we got nothing but suffering, loss of life and wealth, repudiated debts and ingratitude from the very nations we were instrumental in saving "for democracy." Certainly there was nothnig in that experience which would indicate that we ought not keep out of the next international struggle.

Certainly there may be international interests in our midst that would like to get us in the next conflict. But every real American will hope and believe that we can keep out.

In any event the way to keep out is not to enter into international bodies like the League of Nations and the League Court. The best way is to stay at home and mind our own business, and to build up a defensive force which will make other nations hesitate to attack us in our own territory.

In case of international conflict the greatest danger, however, will not be from direct attack by an outside foe. It will be from international propaganda inside our own borders. Most of us can remember how poor Uncle Sam was flooded and bombarded with European propaganda before he plunged into the last world war, and how much the propaganda had to do with getting him in the frame of mind where he would go in to "save democracy" and "end war for all time to come."

When war breaks out again the same insidious propaganda forces will be at work. Let us be on the lookout, therefore, and swat the international propagandist, whenever he opens his mouth or oils up his printing press. The fellow who asserts that "when war starts, Uncle Sam can't keep out of it," is only fertilizing the ground for the seed of the international propagandist. We can keep out, if we look after our army and navy and attend to our own business. Certainly the peace and security of America are worth more than international adventure and foreign trade in war materials in time of international chaos.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Rest For the Weary

For the past year there have been several aspirants for the job of postmaster at the Clanton office, and some of these fellows have really been worrying over the question of just who would get an appointment. All minds were put at ease, temporarily, at least, when temporarily appointment was given to Billy Smith one day last week. So, those who are weary from the strain of expectancy may rest now. A few weeks ago, the Chilton County News had something to say about how red somebody's face was, in an article captioned: "Was his face red?" Well, that fellow's face must have only been a pale tinge of pink besides the red that glowed in the faces of several people in Clanton when the news was spread abroad that Billy had been appointed postmaster. Were they hot? Quite a few "more deserving Democrats" had things fixed (so they thought) and were just waiting the "come hither" word to take up the office. With the recent appointment, which seems to have been quite a surprise to about 99 per cent of the folks here, these feathers all fell but not for long. They came back up pronto, and were quite ruffled about the matter, if we may judge from appearances and talk to be heard on the street. There is a little consolation for them in the fact that Billy's appointment is "temporary," but some of the boys see a loophole in this. They fell that "Buck" Oliver made the appointment in this manner in order to hold all the boys' hope and so keep his own popularity, and that when the coming election is over, that Billy's election will be made permanent. To them, that WOULD be the last straw, and they smell a rat. Billy is a nice chap, however, and I really believe he will make good in his new job, if given the proper cooperation. It remains to be seen just whether he will get this in the proper degree. Any way you look at it, though, Billy is "on the spot," and he will have to prove himself a political tight rope walker and trapeze performer to keep the peace in his political family.

I Wonder

Being only human, at times I take to wondering, and here are some of the things I wonder about: How does a candidate feel, after he has gone over his spiel, only to find that his listener votes the other ticket? Does a hen feel like a step-mother when she is given a bunch of incubator chicks? How Solomon kept 999 of his wives from becoming jealous? How would a thumbless hitchhiker fare? How can the weather be so cold, with this being a big political year, and all the hot air we have circulating? Which causes the most trouble—gunpowder or face powder? What's become of the Bullitt we sent to Russia? And then, on one corner I meet a man who says we'll have McCord for Governor; another a little further on says he's got soggy brain, and that Graves is the man and is sure to win; and the very next man says it's all over except counting the votes and the inauguration ceremonies—Dixon has the job cinched. Now which is right? Are they all wrong, or will we set a precedent and have three governors? We might do that. The State of Louisinaa did—three governors at once—Huey Long and two others about like him, and still the state didn't notice being over-governed. I once wondered just what people meant when they said they had to dig for their schooling, but right now it looks like we'll have to let our kiddies do that again, if they are educated, for it seems that those master minds we've been sending to Montgomery of late are unable to keep our schools open; if the poor kids get an education, they'll have to "dig" it up. Where are the millions we've saved with Miller? Oh, I wonder about a lot of things. But there's one thing I DO NOT wonder about—tornadoes. I learned better than that. Time was when I wondered about them from time to time, and on each and every occasion, one of the big whirlwinds would come along. It got to be so regular it was a habit, and a bad one. So I quit wondering about them and took up worrying. It's much easier.

Science and Cancer

Science has made great strides in the past few years in all lines, but in no line has it helped so much as in medicine and the treatment of the ailments of man and beast. Cancer, long considered incurable, has at last bowed to the ingenuity of science. It can be cured! That should be a cheerful message to many people, who are sufferers. Of late, one medical institution has become so sure of its cure for cancer that it has issued a standing proclamation that goes like this: To any municipality, county or state—if the officials of such will pick out 12 cancer sufferers, and get their consent to take the treatment, the institution will take charge of the patients, apply the treatment, and allow the officials to pick any medical board it desires to pass on the condition of the patients, and check the results of their work by these 12 patients. They have already had several tests of this kind and results show that they have effected what appears to be permanent cure in over 95 per cent of their cases. This may seem like an advertisement for somebody, but it is not. I give it because it seems to me a worth-while test to be made. I imagine it would be quite comforting to cancer sufferers to hear that their plague might be cured.

Prayer of the Veterans

Oh, Great and Mighty One: Hear us in this, our hour of greatest need. Thousands of us have families to support, nothing to support them on, and no job to go to from which to earn an honest living. In 1917 we were sitting on top of the world. We were blessed by everyone and our names were sounded from the house tops. We went, by the thousands to France, to fight men with whom we had no quarrel—we went to fight for democracy and to make the world safe for it, and to make safe the investments of the millionaires. We stood in mud, as Thou well knowest, to our knees. Thousands of our buddies died by our sides. Others were wounded and maimed for life; others were gassed and returned to suffer living death. Some of us stormed Belleau Wood, some waded the Marne, red with the blood of our comrades, some smashed and smashed again at the near impregnable Hindenburg line and finally broke it. Some of us went down to the sea in ships—some stayed down. We were kept under the delusion that we were fighting a righteous fight, and we gave our all in the cause to keep the record of Americans who have fought for our glorious country and its star-sprangled banner untarnished. Some of us soared in the skies, risking our lives, our all, that we might carry on and do our duty as befits patriotic Americans, who boast of being the descendants of George Washington and his valiant heroes. We think we have made good. We believe we did our part well. Through our efforts and those of our buddies who sleep "in Flanders fields," or beneath the waves, that banner still waves "o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave," and our beloved country is still recognized as the greatest on the globe. And, now, since it is all over, we still want to carry on—to be patriotic. We do not want to make unreasonable demands on the country we have defended with our life's blood. We only ask a pittance to stay the hunger of our loved ones and to clothe those whom we hold dear. We ask for nothing that is not ours, for many benefits have been promised us. But Thou knowest, Oh Mighty One, that promises do not feed mouths nor keep out the cold. So, we come to Thee, to whisper in the ears of the rulers of our country to recognize our plight and help us. Cause them to realize that, but for us, they might not have had a country to rule—that if we had failed them as they have us, all would have been lost. Soften their hearts of stone, and open their ears to the cries of our little ones. Make them to remember Him Who said: "Blessed is he who striveth in a just cause, for he is the salt of the earth." We have waited long and hopefully, but, as yet, we have had a deaf ear turned to all our pleas, so we commit all into Thy hands. Amen.

Grady Franklin Harris

Grady Franklin Harris, carrier on Route 1, Clanton, was born on April 3, 1889, about three miles south of Clanton. He received his education in various schools near his home, and in and around Clanton. Later, he taught school for two years, at Cooper and Cane Creek schools. On December 3, 1913, he married Miss Gussie Calloway. They have two children, Herman and Norman. Mr. Harris entered the postal service as carrier on Route 1, on September 16, 1912, and has served this route continuously since that date, with the exception of ten months, when he was acting postmaster, following the death of J. E. Robinson, in October, 1918. He has been a member of Samaria Baptist church for about 25 years, and is Clerk of the Unity Association, which office he has held for the past 12 years. He is also a Mason, a Past High Priest, and present Eminent Commander of Clanton Commandery of Knights Templar. When I asked Mr. Harris for some particulars about his life, he only smiled and said: "Well, I guess there isn't much to tell about the life of a mail carrier who has been on the job as long as I have. We have a duty to perform—we do that, and that's all there is to it." And I suppose that is just about the truth. Those fellows stick strictly to business. They have to, for their work brings them into contact with all kinds of people, and after a while they come to know their people like a book. With these carriers, of which Mr. Harris is one of the best at the Clanton office, their work is their first main hobby, and they have been on this job so long that this work has come to be some kind of art with them. Mr. Harris is a jolly fellow, and a pleasant man to know. On the job, he is a stickler for the rules, and has made a place for himself in the hearts of his patrons. After all, that is the real test of a man's worth—if he gives satisfaction in his work, then he has done his duty. And it can truly be said of Grady Harris that his work has been highly satisfactory.—Man in the Moon.

How About Text Books?

Although the newspapers are not now giving so much pubilicty to the plan to regimentize industry as in the earlier days of its development, the question of codes still breaks into the limelight occasionally. One of the most recent proposals to become a subject of study is the proposed "Code of Fair Competition for the Textbook Publishing Industry." Some students of the code are wondering whether its adoption as planned will not seriously interfere with the local rights of states in the matter of the selection of their own school text books, a right which they have had since the beginning of the public school system.

As though some trouble along this line were anticipated the code is said to provide for a "Public Relations Board" which is designated to iron out differences which may appear. Some people are expressing the wonder, however, as to whether the attempt is not to be made to induce states to modify their laws in the interest of a standard, nation-wide pattern of school books and schedule of prices. While this might seem innocent enough on its face, anyone who has had any experience with the text book problem will realize that it opens up serious problems. For example, how would the national standard be selected?

The question might be asked, to whose interest is the matter of the standard pattern, if this is to be provided for in the code? It would seem that this might be primarily in the interest of the text book publishers themselves or a possible federal school bureaucracy, even though the public relations board is charged to "seek agreement with such state or public authorities on ways and means by which these matters can be dealt with in order to carry out the plans and purposes of the act with due regard to the interests of the state or community and of the industry." Although this statement may appear rather vague there can be no question but that the interests of the industry will be looked after. The text book publishers will see to this themselves.

But regardless of what motives may underlie the proposed text book code, and assuming that its sponsors may be actuated by public interest, we may well ask ourselves whether a step toward national selection of text books is but another move in the direction of federal control of our public schools, a control which the bureaucrats at Washington have been seeking to acquire for some time. The states and communities have few rights left, for themselves and these rights are rapidly being taken away from them as our federal government extends its power to become the "benevolent papa" of all of us. One of the few rights which the state retains is the right of regulating its own school affairs. Whether the proposed text book code is a step toward a federal school bureaucracy is a question which we may well ask ourselves. Certainly the establishment of such a bureaucracy would not be in keeping with our much abused Constitution and would not tend to add to the freedom and efficiency of our public schools.

Just think how many more bureaus and commissions we could have in Washington if the English alphabet contained about a dozen more letters.

There were only 29 murders in England last year but there must have been 29,000 if you count all of those committed in English stories.

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not

At the meeting of the Town Council Tuesday night Mr. J. A. Nivens was employed as chief of night police in Clanton. John Browder was added as a member of the night force.

Henceforth Clanton will have two night policemen. Both Mr. Nivens and Mr. Browder are good men of experience, and are well fitted for the work that has been assigned them.

It is believed the appointment of Nivens and Browder will meet with universal approval of the people of the town. And it is hoped that the two of them will be able to take care of a few little things of special interest and importance, not to mention anything in particular.

Uncle Hugh Foshee enjoyed his eighty-third birthday Tuesday when he and Mrs. Foshee had dinner with the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. Renfroe Mullins. His many friends extend greetings and best wishes for his continued happiness and good health.

The people of Clanton have matched the $425 appropriation of the Town Council for the Grammar School, and will thereby be able to have the school run another month. It was a fine spirit of response to the needs of the community. While the gift was a welcome one to the school, many very correctly expressed their disgust at a school condition that makes such things necessary.

Clanton schools are vacated this week end for the teachers to attend the Alabama Education Association in Birmingham.

Dr. E. E. Upchurch and Mell Martin carried Dr. Clyde Foshee and Walter Bentley on a fishing trip last Friday to Lake Mitchell. Not mch luck reported yet.

I hear that Grady Parsons, the champeen fly fisherman of these parts, has already begun to string a lot of beauties.

C. H. McFarland, Alabama Director of the Red Cross, spent last Friday in Clanton. Discussing the recent storm damage here, he said the people of Chilton County must raise funds for the needed relief. All distaster in the state, he said, is being done by funds raised in the communities throughout Alabama.

Not so much excitement about politics this week. Billy Smith is acting postmaster. Vernie Teel has taken over the job of editing and publishing the Chilton County News and Rockford Chronicle. Congratulations to Billy and sympathy to Vernie.

It was funny last week for a day or two when our Democratic friends were somewhat stunned by rapid-fire developments. Some of them couldn't tell whether to go to Montgomery to see about the Commissioner or to Washington to see about the postoffice.

Encouraging word comes from Col. Sumpter Smith, stating that the present set-up on airport program contemplates continuation of the work until July, 1935. From which it would appear we may have hope that our airport will be finished in due time.

POWER COMPANY IS CLEARED OF THE SHOALS CHARGES

Washington, D. C., March 20. — What was described as a "major scandal" at Muscle Shoals in newspaper articles printed almost a year ago apparently has petered out to nothing, it appeared today.

Houston Thompson, acting as special government investigator appointed by President Roosevelt, under the Tennesse Valley Authority act, said today he did not know when he would make his report on investigation of charges made last year. This has been the situation for about six months.

Meanwhile, however, in response to questions asked at a press conference some time ago, President Roosevelt said that no one had been found guilty of collusion by the investigators. He indicated then that the Thompson report had already been received; but it developed later that Mr. Thompson ot yet done so.

The charges revolved about the operation of the Muscle Shoals hydro-electric plant by the war department and the sale of power through it to private power companies in Alabama and Tennessee. — The Birmingham Post.

DISASTER INSTITUTE IS ANNOUNCED BY RED CROSS

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Henry M. Baker, assistant director of disaster relief, will address representatives of Red Cross chapters of Alabama at a special institute called for Birmingham, Mar. 22, to perfect plans for giving relief in the emergency of flood, tornado or other catastrophes. Charles H. McFarland, Red Cross field representative, will be in general charge of the sessions, with Mrs. Virgil James, executive secretary of the Jefferson County chapter, handling local arrangements.

"Fifty years of developing disaster relief routine to a point of high efficiency has made the American Red Cross the main reliance when disaster strikes," says Mr. McFarland. "Every chapter has a duty to perform in keeping prepared for sudden emergencies, and this institute is to be held with the possibility of spring floods in mind. Storms of various kinds are also a menace of the season.

"Mr. Baker not only is a veteran of many disaster operations, but is a speaker of great power."

Mr. S. D. Gibson, of Verbena, is disaster relief chairman for the Chilton County Chapter.

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE BOBBIE JEAN HOLSENBACK

On March 13, 1934, the death angel visited the home of Mrs. Effie Holsenback and bore away the spirit of her precious baby, Bobbie Jean. He was four years old but had been an invalid for three years. He was sick for six days and all was done for him that loving hands could do. But God saw fit in His tender mercy to call him home to live with the angels, where there will be no more pain nor suffering.

Little Bobbie Jean was a sweet and precious child. He bore his suffering with patience. He leaves to mourn his loss, his mother, Mrs. Effie Holsenback, a brother, Odell, a sister, Elizabeth.

Weep not for him, dear mother, brother and sister, for we know he is at rest, safe in the arms of Jesus. His little body was carried to Bessemer for burial March 15 by Martin and Sons, and laid to rest beside his father, Jim Holsenback, who passed away three years ago.

Dearest Bobbie Jean, you have left us,
For that heavenly world so fair.
Safe in the arms of Jesus
You are free from toil and care.

We saw not, the white robed angel
As it entered with folded wings.
To summon home our loved one,
To the arms of our Heavenly King.

A precious one from us is gone;
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in the home,
Which never can be filled.

Dearest Bobbie Jean, how we miss you.
How we miss your smiling face.
But we hope we will soon meet you
In that land of love and peace.

Asleep in Jesus far from thee;
Thy kindred and their grave may be
But thine is still a blessed sleep,
From which none ever wakes to weep.

Written by his aunt, Mrs. Lula McGraw.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a prescription. It is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they may do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

LOWERY DENIES RUMORS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to some false statements that have been circulated over the county. It has been reported that Mr. J. E. Cobb has so arranged the truck work in this beat, 13, that it would all be given to me, as I am his brother-in-law. I wish to say to the people of the county that these reports are not true.

To my own personal knowledge the work of this beat has been shared among seven different trucks. Due to a shortage of trucks, three were brought from Beat 2. I believe in giving everybody justice and for that reason I am making this statement so all voters may know the facts, and not be misled by any false reports.—Respectfully, J. F. Lowery.

Hoyt Reynolds, of Tuskegee, was at home for the week end.

GET UP NIGHTS?

THIS 25c TEST FREE If it Fails

Use this bladder laxative. Drive out the impurities and excess acids which cause the irritation that wakes you up. Get a regular 25c box of BUCKETS made from buchu leaves, juniper oil, etc. After four days trial, if not satisfied, go back and get your 25c. They work on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Bladder irregularitity is nature's danger signal and may warn you of trouble. You are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. Upchurch Drug Co., and Alred Drug Co. say Buckets is a best seller.

OUR SHARE of Alabama's Tax Load....

TAXES paid by Alabama Power Company last year into the State Treasury and treasuries of Alabama counties and municipalities were practically ONE THIRD as much as the receipts of the State from ALL ad valorem taxes.

Receipts by the State from ad valorem taxes, according to the last published Comptroller's report, were $6,150,000, while Alabama Power Company's total taxes in Alabama amounted to over $2,000,000.

Taxes paid by Alabama Power Company play a big part in maintenance of governmental functions in our state and in the counties and towns served by this company. They relieve citizens of tax burdens which otherwise would fall far more heavily upon them.

It is also clearly evident that whenever a municipality in Alabama provides itself with an electric, gas or water plant, that the State and its subdivisions lose tax revenue. To the extent that residents in such cities may be relieved of paying taxes to the State and Counties on their city-owned electric, water or gas plants, farmers in rural areas must be burdened with more taxes. It is a pertinent and timely question whether this makes for an equitable distribution of the tax load in our state.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

W. G. CULP

Candidate for

TAX COLLECTOR of CHILTON COUNTY

in the

Republican Primary, May 1, 1934

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

As the time is drawing near for the voters of the county to go into the primary election to select the various officers for the next four or six years, please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of the county in connection with my candidacy for re-election to the office of Tax Collector.

First, I want to again publicly express my appreciation to the people for what they have done for me. I have tried to prove this fact by giving the best services I could.

Since the duties of this office will make it impossible for me to see and talk with each voter of the county, I am making this a personal appeal to you. If you believe in the age-long political precedent, that one is entitled to a second term and if you can endorse my administration, then, I am appealing to you for your vote and inflence in the coming primary, promising you that if I am re-elected the some policies will be continued in the future that have been in the past.

During the time I have served you as tax collector I have, conscientiously endeavored to show my appreciation of my election to the office by diligently trying to live up to my campaign promises to give you a unit of your county government that you could point to with pride; also, to make it as easy as possible for you to pay your taxes. Believing that my efforts have been successful at least in a measure, and standing on the record that I have made, I ask you to honor me again by re-electing me to this office.

I renew my promise that your interests shall continue to be my interests and my appreciation of your support will be reflected in my earnest efforts to conduct the affairs of your office efficiently and as economically as common sense and good business judgment direct.

W. G. CULP, Tax Collector.

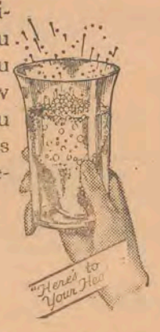
Time Lost is Money Lost

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.



How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgic, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your doing a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take

ALKA-SELTZER

The New Pain Relieving, Alkalizing, Effervescent Tablet.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid. Alka-Seltzer is pleasant to take, harmless, non-laxative.

Why don't you try it? Get a drink at your drug store soda fountain for a nickel. Buy a package for home use.

Lesson for March 25

CONFESSING AND FOLLOWING CHRIST

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 16:13-26.

GOLDEN TEXT—And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.—Matt. 16:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Peter's Answer to Jesus' Question.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Question and the Answer.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Putting Christ First.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Think Ye of Christ?

In order to obviate a break in the studies in Matthew and still have an Easter lesson, the review should be omitted and the lesson for April 1 taken instead.

I. Jesus Christ the King, Taking Account of His Ministry (vv. 13-17).

1. The place (v. 13). It was at Cesarea Philippi, the northern limit of Jewish territory. It was significant that the announcement concerning the Church should take place in this region.

2. The time in Christ's ministry. It marked a turning point. His ministry was largely restricted to his disciples after this. The cross was a short time ahead. The Messiah had already been rejected. They had already charged him with being in league with the devil and sought to kill him. It was highly important that the disciples should have clear views as to Christ's person in order to stand the test of the trial and crucifixion of Jesus.

3. Peter's confession of Jesus (vv. 13-16).

a. The occasion (vv. 13-15). Two questions asked by Jesus provoked this confession.

(1) As to the opinion of the people concerning him (vv. 13, 14). They recognized him as a teacher and prophet of more than human authority. Today, as then, there is a diversity of opinion concerning Jesus. Some think that he is only a man; others that he is a great teacher but nothing more. It was his persistent claim to be the Godman, the very Son of God, that sent him to the cross.

(2) As to the personal opinion of the disciples (v. 15). It was not enough for them to be able to tell what opinion the people held concerning Jesus. It was necessary that they have clear personal knowledge.

b. The content (v. 16). It consisted of two parts.

(1) "Thou art the Christ." This means that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah, the fulfiller of the Jewish hopes and expectations.

(2) "The Son of the living God." This acknowledged him to be divine. It was the recognition of his glorious person in keeping with the Jewish hope (Isa. 9:6, 7).

4. Christ's confession of Peter (vv. 17-19). Peter had made a noble confession. Now Jesus confesses him. Those who confess Christ shall be confessed by him (Matt. 10:32, 33).

5. Christ's charge to the disciples (v. 20). He asked them not to tell any man that he was the Messiah. The time was not ripe for such testimony.

II. The New Body, the Church, Announced (vv. 18, 19).

Following the confession of Peter, Jesus declared his intention of bringing into existence a new body. To the members of this body he promised to give the keys of the kingdom. Peter was to have a distinguished place in this body. The keys entrusted to him were used at Pentecost and again in the case of Cornelius. Christ has the keys of Hades and death.

III. The King Predicts His Death (vv. 21-23).

This prediction was no doubt startling to the disciples. They did not yet realize that redemption was to be accomplished through the passion of the cross. So unwelcome was this announcement that Peter cried, "This shall not be unto Thee." Later Peter saw through the darkness the sunlight on the hill tops beyond the cross. Redemptive victory through Christ's death is yet the stumbling block to many.

IV. The Cost of Discipleship (vv. 24-26).

To follow Christ means suffering. To follow him is to turn one's back upon the world.

1. There must be denial of self. There is a wide difference between self-denial and denial of self.

2. "Take up his cross" (v. 24). This cross is the shame and suffering which lie in the path of loyalty to Christ. To do our whole duty will bring suffering (II Tim. 3:12).

3. Follow Christ (v. 24). This means to have the mind of Christ, to be like Christ. All such shall be rewarded when Christ comes in glory.

Religion Gives Confidence

Religion gives the religious soul the confidence born of close touch with the center of all things. "I can do all things," says the Christian, "through Christ who strengthens me." Is not this worth while?

The Need Today

The need today is for men and women of active personality, men and women who cannot only do things themselves, but also can get things done by others.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

"Some go to church to take a walk,
Some go there to laugh and talk,
Some go there to meet a friend,
Some go there, their time to spend,
Some go there to meet a lover,
Some go there a fault to cover,
Some go there for speculation,
Some go there for observation,
Some go there to doze and nod,
The wise go there to worship God."

Friends, we need more folks to attend church these days when man seems to have forgotten God to a miserable extent, but unless we go there for the last reason in the above analysis of church going, it is of little avail. "And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16:18.

This was the keynote of Pastor Bentley's sermon Sunday afternoon, and he did make it so plain that we might easily see that old satan cannot overthrow the foundation upon which God builds his church.

We have a mighty fine little preacher at Mt. Carmel, friends, and we are glad to welcome visitors. The time of services is 2:30 Saturday and 3:00 on Sunday afternoons—third Saturday and Sunday.

Yes, we also have a little Sunday school, but since it is small that gives it room for growth. We assemble at 10 except on the third Sunday, when we meet at 1:30 p.m., it being preaching evening. We want visitors to feel welcome to visit us at any time.

We have had as our superintendent, Mr. Croel Williams, who has been faithfully with us for the past year. He seems to be interested in the Sunday school work, and if we will cooperate with him, back him up with our prayers and efforts, the Lord may see fit to use him in a big way and we see our Sunday school progress as never before. Let's all do our part.—A Member.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Davenport and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Askew and family of Oak Grove Saturday evening.

Mr. Maurice Hodgens, of Howard College, spent the week end with home folks. He preached two very interesting srmons Sunday, using as his scripture for the morning service the 10th chapter of St. John. He used as his text for the evening service "He That Hath Ears to Hear Let Him Hear." We had several visitors for both morning and evening services. We were indeed glad to have them with us. We invite them to come and worship with us any time they will.

Rev. George Freeman will preach at the morning hour next Sunday. Immediately following preaching the church will elect a pastor.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the church plans to ordain the deacons for the coming year.

There will be B. Y. P. U. at 7:00 o'clock Sunday evening. Everyone interested is cordially invited to attend these services.

MIDWAY-MT. CREEK CLUB

The Midway Mt. Creek Club met on March 14th at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Ed Jordan, Mrs. W. A. Adams, president, in charge.

We had a good attendance. One new member was added to our club. Mrs. G. T. Davis gave a good talk on inexpensive clothing for the family.

Miss Ruth Pardue gave a demonstration on how to plan an inexpensive wardrobe; also how to dress.

She gave a demonstration on clothes made from mill cloth and sacks.

The club will meet with Mrs. G. T. Davis April 11th at 2 p.m. At this meeting we will have a demonstration on dry cleaning as our project.—Reporter, Mrs. Chas. Cooper.

POPLAR SPRINGS

We had a larger crowd at B. Y. P. U. last Sunday night than usual. The spring weather seems to be a booster to everyone.

Next Sunday night, March 25, we urge everyone to be present. All the old members and new ones who wish to join our B. Y. P. U. are urged to come. It is the last night of the first quarter, so we are going to elect new officers, and choose new groups. We will have our new books ready to start tne new quarter off right.

Let me remind you again that next Sunday is our singing afternoon. A large crowd was at Maple Springs last Sunday, so let's see if we can't have the same size crowd and more too.

Concord - Billingsley

Rev. Johnson fiilled his regular appointment last Sunday. Due to sickness in the community there were not many out. We hope every one will soon be well again.

Mr. and Mrs. George Trotter of Martin Dam were visitors in Clanton on Tuesday.

MAPLE SPRINGS

First we want to thank Rev. Davis Durbin for his wonderful sermons that were delivered at our church Saturday and Sunday. We need not say we enjoyed them for he knows we did. We want to say we much enjoyed them and beg you to come again, and may God bless and guide you as you go. As you know, our pastor, Rev. Wm. E. Robinson is teaching school in Mr. Ralph Grant's place in Cullman County. If it's God's will he will be with us next preaching day.

Rev. K. U. Hull from East View preached for us Sunday night. We were glad to have him with us, and we invite him back at any and all times.

The singing Sunday afternoon was a great success. We had a fine attendance and everybody seemed to have the old singing spirit. We had many good singers from other places. We thank you folks for taking so much interest in helping us. Come again.

Mr. J. T. Glenn spent Monday night of last week with his daughter, Mrs. Joe Deloney, of the Clanton Cotton Mill.

Mrs. Mary (Wise) Day, and Miss Inez Vance from Cooper were in this community last Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Bertha Mitchell had as her dinner guest Sunday Mrs. Velma Davis.

Messrs. Evan and Lee Mitchell spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. Sanders Watkins.

Mr. Joe Lansford spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. Arnold Glenn.

Don't forget to come to Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. next Sunday and bring someone with you and let's get going again.

SINGING AT FRIENDSHIP EVERY THURSDAY NIGHT

The Union-Banner is requested to remind the singers and lovers of singing over the county that the people of Friendship community meet at the church every Thursday night and sing for a couple of hours. Singing begins about 7 o'clock. Help from the outside is always welcome.

THANKS FROM MULLINS FAMILY

We wish to express our appreciation to all our neighbors and friends for the many expressions of kindness and sympathy during the illness, death and burial of Mr. Mullins.—Mrs. W. I. Mullins and Family.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

In Christianity we climb by going down, we live by dying, we win by losing.

A dumb sheep may be an example of patience. A family horse may be a model of gentleness. An ordinary dog may be generously affectionate, but to "glory in tribulation" is not the privilege of animals. That belongs to redeemed men.

Someone has said, "Christ is the wayshower." Jesus said, "I am the way." There is a great difference between the sign that points out the way and the highway itself. Jesus is the way and the only way by which men can come to God. His name is the only name under heaven given among men whereby we may be saved. There is but one of two alternatives for every man—Christ or hell. "He that hath the Son hath life and he that hath not the Son hath not life."

The statement, "It does not matter what you believe just so you live right" is false. As a matter of fact, a man with a false creed can not have a true life. Paul lived up to the standards of his conscience when he was persecuting Christians. He thought he was doing his duty to God. He changed his creed when he met Jesus on the Damascus road and then instead of persecuting Christians, he went out to be persecuted for being a Christian.

The greatest miracle in the world is the miracle of Regeneration. Regeneration is giving the dead eternal life. It is opening eyes that have been blind since birth so they may see God. It is unstopping deaf ears so they can hear a heavenly voice. It is changing in a moment the affections of the heart so we love the things we have hated and hate the things we have loved. It is taking a man who is fit for hell and making him good enough to live with God and angels in heaven forever. Regeneration is such a wonderful miracle that it can be performed only by Him who raised the dead, made the blind to see, made water into wine and cleansed a leper with a touch of His hand.

WHAT NEGROES ARE DOING

My Program With Part-Time Pupils in the Present Emergency.

My part time class during the present emergency is divided into two groups. One group is composed of boys of fourteen years or more who are not yet established in farming. This may include boys who have finished high school, as well as boys who have only completed one or two years in high school, or who have never attended school.

There is no special provision made in the curriculum for these boys to take agriculture, but so often these boys are discouraged by the low grades in which they find themselves and their inability to cope with their much younger rivals, consequently, they go home to return no more. This fact in itself has convinced me that it is far more important to teach this type of individual the technique of farming. Usually he has never been out of his county and surely not out of his state. He has never seen very much. What little he does know is about 'ole beck,' so he bound to follow 'ole beck' after leaving school. Why not take him in and advise him as to the vocation he is forced into?

These average and undergrade boys come to me for class two days per week. During the school vacation period I conduct a part-time class at night. This class is composed of boys of the second group.

Now, the problem of what to teach is based on a survey that must be made in order to get the facts. Each part-time pupil is required to make a program of his supervised practice work and the instruction is then based on what each pupil is actually doing or is planning to do.

Other subjects are stressed as related subject matter coming out of his actual work as arithmetic, English, Civics, etc., shop work, repair the tools which he uses.

National Negro Health Week to Be Observed Sunday, April 1 to 8.

National Negro Health week was initiated in 1915 by the late Booker T. Washington. Since that time it has become nation-wide.

Did you know that 45% of all deaths among negroes is preventable; that there are 700,000 negroes seriously ill all the time! that the annual cost of this illness is $100,000,000; that sickness and death cost negroes over $135,000,000 annually? Because of the above facts, I am asking the negroes of Chilton County to join in this great movement in order that we might place ourselves on a higher physical basis.

In this movement we are soliciting the aid of homes, schools and churches. Let us start at home by cleaning the house, yard, barns and all the premises thoroughly. Then our attention should be turned to ourselves. Let us be clean, careful and cheerful. I am hoping that every home in Chilton County will be represented in this health movement.

Remember that our great leader, Booker T. Washington, was thinking for us when we were altogether unthoughtful. In his "putting the most into life," he reckoned that the life must be well if it would do well. So let us honor him with the fruits of our endeavors.—Benjamin Anderson.

CHICKEN HOUSE ON FIRE

The city fire department answered a call early Tuesday morning to extinguish a blaze that threatened to destroy a chicken house at the home of Judge Reynolds. Little damage was done.

DR. EILAND OFFICE MOVED

The office of Dr. R. J. Eiland has been moved to the building next to First National Bank, formerly occupied by Peoples Cash Store.

Dr. Clyde H. Foshee has returned to his work at Louisville, Ky., after a visit of several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Foshee, in Clanton.

Miss Gertrude Jones spent Wednesday of last week in Tuscaloosa.

Sister Sue—Did you get any bad marks today at school?

Brother Johnny—Yes, but they are where they don't show.

SURVEY SHOWS BUSINESS BETTER

Figures Compiled By the Local National Re-Employment Office

A recent survey of business houses in Clanton has revealed some interesting figures in answer to the question, "What effect has the recovery program had on business conditions?"

This survey was made under direction of Mr. Cecil Stokes, manager of the National Re-Employment office in Clanton, and furnishes a comparison of business conditions and employment statistics for Clanton for the first three months of this year, as compared with the first three months of 1933.

In a statement released Tuesday Mr. Stokes said that all business and professional men in Clanton were contacted in gathering statistics for this survey.

He stated that the average increase shown in volume of business for the period was 40 per cent for each business reported. The total increase in volume of business for the entire group reported was given as 100 per cent.

Figures obtained on employment revealed that the increase for the period of 1934 over 1933 was 11 per cent.

"These figures are interesting," said Mr. Stokes, "and when you view the remarkable increase in volume of business for the 1934 period over 1933, comparing the same with the increase of 11 per cent in employment, it appears that there may be room for a greater increase in the per centage of re-employment."

Mr. Stokes concluded the interview by stating that the National Re-Employment Service is available for all employers or prospective employers, without cost. In the past the office has been concerned chiefly with furnishing classified laborers and workers for the various recovery projects. In future the office will endeavor to make its services of value and assistance in placing workers in private industry and private employment.

"ONE-WON CLUB"

Adjutant V. C. McKee of Chilton County Post, American Legion, advises that he now has on hand the proper blanks for membership in the "One-Won Club." This club is of special interest to all members of the Legion. Adjutant McKee will be glad to tell you about it.

Cohen E. Stapp, of Dothan, former county agent here, was a visitor in Clanton a short while last Friday afternoon.

Must Adjust Our Cotton Contracts

The Farmers Will Know How Many Acres To Plant

We have just received our figures on the 1934-35 cotton contracts back from the state board of review. It is necessary for us to make some further adjustment in the contracts to get the Board to okay them.

The county committee is working on the contracts now and within the next few days, we will be in a position to tell the farmers just how many acres he will be allowed to plant and the number he has rented to the government.

Where adjustments have been made on the contract, the farmer will have an opportunity to approve this adjustment. Unless the person who signed the contract in the beginning does sign the adjustment on the contract, it will not be sent to Washington for approval.

This will clear up some misinformation in reference to the program being dead. The program is a success. The cotton belt has offered over 15,000,000 acres of cotton land to the secretary of agriculture. Chilton County will rent about 17,000 acres.

The first rental payments under the 1934-35 cotton reduction agreement were made March 16, when checks totaling $1,609.16 were mailed to thirty-eight cotton producers of Talliafero County, Georgia.

If Chilton County had have had only thirty-eight contracts, we too, could have had our contracts to Washington and would probably have been paid before now, but Chilton has 2,575 contracts and it is a big job to get them ready for approval. However, we are working on them every day now and hope to have them ready to go to Washington soon.

LEGION AND AUXILIARY TO TO MEET ON MONDAY NIGHT

The regular monthly meetings of Chilton County Post No. 6, American Legion and the Auxiliary unit will be held next Monday night.

The Legion meeting will be at the courthouse. The Auxiliary and Junior Auxiliary will meet at the home of Mrs. R. W. Lowe in South Clanton.

All Legion members who have sons are asked to bring the boys with them for the purpose of organizing a squadron of Sons of the American Legion.

NO LAMBASTING OF OTHER CANDIDATES

At the beginning of the campaign The Union-Banner stated that we would not permit our columns to be used in villifying or lambasting any candidates throughout the present campaign.

It has become necessary for us to decline printing some articles sent in for publication, because we construe them to be in violation of our rules as published in the beginning of the campaign and as referred to above.

What you want to say good about your choice in any race will be carried, so long as the truth is adhered to and so long as no insinuations are cast against the opponents. We will not knowingly publish any untrue statements in favor of any candidates. If statements not in conformity with this are to be put out against any candidates, we shall be glad to print circulars to that effect bearing the signature of the one sending them out.

We hope the people of the county will understand our position in this matter. We have only one object in mind and that is the preservation, so far as possible, of peace and harmony among everybody in the Republican party of Chilton County.

Plan To Develop Coosa Navigation

Valley Citizens Attend Hearing at National Capital at Washington

Washington, March 26.—A delegation from the Alabama-Coosa Rivers basin laid data before Army engineers Monday aimed to show that development of this inland water system for navigation was economically feasible.

Figures were brought to Washington intended to offset an unfavorable War Department report on the development submitted a few years ago.

The engineers said clearing of the channel from Rome, Ga., down the Coosa past Gadsden to its confluence with other streams to form the Alabama and thence past Montgomery, Selma and other cities to the gulf would cost over $50,000.00 and that the expenditures was not justified by the anticipated use of the waterway.

Theodore Brent, of New Orleans, a tariff expert, was prepared to present data, however, which he said should offset the engineer's report and establish the economic feasibility of the project.

J. R. Hornaday, editor of the Rome (Ga.), News-Tribune, headed the delegation from the south comprised of Brent, Harry Knight, tariff expert of the Gulf States Steel Company, Gadsden; John W. Dent, Cartersville, Ga.; Wilson Hardy, Rome; Palmer Gailford and City Commissioner Branhaur, of Mobile, and Lachlan Macleay, of St. Louis, executive vice president of the Mississippi Valley Association.

MEMBERS OF C. C. H. S. CLASS STAND OUT AT COLLEGE

In the recent nominations for Alabama College student officers for the year 34-35, Miss Elizabeth Stanley was nominated for secretary of the Y. W. C. A. and Miss Sallye Mahan was nominated for a member of the Publication Board. The elections are to be held at a later date.

In a recent Y. W. C. A. program in which the speech recital class had charge, Misses Mary Nelle Jones and Ruth Maddox read. Miss Jones read "Nod," by Walter de La Mare in unison with Misses Margaret Corey, of Alexander City and Frances Lee of Ft. Deposit. Miss Maddox read "When Easter Sings Across the World," by Margartt Sangster.

COTTON CENSUS REPORT

According to B. L. Vance, cotton census enumerator of Chilton County, the 1933 cotton crop was 12,240 bales, as compared with 11,798 bales in 1932.

TIME LIMIT APRIL 15 ON THE CORN-HOG CONTRACTS

The time for signing corn-hog contracts closes April 15. I am very anxious that every farmer who can qualify under this program may have an opportunity to sign a contract.

For the benefit of those who would like to get in on the program, I am giving below a few facts:

1. One must have produced an average of at least three litters of pigs for 1932 and 1933.
3. He must have marketed some of the pigs.

In order to get payments under this program:

1. Reduce the pigs grown for market by 25 per cent during 1934.
2. Reduce the corn acreage by 20 per cent for the year 1934.

The secretary of agriculture will pay $5.00 per head for the pigs grown in 1934 and thirty cents per bushel for the corn taken out of production under the contract.

Anyone interested in this program should see me and get further details. —J. W. Fant, County Agent.

Mr. W. H. Sartor is sick at his home in Clanton.

LIST OF VOTERS TO BE PRINTED

Judge Reynolds Requests Everybody to See That Names Are Included

The official list of qualified voters of Chilton County will be published in The Union-Banner next week, April 5, by Probate Judge, L. H. Reynolds.

Announcing this publication for next week, Judge Reynolds authorized the following statement:

"I am anxious that everybody have knowledge of the fact that the official list of qualified voters in Chilton County will be published in The Union-Banner next week, April 5.

"Every qualified voter, who for any reason is not on the published list, will have ten days in which to present to the Probate Judge, evidence showing that he or she is entiteld to be on the qualified list. Those who present such evidence will be included on the list, and their names published in a supplementary list on Thursday, April 19.

"Every voter is urged to check this list carefully and see that your name is properly entered thereon. I want every person in the county who is entitled to vote to have every opportunity to get straight and on the qualified list.

"If you are not on the list, and can't come to see me in person, you may send me your papers, such as poll tax receipts and registration papers, and I will fix you up properly and return your papers to you.

"It is important that every voter look and see that your name is listed in the proper Beat. If your name is not in the right place, let me know, and I will transfer you. This should be done before the supplemental list is published on April 19."

LEGARE-RENFROE

Mr. John Legare and Mrs. Emma Renfroe, both of Pascagoula, Miss., were married last Sunday morning, March 11th, at the home of Mrs. G. H. Sharp, on Buena Street, Pascagoula, Rev. Dr. Patterson, pastor of the Baptist Church there officiating.

The bride is from Clanton, Ala., having moved to Pascagoula some months ago; the groom has been connected with the Palace Pharmacy for the past year. Both have many friends here and in Alabama, who will join in felicitations.

They will make their home at 1410 Gulf View Boulevard. — Pascagoula, (Miss.) paper.

PENSION WARRANTS READY APRIL 2ND

The office of the Judge of Probate authorizes The Union-Banner to announce to all interested parties that all pension warrants for Chilton county will be in that office on Monday, April 2nd, ready for delivery. Those entitled to these warrants may call for them on or after that date.

FEW ARRESTS MADE

The sheriff's office reports only four arrests in the past week—three for violating the prohibition law and one for burglary and grand larceny.

The arrest for burglary was made by city policeman John Browder, when he caught Clay Moates after he had broken into Tiny's last Saturday night. The case was turned over to the county authorities.

The jail register Wednesday morning showed nine prisoners in confinement.

MR. JASPER NEWTON COST

Mr. J. N. Cost, age 74 years, passed away at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. J. A. Jones, in Clanton Wednesday morning, March 15th. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. J. A. Jones, Mrs. J. A. Duncan, Mrs. A. W. Jones, all of Clanton and Mrs. Chas. Shaffer, of Birmingham; three sons, W. M. Cost, of Hartselle; J. E. Cost, of Montgomery, and J. P. Cost of Clanton; 33 grand children.

Funeral services were held Thursday morning, March 15th, at Macedonia church. Interment in the church cemetery, with Dr. S. J. Ezell officiating. Spigener was in charge.

MANY WORKERS WILL GET JOBS

Chas. Cooper Says He Is In Position To Give Employment

An interview with Mr. Chas. Cooper Monday morning revealed the interesting fact that he has been selected as local manager for a large Tennessee Company which plans to enter business in Alabama in the near future. In outlining their program this company needed the services of a county manager who is capable of doing business in a business way, and it is a tribute to the business ability of Mr. Cooper that he was given the position.

Mr. Cooper advises that he will be able to employ several hundred men in this work, and that he has been given entire authority in the selection of employees. He says he plans to spread the work among the people of the entire county, and will give an opportunity for workers in every Beat to share the advantages offered.

One man in each Beat will be selected as foreman, Mr. Cooper stated, and this foreman will be granted the right to select fifteen or twenty men to work in his Beat. This will not be a get-rich-quick proposition, said Mr. Cooper, but it will be a job, paying a living wage and of a permanent nature.

Mr. Cooper will establish his main office for the administration of this work at Clanton. Within sixty or ninety days he expects to have a large number of men at work.

Asked if this connection would interefere with his duties as Representative in the Legislature, if he should be elected, Mr. Cooper advised that there will be no conflict whatsoever. He stated that the main object he has in mind in accepting the proposition is to be able to bring to many people an opportunity to get work and wages which they are in need of at this time.

Mr. Cooper did not disclose the exact nature of the work. We presume he will do so at the proper time. Meanwhile, those who may be interested may see Mr. Cooper in person.

MISS AUSTIN AND MISS ELLIS ATTEND ATLANTA CONFERENCE

Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, director of relief and Miss Mary Ellis, Child Welfare Superintendent, returned Tuesday night from a two-day conference on Juvenile Delinquency held at the Biltmore Hotel in Atlanta. The conference was sponsored by the U. S. Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor and Bureau of Prisons.

The purpose of the conference was to discuss better plans of treatment and care for Juvenile Delinquents. Among the prominent speakers were Miss Catherine Lenroot, of the Children's Bureau in Washington, Joel R. Moore, U. S. Probation Service, Dr. H. E. Chamberlain, University of Chicago, and Dean Justin Miller of Duke University.

Representatives from the seven southeastern states were present, including judges of juvenile courts, probation officers, state and county child welfare workers.

J. C. BROWN TO TEACH A SCHOOL FOR ADULTS

Mr. J. C. Brown was a visitor in Clanton the first of this week. For some months past Mr. Brown has been engaged in teaching an adult school near Weogufka, in Coosa County.

His school in Coosa will be finished some time in May, and Mr. Brown would like to teach a similar school in the vicinty of Clanton, if he can secure enough students to make it a worthwhile proposition.

Being himself something of an "old-timer," Mr. Brown is well fitted for teaching adults. He has had considerable experience in this kind of work, and says he enjoys it immensely.

If anybody might be interested in such a school, Mr. Brown would be glad to get in touch with such parties. He can be reached through communication with The Union-Banner.

A DISTINGUISHED VISITOR IN MAPLESVILLE SATURDAY NIGHT

Miss Susanne van Court, better known to her friends as "Black-Eyed Susan," or Boots Potts. She is spending some time with her aunt, Miss Letty Pennyfeather (Ruth Mize). Phil Langdon, local newspaper reporter (Abney Brown), has been paying her such marked attention it is rumored that there will be wedding bells ringing before many weeks have passed.

Miss Pennyfeather will entertain for her neice at a garden party on Saturday night. Among the guests will be Misses Susie Mae Hayes, Dorothy Reynolds, Mary Dee Potts, Mesdames C. E. White, D. Nix, Bessie Hayes, Gwin Hampton, Camp Hambric, Boykin and Cal Foshee.

Folowing this it is understood that a party will be given for Cal Foshee, Miss Mize's fiance, and Messrs. Van Potts, John Brown Monroe Hayes C. E. White. Assisting Miss Pennyfeather will be Estelle White and A. B. Wilder—or perhaps by now you've guessed that we are telling you that "Black-Eyed Susan," three act musical comedy will be ready for presentation Saturday night, March 31st, at 3 o'clock. It is a riproaring comedy, full of suspense, music, laughter, dancing, gay new costumes and a world of fun for all present.

In addition to the show will be three contests—popularity contest, winner of which gets a lovely pair of slippers of her choice at Rowell's Shoe Store in Selma. Other prizes will be given to the winners of the Cute Baby Saying, and Husband Calling Contest.

Thirty beautiful Maplesville chorus girls will sing new songs, dance the latest steps and wear snappy, colorful costumes. Mrs. Dorsey is playing for "Black-Eyed Susan."—Nuff said.

Miss Mae Gwen Matthews, of the Wayne P. Sewell Co., Atlanta, Ga., is directing this production.

COMMITTEE MEETING

The Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County is hereby called to meet at the courthouse at Clanton on Friday, March 30, at 2 p.m., by order of the State Republican Executive Committee.

J. N. DENNIS,
Chairman Chilton County
Republican Executive Committee.

DIXON WILL SPEAK HERE NEXT SATURDAY AFTERNOON

In support of his candidacy for Governor of Alabama, Major Frank M. Dixon of Birmingham will speak at the courthouse in Clanton next Saturday afternoon, March 31st, at 3 o'clock. Major Dixon has the reputation of being a forceful and interesting lecturer, and he claims to have some facts to place before the voters that they ought to know before the coming primaries.

EASTER SINGING NEXT SUNDAY

The annual Easter singing will be held at Poplar Springs next Sunday, April 1st, begining at 10 o'clock. All singers and lovers of music are invited to come and bring their dinner. Several good quartets are assured. All the new books will be used. Bring your books.—W. F. Gilliland, G. B. Jones, W. M. Devaughn, Committee.

Good Time For Culling Poultry

Get Rid of Hens That Do Not Pay Their Board In Eggs

At this time of the year when the price of eggs is breaking and the price of hens is rising, it is a good time to cull your flocks and sell the culls. There is no profit in feeding cull hens.

If you are getting less than one egg for every two hens you have, you are feeding some culls. Hens that are beginning to molt should be taken out.

Following are some rules to guide one in culling:

1. Take out hens that are molting.
2. Pullets that have not started producing should be culled.
3. When a hen is producing, her comb is bright and red, warm and large. If the comb is small, hard, scaly and pale, the hen should be culled.
4. If the legs and beak are yellow, usually they are producing.
5. If the pelvic bones and breast bones are close together and the vent puckered, cull the hen.
6. Cull hens that are very small.

A good plan is to cull your hens close, take some of the money received for them and purchase a few good baby chicks during the month of April and raise some pullets for next fall and winter laying.

FRED HOWARD, OF THORSBY, WAS HERE LAST SATURDAY

Mr. Fred Howard, prominent citizen, farmer and business man, of Thorsby, was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday.

While here Mr. Howard called at The Union-Banner office and requested publication of the following statement:

"I want my friends everywhere to know that I am not the Fred Howard who has been mixed up in the courts of Chilton County. Several have asked me about reports that I had been convicted in court and sentenced to the penitentiary, and of course I have had a lot of explaining to do. If you will kindly publish this explanation for me, I will appreciate it very much. I am one of about three men in Chilton County by the name of Fred Howard."

FANT READY FOR CROP LOANS NOW

County Agent Has Necessary Forms For Making Applications

In a letter to farmers of Chilton County concerning government crop loans, County Agent, Fant, says:

"I have received necessary forms for taking applications for government crop loans.

"My office is ready to take these applications on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of each week until further notice. Since this loan is so late, I hope that we may be able to take the majority of the applications in one week.

"In maing application for this loan one must be able to prove that he is unable to secure a loan from any other source. Applicants who have sufficient security to get a loan from the Montgomery Production Credit Association, from the local banks, or any other source of credit, are not eligible for this Emergency Crop Loan.

"An applicant must show his cooperation with the 1934-35 Cotton Acreage Reduction Program.

"All applicants must be able to give a first mortgage on this year's crop. If an applicant is a tenant his landlord will be required to waive his rent until the mortgage is satisfied. It will save time and inconvenience if tenants will bring their landlords with them when application is made.

"This loan is only for the cash expenses of this year's crop. No old debts can be paid or mules bought with this loan.

"As heretofore, applicants are required to furnish a legal description of the land they will cultivate this year. This description can be taken from the land deed or from the assessment sheet.

"Fifty cents for the Notary Public fee must be paid when application is taken."

NO SINGING AT CHESTNUT CREEK

There will be no singing at Chestnut Creek Church next Sunday, Easter, on account of the all-day singing at Poplar Springs Church. We invite everybody back on the first Sunday in May.—Louanna Jones, Sec'y.

MRS. FANNIE THOMAS DIED

Mrs. Fannie Thomas, age 71 years, died last Thursday March 22, at her home near Verbena. The body was prepared by Martin and shipped to Arcadia, Louisiana, for burial.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by her husband, Mr. J. A. Thomas. Originally she was the daughter of Bob King, of Coosa County.

American Legion Rally April 10

Spring Conclave Will Be Held At Birmingham For One Day

Plans are nearing completion for the Spring Rally of the Alabama Department of the American Legion, which will be held in Birmingham on April 10. Adjutant D. Trotter Jones and other Legion officials are expecting representatives from every post in Alabama. All post officials, Past Department Comanders and past Post Commanders are especially invited to attend this Rally, while all interested Legionnaries will be welcome.

Special stress will be put on membership at the Spring Rally. The guest speaker will be "Bob" Gordon, of Arkansas, National Vice-Commander whose specialty is said to be membership. His district has led the Nation in enrolling members this year.

The meeting will be held at the Hollywood Country Club, beginning at 2:00 p.m. with State Commander W. A. Abramson, of Florence, presiding. The afternoon session will be marked by addresses and reports of department chairmen, who will explain the 1934 program of their particular committees. Vice-Commander Gordon will speak at the banquet that evening. A dance, sponsored by the Jeferson County Council, will follow.

In realty, explains Adjutant Jones, this rall is a second commander's and adjutant's conference, the first having been held in Montgomery early in the year. "It is called at the beginning of the Spring season to put new life and pep into our Legion work," said Jones. Every phase of the department's activity will be discussed and plans made to launch into active campaigns to put the Legion's ideals and programs across on every front, Adjutant Jones asserted.

He said the department needs about 2,250 more members to reach the quota set by National Headquarters. "But for this department to pay the obligations placed upon it at the last convention, we will have to get at least 4,000 members between now and convention time. Forty-two posts have already exceeded last year's membership. Every post in the State can beat its 1933 record by a little extra effort."

MAPLE SPRINGS

Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. seem to be improving a little, which we hope will continue, for there is plenty of room for improvement. Let's work hard, folks, and bring our Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. back to where they once were.

Several from here attended the singing at Poplar Springs Sunday afternoon. They reported a good singing.

Remember we will have Sunday school an hour earlier next Sunday on account of the Easter all day singing at Poplar Springs, so let's everybody be at Sunday school and then after Sunday school we will go to Poplar Springs and enjoy the rest of the day in singing.

Mr. Willie Glenn had as his guest Sunday afternoon his father, Mr. J. T. Glenn.

Mr. Curtis Jones spent the week end in Cooper with friends.

Messrs. Ottis, Oliver and Arnold Glenn had as their guests a while Saturday morning Messrs. Odean Deloach, Aaron Guy, J. T. Wilson, Junior Baker and Jim Dunlap.

Mr. Sanders Watkins spent a while Friday afternoon with Messrs. Arthur, Evan and Lee Mitchell.

Mr. Joe Lansford spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. Arnold Glenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise had as their week end guest, Mr. Jack Wise, of Cooper.

Mrs. W. F .Glenn had as her Saturday afternoon guest Mrs. J. R. Mitchell.

Mrs. Wiley Jones had as her guest a few days last week her stepdaughter, Mrs. Lester Mims, from Cooper.

Mrs. Bertha Mitchell had as her guest last Wednesday, her daughter, Mrs. Alton Harris.

Miss Elma Reen Jones was the Saturday afternoon guest of Misses Mildred and Delene Wright.

Mr. Arnold Glenn had as his dinner and supper guest Sunday Mr. Roy Wilson.

Mr. W. F. Glenn spent a while Friday afternoon with his brother, Mr. Calvin Glenn, of Cooper.

We are very sorry to learn that little Eugene Kelley is very sick with measles and pneumonia. We wish him a speedy recovery.

You remember our B. Y. P. U. study course was postponed on account of Bro. Robinson having to take up Mr. Grant's school for a few days. The study course will begin here next Minday night following the first Sunday, April 2nd. Folks, we need this course, so come on and bring someone with you. I am sure you will say your time has been well spent.

We elected new B. Y. P. U. officers Sunday night. They are as follows: Group captain No. 1, Miss Marie Devaughn; group captain No. 2, Mrs. Alton Harris; secretary, Mrs. Bill Wise; Bible quiz leader, Mrs. Alma Wilson; choirister, Mrs. Alma Wilson; piano, Miss Christeen Driver; president, Ruth Dennis; intermediate teacher, Mr. Alton Harris. So now let's help them all we can and then we'll soon have a fine B. Y. P. U. going again at this place. We enrolled several new members which we were very glad to do. If you don't attend B. Y. P. U. at some place, why not come and join us. You will always find a welcome at Maple Springs.

OAK HILL NEWS

Our Sunday school and Epworth League are progressing nicely. However the attendance has been rather small on account of sickness in the community. Our Sunday school superintendent, Br. A. H. Glasscock, urges all the members to be present if possible next Sunday as it is the beginning of a new quarter and also Easter Sunday. Let's wake up and put on new life and accomplish something.

Rev. J. N. Green will preach at this place Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night. Those who have not heard Bro. Green have missed something worth while. We invite everyone to come.

The ending of the first quarter has found group No. 2 of the Epworth League winner of the daily Bible reading contest. Those on group No. 2 who are regular bible readers are: Miss Emma Atkinson, group captain, Mrs. Emma Limbrick, secretary and treasurer, Stanley Campbell, Lorene Davenport, Cecil Ellison, Vadie Avery, and Alford Davenport, vice president. We are sorry to report that our president, Mrs. J. A. Campbell, and group captain of No. 1, Miss Onzelle Littleton, were both unable to attend the League on account of sickness. We want to urge group No. 1 to get down to business and read your Bible and help your group win the contest for the next quarter.

There will be an Easter egg hunt on the church grounds Sunday afternoon.

Miss Avis Cofer and Mr. Burman Cobb of Oak Grove visited Mr. and Mrs. Almon Glass Sunday afternoon.

Miss Mamie Davenport spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Lake Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thrash of Sylacauga were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Glasscock.

Mr. Marvin Campbell was the dinner guest of Mr. Bill Cofer Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lenoir were called to the bedside of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Comer Lenoir, who is in a Birmingham hospital.

Mrs. H. V. Campbell is improving in health since undergoing a very serious operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, of Montgomery, were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanders.

Mr. and Mrs. Orman Arledge were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Glasscock Sunday.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., March 29.—Grace Martin, Cullman, was elected president of the Young Women's Christian Association at the University of Alabama, for the 1934-35 school year. Frances Ordway, Anniston, was elected vice president. Frances Loyd, of Tuscaloosa, was elected secretary and Mary Randolph Phelps, Bluefield, Ky., was unopposed for treasurer.

Dr. Gene H. Kistler, associate professor of physiology and pharmacology in the Alabama School of Medicine, University of Alabama, has just been award the Joseph A. Capps prize of $500 by the Institute of Medicine of Chicago on investigative work conducted by him during the last two years. The results of his research have been accepted for publication in the "Archives of Surgery," under the title "Sequences of Experimental Infarction of the Femur in Rabbits," and an abstract of the article will appear in the proceedings of the Institute of Medicine of Chicago. The award of the Capps prize to Dr. Kistler is one of the finest honors which has come to any of the faculty at the university.

Dr. Kistler became interested in diseases of bone during the summer vacation of 1932 and since that time has carried on an extensive study at the University of Alabama. He has been particularly interested in the underlying cause and pathologic changes of some of the more obscure diseases and from his experiments with rabbits has pointed out the necessity of adequate blood supply for maintenance of viability and for regeneration of new in the place of dead bone.

Dr. Roland M. Harper of the University of Alabama, botanist and statistician with the Alabama Geological Survey located on this campus, is seriously ill in a local hospital. Dr. Harper is suffering with bronchial pneumonia. He is reported as doing as well as could be expected.

James C. Williams, Birmingham, was awarded the scholarship given annually by the Quadrangle Club to some deserving freshman after careful consideration of all applicants.

The Southeastern section of the Mathematical Association of America will hold its 12th annual meeting at the University of Alabama on Friday and Saturday, March 30 and 31. Mathematicians from Tennessee, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama will attend. Every person interested in mathematics is extended a cordial invitation to attend the two-day session. Dr. Arnold Dresden of Swarthmore College, national president of the association, will head the meeting.

For the first time in its history the University of Alabama Summer school will offer courses in nursing education. The courses will be offered during the first term of the 1934 session opening June 4 in cooperation with the Nurses Board of Examination and Registration of Alabama.

The courses are to be conducted by Miss Katherine Dick who is said to be well qualified in terms of both experience and training. The courses to be offered are as follows: principle and practice of nursing procedure (demonstration classes at Druid City Hospital); the social aspect of public health nursing; supervision in schools of nursing.

Psi chapter of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity was awarded a cup by the national organiation of Zeta Beta Tau for having the best all around chapter during the 1933-34 school year. Psi also won the Bijur cup for having the highest scholastic average of any chapter of Zeta Beta Tau in the United States.

University, Ala. March 27.—Coach "Ears" Whitworth is driving his baseball candidates hard these warm days in an effort to get them ready for the invasion of the Birmingham Barons Friday in the initial game of the season.

The pitching staff is rounding into form nicely and it now appears that Alabama will have a fine mound staff, headed by Scott and Rogers, two veteran portsiders. Other good looking hurlers are Van Danberg and Belucci, both sophomores.

The batters have been slow to get their eyes on the ball and hits have been few and far between. The hitters however, are beginning to swing better and before long they should be giving the flingers more trouble.

It is likely that Scott and Rogers will share the major part of the pitching honors, with Van Danberg and Belucci ready to give aid and assistance.

"Happy" Campbell, star third sacker, is still out with a football injury and will be unable to play for several weeks. His fine fielding and heavy stick work will be missed in the early games which he will miss.

"I see some of the farmers around here are claiming that they own the air above their land and that the airmen must pay them toll for using it."

"That's bad policy. If they once admit that they own the air the tax gatherers will start taxing it."

Supt. Luther Little was in Birmingham Thursday, Friday and Saturday attending the Alabama Education Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Duncan, Misses Dorothy and Betsy Ann Duncan, of Birmingham, spent the week end with relatives and friends in Clanton.

MEMBER of FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

During the past three years almost one hundred unqualified insurance companies, associations, societies or unions have transacted business in this state. A number of these are not qualified according to the insurance laws of the home states. The financial condition of some of them appears to be problematical. Whether such authorized companies are qualified in the home states according to the insurance laws thereof, whreteh the financial condition of such companies is unsound or not, it is exceedingly unwise for the insuring public of this state to buy insurance from any unqualified company, chiefly for the follow reasons:

1. Being unqualified, such organizations have no agent in the state upon whom service of process may be had. They, therefore, can not be sued in the state or the federal courts within the state, because you can not have a law suit without both parties to the suit being present in the court. And there is no legal way of getting such unqualified companies into court within this state. If you have a policy with such company, have a claim, and the claim is disputed, it will probably be necessary to litigate in the state of domicile.

2. There are hundreds of companies qualified here, and these companies pay the general fund of the state every substantial privilege and license taxes for the purpose of doing business here according to our laws, and being subject to our courts. The insuring public should buy from these companies in preference to any unqualified company.

3. Some of these unqualified organizations are undoubtedly operating upon unsound basis, namely, the assessment basis, with an obviously inadequate assessment. For alfost a century hundreds of insurance organizations have tried this scheme and it has failed. Yet, during periods of depression like this, the insuring public seems inclined to consider only the cost of protection and not the quality. Promoters realizing this, form various types of assessment associations and secure millions of dollars from the insuring public for contract for protection which such associations can not possibly, with the rates charged, ultimately fulfill. Insurance organizations operating on an unsound plan, due to the very nature of their business, do not fail immediately. They generally can operate from five to twenty-five years, securing millions of dollars from the insuring public before failing. When they fail the economic loss to the insuring public is heavy, and the disappointment is great. Beware of an unqualified insurance company! Purchase insurance only from qualified companies.

IN MEMORY OF MR. WARD

Brother Ward has gone to rest,
His voice we'll hear no more
Till we enter that home so blesst
Upon the golden shore.

Oh, brother Ward, how we'll miss you
From our fireside at home
But he has left earathly care and sorrow
In a sweet paradise to roam.

With tearful eyes and aching hearts,
We speak the last good bye,
But soon we'll meet to never part
Where pleasure never dies.

He was always patient and kind and loving.
But our Savior thought it best to Take him to his home in glory,
Where the weary all find rest.

Oh, brother Ward, how we'll miss you.
As we assemble as of yore.
Your loving voice no more to greet us
As we enter your door.

Jesus Savior, hear our pleading,
Guide us o'er life's fitful sea
When our earthly work is ended
Take us home in heaven with three.

Farewell, brother Ward, I hope we'll meet you
On that bright, shining shore,
There to be with Jesus forever,
And there to part no more.

MT. PLEASANT

The Mt. Pleasant boys basketball team won the county championship last week. Although part of the regular team was unable to play, the boys came through in grand style. They drew a bye in the first round and defeated the strong Union Grove five in the semi-finals and won by a forfeit from Thomas Jr., for championship.

Coach Glasscock's boys have had a very successful season this year. They have suffered only one defeat, and that at the hands of Union Grove Jr. High at the first of the season.

Coach Glasscock has a bunch of kids that are trained so well they play like old hands.

An all county team was chosen. Mt. Pleasant had three on this team, Vernon Collins, center; Coonie Childress, guard and Leonard Burnett, forward.

So well was the game played between Mt. Pleasant and Union Grove that people thought they were high school teams playing. When the game started, the ball was tossed in center, up goes Collins tips the ball to Burnett and to little Earl Melton and through the basket before anyone knew the game was under way. Those Mt. Pleasant boys were just too good with their sharp shooting and quick passing. Such pass work has not been excelled in this county this year.

We were very sorry Cecil and Julius Traywick, two regular guards could not play, and also George Chambers, a forward or guard. However, sickness is something we cannot avoid. Coach Glasscock took little Earl Melton and Chester Jones and did those boys fill every demand? Little Earl almost ruined those nets putting them through and Chester just wouldn't let his man shoot.

We must not forget the splendid work of Coonie Childress, who held the high scorer honor from Union Grove to two points, while he was looping 6 points himself. Vernon Collins gave his mates the tip-off every time, although his opponent was much taller. He also played good ball on the spot, handling that position like an old head. Did Leonard Burnett get that tip-off and how? And did he play and shoot—just ask his opponents. Hubert Duke also played good ball, being the only supstitute used in the tournament by Mt. Pleasant.

The following is the record of the games and scores for this year:

Mt. Pleasant—14 ... Union Grove—17
Mt. Pleasant—37 ..... Concord—10
Mt. Pleasant—35 .... Thomas Jr.—13

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

FARM RECORD BOOK FURNISHES NEEDED DATA FOR CONTRACT

Auburn, Ala., March 27.—Farmers who keep the new record books which are being distributed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to producers who take part in the various adjustment programs will be fortified with valuable "contract" information.

They will be able to establish past production claims when they apply for contract, and they will be in position to prove compliance with the contract terms after they are in effect, administration officials point out. Production records are also said to be of value when the farmer makes application for loans.

Many farmers have had trouble in getting together the necessary evidence of production in applying for wheat, cotton, corn-hog, or other adjustment contracts during the past year. They have not saved sales slips, warehouse receiptes, or other records of sales, and in many cases they have no systematic record of their own.

Lack of this "evidence" has frequently resulted in delay in the preparation and acceptance of contracts. It has been difficult to satisfy local production control associations on the production figures for the base periods. The same situation is held likely to develop when farmers find it necessary to prove compliance with contract terms at the end of marketing years, unless more accurate and reliable records are kept.

The farm record books which are simple and easy to keep, are designed to meet these needs. Two million of them have been printed by the Adjustment Administration and are being distributed through state extension services. Farmers who sign adjustment contracts will get the record books free of charge, from their local county agricultural agents or production control associations.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A study by Prof. James D. Pope, agricultural economist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, reveals that for the year 1932-33 45.8 per cent of the total state and county revenues in Alabama came from property taxes.

Etowah County now boasts that 75 per cent of the cotton grown there is of one improved variety, D.P.L., according to a report by County Agent L. L. Self.

Ten thousand bushels of good cotton planting seed were saved at special gin days held in Chambers County last fall, reports County Agent H. C. Heath.

It is estimated that 80 per cent of the cotton grown in Pickens County is 15|16 inches or better in staple length according to County Agent F. A. Rew, who says that each year one-half carload of improved seed are obtained from breeders and distributed in the county.

Experimental work has revealed that a 6-10-4, or the equivalent in plant food, is a good cotton fertilizer.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our deep appreciation for the kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our darling little son, Mavis. Especially do we thank the good ladies that came in and worked so faithfully. May God bless each and every one, is our prayer.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Eugene Williams and children.

COTTON FERTILIZER METHOD EXPLAINED

Auburn, Ala., March 27.—Stressing the importance of the proper kind and amount of plant food in fertilizer, J.C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, said that as a result of cotton fertilizer experiments conducted by the experiment station over a period of many years and in various sections of Alabama a 6-10-4, or the equivalent in plant food, is recommended as a cotton fertilizer.

He suggested that about ¼ of the nitrogen, all of the prosphate and all of the potash should be applied at planting time and the remaining three-fourths of the nitrogen applied as a side-dressing at the first cultivation after chopping "Experiments show that the cotton yield is more directly determined by the amount of available nitrogen present than by any other controllable fertilizer factor," he said. "Much of the fertilizer used for cotton in Alabama contains only 3 per cent nirtogen, or one-half the amount it should contain to be an efficient cotton fertilizer."

He added that the source of nitrogen is very important, stating that sulphate of amonia, for example, when used in connection with lime is a very satisfactory source of nitrogen, yet when used without it injures the soil to the extent that crop yield may be seriously reduced.

The well known Auburn method consists essentially of a planting mixture of 200 pounds superphosphate, 25 pounds nitrate of soda or 20 pounds sulphate of amonia and 25 pounds muriate of potash and a side-dressing at first cultivation after chopping of 75 pounds of nitrate. This is known as the Auburn minimum and double these amounts is the Auburn maximum.

GOVERNMENT TO KEEP 272 CCC CAMPS GOING

Washington, March 25. — Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work, announced today that 272 civilian conservation corps camps would be maintained this summer in state park areas in 40 states.

The number represents an increase of 34 over the present total of camps in state park areas. These camps will represent approximately 20 per cent of the 1,468 CCC camps to be operated during the summer.

Ten additional states will be included in the list of those using the CCC for state park development. They are: Maryland, Mississippi, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, New Hampshire, South Carolina, Tennessee and West Virginia.

The third six-months enrollment period of the CCC begins on April 1.

It was customary for the congregation to repeat the 23rd Psalm in unison, but invariably Mrs. Spielfast would keep about a dozen words ahead of the rest. "Who," asked a visitor of an old church member one Sunday, "was the lady who was already by the still waters while the rest of us were lying down in green pastures?

ACREAGE WITHDRAWALS MAY REACH 40 MILLIONS

Washington, March 25. — Eventual withdrawal of 40,000,000 acres of land from produciton through corn, wheat, cotton and tobacco reduction programs was indicated Sunday by Chester C. Davis, agricultural adjustment administrator, in a report to Secretary Wallace.

The report ,outlining the government's progress in regulating farm production from May, 1933, to February, 1934, suggested abandonment of the scheme whereby a separate contract is employed for each commodity, and the substitution of control of all regulated farm products through a single association in each county.

"Total farm income from crops in 1933," Davis said, "including rental and benefit payments, is estimated to have been $3,271,000,000, as compared with $2,113,000,000 in 1932, and increase of nearly 55 per cent.

Full Results Awaited

Part of this recovery was undoubtedly due to the adjustment program getting under way. With livestock and livestock products, the production of which for market covers a longer period, it is not possible to make adjustments so rapidly. It should be added that the full results of a number of important projects launched in 1933 have not yet been felt. It is expected they will become increasingly evident during 1934."

Removal of the prospective 40,000,000 acres of land from cultivation, he said, "raises puzzling questions as to regional and commodity competition, rotations, replacement crops, use of labor and the like."

Although "practicable" plans have been worked out for use of the land in some regions, Davis continued, readjustments are "complicated" by the human problem, especially as to hired laborers and tenants. Retirement of sub-marginal land, he said, will bring even more difficult problems.

A warning was sounded against "high pressure promotion, either by the federal government or by other agencies, of settlement in areas and under conditions which cannot sustain a population on any but very low standard-of-living levels."

"The Agricultural Adjustment Administration," Davis said, "has no thought of preparing for a permanent scarcity. The American population is still increasing, though at a declining rate. Agriculture's goal is the economical production of ample raw materials to supply the nation's needs and to meet the demand for such products as can be sold abroad at remunerative prices, while at the same time avoiding surpluses that destroy the buying power of farm commodities and wreck farmers' standards of living."

Estimated expenditures on existing program for rental payments and surplus removal during 1933, 1934, and 1935 total $847,176,000, with probable collections placed at $872,595,805. Administrative and other expenses, Davis said, and the farm administration's budget reckons a deficit of $2,293,996 in November, 1935, when programs now approved will be concluded.

Expenditures through December 31 reached $181,207,519, while collections were $140,401,194. The disparity was explained in the report by the fact that a large part of the farm benefit payments was advanced by the treasury.

They had grown wealthy suddenly and had purchased a farm, complete with hens, cows and pigs. Said a visitor one day:

"Do your hens lay eggs?"

"Oh they can," was the lofty reply, "But in our position they don't have to."

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

The church is a means to an end and not for an end within itself. When a church settles down to build up herself for the sake of herself, then that church is out of the will of God. That is exactly what is the matter with a lot of our modern churches. The members are trying to build their organization for the sake of themselves and their machinery. The purpose of the church is to witness for Jesus Christ and win the lost to Him —not to build herself up and say, "We are rich; we are numerous; we are influential." The minister has no right to appeal to men to do something for the church. The minister and the church are to appeal to people to do something for Jesus Christ. The church is not to exalt herself, but to exalt her Lord.

There is no place in the world where there is a greater opportunity to develop real manhood than in the pulpit, and there are no other men who have more temptations to compromise their manhood than preachers. It takes real courage to be a great preacher. A preacher ought to be courageous enough to challenge kings on their thrones. He must be fearless enough to speak out even though he is a lone voice and nobody believes what he says. God gives us courageous and fearless ministers of the gospel, minister who know the truth, believe the truth, and preach the truth.

Nicodemus, who called on Jesus one night, said to Him, "No man can do these miracles that thou doest except God be with him." Nicodemus recognized that the miracles were the credentials of the diety of Jesus. If Jesus was not the son of God, how can men explain the miracles He wrought? Who else but the son of God can raise the dead? The people said, "Never man spake as Jesus spake." We must admit that no man has wrought such miracles as were wrought by the Savior of the world. No wonder all evangelical Christians say of Him, "My Lord and my God."

WILL DISCUSS PROHIBITION LAWS NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

Editor Union-Banner:

Will you please make the following announcement through your paper?

I wish to say to the voters of the county of both parties that if no hindrance, we will discuss the Alabama prohibition law next Saturday night at Jackson Chapel school house, at 7 p.m. We invite everybody to come and to come sober and cool headed. We especially invite the candidates of both parties, and also those for state senate and for representative, who are in favor of the present state prohibition law.

I take the position to say that it is without Bibical authority and is the results of the spirit of oppression and should be repealed and place the penalty where it belongs. I will be glad to discuss the question with you. I think the voters have a right to know what they are voting for.—Respectfully, J. H. Jackson.

NEW PARK LAND DONATED BY BLACKSHER

Montgomery, Ala., March 27.—In the history of the development of Alabama's state park system the name of Mr. J. U. Blacksher, of Mobile, occupies an important place, states the Alabama Commission of Forestry. The Blacksher Company, of which Mr. Blacksher is the principal stockholder, has recently donated an additional area of 560 acres to be added to the Little River State Park located in Escambia and Monroe Counties.

This park previously has been the beneficiary of grants from the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company and the Blacksher Company. These two concerns have been responsible for the establishment of the park. Mr. Edward A. Hauss of the Alger-Sullivan Lumber Company originated the idea and sponsored the original donation of his company. He was ably seconded by Mr. Blacksher, and the grants made by the companies represented bid fair to make Little River State Park an outstanding scenic and recreational spot of the south.

It Sounds Interesting

The campaign headquarters of Judge Leon McCord, candidate for Governor of Alabama, sends out an interesting and somewhat prophetic comment upon the appearance of candidate McCord in his speech at the courthouse in Clanton last Saturday. It says:

"One of the largest crowds ever to greet a candidate heard Judge McCord's address at Clanton Saturday afternoon. One thousand persons were packed in the courthouse, while an equal number heard the address through loud speakers. Many were former Republicans who joined the Democratic party last year and voted for Franklin D. Roosevelt against Herbert Hoover. A large number announced that henceforth they will be in the Democratic party, and leaders of Democracy have hope of putting Chilton County in the Democratic columns and electing the entire Democratic county ticket next November."

Many Republicans in Chilton County voted for President Roosevelt against Hoover. So extensive was the "turn-over" that the result was a majority for Roosevelt, the first Democratic presidential candidate to carry Chilton County in more than forty years.

It is natural for Judge McCord to have hopes that those Republicans who voted for Roosevelt will likewise vote for him. Others than McCord also have the same hope. It will be interesting this fall to count up and see if they do it.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Now that the St. Lawrence waterways treaty is out of the way for the present, the next important question to come before congress on which there will be a bitter battle is that of granting the president power to negotiate tariff treaties without their submission to the senate for ratification. The defeat of the St. Lawrence treaty is regarded as the first important blow at the administration's prestige in legislative matters, and some observers at Washington think that this is going to make the going a little harder for the administration's tariff treaty proposal.

It is rather interesting to note what the effect of tariff bartering, such as is proposed under the new powers asked for the president, have been up to this time. When the prohibition amendment was repealed it was thought that the administration would get important concessions for our agricultural exports abroad in return for the right to send liquor into the United States. But only a few days ago it was announced that the bars would be let down, for the time being at least, on the importation of foreign liquors to the United States, in order to try to get the price of liquor down in the United States. At the same time it was intimated in Washington circles that the effort to get concessions for our agricultural products abroad, in return for liquor imports to the United States, had proved very disappointing. In other words, foreign countries refused to take our products—even in exchange for booze. One or two agreements were made, for example one with France in which we agreed to take ten million dollars worth of French wines if France would take one million dollars worth of apples. But even this hasn't worked satisfactorily, and France seems to have welched" a trifle, although getting ten to one the better of the deal. At least the Washington Herald states editorially:

"For some reason or other even this one-sided agreement has not operated reciprocally, various shipments of American apples having been left to rot on the French docks or seek a market elsewhere. We confidentially again leaned on the broken reed of French sincerity and honest intent, and experienced the usual consequences."

A great many people, in view of our experiences in trying to get trade concessions for liquor imports, are wondering just how the whole idea of tariff bargaining would work out. Even if our administration went into a deal with the best of intentions as it undoubtedly would, what would prevent our having the old "liquor-for-apples" experience over again? It takes two to make and keep a bargain and our experience with European agreements during the past ten or twelve years has been none too happy. To quote from the Washington Herald again, "What reason have we to believe or to hope that other bargains would be more scrupulously kept, or that the United States can depend on the pledges of nations which repudiate their debts and dishonor their agreements."

To a great many people it is still doubtful whether we can hope to restore agricultural prosperity by building up foreign markets. Conditions are not like they were before the great war. Italy is now raising enough wheat to supply her, France has an actual surplus of domestic wheat and Germany expects to be independent of agricultural imports within a few short years. Formerly these were three good customers of our farmers. There is food for thought in the statement on foreign trade made by the kell known economist Samuel Crowther the other day before the House Ways and Means Committee at Washington.

"The export trade of the world is going the way of the whaling trade. There is just as much chance of restoring it as there is of restoring the whaling trade by cutting out use of electricity and decreeing world-wide use of sperm oil.

"It can be stated generally that the United States, through the whole chemical field, for instance, are independent as circumstances warrant and that the American chemist will produce anything he is ordered to produce.

"Except for rubber, the only other present essentials among our imports are quinine, a Dutch monopoly, and opium from the near East and Persia.

"Foreign busine[illegible] slight consequence as compared wi[illegible]iture of the home market."

Hurts Small Printers

From a country printer.—The manager of a country printing establishment in Ohio, publishing two fine weekly papers with a combined circulation of 3,000 copies, recently stated the problem he faced from the competition of the government printing return addresses on stamped envelopes. He said:

"This competition is keenly felt by printers. We use our newspapers to help the government in many ways. The public has been educated to the income tax and all other forms of taxation through the newspapers without cost to the government. Yet, in our two offices, we lose from $600 to $800 annually because the government prints private return business cards on stamped envelopes at prices that cannot be touched by any printer."

Here is a private industry which pays heavy taxes to maintain a government printing plant which is tax-free and which, in turn, does commercial printing that knocks a private printer and taxpayer out of his bread and butter.

There is constant agitation from political sources seeking to put city, state and federal government into business. That process expands the bureaucratic army, adds thousands of new tax-eaters to the public payrolls, reduces the amount of assessable property, because publicly owned property is tax-exempt, and increases taxes on remaining taxable property which must try to exist in competition with tax-free public enterprises.

In the case of the printer, there is no reason why the government, which prints return addresses on envelopes, should not print letterheads, billheads and all kinds of stationery, to be sold in conjunction with envelopes. It is merely a matter of degree as to where government business in competition with private citizens, should end.

The people of this nation must consider the principle involved in this issue. It is not the politician against the printing business, the power industry, banking or insurance. It is the politician against the people. It is the attempt of the bureaucrat to take away the right of the individual to carry on an independent business.

Remember this when some plausible scheme is presented to put government into business—it will be your cost in liberty and opportunity.—Adirondack Mountain Press.

Dangers of a Shorter Week

General Johnson still is emphatic in his contention that working hours must be reduced to provide full employment.

One of the planks in the legislative program of the American Federation of Labor calls for a shorter day and shorter week.

Every decent man and woman in America hopes and works ardently for the day when every able-bodied person who wants work can find it.

But is not this a dangerous way of going about it? Isn't there a better way?

This method inevitably will lower the American standard of living, which today is well below normal. It is cutting down the jobs to fit the insufficient work now available, not building up more work to provide jobs.

First, any arbitrary reduction of output of this kind will stimulate the introduction of labor-saving machinery. Stuart Chase, in an article in Current History for November, shows that introduction of labor-saving methods and machinery has progressed more rapidly during the four years of depression.

Second, debts still would absorb too large a proportion of income, preventing the attainment of larger purchasing power. This continued inability to buy would force prices downward while costs of production were advancing.

Third, it does not help the capital goods field, which depends for its stimulation largely on balanced prices. Leonard Ayres, Cleveland economist, estimates that more than 5,000,000 men are unemployed in the capital goods and services field, respectively in the consumer's good field.

A shorter work week may be necessary and economically worth while when the price balance is restored and business prospers, but it is dangerous at a time when prices are so badly out of balance.

Seeking a constructive method of overcoming the difficulty, the best way of meeting the problem involved is to initiate a program designed in every way possible to increase permanent purchasing power to offset fully the higher costs of reduced output per man. It can be achieved by consistent and unremitting reduction of taxes and improvement of financing and credit methods.

Gold Tide Halts

Our present monetary policy so far as it relates to the rising of the prices of commodities, is based on the theory of Professor Warren, of Cornell, one of the administration's chief advisers. This theory is that the price of gold is the principal factor controlling the price of commodities, and that as the dollar is devalued the price of commodities rise.

In view of this theory it is interesting to note that while the price of gold has been advanced 69 per cent within a year the Annalist Commodity Index has advanced 32 per cent during the period. Evidently something besides the value of gold has influence on the price of commodities. The prices of certain commodities have risen much faster during the past year than the prices of others. Evidently the good old law of supply and demand has not been repealed by the application of the Warren theory in the United States.

It is also interesting to note that the flow of gold to the United States which set in after it was announced that the dollar would be stabilized at somewhere between fifty and sixty cents has now ceased. The gold went out of the country, it will be remembered, when we seemed faced with inflation. With the inflationary fears subsided, it started to flowing back.

Now the flow has stopped and some economists are predicting that there will soon be another shift toward certain European countries. They do not believe that there will be any rush due to the fear of inflation, for it is generally conceded that inflation is not now imminent. But they think that when copital moves abroad again, if it does move, it will be because the owners of the capital think that it will be easier to get profitable investments in countries like Great Britain than in the United States. This belief, so these economists tell us, is fostered by the opinion that profits in the United States will be curtailed by governmental regulation of some sort, either directly or indirectly.

"About the only difference I can see between now and last year," comments a neighboring editor, "is that the last year you'd be arrested for carrying a $10 gold piece. Funny how times change.

I is said that down in the Congo Free States hippopotamus meat now sells for eight times as much per pound as before the war. Maybe the government hired the hippipotami farmer to kill off all the spring crop and convert them into fertilizer.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Hammer and Tongs

Judge Leon McCord came to Clanton last Saturday afternoon and spoke to a good crowd at the courthouse. He outlined one of the prettiest programs imaginable, and offered it as his program in case he is elected to the governor's seat. And the best part of this program is that it seems easily workable, and would undoubtedly work wonders in Alabama if it should be carried out. All well and good for the judge's policy—I don't believe it can be beaten. But the sad part of the whole affair is that Judge McCord brought a full assortment of hammers along, together with his tongs. He proceeded to knock Graves in every way imaginable, and attempted to pick him to pieces with his tongs. I attended that speaking, along with others, and I will be frank to admit that I went in a decided McCord frame of mind. I have seen the judge on the bench, and have listened to him scores of times over the radio, and had come to the conclusion that here was a man who judgment could be trusted. I did not dream that he would resort to the tactics he did in his speech, if I may dignify his tirade by calling it a speech. If Judge McCord had only explained his policy and how he expected to carry that out, I believe he would have left Chilton County with many votes in the bag. But such was not the case. He opened his remarks with a vitriolic denunciation of Col. Graves that would do credit to the devil, himself. He deplored the "vituperation" that the Graves forces were throwing at him, and right on the heels of this, proceeded to throw one after another of verbal stink bombs into the Graves camp. If the Graves forces are guilty of any more "vituperative remarks" than Mr. McCord, then it must be because they can command a greater vocabulary than is his—surely he used every dirty term at his command in his reference to Mr. Graves and his campaigners. He characterized the Graves supporters as "grasshoppers, monkeys, leeches," and other such; proclaimed that he could look over his audience and pick the Graves men, in that they were "quite narrow between the eyes." He went a bit further to hurl sarcasm at his Republican listeners, who, I believe it would be safe to say, made up three-fourths of his audience. I talked to quite a few people after the "speech," and the words of one of them very well summed up the general opinion of all of them: "McCord's platform is fine, if he had only left his hammer at home." That is the impression the judge made on Chilton County. It's a funny thing. I have been led to believe that when smart political speakers take on the job of turning votes from their opponents to themselves, they usually say nice things about them. If this is the case, then Judge McCord is far from smart. Aside from attacking Col. Graves, he went too far, it seems to me, and attacked the good sense and judgment of his supporters. Judging from McCord's speech too, one would believe that the Judge certainly must have "discovered" President Roosevelt. According to the judge, he picked Roosevelt up when he was a "nobody" in Alabama, and brought him, alone and unaided, to the White House. He qualified his remarks along this line by first disclaiming any credit for his efforts in the President's campaign, and then went on to prove that he was to be thanked for everything that Mr. Roosevelt received here in Alabama, and not only in Alabama, but also in other states where he spoke. In conclusion I must say this: If Mr. McCord is half as wonderful as he pictured himself, he should be aloft, helping the Master run the heavenly kingdom, while, if all he said about Graves is true, the devil is overlooking a big bet in his managerial faculty, and if he ever discovers Graves he will surely draft him in. Judging from remarks, Judge McCord lost votes in Chilton County by his speech. His listeners resented the foul atatack on Mr. Graves and on themselves. He owes an apology to the people who made up his audience in Clanton for he was a distinct disappointment to them, insulting their intelligence in many cases. If McCord does not repair the damage he has done, then I believe Graves is perfectly safe in Chilton County. And, by the way, Dixon must surely be a saint, for McCord did not mention the name of Dixon. Why?

Charlie's Fiddle

It is said that violins, like "good" whiskey, improve with age. I have heard of some of the old ones selling for thousands of dollars. Back in the good old days we hear so much of, it seems there were a few master violin makers scattered throughout the old world. Now, just why a violin made back in the olden days should be any better than those made nowadays, I can't tell; but such is the opinion any way. And now, about Charlie's fiddle. It belongs to Uncle Charlie Easterling, of Beat 16, and a fiddler of some note, himself. Uncle Charlie wouldn't like it, I suppose, if I were to call him a violinist. He is a "fiddler"—or a "fiddlist," just as you prefer. He is one of the old school of players who make a specialty of those old tunes, of which "Turkey in the Straw," and "Run, Nigger Run" are some of the newest. These old ones, like Tennyson's brook, go on and on, and, I suppose will never be forgotten, nor will they ever cease to be a source of pleasure. That is the kind of fiddler Uncle Charlie is. He is never happier than when sawing away on his fiddle, with the "old lady" beating straws for him. And his fiddle—only 306 years old, if we are to go by the date stamped in the back of it, which reads as follows: "Leonardus Amatus fecit in Cremona, 1628." This is a Latin inscription which means: "Made by Leonardus Amatus in Cremona, 1628." If it is a genuine Cremona, and that old, there is no telling the real worth of it until it can be appraised by an authority on old violins. Uncle Charlie showed me the instrument, and from the looks of it, I do not doubt the date of it. And light—I don't believe it will weigh over ten ounces. He says he expects to attend some of the fiddlers conventions soon, and if you see him around, take a look at his fiddle.

Waking Up

Some time ago, in this column, I predicted that negroes of the South would some day wake up to the fact that all the furore that was being raised over them by people from the North (most of them aliens) would do them more harm than good. For a while it seems that the negroes got a great kick out of getting so much dust kicked up about them and their "rights," etc. It seems now, however, that our prediction is about to come true. The more sensible ones, and some of the biggest negro leaders here in the South, are seeing the folly of their ways in tying up with these "sympathizers," and are warning their people against them. The meddling of these outsiders has gotten under the hide of Southerners, and has, in the long run, made the lot of the negroes harder. It has broadened the gap between white and black people of the South. Recently, lawyers sent to the South by the International Labor Defense have heaped abuse on the people of the South, and, although this was no fault of the negroes, yet they were forced to bear the brunt of the resentment of Southerners. Now the negro leaders realize, as I imagine some of them might in the beginning, that what they need to do is to denounce these meddlers and their tactics, and thus let their white friends know that they take no part with these outsiders. This should bring about friendlier relations. If let alone, our people here in the South will work out their own troubles to the best end, and are now letting it be known in no unmistakable terms, that none of them, white nor black, desire any intervention from outsiders in solving our problems.

Women For McCord

A "Judge Leon McCord for Governor Club" was organized by a large and enthusiastic group of women at the home of Mrs. J. P. Hayes in Clanton last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Hugh Jones was elected chairman, Mrs. Grady Heflin, vice chairman, and Mrs. J. P. Venable, secretary. Meetings of the club are to be held each Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hayes.

The ladies of Chilton County were well represented at the meeting at the courthouse last Saturday afternoon when Judge McCord spoke in the interest of his candidacy for Governor of Alabama.

This club has a membership of more than fifty. Other ladies of the county are invited to join in the movement.

New Plan For Relief

The State Relief Administration is busy setting up a new program for rural and urban relief to take the place of CWA in the various counties of the state. It is understood that Alabama has been allotted $1,200,000 a month from Federal funds for the new program, and that the state will be expected to contribute $250,000 a month as its participation in the program.

Director Thad Holt has explained that rural counties will be expected to contribute $2,000 each from their gasoline taxes, and the balance of the $250,000 will come from urban communities.

In a statement at Birmingham Tuesday Mr. Holt outlined the new program to a group of county authorities as follows: The new relief program contemplates (1) rehabilitation of rural families (2) relief of unemployed in urban centers (3) relief of the stranded families (4) care of the unemployed.

As to rural families Mr. Holt said the government contemplated aid mainly through commodities, and furnishing the opportunity through loans and grants for the farmer to rehabilitate himself.

Judge Reynolds, county engineer Tom Arledge, and other county authorities went to Montgomery Wednesday to attend a conference with state administrator Holt, in which complete outline of the plan will be made to the various counties.

The trite saying "It's the woman who always pays" may be all right, but we notice that most of the bills which come in the first of the month are addressed to the old man.

John Douglas Armstrong

John Douglas Armstrong, carrier on Route 2 from the Clanton office, was born about three miles east of Clanton, near Concord church, on April 13, 1887. He attended the Concord school, and later the Clanton schools. The most of his early life was spent on his father's farm. At the age of 18 he entered the postal service, and has been a carrier ever since, except for a few months during the World War. He joined the U. S. Army on October 17, 1917, and was stationed first at Camp Johnston, Florida; later he was transferred to Taylor Field, near Montgomery, leaving the army on February 7, 1919. He married Miss Dovie Roper on November 25, 1918. Mr. Armstrong has been a member of the Clanton Methodist church for many years, and has served as treasurer and steward of this church; he is a member of the board of stewards. He is a Mason and an active one, having made the degree of Shriner. Mr. Armstrong is a great sportsman, and nothing delights him more than to load some other sportsman into his car and seek the great open spaces in search of "good hunting." The most of his hunting is for squirrels and partridges, although I have heard him accused of 'possum and 'coon hunting. And then, when the hunting season is over, he takes to the creeks and branches, and has the reputation of being a fisherman second to none. Yet, although John is just a big grown-up boy when he is playing around, when he gets on the job he forgets everything else, and efficiency is his watchword. He has served Route 2 for years, and his record is one among the cleanest and best of the carriers at the local office. And another thing I forgot to say—John likes his baseball and football, too. He support the local teams in every way he can, with his money and his presence. He's a great rooter for "the old home team," too, and you should see him sail his hat into the air when "our boys" bring home the bacon. John is like that. If he is bothered, he keeps his worries to himself and nobody ever knows about them; but when he gets a big kick out of something he wants to share it with everybody. He's a great guy to know—steady, honest and reliable, yet having a sense of humor that makes friends of all his acquaintances.—Man in the Moon.

Commencement exercises at C.C.H.S. this year will not be lacking in dignity, for the senior class voted to use caps and gowns at these impressive and significant services. The use of the caps and gowns eliminates all disorder about what the students will wear. No student will be embarrassed because of the simplicity of his clothes as contrasted with some of the expensive ones that other students would wear. Caps and gowns not only add a touch of dignity that will impress everyone with the meaning of graduation, but they assure the fact that there will be uniformity in dress. Many patrons and students of the school believe that it should be made a custom and requirment that the graduating class wear caps and gowns. By doing this, all the debating and disorder over whether to use those caps and gowns would be eliminated.

Chilton plays her first baseball game of the season tomorrow afternoon. The opposing and losing team (we hope) will be Marbury High. The game will be called at 3:15 and the admission for student will be only ten cents. For outsiders the price will be fifteen cents. A large number of the students will be there because our response to the first game will determine the amount of enthusiasm that the "ole nine" will put in their playing. O. K., Chilton, let's begin the baseball season with a big victory.

Let's hope that tomorrow Mr. Warr will have to award his prize for the first home run. Come on, you "baby" Babe Ruths.

Funnier! Most exciting! More Action! Hot Ziggety Dog.

Excuse those expressions preceding this, but the writer had something on his mind that made him jump all over the typewriter. Read further down and you will find what caused him to perform such verbal antics.

Few people realize what a broad territory C.C.H.S. really serves. Not many people are awake to the fact that the youth of America today have better opportunities of gaining an education than fifteen years ago. Some amazing discoveries were made the other day in checking over the statistics kept at the office of the principal. Did you know that Chilton County High School is patronized by 190 families. That is, there are 190 families who have one or more children attending this school. Do you really stop to think about the size of the territory which this school influences in its many ways? At the present time the C.C.H.S. reaches fifteen miles into the county for students.

Boys and girls who live fifteen miles from a school being able to attend at the expense of the state shows how public education has grown. To be able to be in a modern up-to-date school during the day and enjoy the atmosphere of his own home that night is what our consolidated school system and its means of transportation offer the youth of today.

Almost 40 per cent of the total number of students enrolled here are students that come to school on school busses. There are 268 students enrolled at C.C.H.S. and 108 of these are transported at the expense of the state.

Chilton County High School, its faculty and its students turn their faces upon Mr. John Hollis with admiration and appreciation. In admiration of his interest in the boy who is striving to make the best of his opportunities and appreciation of the wonderful offer that he has made to a student or students of C.C.H.S., Mr. Hollis, superintendent of Mitchell Dam, has invited any senior boy, who is interested in electricity, to pay a visit to the dam as his guest. While there the student will be shown through the plant and the wonders of electricity will be explained to him. Mr. Hollis will also spend a little time in testing the ability of this student in the electrical field in the senior class. Any boy who has a tendency to turn to electrical engineering or a similar vocation, will now have a chance to take a short study under an expert in his field.

Oh Min, yes sir, it's on my mind again. Folks, the thing that has caused these interruptions in this column is the Junior play, which will be presented on the night of April 6. The title of this play is "He's My Pal." It has a plot that unites mystery with humor; the sly tricks of a schemer with the witty remarks of witty half-wits the boast of a brave hero with the pleas of a hen-pecked husband flavors it with romance.

Would you sacrifice your best girl for the sake of your best friend? This question and also how a hen-pecked husband gets even with his wife are only a trickling of what is in store for those who are wise and will see "He's My Pal" The characters and the story of this star play will be printed next week. Watch for it.

Who Am I? * * * Through an error the name of the one week before last was not printed last week. It was Roberta Cochran. And last week it was Helen Moore. Now rack your brains and solve this one * * * I am a Senior Three. I am very attractive. I have dark hair. I am wearing two class rings (That will help you find who I am.) I live in Clanton. I also have a red cap. Now who am I?

"The scandal sheet" * * * It seems that a few people do read this section, so I'll continue to write it. So they were just giving her a taste of what she gave then when she came to their parties. That's why they acted cold last Friday night. That's what some say. * * * One half is on one side and the other half is on the other. What a crowd, what a crowd. * * * Some think they are on both but—oh well, * * * It appears that the class rings are changing from fingers of the masculine group to those of the feminine group rather slowly. What's wrong? * * * How these measles do spread. You can check upon the youngsters. One boy had them; the next day a certain girl had them and then the next day another boy broke out with them. Some one got a dirty deal. * * * But notice the preceding statement is not referring to the writer by any means. Oranges, oranges, and more oranges. Too many will hurt one.

A story is told concerning a motorist whose car had come to a sudden standstill on a country road. The motorist descended, quickly and diagnosed the trouble, and then applied at a neighboring cottage for assistance.

"Pardon me," he said to the old lady who answered his knock, do you by any chance possess any lubricating oil?"

The old lady shook her head.

"Any oil will do," said the motorst hopefully, "castor oil, if you have any."

"I ain't got it," said the old lady, "but I could fix you up with a dose of salts."

Dr. and Mrs. P. I. Hopkins stopped in Clanton a while this week to see their relatives and friends. They were on their way to Dothan for a visit of two weeks.

Oscar Lee Mims Endorses Bean For County Superintendent of Education

To the People of Chilton County:

I wish to say a few words to the good people of Chilton County in behalf of my good friend, W. T. Bean, who is asking for the position of County Superintendent of Education. Having been intimately acquainted with and associated with him for several years, I believe he is one of the best fitted and most naturally adapted men for this position that I have ever known. His honesty and charcter in every respect is above reproach.

It was my pleasure and good fortune to attend school under this man for a number of years. Moving with my family from a community having a very poor one-teacher school to the Collins Chapel cmmunity where Professor Bean was the principal of that school. I entered this school with little interest, ambition or vision of real life or its possibilities.. I had been in this school but a few days before finding myself clutched in the keeping of a great teacher. Through his unusual ability to inspire others, he had opened my eyes and created that all important ambition by showing me what life could mean to me and that anything that was worth learning was within the reach of every one. The experience that I had seemed to be true to almost every pupil in his class. This influence and inspiration was nothing less than marvelous. From the pupils of this community and pupils of the surrounding communities who studied under him came some successful doctors, many excellent teachers, several capable county officials and a great host of Chilton's most excellent citizens. I have heard many of them say, just as I have said many times, that they owe their success to the teachings and inspirations of Professor Bean.

He seemed to have the greatest insight into the life of his pupils, always anticipating what might happen and thereby prevent any trouble or friction from arising. His whole school, assistant teachers and pupils throughout the school ran so smoothly that so far as I can now recall, there was never but the slightest friction anywhere. He seemed to have the school management problems solved before they arose.

The writer of this letter taught school three years in Chilton County while he was Superintendent of Education, and he proved to be equal to every task that confronted him. He was of inestimable value to me as a teacher, especially in my first year. His coming to visit my school was always looked upon by the pupils, as well as the teacher, as one of the happiest and most profitable occasions. He always visited my school several times each year, often meeting the patrons and pupils together and lecturing to them, which was a great help to a county school that rarely ever ever had many visitors who really inspired them.

In my opinion one of the greatest things that a Superintendent can do besides being a good executive officer is to keep in touch with his teachers and keep them encouraged, help the young teacher to know his or her full duty and helping the teacher create the desire in children to succeed. successful teaching requires unusual ability and qualifications and the task is much easier when the pupil is ambitious and has been inspired to the extent that he is really eager to learn. Imparting knowledge to others is an art, but the ability to inspire others is one of God's greatest gifts to mankind. Mr. Bean possesses both the ability of a great teacher and unusual ability to inspire others and it is more in the interest of the thousands of children who would, if he is elected, be given an opportunity to experience the wonderful influence of this man that I am prompted to write this letter, rather than the benefit that he will personally receive from the position.

I want to again say that Mr. Bean has the wonderful ability and tact to work successfully with his teachers to as great a degree as anyone with whom I have ever come in contact. To give a better idea of the confidence that I have in him as a leader and instructor, and in him as a practical man, I will say that I moved my family from Miami, Florida, in the fall of 1933, to within reach of Thorsby, to have my children in school under him for at least one year. However, I put my children in school at Clanton and am well pleased.

I am not interested in politics and have never been, but I do want to insist that the people of Chilton County give Mr. Bean fair consideration. He, in my opinion, is amply fitted for the position to which he aspires. You will make no mistake in putting him back in the position that he once so faithfully and successfuly filled. He is worthy, deserving and entitled to the place, but I feel that the people will profit much more than he, if he is electedl.

His ability has not in the least been exaggerated, but, I would have made it stronger if I could have found language to express just my opinion of him. In closing I wish to say that I have said many , many times, that, whatever succes that I may have attained or may attain hereafter, the credit is due my mother and Professor Bean. Faithfully yours, O. L. Mims.

BANK LOANS AND BUSINESS RECOVERY

Official Describes Efforts of Reserve Banks to Bring Out Deserving Borrowers—Present Situation Typical

Apropos of the part that an expansion of business loans by banks occupies in the early stages of the business recovery which is now gaining headway, a Federal Reserve Bank official recently gave an interesting review of the experiences of his institution in this connection. In 1932 the Federal Reserve Banks were empowered by law to make direct loans to individuals in unusual circumstances when they had been unable to obtain loans from a commercial bank, he pointed out.

From the middle of 1932 to the end of 1933 there were 1,286 applicants for loans at the New York Federal Reserve Bank under this law. The great majority of these applications proved on examination to be for funds for capital purposes, which are properly supplied as an investment in the business, or else were mortgage loans or others unclassifiable as commercial.

Only Fourteen Qualify

Only 250, or less than 20 per cent, were of the type which merited detailed investigation. The amount involved was $9,525,000. After further study of these, the Federal Reserve Bank was forced to turn down the applications of 236, finally offering credit in the sum of $1,417,000 to 14 prospective borrowers. Of this amount, only $806,000 was actually loaned, more than one-half of which was still outstanding many months later. Two of the borrowers went into receivership.

"Since it was the special endeavor of the Federal Reserve Bank to make every possible loan under the emergency provisions of the amendment, and since their best efforts resulted in the extension of so small a sum as to have no effect on the total volume of commercial loans, it is a reasonable assumption that eligible borrowers entitled to bank credit are being provided for by the commercial banks," says the American Bankers Association Journal in commenting on this episode.

It is characteristic, as shown by studies of past business cycles, for changes in the volume of commercial bank credit to follow behind either contraction or expansion of business activity, says a financial writer in the New York Times. This was manifest recently in England's recent recovery where there was a lag between increased business and increased commercial loans.

County Key Bankers

Describing the activities of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, the Director, D. H. Otis, says: "With 2,500 agriculturally minded bankers designated as county key bankers, there is enlisted a tremendous force for the improvement of agriculture. These key bankers bring organized assistance to progressive bankers, who are led to see the possibility of agricultural work in their communities. Banker-farmer tours are emphasized as a means of acquainting bankers, farmers and other business men with first-hand knowledge of how agricultural improvement methods are working out in practice. These give an opportunity for the key bankers to contact country bankers and work out new ideas."

There will be a black face minstrel at Jemison High School Friday night, March 30th, beginning at 8 o'clock. Lloyd Howard, Herman Lowery, and several other fun makers will be featured on the program.

A variety of music, jokes, gags and dancing will be presented. Proceeds will go for the benefit of Jemison High School.

BANKING RETURNS TOWARD NORMAL

Reconstruction Finance Corporation Loan Repayments Show Banks Lead Procession in Recovery Movement

Indicating a rapid return on the part of the banks to a normal self-sustaining basis, 54 per cent of the loans which they made from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to tide them over the difficulties of the past two years have been repaid by them, it is shown in a recent official report.

The R. F. C. report, issued on March 6, says that the Corporation since it began operations in February, 1932, had made aggregate cash advances to railroads, agricultural and home loan agencies, insurance companies and various other institutions in the amount of $4,786,410,000. Of this sum banks and trust companies, to the number of 6,783, received actual cash advances of $1,520,540,000, but have already paid back $820,260,000, or 54 per cent. These figures are exclusive of $376,390,000 in loans authorized but withdrawn or not availed of by the banks.

Non-banking borrowers received R. F. C. advances in the amount of $3,265,870,000, and made repayments of $377,830,000, or less than 12 per cent. Among other classes of financial institutions reported as making high ratios of repayments are building and loan associations which had received $114,020,000 and have repaid $53,880,000, or over 47 per cent, and insurance companies, whose borrowings totalled $88,590,000 and repayments $34,340,000, or nearly 39 per cent. None of the major non-governmental financial groups showed so high a ratio of repayments as the banks and trust companies as a group.

MAN JAILED IN OFFICER'S DEATH

Albertville, Ala., March 25.—W. O. Byers, Albertville, was being held in Marshall County jail, Guntersville, Sunday on a charge of murder following the slaying here Saturday night of Sol W. Miller, night police officer, and former federal prohibition administrator at Birmingham.

Chief of Police R. L. Amos, who swore out the warrant charging Byers with murder, said the shooting followed an attempt by Miller to arrest Byers on a charge of failing to provide lights on the latter's automobile.

Three shots were fired at Miller, two taking effect, and Miller fired once, Chief Amos said, Miller's bullet striking Byers in the hand. One of the bullets struck Miller in the left arm, came out and struck him in the neck and the other took effect in the right collar bone. Miller died before he could be removed from the scene.

Byers was held by Floyd Morgan a bystander, and was placed under arrest by Police Officer Will Amos, son of the chief, who with Pierce Amos, another son of the chief, ran to the scene.

Miller was widely known for his work with the federal government in Birmingham for several years. He went to work as an officer in Albertville January 1.

He is survived by his widow and three children.

Funeral services will be held at the residence at 10 a.m. Monday, followed by burial in a cemetery near here, Johnson Funeral Home in charge.

IN MEMORY OF JASPER COST

Many hearts were saddened when the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jones on Wednesday, March 14, and carried away our beloved father and grandfather, Mr. Jasper Cost. He had been sick only a short while when God saw fit to take his beloved soul from our midst. So weep not, dear loved ones, for God is the giver and taker. His will must be done, not ours. All was done for grandfather that loving hands could do for him, but God knew best and carried him away to a brighter and happier world.

There is a vacant place in the homes of his children that can never be filled. Grandfather was loved by everyone who knew him. So be reconciled, one and all, for our loss is heaven's gain.

Grandfather lived to be 74 years of age and left four daughters, Mrs. J. A. Duncan, of Lomax, Mrs. A. W. Jones and Mrs. J. A. Jones of Clanton and Mrs. Chas. Shaffer of Birmingham; three sons J. P. Cost, of Clanton; W. M. Cost of Hartselle; J. E. Cost, of Montgomery and twenty-four grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends.

The body was laid to rest in Macedonia cemetery, Thursday, March 15, at 2 p.m., with Dr. S. J. Ezell officiating and Spigener in charge.—Written by two grandchildren, Misses Jewell and Myrtice Cost.

CENTER HILL NEWS

Health in this community is fairly good at this writing. There has been a few cases of measles. They are all able to be up now.

Sunday school was good Sunday. We had several visitors. Come again. We are always glad to have you.

The following officers were elected for the next quarter: Lonnie Cobb, superintendent; Mrs. B. L. Cobb, assistant superintendent; class No. 1, J. E. Cobb, teacher; W. R. Scott, assistant; class No. 2, Mrs. B. L. Cobb, teacher; W. N. Thomas, assistant; class No. 3, Hubbard Watson, teacher; Leo Cobb, assistant; class No. 4, Mrs. Ruby Cobb, teacher; Mrs. Frances Hudman, assistant; choir leader, Claudy Scott; Leo Scott, assistant; secretary, Miss Mildred Cobb; Miss Olean Miller, assistant; organist, Mrs. John W. Collum. Everybody get busy and try to make our Sunday school better. We can do it. There are lots of people around here that were not at Sunday school Sunday, some that would have been better off if they had been there.

Our singing was good Sunday afternoon. We noticed, in the crowd, several from Pates Chapel. Glad to have you folks. Come again; and also all the visitors from other places.

Misses Lucille Merchant, Clara Smith, Martha Hayes and Carrie Bolton, of Pates Chapel, visited Misses Irene and Olean Miller Sunday.

Misses Wilda Smitherman and Glenn Ora Howard were the dinner guests of Miss Berney Dean Cobb on Sunday.

Messrs. Hubbard Watson and Leo Cobb were the dinner guests of Mr. Leo Collum Sunday.

Mrs. Franklin Lowery, of Providence, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb.

Mr. W. N. Thomas spent part of last week in Sylacauga visiting his sister, Mrs. Albert Barnes, who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lowery, in the Providence community, Sunday night. Mrs. Lowery has been down sick for some time but is some better now.

Most of the folks around here enjoyed an extra good singing Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb.

We were glad to have Mr. Green Thomas back with us in Sunday school Sunday. He has been at work in New Jersey for some time.

Mrs. J. W. Collum is spending part of this week in Jemison with her mother, Mrs. W. G. Atkinson.

Mrs. Franklin Lowery visited Mrs. Joe Carey Sunday afternoon.

Remember the second Sunday is our regular preaching day.

E. G. Caldwell, merchant, of Pletcher, was a visitor to Clanton last Friday.

A. PERRY ROBINSON CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to say a few words to the voters of the county. I want to say first I am seeking office of Commissioner from the First District. I am a Republican and have been raised one. I will say, if I am elected, I will stand for what I think is right and fair for the people and the county, and will consider all questions and use my best judgment and will treat everybody as nearly alike as possible.

I believe in letting each settlement take care of its own road work as much so as possible, and I will, if elected, use teams where they can be used to any advantage, and trucks where teams can't be used to good advantage. In this way divide up the work as equally as I can.

I want to see as many of you voters as I can. It is impossible for me to see all, but I want you to inquire after me as to my character and qualifications then consider me and if you find me worthy of your support, I will certainly appreciate your vote and influence, and if you think one of my opponents is the best man for the office, I will help elect that man.

I understand that some have heard that I failed to file notice with the Judge of Probate. I want to say that I filed papers the same day I announced. I will thank you for any inquiries made and any consideration given me.—Yours for the best of the county and ticket.—A. Perry Robinson.

THE BIBLE

The following selection is by an unknown author, and expresses the finest of sentiment; a sentiment found only in the Bible itself:

"This book contains the mind of God, the state of man, the way of salvation, the happiness of believers. Its doctrine is holy, its precepts are binding, its histories true, its decisions immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you, comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, the Christian's charter. Here heaven is opened, the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, health to the soul, and a river of pleasure. It is given to you here in this life, will be opened at the judgment, and is established forever. It involves the highest responsibility, will reward the greatest labor and condemn all who trifle with its sacred contents. "Anon."—R. L. Huffman.

IN MEMORY OF MAVIS WILLIAMS

A precious one from us has gone,
His voice we love is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

We miss him, oh, we miss him,
Each hour of the day
Oh, how our hearts do ache
Since Jesus took his soul away.

God loved little Mavis,
So He called him home,
To be a little angel
Around the great white throne.

We miss him here
We miss him there
We miss him about the place
We miss him everywhere
And God will give him grace.

J. L. SMITH CANDIDATE FOR COUNTY SCHOOL BOARD

Dear People and Voters:

I take this means of coming to you, as it will be impossible for me to see all of you. As you possibly know, I ran for member of the county board of education two years ago. I was second highest in the first primary. I was defeated by a small margin in the second primary by Mr. Wilkins. As there are two vacancies to be filled for this board at this time, through the solicitations of my friends and my desire to serve, I have decided to cast my hat into the ring for said office again. If I am nominated and elected I promise to endeavor to fill this place in a way that you will never have just cause to regret having cast your vote for me. I have always taken a great interest in the education of our boys and girls in the county.

It is my desire to see each child have at least a high school education, and to this end I will endeavor to help make it convenient to every child in the county to have this opportunity. I am not in favor of tearing up any community school to consolidate with other schools unless and until the people concerned desire and request it.

There is one thing that I would like to see abolished and that is incidental fees. I have a plan whereby they can be taken care of and if elected I will do everything in my power to have that burden removed from the patrons and teachers.

Remember there is two vacancies to be filled so when you cast your vote see that you vote for two and I would like to be one of the two.—J. L. Smith.

Lucifer—But darling, why did you marry me if you planned on such an early divorce?"

Lucinda—Well, an astrologer saw by my star that I'll not be happy until I have married three times and so I wanted to get my preliminary marriages over with."

"What about that ten-spot? When you borrowed it you promised you wouldn't keep it long."

"Well, I didn't. It was gone within half an hour."

POPLAR SPRINGS

The singing society met last Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. The singing was real good. We appreciate the interest the people have in Poplar Springs.

The following directed: Mr. W. M. Devaughn, A. O. Boswell, Jesse Jones, Bro. M. Lockhart, Lee Grant, Ocie Devaughn, Dewey Hughes, L. T. Grant, Floy Devaughn, Milton Hughes. The Frisky Four quartet and the Giggling Four quartet rendered several selections; also two quartets were arranged by Mr. Jesse Jones.

The pianists for the afternoon were Misses Louanna Jones, Rose Mary Pickens, Bertie Grant and Mr. Lee Grant.

Next Sunday is our annual all day Easter singing. Everybody come and bring your lunch basket.—Secretary.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

Swedish services will be held in the Lutheran church on Good Friday, at 10:45 a.m. and English services on Easter at 10:45 a.m.

Services at the Congregational church on Sunday will be part of the program of the Christian Life Conference. Sunday school will be conducted by the adult class. Morning service at 11:00 o'clock, conducted by the young men's class, sermon by Dr. W. J. Campbell, of Nashville, subject "Fools for Christ's Sake." The Christian Endeavor will be a union service at the Lutheran church.

The Congregational Ladies Aid will meet next week, Thursday, April 5th with Mrs. Pearl Hansen, at Lay Dam. Cars will meet at the Hardware store corner at 12:30 to start for Lay Dam.

The Christian Life Conference will be held in Thorsby, opening Friday evening at Helen Jenkins Hall and will last through Saturday and Sunday. Program given in these news notes.

The two one-act plays given at Helen Jenkins Hall last Saturday evening were well given and very amusing. The play given by the faculty, "Early Ohios and Rhode Island Reds," proved that though you may at times run down your own little town that you certainly do not want other people to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Thomason of Lay Dam visited Mrs. Thomason's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Williams, Sunday.

Mrs. G. W. Garrick, who has been in Clanton a while, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Townsend of Birmingham visited Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Manning Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hughes were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Manning.

Miss Dera Rowell was in Birmingham last week to attend the A. E. A. and also visited relatives.

Mrs. Hubert Reinhardt and Mrs. M. A. Wright attended the A. E. A. in Birmingham Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell and Mrs. N. Laurell made a trip to Birmingham Sunday. Mr. N. Laurell remained for a few days.

Mrs. Clyde Meade and Mrs. Jim Higgins spent Friday in Birmingham.

On account of the Rev. J. W. Jones's illness during last week, visiting ministers occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church last Sunday. Rev. Howard Higdon, of Campbellsville, Ky., delivered the 11 o'clock address. Mr. George Threadgill, a student of Howard College preached Sunday night.

Miss Christine Bosworth is sick with the measles.

Mr. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Johnson, and Theresa Bosworth of Selma visited Mr. and Mrs. James Bosworth and Christine on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Higdon and Dorothy Franklin spent the week end with Mrs. Higdon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Franklin.

Mrs. C. M. Mixson is leaving Tuesday for her home in Montgomery after visiting her son, Mr. J. L. Mixson.

Miss Roma Lee Pate from Montevallo spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pate.

Mr. C. M. Williams attended the A. E. A. in Birmingham Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. J. H. Goddard spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Webster Sharpe, who is very ill with the measles.

IN MEMORY OF A FRIEND

Of a very good friend I am thinking this morning,
And from his death we should all take warning.
It was on one Christmas day a while before noon
He drank an awful drug that caused his doom.
Now of this friend we loved so well,
A little of his life and death I will tell.
We knew him true in all he did,
And our want for him is greater since from us he's hid.
We can make friends here without any delay,
But one of our best now lies beneath the clay.
He was kind, happy and friendly in every way,
Oh, how we miss him at the close of day.
At the fireside when the family circled around,
Red was smiling when the others would frown.
He was a happy, go-lucky, good natured boy,
And the distractions of life he seemed to enjoy.
We may search the world over and make many a friend,
But when we think of "old Red" our eyes grow dim.
The death of this boy should make us all think.
Much do we regret him taking that last, destructive drink.
All was done that could be done on land,
But our Maker saw fit to take him from the walks of man.
So on one Wednesday evening before the clock marked five,
The death of our friend sat our hearts on fire,
We loved him too dearly to send him above,
And the family had as soon go as to send their Bud.
But why should we worry till we weep ourselves blind,
For he is now resting better than those he left behind.
Though our eyes will never again settle on his smiling face,
We can prepare to meet him in a lot better place.

Written in remembrance of Dewey Mims.—A Friend.

REFUGE NEWS

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely.

Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. We had three wonderful services. Rev. Norris preached the ordination sermon Saturday. Rev. Lockhart preached Sunday and Sunday night. There was a goodly number at each service. We also had a good B. Y. P. U., although there is plenty of room for improvement. So let's all come to B. Y. P. U. with a well prepared lesson and make this one of the best.

We are glad to know that if it is the Lord's will there will be a singing school at this place, beginning Monday night, April second, taught by Mr. Duff Devaughn.

There will also be prayer meeting at this place every Wednesday night, if the weather permits.

Rev. Lockhart and his sister, Mrs. J. S. Easterling, were called to the home of their father last Wednesday night, where he had fallen from a bridge and was very badly hurt.

Rev. Durbin opened up his school Monday morning after it had been vacated a week on account of the measles.

Mrs. J. C. Page and Miss Peggy Page returned Sunday from a visit of a few days with relatives at Nashville and McMinnville, Tennessee.

Wife—Mrs. Gabbar and I are not on speaking terms.

Hubby—Well, it won't hurt either of you to rest up a while.

The gold content of our dollars is less but—the MILEAGE CONTENT of our Goodyears is GREATER!

THAT'S THE NEWS — about our latest Goodyears now in stock . . . They contain more miles, more safety, more endurance — yet they're still priced low in dollars despite increased costs of rubber, cotton, factory wages . . . Let us show you our 1934 line-up and tell you why we think it's wise to buy right now . . . This isn't our lowest-priced tire but it's our biggest seller.

Second grade honor roll, Gertie Mae Lee, Arthur Blackwell, Lucille Hamilton; second honor roll, Nell Culpepper, Geraldine Thornton, Mabel Baker, J. B. Coe Jr., Kymbol Bunke, Mary Sam Vinson, Gloria Mae Williams.

The Jr. II's and Jr. III's are planning to put on a play the last week of school. Watch the papers for further date.

ENTERTAINMENT AT VERMONT JR. HIGH SCHOOL FRIDAY NIGHT

Next Friday night, March 30, beginning at 7:45 o'clock, the student body of Vermont Jr. High School will present their variety program, consisting of songs, drills, dialogues, recitations and a highly amusing burlesque debate on the subject of "Resolved that the present Calendar should be changed from twelve to thirteen months." This one feature contains more laughs than any ordinary entertainment. Come out and listen to the debating teams unfold a volume of rediculous arguments as to why or why not the present calendar should be changed. This program will be about one hour and fifty minutes long and is one that the most critical could enjoy.

A small admission of 5 cents and 10 cents will be charged to be used in purchasing curtains for our stage. Remember that next Friday night is the date. Don't miss it, for this will be our final comedy program for this school year.

PLEASANT GROVE

JEMISON

Mrs. H. W. Gibson of Macedonia visited her sister, Mrs. Betty Marchant, last week. We are glad to report Mrs. Merchant much improved at the present wrting.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley stayed from Wednesday until Sunday in Birmingham. They visited Mrs. E. E. Bellenger and children of Tarrant City and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Waller, of North Highland. Mrs. Miskelley attended the A. E. A. while in Birmingham.

Mrs. Hermie Hodgens and children spent the week end with Mrs. Hodgens's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Miskelley and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Collins of Birming ham, Mr. Harve Collins and Mr. and Mrs. Smith of near Thorsby visited Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davenport Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davenport had as their dinner guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miskelley and Mr. Jasper Smitherman.

Mrs. B. C. Adair states that her father is still very low. They have no hopes for his recovery.

Mr. Maurice Hodgens of Howard College attended the ordination of the deacons here Sunday afternoon. Mr. Hodgens is a ministerial student of Howard College. The church called him to pastor the church here for the rest of this year.

Rev. Freeman preached an able sermon here at the 11 o'clock service Sunday on "Doing Things Well."

Rev. Higdon of Campsville, Ky., preached the ordination service Sunday afternoon. This was an excellent sermon. Rev. Higdon was assisted by Rev. B. Lawrence.

The following B. Y. P. U. officers were elected Sunday evening, Bascombe Morgan president, Laurine Spivey vice president, Rubye Wright secretary - treasurer, Miss Dulcie Champion quizz leader, Velma Price group captain No. 1, Henry Hatcher group captain No. 2.

SAM LOCKHART IS HURT IN FALL FROM BRIDGE

Sam Lockhart, age 52 years, was seriously hurt Wednesday of last week when he fell about twenty feet from a bridge into Hatchett creek.

Mr. Lockhart was working for C. W. A., constructing a bridge over Hatchett creek. He was firing a boiler on the scafford high above the water. He stepped on a timber that was not properly supported, and fell into the water about twenty feet below. He suffered a sprained back and a fractured rib.

The injured man is the father of Rev. M. Lockhart of Refuge.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are having a good Sunday school here but it could be better. So let's all help and keep the good work going.

Brother A. B. Canant of Wilton will preach for us the second Sunday at 3 o'clock p.m.

Mrs. Herbert L. Williams was in Birmingham Friday of last week.

Miss Betty Denson was a guest of Mrs. G. G. Nabors Sunday.

Misses Eva and Esther Lucas were guests of Mr. Tom Lucas Sunday.

Mr. Mack Meeks and Mr. William Bice were guests of William Holcombe Sunday.

Mr. Jack Holcombe and Mr. William Holcombe were in Centreville Monday of this week.

We have a good subject for our Sunday school lesson next Sunday. Putting Christ first, it helps you to meet the test of faith. Second, it leads to understanding of who Jesus is. Third, it brings commendation from Jesus. Let's all meet at 10 a.m. next Sunday with a good lesson, and do good and get good.

WALNUT CREEK

We wish to correct a mistake we made in your paper last week. It should have read: Rev. J. W. Hightower and family visited Mr. J. J. Johnson's family Saturday night. We are very sorry this happened. We are glad to do the thing that is right.

Mr. T. L. Mims and family and Mr. Reece Baker and family ate dinner with Mr. J. A. Thompson and family Sunday.

Rev. C. M. Nolen, Mrs. Nolen and Mr. J. W. Nolen motored to Thorsby Sunday. Rev. Nolen filled his regular appointment at Cedar Grove church while on the trip.

Rev. C. W. Walton and wife spent Monday night with Rev. C. M. Nolen and family.

The Sunday School and C. E. were not very well attended Sunday and Sunday night.

We are very sorry so many people are sick and unable to attend church.

Some people are like those when Christ was here, trying to find excuses. Excuses do not get us anywhere.

The second quarterly conference of Clanton charge M. P. church will be held at Shady Grove church Saturday, April 7. Rev. C. M. Nolen will preach at eleven o'clock. We will be at Walnut Creek Saturday night and Sunday at eleven o'clock and go to Cedar Grove Sunday night.

Bro. Walton is president of the Alabama Annual Conference M. P. church. He is making his official visit to Clanton charge April 7 and 8. The public is cordially invited to come and hear Bro. Walton.

MRS. CARRIE MOODY WAS BURIED AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Mrs. Carrie A. Moody, of Bessemer, age 47 years, died at a Birmingham hospital early last Sunday morning. Death was caused from paralysis, with which she was stricken Saturday.

The body was brought to Clanton Monday afternoon by Brown, funeral director, and buried at Poplar Springs. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. D. Hughes and Rev. W. P. Lowery.

Mrs. Moody is survived by her husband, R. B. Moody; two sons, Girvus and Vinson; one daughter, Mrs. Ruth Puge; six brothers, R. C., E. D., and W. W. Hand of Clanton, Rev. J. L. Hand, of Climax, Ga., B. L. Hand, of Deatsville, and J. W. Hand, of Hueytown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lenoir, Mr. Calvin Lenoir and Mrs. N. A. Dennis, of Jemison, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Lenoir, in Birmingham. Mrs. Lenoir will be remembered by her many friends throughout the county as Miss Doris Dennis, of Jemison. Mrs. Lenoir has been ill for several days at the T.C.I. hospital. We hope her a speedy recovery.

GRIFFIN HILL NEWS

Last Sunday was our preaching Sunday at Union Springs. A large crowd attended services.

Mrs. Jodie Mims visited Mrs. William Collum Tuesday afternoon.

P.-T. A. was real good Thursday night. A large crowd attended it. Mr. Reuben Crowson and Mr. Robert Crumpton made some music. Miss Josie Posey, the lucky one, is to get the quilt. It brought $5.25.

Mrs. Nola Cofer spent Friday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Brantley.

Mr. Larkin Crumpton was a visitor of Mr. Tom Ray Thursday night.

Mr. Kenneth Ervin was a visitor to Mr. June Posey Wednesday night.

Mr. J. N. Ervin is planting corn this week.

Mr. Harvey Cofer has his grist mill in operation.

Mr. L. D. Ervin went to Paris, Tennessee to make it his future home.

Mr. Dave Posey was the Sunday dinner guest of Mr. Chester Brantley.

Lesson for April 1

THE CHRIST RISEN
(Easter Lesson)

LESSON TEXT—John 20:1-29.

GOLDEN TEXT—If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God.—Col. 3:1.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Living With the Living Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Reality of the Resurrection.

The resurrection of Christ is one of the foundation truths of Christianity. It is the grand proof that Christ was what he claimed to be, the Messiah, the Son of God (Matt. 12:29-40; John 2:19-21).

I. The Empty Tomb (vv. 1-10).

John does not enter into a description of the resurrection of Christ, or give any proof other than the empty tomb and that Jesus had repeatedly manifested himself afterward. To see the body of Christ disfigured with a spear thrust and nail prints, and the empty tomb, was all that faith needed. In this lesson John describes the processes of his own conviction touching Christ's resurrection.

1. The testimony of Mary Magdalene (vv. 1, 2). This woman, out of whom Jesus had cast seven demons (Mark 16:9; Luke 8:2), announced the fact of the empty tomb to Peter and John. Prompted by great love to him for his kindness to her, she went early to the tomb even "when it was yet dark." She had realized great good at his hand, therefore she could not rest until she had done her utmost for him. The measure of one's service for Christ is the degree in which he realizes the benefits conferred.

2. Personal investigation by Peter and John (vv. 3-10). The news of the empty tomb which Mary brought so moved John and Peter that they both ran to investigate. Their investigation assured them of the reality of the resurrection. The removal of the stone from the sepulcher, and the arrangement of the grave clothes, convinced them that this would not have been done by an enemy.

II. The Manifestations of the Risen Lord (vv. 11-29).

1. To Mary Magdalene (vv. 11-18).

a. Mary weeping at the empty tomb (v. 11). Peter and John went home but Mary could not. She stood there weeping. She really should have been rejoicing that the grave was empty.

b. Mary questioned by the angels (vv. 12, 13). Through her tears she saw angels at the tomb who inquired as to the cause of her sorrow.

c. Jesus revealed himself to Mary (vv. 14-16). She first saw the angels and then her eyes lighted upon the Lord. She did not recognize him in his resurrection body but his voice was familiar to her. As soon as he called her by name she recognized him and fell at his feet weeping.

d. Jesus forbade her to touch him (v. 17). This showed that she was now coming into a new relationship to him. Besides this, the disciples were still in doubt and sorrow. "Go tell my brethren" was the message she must carry.

e. Mary's testimony (v. 18). She told the disciples that she had seen the Lord.

2. To the disciples (vv. 19-29). This is the first appearance to the disciples as a body. For fear of the Jews they met in a private room and barred the door. While they were discussing the strange happenings of the day, the Lord mysteriously appeared among them.

a. When Thomas was absent (vv. 19-23).

(1) His message of peace (v. 19). He did not come with censure for their failure and desertion. Their conduct merited censure, but his consideration was too tender for that.

(2) He showed his hands and his side (v. 20). Having calmed their fears he gave them unmistakable evidence of his resurrection.

(3) He commissioned them (v. 21). "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." This commission was not simply to the eleven but to all the believers (Luke 24:33).

(4) He bestowed the Holy Spirit upon them (v. 22). He breathed on them and said unto them, "Receive ye the Holy Ghost." Only as empowered by the Holy Ghost can a disciple go forward as a successful witness for his Lord.

(5) The disciples' authority (v. 23). This authority was not by virtue of office but by virtue of having the Holy Ghost.

b. When Thomas was present (vv. 24-29). His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord.

(1) The victory of sight and touch (vv. 24-28). Jesus graciously supplied the evidence which Thomas needed.

(2) Greater blessing for those who see only by faith (v. 29).

Master of Happiness

Only he is master of his happiness who is honest with himself, who knows what work is his and who does it with singleness of mind and with all the strength and skill that God has given him.

Immortal Man

Every man is immortal until his work is done. So long as God has anything for us to do in the world, he will take care of us and deliver us from danger.

Charley Deramus and Lewis Chandler of Pletcher were visitors in Clanton Monday.

MAD DOG SCARE WORSE THAN HYDROPHOBIA SAYS HUMANE SOCIETY

New York, March 16, 1934.

Editor Banner:

My attention has just been called to an article in your paper of February 8th, under the caption "Dr. Baker Offers Advice On Rabies," in which it is said:

"According to Dr. J. N. Baker, state health officer, a letter which he received recently brings out forcibly two of the most vital questions concerning the control of rabies. In it the owner of a dog states that his animal was bitten by a supposedy mad dog slightly over two months ago, and he immediately confined it. Since the animal remained apparently normal, it was released about a week ago. A few days afterwards the dog, while playing bit the man severely on the hand. Now, the problem presented by the correspondent is relative to the advisability of treatment."

The greatest authorities tell us that rabies is a disease of extremely rare occurrence, but we are constantly having rabies scares, which are of no benefit to anyone and are of real dangen to timid, nervous people.

The late Dr. W. O. Stillman, distinguished president of the American Humane Society, wrote and published in the "National Humane Review" an editorial entitled "Rabies Scares as A Fine Art," in which he said:

"The editor of this magazine, who has been the active head of an aggressive anti-cruelty society for more than twenty-five years, and for a longer period a practicing physician, has come to the definite conclusion that the rabies scares are mostly humbugs. He has never seen a case of the disease, although closely familiar for over twenty years with municipal dog kennell work handling thousands of dogs."

Dr. Charles W. Dulles, late lecturer on history of medicine, University of Pennsylvania, 1893-1908; consulting surgeon to Rush Hospital; manager of University Hospital, who was undoubtedly the greatest authority on hyrophibia in this country, if not in the world, made a study of hydrophobia for over thirty years. At the request of the medical society of the State of Pennsylvania, he made an annual report on hydrophobia, after a thorough investigation of all cases reported in the newspapers and elsewhere. In an address delivered at Washington, in 1913, Dr. Dulles said:

"I might cite my own experience in the treatment of persons bitten by dogs supposed to be mad, which has furnished not a single case of the developed disease in thirty years" and he added "I have probably seen more cases of so-called hydrophobia than any other medical man . . . "

Dr. Dulles also said in this same address that: " . . . in France, which is full of Pasteur Institutes, there are supposed to be annually thousands of cases with the infection of hydrophobia, while in Great Britain, where there is no Pasteur Institute, the disease does not occur. Another curious thing is that in Constantinople, where dogs have for centuries run wild in the streets, there was so little hydrophobia that it was long denied that it existed there at all; but since a Pasteur Institute has been established cases have been quite frequent, according to the pasteur people. This has been the experience of every country in which Pasteur Institutes have been established . . . The Pasteur method, I likewise think is injurious and responsible for many deaths."

According to authoritative statistics published in the "Annals of the Pasteur Institute" and other official publications, 2,209 persons have died of hydophobia after receiving the Pasteurian treatment, some of them undoubtedly in consequence of such treatment, as in certain cases it has been proved that the dogs which had bitten the patients were not mad.

In a late report to the local government board, which was presented to Parliament in 1887, and which dealt with Pasteurian treatment of hydrophobia, the following statement was made: "After the intensive methods, deaths have occured under conditions, which have suggested that they were due to the innoculations rather than to the infection from the rabid animal."

In the "Annales de l'Institut Pasteur" for 1909, p. 269, Dr. Massion gave an account of the "accidents" accompanying the treatment, such as paralysis, heart failure, sudden brain congestion resulting in convulsions, attacks of fever, rashes, etc.

The U. S. "Public Health Reports," July 30, 1915, has an article on "Paralysis During Antirabic Treatment" by Dr. H. E. Hasseltine, Passed Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Public Health Service.

In the final report of the Royal Commission on Vivisection, p. 117, Dr. George Wilson, LL.D. (Edinburgh), F.R.S., D.P.H., (Cambridge,) said, "I venture to submit that the whole Pasteurian theory, and the treatment based upon it, are fraught with error from beginning to end."

Mr. Albert Payson Terhune, the well-known authority on dogs, is reported in the "Humane Quarterly", Washington, D. C., May, 1933, as follows: "On all the absurd and ill founded legends about dogs, the mad dog scare is the worst. Not one supposedly mad dog in a thousand really has the hydrophobia. Moreover, a rabid dog is desperately sick—too sick and dazed to go out of its way to attack anyone . . . if a dog refuses to drink water, there is just one cause, namely, because it is not thirsty."—Sue M. Farrell, President, Vivisection Investigation League.

Clanton :—: Alabama

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Hall of Clanton Lodge No. 423, A. F. & A. M.

To the Worshipful Master, Wardens and Brethren, Clanton Lodge No. 423:

We, your committee, theretofore appointed to draft and present suitable resolutions on the death of Brother James Thomas Nelson, beg leave to submit the following:

Brother James Thomas Nelson was born in Butts County, Georgia, January 4, 1833. He moved to Tallapoosa County, Alabama, when he was nine years old. He grew to manhood in that county. In 1860 he moved to Coosa County, where he resided until about 1909, when he moved to Chilton County.

Brother Nelson was twice married. He had five daughters and one son by his first wife. Two sons and two daughters were born to his second wife.

Brother Nelson was about sixty years a minister of the gospel. He was ordained in the Missionary Baptist Church in 1875. He served many churches in Coosa County during his ministry. He served 13 years as Moderator of Weogufka Association.

Brother Nelson served in the Confederate War under General Longstreet. He made a good and faithful soldier. He fought in many battles. He was present at the surrender of General Lee.

Brother Nelson affiliated with the Clanton Lodge, No. 423, A. F. & A. M., May 2nd, 1914.

On February 28, 1934, at his home near Lomax, Brother Nelson departed this life, having lived to the ripe old age of 101 years.

March 1st Brother Nelson was laid to rest in New Salem cemetery, with full Masonic honors. A good and faithful brother Mason has gone to his reward.

Therefore, be it resolved, first, that this lodge has lost one of its most loved members;

Second, that the sudden removal of such a life from our midst leaves a vacancy and a shadow that will be deeply realized by all members;

Third, that we extend our deepest sympathy to the bereaved relatives of the deceased brother;

Fourth, that a copy of these resolutions and preambles be spread upon the minutes of our lodge, a copy printed in our local papers, and a copy be forwarded to the bereaved family. —Respectfully submitted, B. J. Sessions, J. Z. Mims, B. Lawrence, Committee.

Why Children Need a Liquid Laxative

The temporary relief children get from unwise dosing with harsh cathartics may cause bowel strain, and even set-up irritation in the kidneys. A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to give the child "a double dose" a day or two later.

Can constipation be safely relieved in children? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say many mothers who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Give the dose you find suited to the system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

An approved liquid laxative (one that is widely used for children) is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. The mild laxative action of this excellent preparation is the best form of help for children—and grown-ups, too. The dose can be regulated for any age or need.

Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

NEW SALEM NEWS

Health of this community is very good, except for the measles. We will be glad when all are up from them again. We feel like our Sunday school will build up again then.

Our singing society met last Sunday, and we had a mighty good singing, having used the new books. The following directors sang two or three songs each: J. E. Minor, chairman; prayer by T. A. Maddox; directors, T. E. Wyatt, E. L. Glasscock, W. L. Sanders, Houston Melton, Mr. Burnett, Akins I. Collins, A. H. Glasscock. We want to thank all for coming and making it as good as it was. So everybody remember that you are welcome at this place. Pianists for the afternoon were Mrs. L. F. Cleckler, and Mrs. Akins Collins. We will let you know when we meet again.—A Reader.

SERVICES AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

Lord's Day, 10 a.m., Bible study, classes for all. 11 a.m., Preaching. 6:30 p.m. business meeting for the purpose of arranging plans for activities of the church during summer. Every member is urged to be present and express his ideas of the best course to pursue. Preaching at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday night, preaching at the home of Mr. Scott, five miles south of Clanton.—Sincerely, R. L. Huffman.

MISS POLLIE VARDEN DIED

Miss Pollie Varden passed away at her home in Clanton early Sunday morning. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Charity Best and Miss Emma Varden; one brother, Mr. Emmett Varden.

Funeral services were held Monday at Liberty Hill Church at ten o'clock with Dr. Ezell officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery Spigener in charge.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

It is said Henry Ward Beecher was once approached by a horseman who wanted to sell him a good horse. He went on to explain that he was a good horse that would work anywhere. A good buggy horse, a good saddler, work on either side of the wagon, double or work single. Just a good all-round horse. A good team worker. Mr. Beecher told him he couldn't buy his horse, but would like to have him as a member of his church.

This seems to be our need today, moreso than ever. Church members who will work any where in the church and not kick out of the harness.

Friends, there is a work for everyone to do who tries to be a Christian. Let's get busy and see what God wants us to do for Him, and do it willingly. And realizing the fact that we are unprofitable servants in God's sight at our best, and we haven't done anything more than our duty when we serve Him as our Lord and Master, as He has given us everything that we have and best of all, gave His Son on that old rugged cross for our sins that we might be saved from our sins. Do we appreciate this gift? If so, we sure are going to try and do something to express our love to God by trying to do His will.

Our little Sunday schools seems to be growing. We hope that it will continue, so that more may learn of the Savior.

We have decided to have a singing two Sundays in each month, beginning next Sunday. Singers from our neighboring churces are invited to come and sing with us at anytime. Mr. Enzo Klinner was named as the chairman of the singing society. We hope he will be a good leader and believe that he will.—A Member.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR RESTORATION OF CITIZENSHIP

Public Confidence Returns

Direct information indicates conclusively that the banking situation is showing definite and steady improvement, J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, said in a recent address. He pointed out that the decided drop which has occurred in money in circulation shows the public has largely ceased hoarding.

On March 1, 1934, the Federal Reserve Board reported that the volume of money in circulation amounted to $5,355,000,000, which was a decline of $1,077,000,000 since March 1, 1933. It was a drop of $2,226,000,000, or over 29 per cent, from the all-time peak of $7,581,000,000 reached on March 13, 1933. About one-half the decrease, it was pointed out, reflected the return of currency from the public.

Money in circulation declined rapidly after the reopening of the banks in March, 1933, and has continued since to decline from week to week, "notwithstanding the increase in the demand for currency arising from enlargement of pay rolls and increase in the volume of retail trade," the Comptroller said, which, he added, "indicates a continued return of money from hoards as banking facilities were reestablished."

About Bank Loans

"As for the charge that the banks will not extend credit, the first and obvious reply is that the banks themselves are made up of the very bone and sinew of the industrial, commercial and agricultural interests of the country. Bank directors, and, to a large extent, bank officers, are drawn from the business and farming population. If they do not feel at any given moment that it is wise to make a particular loan, it is more than probable that there are sound reasons for not making it," says an editorial in the Saturday Evening Post.

The tenderfoot thought he could ride and mounted a pony in front of a lot of cowboys. The pony soon threw him. A cowboy, helping him up, said, "Well! What threw you?"

"What threw me? Why she bucked something fearful! Didn't you see her buck?" cried the tenderfoot.

"Buck!" said the cowboy. "Rats, she onl coughed."

N. F. A. Oratorical Contest

The training school will be well represented at Tuskegee Institute this summer. Many of the members of the local club are making ready for the elimination contest in May. James Ziegler, Clinton Calloway, Charles Wilson, Nesbilt Wilson and Jerry Hardy are competing. The subject for the contest is "A Live At Home Program For My Community." The winner gets a free trip to Tuskegee to take part in the state-wide oratorical contest this summer and $2.50 in gold.

Garden Contest Opens

The following town boys are eligible to enter: Samuel Williams, Emory Monroe, Burt Morgan, John Dickenson, J. W. Benjamin, Arthur Lee Oden, Bob Coker, Lindsey Draper, Arthur Benjamin and Fred Jackson. The contest will close the first of June. It is necessary that all gardens are started early.

LARGE POTATO CROP IN PROSPECT THIS YEAR

There is a large crop of Irish potatoes in prospect for this year. In most sections where potatoes are grown commercially, there has been, or probably will be quite an increase in acreage.

Reports from growers indicate that the potato acreage for harvest during 1934 season may be expected to total over 3,400,000 acres, or about 7 per cent more than the 1933 crop. This prospective acreage with an average yield of 110 bushels per acre, the average of recent years, would result in the largest crop produced since 1928, when considerable quantities could not be marketed because of low prices.

The acreage increase in the early and intermediate states is larger than in the states that harvest late. Chilton County is in the intermediate territory.

Mr. Guy Higgins is seriously ill with pneumonia at his room in the Wilson Hotel.

FAVORS W. G. SHAW FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As each of us know it is only a short time until we will have to cast our vote for someone. And have we considered this thing, and do we really know who is the man most fitted for each office that is to be filled?

Folks, this Primary Election is a very important one, and each and every voter in Chilton County should vote for the best interest and welfare of the county. It would be nice if we could vote for all of them. But since we cannot do that then we must select just one for each place.

As for Commissioner we have a bunch of fine fellows to choose from. But I ask you to look W. G. Shaw over before you mark your ticket. Mr. Shaw is a nice fellow and a good business man. He has had quite a bit of road experience in working men and trucks. Mr. Shaw is well qualified to handle the job and I believe if he is elected he will show no special favors to any one and will give each and every man a fair and square deal.

However, we know a Commissioner can't please everybody. Especially when it comes to hiring men and trucks to work. But we do believe in giving each and everyone a chance to work and an equal show. And I believe if Shaw is elected he will do that as far as it is in his power to do so.

The writer has nothing to say against our present Commissioner or anyone else that is out for the job. But Mr. Shaw is working hard for the office and we are anxious to see him get to be our next Commissioner. So if you haven't got your mind fixed I just ask you to think it over, and go to the polls in May and cast your vote for W. G. Shaw and then go on your way rejoicing for the next four years.—O. B. Martin.

TEACHERS ASK SOME QUESTIONS

Candidates Requested to State Position Relative To School Matters

The teachers of Chilton County realize that public education in the State of Alabama, as well as the Nation, is going through a great crisis. The trend of public education for the past few years seems to be going backward, due to decreased revenue, therefor, necessitating shorter school terms. The public realizes that the incoming county and state officers will have an opportunity to put education on an equal basis with other departments of the government.

We, the Chilton County Teachers' Association, as well as all persons interested in public education, would like to have the opinions of candidates for county and state offices on the following questions, and in order to reach the great number of voters, please give us your reply through the papers.

1. How much education do you think should be provided at public expense? Elementary grades only. Elementary and high school grades. Elementary, high school, college and university training.

2. What do you think should be the status of educational appropriations from the general fund of the state? Should come out of the general fund only after appropriations for primary functions have been paid. Should have the same status as all other appropriations of the state. Should have a prior status as regards other appropriations of the state; i.e., all state appropriations for education should be paid first, the balance from the general fund to be prorated among the other appropriations, as is done in California.

3. Are you in agreement with the ruling of the attorney-general of the state which recognizes education as a secondary rather than a primary function of the state government?

4. Do you favor provisions for guaranteeing to every community in the state a minimum educational program of at least seven months each year?

5. What remedy or remedies do you propose for the present financial plight of the schools?

6. Give a summary of your public record on school issues.

Mullins & Moore Dissolve Partners

Business Will Continue at the Same Place in Charge of J. Renfroe Mullins

The partnership of J. Renfroe Mullins and J. Watts Moore, operating the well-known mercantile esatblishment of Mullins & Moore, in Clanton, was dissolved by mutual consent on the 31st day of March.

Mr. Moore is retiring from the business on account of his impaired health. Operation of the business in future will be carried on by J. Renfroe Mullins, at the same location.

"There will be no other moving or changes in the business in the immediate future," said Renfroe Mullins Tuesday. "I will continue to do business right here until we make another crop," he said, "and this establishment will hold fast to our policy of carrying on in all respects and purposes as the friend of the farmers of Chilton County."

Mullins & Moore, for many years have served a large and appreciative number of customers throughout this territory. They have made friends by their high-toned principles of serving those who came to them to do business. Many will be the regrets that Mr. Moore has found it necessary to sever his connection with the business.

School Closing Is Not Finally Set

Length of Term Will Be Decided This Week Says Little

Late last Thursday County Superintendent Little was advised of the fact that the federal appropriation for continuing schools had been cut about sixty per cent.

This would, of course, necessitate a drastic change in the program of the schools for the remainder of the year.

Following this information Dr. A. F. Harman, state superintendent of education, wired Superintendent Little late Saturday afternoon to withold completion of plans for a few days, as unofficial advice from Washington indicated that the reduction in federal aid funds might not be as drastic as first announced.

Consequently Mr. Little this week is not able to announce the definite date for closing the schools. He hopes to have the remainder of the program completed ready to announce by next week.

SONS OF THE AMERICAN LEGION APPLY FOR CHARTER

The following boys have signed an application for charter of a squadron of "Sons of the American Legion," to be organized under direction of a committee of Chilton County Post No. 6.

Kinyon Vinson, Jimmie Wyatt, Percy Pitts, Jr., Robert Newton, Virgil Newton, Pat Wyatt, Miles V. Smith, Fred Cox, Billy Woodson, Stewart Woodson, Ross Tippett.

Completion of the organization of the squadron will be made when the charter has been granted upon this application. It is hoped that everything will be ready to proceed at the next regular meeting night on the first Monday in May.

W. M. Wyatt, K. M. Vinson and J. D. Armstrong are the members of the Post Committee directing the organization of the boys.

All Legion members who have sons are urged to enter them for membership in the Sons of the Legion.

"HE'S MY PAL" TITLE OF PLAY

To Be Presented at the High School Friday Night of This Week

Play-goers of Clanton's near-by communities again have the chance of seeing a four star play. A comedy in which humor, tragedy, mystery and romance are mixed in such a way as to please everyone. Leading the list of all the comedies is the play to be presented by the Senior II Class tomorrow night, Friday, at eight o'clock p.m. Laugh after laugh is promised to those hundreds who will see this play.

"He's My Pal," is the title of the play. You'll laugh at the comical mistakes of the hero; you'll hate the scheming villian with his slinking ways; you'll sympathize with the heroine; and in the end you will leave with the feeling that you have seen a play entirely different. That's it—different in a marvelous way.

Besides this 3-act hilarious comedy, the popular black-faced comedian stunt will be offered and you will be entertained between acts by a group of attractive and talented dancers and singers. A program that will not allow you to spend one moment of regret. Something going on all the time. You can't miss it.

The admission to this evening of delightful entertainment is fifteen cents for the children and twenty-five cents for the adults.

If you are a henpecked husband, come down Friday night and learn what one timid husband did to his not so timid wife. Would you give up your best girl to your best friend? See how the hero of the play settles this question. Laugh at the phoney real estate man; laugh at the cumbersome and awkward negro mammy; and along with these forget your troubles for two hours. You can do all of that if you will see "He's My Pal."

The cast of this play, which is being coached by Miss Margaret Kendrick, includes, Irby Wood, Phillip Nelson, Dorothy Waite, Elizabeth Gragg, Mary Edith Jones, Jack Gillespie, John Thomas Marlar, Alice Petty, Pauline, Hogan, Kelley Gillespie, Sidney Reynolds and Helen Roberts.

The two end men for the minstrel stunt are the able laugh makers, Bill Simpson and Cecil Jones. The chorus is composed of Gertiwyl Vinson, Pauline Plyler, Grace Plyler, Frances Davis, Jeanette Tiffin and Ova Lee McCutcheon. A dance duet will be presented by Myrtle Pitts and Sarah Elizabeth Venable. The musical voices of Maralyn Hardy and Hilda Hart will be heard several times. Little Eric Hart, Jr., will offer a solo. Pianist for the evening will be Sara Lawrence.

Don't fail to see "He's My Pal," at the C.C.H.S. auditorium tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

GRIFFIN-MARTIN

Of much interest to their many friends, was the marriage Saturday evening, at 8:30 p.m., of Miss Susie Griffin, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Green Griffin, to Mr. Ottis Martin, which was quietly solemnized at the home of the Rev. S. D Deloach in the presence of a few witnesses.

The bride wore a lovely crepe costume of French grey with brown accessories.

The groom is the son of Mr. W. A. Martin, a prominent farmer of the Enterprise community, where they will make their home. Their friends wish them much success and happiness.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT THE COURTHOUSE, ON APRIL 14th

Chilton County Post of the American Legion will sponsor a Fiddlers Convention to be held at the courthouse in Clanton on Saturday night, April 14.

A committee of the Post was appointed at the meeting Monday night to make arrangements for the entertainment.

Full details as to the program of entertainment will be formulated by the committee and published next week.

List of Voters in This Paper

The official list of qualified voters for Chilton County for 1934 appears in this issue of The Union-Banner.

All persons are urged to check the list and see if your name is properly entered thereon. If any changes, corrections or alterations are necessary in any case, you should so report to the Probate Judge within ten days.

The supplemental list will be published on April 19, containing the names of those voters entitled to be on the qualified list who do not appear in the original list.

If you are not on the original list as published this week, and are entitled to be there, bring your poll tax receipts and registration certificate to the Probate Judge within ten days, so your name will appear on the supplemental list.

C.W.A. Is Now History, But Leaves Substantial Monument In Alabama

(By George L. Davis, in Montgomery Advertiser)

The Civil Works Adiminstration, which distributed more than $14,000,000 in Alabama during the winter and gave employment at one time to 130,000 persons in the state, is now history.

At midnight Saturday, the program was closed, as Uncle Sam, in the light of experience gained in this emergency recovery step, prepared to launch a greater program of rehabilitation of the destitute and poverty stricken.

Conceived and executed at a time when human misery was at its peak in this state as in other sections of the country, Alabama, perhaps, more than any other state, was caused to be grateful for the aid given in one of the most crucial periods in the state's history, and to the organization which directed this work.

This is partly because Alabama could not receive the benefits from the Public Works Administration programs that other states received. The Public Works program was based upon loans to cities and counties. And the credit of Alabama cities and counties—with only a few exceptions—was non-existant.

For several years repairs to public buildings, to roads and streets throughout the state had been reduced to a minimum largely because of the heavy debt burdens of cities and counties. The debts had increased as the depression progressed. Thousands of school houses and other buildings needed new roofs and new paints to protect them. Gravel roads has been worn through to the topsoil and counties were unable to regravel them. Sidewalks and streets were badly in need of repair.

But, today, in virtually every county, school buildings have been reroofed and repainted, roads regraveled and streets repaired.

Aside from repair and maintenance work, an enormous amount of new construction was carried on throughout the state. Outstanding in this class is the construction of the levees for Geneva and Elba—now about one-third completed—the construction of a new sewage disposal plant at Birmingham—scores of swimming pools, hundreds of parks and playgrounds and scores of airports and landing fields.

Most important, however, is the work done for the improvement of health. For years the state has waged an unrelenting fight against malaria, as against typhoid fever, diphtheria, and other unseen enemies of mankind. The fight against malaria was an unusually costly fight. It involved principally the screening and "mosquito proofing" of homes and drainage.

The drainage part was emphasized in the Civil Works program; and the miles of ditches excavated and the number of disease breeding marshes drained, will be disclosed in a report now being prepared by the state health department.

The report will also reveal the progress in rural sanitation work through the aid of the CWA. This part of the program, in which the government for the first time offered to use its labor on private property, as confined principally to the improvement of sanitary facilities at schools. Only a few individuals seized the opportunity to have the improvements made on their farms with only the cost of material to be borne. It is expected that the incidence of typhoid fever will be further lessened as a result.

There were several other health projects, among them the rat control project to reduce the cases of typhus fever. The effect of this work, however, probably will not be reflected until next fall, when most of the cases of typhus are reported.

Numerous other projects, some of them of a scientific nature, were completed. Among these was the U. S. Coast and Geodetic survey which extended from the Tennessee line to the Gulf; and employed a large number of engineers under supervision of Prof. John A. C. Callahan, of Auburn.

The work embraced leveling, the setting up of permanent markers, altitudes and geodetic measurements. The work is absolutely essential for all topographic, railroad and highway

A Republican Voter Re-Asserts His Faith In The Grand Old Party

Editor Union-Banner:

We have before us a great array of worthy Republican candidates. Surely out of this lot we can make a wise selection. Some of them have been tried and not found wanting. We have no cause to doubt the efficiency of the others. Then let the campaign continue to go on quietly, and on election day let the Republican voters make their choice, and all true Republicans will fall in line and give the nominees their undivided support, to which we say, Amen.

The Republican party has made Chilton County great. Yes, one of the greatest in the state. And as a county, we need the Republican party as much as we ever did. We can not afford to trifle with the party. Its value is too great for that. There was a just cause for the existence of the party, and that cause continues with us today. We have great respect for all our candidates, and we are glad to go in with our party and select a ticket and then cheerfully go where the party says go.

The Republican party has made America great. Not questioning the motives or sincerity of the party in power, we have no doubt but what the Republican party would have brought us out of the present depression just as early and on equally as sound a basis as any other party can or will do. Time justifies the foregoing statement. And in addition, this depression has reached all the world, so criticism cannot be placed on any one man or one party. Time has proved that there was a need for the Republican party in this nation, and that need exists today.

We fear we are losing our individualism, so much enjoyed in the past. Where is the buying power of the farmer? Echo answers where? Not until that power is restored can we hope for a repetition of our former prosperity enjoyed through so many decades of the past.

We recall such great men as Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley, Teddy Roosevelt, Coolidge, and gladly laud the achievements of the Republican party.

The tariff is one of the leading tenets of the Republican party, alluded to by some speakers and writers as the "robber tariff" so detrimental to the southern farmer. Yet history proves the farmer has prospered under the tariff. We do not hear much of it these days.

We are glad to think of our Republican candidates as men of temperate habits. The writer has lived in the days of the open saloon, and we do not want any more of it. Our quietest days were under the 18th Amendment, and the history of the Reublican party in Chilton County has been a program of temperance. And we feel sure all our Republican candidates are temperate and sober men.

Long live the Republican party with its sound logic and protection to American industry.—A Republican Voter.

County Will Assist In Federal Program

Rural Rehabilitation Set-Up Will Be Ready To Go Into Operation About the Middle of this Month, According to Present Indications

Outline of New Relief Program

Uncle Sam Says Farmers Will Use Oxen For Plowing of the Land

While the policy of the government in administering relief is still that "no person through force of circumstances shall be permitted to suffer from hunger" the rural rehabilitation program of the Alabama Relief Administration, according to Thad Holt, director, does not contemplate "making the position of relief families more attractive than their neighbors who are self-sustaining."

This statement is a part of a definite policy outlined at a meeting yesterday by the Rural Rehabilitation Committee of the Alabama Relief Administration, in which the personnel of the committee who will administer Alabama's Rural Rehabilitation program also was announced.

The personnel is composed of Donald Comer, Birmingham, chairman; Robert K. Green, Greensboro, vice-chairman; Herbert A. Ryding, former president of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company; Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service at Aubnrn, and Dr. R. R. Moton, president of Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute.

At the meeting Monday, Algernon Blair, chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Alabama Relief Administration, presided in the absence of Mr. Comer.

The statement of policy revealed that the government has no intention of purchasing mules for families in the rural rehabilitation program. Instead the government will undertake to provide them with oxen to make a truck and feed crop. Oxen, it was pointed out, are more easily fed and for farms of less than 20 acres the ox is considered a more economical unit of power.

The government in administering relief and encouraging self-sustenance is not interested in the religion of the farmer, otherwise, it was said the ox probably would not have been selected as the type of work stock for use.

Use of the ox, it was recognized, not only requires great patience and forbearance, but considerable skill, the art of persuading this beast of burden to walk correctly in the furrows and to turn at the end of the row, being one of the fine arts of farming which only a few have mastered.

Following is the statement of policy on rural rehabilitation as laid down by the committee:

"Only farm families on relief, who are anxious to become sulf-sustaining will be considered on this program.

"We do not plan to make the position of the relief families more attractive than their neighbors who are self-sustaining.

"Help will be given in groceries, feed, fertilizer, etc., and not in money and the applicant will be required to sign a note for all such assistance.

"He will be required to work under the supervision and instructions of a competent supervisor who will determine the kind and amount of each crop planted.

"As mules are high and unobtainable in Alabama, and as feed is also lacking, we favor the use of steers which can be easily obtained in most sections. It is our opinion that on farms of less than 20 acres, the ox is a more economical unit of power. Money paid for oxen would also remain in Alabama and help Alabama farmers.

"Repayment of advances will be made by crediting accounts as these people are certified and perform work on county projects. Accounts will also be credited with commodities produced on the farm which will be exchanged with urban relief sections for farm tools, equipment, clothing, etc. It is contemplated that this indebtedness can be liquidated in this manner."

BALLOTS FOR ABSENT VOTERS

Ballots and supplies for absent voters who wish to cast a vote in the primaries of May 1, have been received by Judge Reynolds. These ballots will be issued by the Sheriff, upon written request made to him for same by the person desiring to vote.

Blank requests for absent voters ballots may also be had from Sheriff Gillespie.

Commissioners Agree To Spend County Money to Obtain Federal Money

Judge Reynolds received Tuesday from Thad Holt, federal relief administrator for Alabama, the following telegram:

"Allocation of federal relief funds for your county for April is $11,574, based on estimate of April relief loan for the county. This will include all funds for work program of rural rehabilitation, direct relief, and administration cost. This allocation is contingent upon appropriation of your share for local participation to the amount of $2,411."

Acting upon this telegram, the Commissioners Court Tuesday voted to expend the required amount of $2,411 of county funds for local relief purposes, in order that the federal fund of $11,574 might be made available for relief purposes in the county. This constitutes a total fund of $13,985 which is available for the operation of the new relief program in the county for April.

Asked when the new program would be put into operation, Judge Reynolds stated that indications are it will be about the middle of the month before the preliminary details can be worked out.

As a part of the $2,411 which the county will spend for relief, the court Tuesday added the following list of needy people to its relief list, with the amount shown appropriated to each person per month: J. T. Chambers, $4; R. T. Davis, $4; J. R. Marlar, $4; W. H. Robinson, $4; E. W. Boyd, $6; Mary Jane Broadhead, $9; Paralee Connell, $5; Reauby Chasteen, $4; Louis Christiansen, $4; Davis B. Davenport, $6; Tony Farris, $4; Crawford Gentry, $8; Martha Gentry, $8; Sam Gentry, $8; A. Z. Giles, $4; C. T. Hood, $4; Griffin Jones, $4; Jim Littleton, $6; Joe Loosier, $8; Mrs. Fletcher Partridge, $4; Emma Price, $6; Viola Patterson, $6; Andy Reed, $4; Dolvy Robinson, $4; John Robinson, $4; Emmaline Scott, $3 Sally Walker, $6; John Zeigler, $4; Rutha Bearden, $4; J. T. Rutherford, $4; H. T. Brown, $4; J. T. Glenn, $4; W. H. Killingsworth, $4; Paralee Jones, $4; Sally Gilchrist, $3; Rebecca Lockhart, $4; Mandy McCantz, $4; total, $164 per month.

In addition to the above new list of relief, the appropriations of the court already in effect to the following persons, will also be credited against the $2,411:

Mary Hightower, $4; Celia Smitherman, $4; Louis Cobb, $2.50; Bob and Mattie Clark, $6; Safronia Waters, $3; John Zignear, $3; Jim Boatfield, $6; Annie B. Peters, $6; Ida Mae Cox, $6; Dunkie Wilson, $4; Robert Hayes, $6; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gray, $6; Fannie Milford, $4; Luther Broadhead, $4; Larkin White, $4; Althea Noah, $3; Gant Robinson, $6; Martha Gentry, $6; total, $81.50 per month.

COUNTY BUYING TO BE LIMITED

Purchases May Be Made Only Upon Written Order of Court

Intended as a long step toward conserving finances, the Commissioners Court Tuesday passed an order that no person shall make any purchases of anything to be charged to the account of Chilton County without a written order from the Commissioners Court or the Judge of Probate.

Another order specifically dealing dealing with purchases of lumber for the county says that in future no lumber shall be purchased by anyone and charged to Chilton County, without a written order from the Commissioners Court.

NOTICE TO COTTON GROWERS

The cotton contracts are going through a process of adjustments. The county committee is trying to get them in shape to where the state board of review will accept them. When the final adjustments are made and the figures accepted by the state board of review, we will notify each cotton grower who signed a contract the exact amount he will be able to plant. Until then, however, we will not be able to give the number of acres you are to plant. I think it will all be cleared up within the next few days.—J. W. Fant, County Agent.

ENDORSES W. G. SHAW

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to say just a few words in regard to Mr. W. G. Shaw for County Commissioner. First, I want to congratulate Mr. O. B. Martin for his nice letter of last week endorsing Mr. Shaw. I really like to see a man come out boldly and frankly and tell the people just where he stands.

I am a strong believer in the Republican ticket. Still I heartily endorse President Roosevelt's new deal. There is but one thing I see wrong with it and that is we just haven't got enough of it.

We need a new deal in our county government as well as our state and national government, and I honestly believe that every vote cast for Mr. Shaw will put us just another step farther that way.

So, I am asking you voters of district 2, 3 and 4 to help us in getting a new deal. As I close let me ask you to inquire into Mr. Shaw's home and surrounding communities and see just how he stands, and when you have done this, go to the polls and cast your vote accordingly. — Yours for a new deal.—B. A. Thrash.

CARD OF THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

May we please have a small space in your columns to express our most high appreciation for what was given to our father, W. S. Adams. We can not see nor mention each and everyone of you in person, but we sure do thank you all. We want you to know we appreciate what you gave to the call in the time of need. We can never forget you. May God bless everyone of you many times, is our prayer.—W. S. Adams and Family.

VERMONT SCHOOL

The Jr. High concert was presented last Friday night to a packed house of enthusiastic parents and friends. Each phase of the program was rendered by the students in a most clever and fitting way and each part was received by a rousing encore from the listeners. The writer wishes to make note of the fact that the order and conduct was as near perfect as one would ordinarily ask. This one element was a great inspiration to the youngsters in helping them to put over their respective parts. The rhythm band, composed of the third and fourth grades and the girls quartet, under the direction of Miss Grant, rendered several popular musical numbers, and a number of the pupils, under the supervision of Miss Cagle, offered three impressive dialogues, interspersed with two comic recitations; while four of the Junior High School girls, under the direction of Mr. Johnson, divided their opinions in a very amusing burlesque debate on the great subject of international importance, "Resolved that the present calendar should be changed to 13 months." Then concluding the program, eight attractive little girls, dressed in checkered blue and white ginghams print dresses, rendered a chorus of songs and drills, to send the audience home in a happy frame of mind. Proceeds from the door receipts will be used to purchase stage curtains and for the girls athletic club.

The first six grades of school enjoyed a clever arranged Easter egg hunt on last Friday morning.

The entire faculty motored to Birmingham on March 23rd to attend the Alabama Education Association.

Our P.-T. A. held its semi-monthly meeting on last Monday night. At this writing no report has been framed as to the number present, business transacted, etc. Our last two meeting dates have been forced to postponement on account of unfavorable weather conditions.

Miss Cagle motored to Montgomery last Saturday with her sister.

Mr. Green Thomas, ex-jrincipal of Vermont, paid a visit to our school

Mr. Green Thomas, ex-principal of Vermont, paid a visit to our school last Thursday.

The Jr. III and sixth grade met last Monday to complete final arrangements for the graduation exercises which will be held on Friday night, April 20. Plans are in effect to have an outstanding speaker to deliver the graduating address.

There seems to be another threatening outbreak of measles in our school district, but as we did before, we hope to avoid the closing of school by having all exposed students to remain at home until all danger has passed. School is almost at an end, and it would work a great injury to all students, if we were forced to dismiss right in the midst of our final preparations for examinations and commencement exercises.

We are proud to learn that there is a strong possibility of the schools of Chilton County continuing their full term of seven months, even though the federal authorities have withheld making a grant of $2,400,000, which our state school officials had expected.

The older boys of the community have organized their baseball club, and have spent several days recently in leveling and shaping the ball ground. They opened the current season last Saturday afternoon by slugging their way to a 16 to 6 victory over the popular Cotton Mill team of Clanton. Prospects are bright for a winning team this season. Everyone interested in athletics should get behind the boys and encourage them on to a number of wins against a small number of losses. They need your support if they expect to win.

Superintendent Little came out to our school last week with a building committee. They were securing the plans of the ventilating and heating system of our building.

Attendance has been highly satisfactory the past month. We hope no one will be compelled to miss the remaining two weeks.

Mr. Johnson, Miss Grant and Miss Cagle attended the all day Easter singing at Poplar Springs church last Sunday.

OAK HILL NEWS

Our preaching services last Saturday evening, Sunday and Sunday evening were well attended both by home folks and visitors from other communities. Our pastor, Rev. Green, did his best preaching it seems since he has been preaching this charge. It seems that every sermon excells the last one, and those who don't won't to hear the truth and the old fashioned gospel preached had better stay away.

Among those who visited our services were Mr. and Mrs. Burgess, Sr., and Mrs. and Mrs. Hoyt Burgess of Collins Chapel and Mr. Rudolph Niblett, of Mobile; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Langston of Pleasant Grove; Miss Ruth Glasscock and Mr. Henderson, of Sylacauga. A large number of boys and girls from Center Hill and also Union Grove and Mt. Pleasant. We do not have space to name the many visitors who were with us, but we appreciate your coming and cordially invite you one and all to visit us as often as you can.

Some people don't believe rabbits lay eggs on Easter; well anyway, Sunday afternoon there was an egg hunt in the meadow behind the church and when the children began their search for the hidden eggs what should Tom Avery find in a nest of straw but an honest to goodness live bunny and he had not been placed there on purpose, and the place was just covered in eggs every color of the rainbow. A prize was given the girl and boy who found the most eggs. Pauline and Ocie Littleton were the winners of the prizes which were two baby bunnies that Jimmy Campbell found on Good Friday. And they were put with the big brown bunny and such a happy reunion, it was their mother.

Platform Of Ralph D. Grant, Candidate For Superintendent

Dear Friends:

I believe that the people of a county have a right to know, as far as possible, what a candidate for public office stands for. As I think of the duties incumbent upon the office of the superintendent, I find them so numerous that it would require too much space to express myself on all of them. Therefore I am choosing for discussion only a few of the major ones.

If I should be elected your superintendent, I will give my entire time to the adminisration of the schools of this county. I will endeavor to do the right thing by everybody. I will show no special favors to any person or school, and I will at no time discriminate against any person or school. I will serve all for the benefit of all.

What is a School?

"A school is the instrument whereby a people seeks to perpetuate its ideals and institutions." The school is a place where boys and girls are taught the fundamental processes necessary for business transactions, a place where they are confronted with the problems of life and society; a place where they are taught to solve the problems of life and society. A school in a democracy like ours is an institution through which the future citizens of our nations learn to work, play and live together for the common good of all. They should be so organized and administered that they may be of the greatest possible benefit to the individual and to society.

What is the Purpose of Schools?

Generally speaking, schools serve a three-fold purpose. They give the pupil command of the fundamental process of business transactions; teach the pupil healthful living; and establish ideas and ideals of right and purposeful and useful living so that he may be of the greatest possible service as a citizen to his community and to his country.

What is School Administration

School administration is so coordinating every phase of school activity surrounding the learning process that there may be a maximum accomplishment for every effort put forth. It should operate so as to eliminate, as far as possible, existent educational inequalities wherever they are found.

Standardization

The school system of Chilton county is a small unit of a great educational system. Since it is but a unit there is a vital need of meeting certain sandards so that it may harmonize with the whole. With the cooperation of teacher-committees from the various departments of our county school system, I will expect, before the beginning of each school year, to set up yearly objectives. It shall be the purpose of these objectives to direct toward a definite goal, but they should not operate against individual pupil accomplishment. Included in this program will be county uniform examinations for all grades.

Selection of Teachers

I believe in maintaining as high standard of teaching as our county can economically afford. There is now available an abundant supply of well-trained teachers. I will at all times cooperate with the trustees of the various schools in securing the services of these teachers. Upon request I will furnish them a list of available teachers qualified to fill the vacancies occuring in their schools. I believe in giving preference to the teachers of this county in so far as we have local teachers to supply immediate demands.

Consolidation and Transportation

There is no doubt in my mind but that the consolidated schools are here to stay. I believe in them, and as it becomes economically possible and agreeable to the people in communities which have not consolidated, other consolidations will likely be made. I believe this should be left to a vote of the people directly concerned.

When these consolidations are made it becomes the duty of the county to furnish safe and adequate transportation for those students living more than a reasonable walking distance from the school.

This is a problem to which I have given considerable study. If I should be elected superintendent I will immediately make a thorough transportation survey of this county and will make recommendations to the county board providing for safe and efficient transportation to these consolidated schools.

I believe in practical economy, but I do not believe in economizing in this matter to the extent of jeopardizing the lives and health of our boys and girls.

Publicity

The people are the ones who pay for the schools. Therefore the people have a right to know how their money is being spent. Not only that, but they have a right to know just what is being done in the schools.

If I am elected superintendent, my every official act shall be in the open, and open to public investigation. I fully believe that the more thoroughly the patrons of any school undestand our school program the better and more effective will be their cooperation in putting our school program over.

A strong active Parent-Teacher's Association is the best established medium through which parents and teachers may work together toward a better and more comprehensive understanding of school problems and through which they may work more intelligently toward the solution of these problems and toward the accomplishment of other school and community improvements.

I believe wholeheartedly in the principles upon which the P.-T. A. is founded. If I should be elected superintendent, I will cooperate with the P.-T. A.'s that have already organized and will encourage the organization of chapters in schools that do not already have this organization.

Incidental Fees

It is thoroughly possible when schools return to normal to eliminate the necesssity of paying incidental fees. And as soon as schools return to normal, incidental fees should be eliminated. But under present circumstances, I am of the opinion that it would probably be impractical to change the source of local operating expenses at this time.

Should I be elected superintendent and should the new state administration bring relief to our school situation, I have a plan to submit whereby the necessity of paying incidental fees will be eliminated.

School Property

The school properties of our county are the tools with which we do our work. In caring for these properties, in replacing these properties, and in purchasing new equipment, or properties as they are needed, one should be guided by the same principles by which any other good business man would be guided.

Length of School Term

Should I be elected superintendent I will make a thorough study of every administrative phase of our school work with the intention of establishing and maintaining practical workable standards of achievement and efficiency that can be economically afforded, and will use the monies accruing for school purposes in a practical, efficient, economical way so that one dollar's worth of the very best service may be had for every dollar spent. There will be no duplications.

After making an inventory of all the departments and after effecting every possible economy, the school term will be determined by the amount of money accruing for school purposes. I believe there should be a minimum of nine months for high schools and seven months for elementary schools. Under present conditions it would be thoroughly unsound for me to promise any definite length of terms. To do so would involve conditions over which a superintendent has no control. I do promise to give you the maximum benefit of all monies designated for school purposes.

Because of my school work it will be physically impossible for me to see all the people of this county before May the first. I have used and am continuing to use every moment I can in seeing the voters, and in letting them know that I will appreciate their consideration.

Since this is my first time to offer for public office, if I should be elected superintendent, I will enter into the duties of this office without any political debts to settle. I believe in the principles of the Republican party and am offering myself as a candidate on the Republican ticket. Should one of my opponents, either Mr. Bean or Mr. Daniel, defeat me in the primary, I shall do what I can to have your choice elected in the general election, together with all the rest of the Republican nominees.

As a last word, let me urge the Republican voters of Chilton county to give fair consideration to me and to my opponents. If after considering the three of us, you feel that I am the best man for the job, I will appreciate your vote and your influence.

Very truly yours,
RALPH D. GRANT.

REV. NUNNALLY CONSIDERS COMING TO CLANTON SOON

Rev. L. G. Nunnally and Mrs. Nunnally, of Alabaster, were visitors to Clanton Tuesday. It was learned that Mr. Nunnally was considering an offer to accept a position with the Clanton Cash Store succeeding Mr. J. A Nivens, who has gone to the Clanton Police force.

For some time "Preacher" Nunnally has been manager of the Alabaster Cash Store, where he has established a fine record as a business getter. He has made a splendid success of the Alabaster Cash Store, and it is the hope of the management of the Clanton Cash Store that he will come with them here.

Rev. Nunnally is an active Baptist minister, who does a considerable amount of preaching in addition to his store work. He is a brother of Mrs. Ed Plier, former resident of Clanton.

Nervous Suitor — Sir, er—that is, I would like to—er—that is, I mean I have been going with your daughter for five years—

Father—Well, what do you want, a pension?

PLEASANT GROVE — CLANTON

There will be an all day singing at Pleasant Grove M. P. church, 7½ miles west of Clanton, on the Billingsley road, the second Sunday in April, which will be April 8th, 1934. All singers and lovers of music are invited to come and we especially invite all quartet singers to come. Remember the place and date. Come and bring your 1934 song books and lunch, and let's spend the day together, singing praises to God. Each kind of the 1934 song books will be used. We have the promise of some good singers to be with us, among these are Jesse Jones, from Clanton, and the ones that sing with him.

SERVICES AT FREEMAN SCHOOL

There will be services next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Freeman school house by Rev. J. N. Scott and others. All are invited.

Our TAXES and our State School System

APPROXIMATELY $1.00 out of every $20.00 of taxes collected for payment of teachers' salaries and other operating expense of the public and high school systems of the State comes from taxes paid by Alabama Power Company. The Company's contribution to this cause is nearly $1,000,000 annually.

Alabama Power Company believes in the fullest possible support of the State school system and in the law providing that a large percentage of the tax collections go to maintenance of schools, because in our school system lies the greatest hope for Alabama's future.

The $1,000,000 contributed by this Company to the schools of the State will be reduced correspondingly as municipalities indulge in the doubtful experiment of public ownership supplanting taxpaying privately owned systems. Publicly owned plants, although engaged in competitive commercial business, pay no property or school taxes, no license or privilege taxes, no poll tax, or otherwise contribute, as must each citizen, merchant, business man and corporation, to the cost of government.

ALABAMA POWER COMPANY

List of Qualified Voters In Chilton County, Ala.

State of Alabama, Chilton County:

I, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, in and for said State and County, do hereby certify that to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, the following is a true and correct list of the qualified voters of each precinct in Chilton County, as same appears from the records on file, in my office, and such other available information as I have been able to obtain. This list will constitute the list of qualified electors who will be entitled to vote at any election held in Chilton County from the time of the publication of this list until another list is published, pursuant to law, provided, that any voter who has been duly registered and who has paid his or her poll tax, if liable to same, whose name has been inadvertently or through mistake ommitted from this list, shall have 10 days from the date of the publication of this list to notify me of such omission and have such elector's name included in the supplemental list to be published not later than April 19, 1934.

Given under my hand and official seal, this the 2nd day of April, A. D. 1934.

L. H. REYNOLDS, Judge of Probate.

"Two things I wanted-

"I found out my trouble"

"...and it was all so simple when I found out my trouble. My physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood.

"The reasonableness of one of the S.S.S. ads caused me to think that S.S.S. Tonic was just what I needed for my let-down feeling, pimply skin and low resistance. I wanted more strength and a clear skin.

"It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal—and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores ... in two convenient sizes ... the larger is more economical.

Grover A. Bice Urges Voters To Remember Him On Election Day

To the Voters of Chilton County:

This is my second letter to you since I announced for Circuit Clerk. I am not writing this to knock my opponents, as they are all good friends of mine, all good men and I have nothing against them. I am stating these facts for your consideration.

During the World War while the civilians of Chilton County and of America were at home with their families, eating regular meals, had warm beds to sleep in, and were in no danger of the battle front, I slept (when I could sleep) on the wet ground in the mud and slush of France. And did it rain! It rained nearly all the time. I ate when I could get it. One time we had corn mush for breakfast for three weeks. Sometimes they would pour a spoonful of syrup, when they could get it, on the mush and we were hungry enough that it tasted good. I am sure we ate lots of horse meat, but anything is good when you are hungry enough. We never even saw a fire. We usually hiked at night. Would hike from fifteen to twenty miles without much rest, it depended upon how cold it was. We had packs on our backs and a gun to carry. And think of the danger going across the ocean. One never knew when a submarine would blow up the ship.

I offered my all for our country and I do not regret it. But only those who have been through the hardships and horrors of war know how awful and nerve wracking it is.

Mothers, fathers, sisters and brothers, of those who responded to your country's need, think of me when you go to the polls to cast your ballot. Where I was drawing $1.25 per day on the battle fields of France others were home with the days of high wages and opportunity, some holding offices in Chilton County, and this, my friends, is the first time I have asked for an elective office.

After reading this letter kindly consider the contents, and if you come to the conclusion that I am entitled to this office, please vote for me and help me get the nomination. I need your help to get the nomination. If I do not get your vote in the primaries I may not be nominated and would not be on the ticket in November. I may not get to see all before the primary, but if I fail to see you, consider this a personal plea for your vote.

Mr. J. M. Mims, Commissioner of District No. 2, gave me his endorsement and turned his work over to me about two months before he died, and you know he was a competent Commissioner and business man. Rev. J. T. Nelson (who died at the age of 101 years, a few weeks back) gave me his recommendation and wrote a letter in my behalf to the voters through the Union-Banner. These men were well known and liked by all who knew them and they had known me most all my life and considered me competent for the office I am asking for.

I appreciate The Union-Banner's idea of conducting a clean campaign and I hope every one does. I do not believe in whispering campaigns and last minute stuff, to which a candidate cannot reply. I consider our party a family, and as such, we should want to keep it clean.

Your vote and influence will be deeply appreciate.—Yours very truly, Grover A. Bice.

LIBERTY HILL

Our singing society meets next Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. We are expecting all our singers to be present, and hope to have singers from other societies. We want everyone who can to come and help us to make this one of the best singings we have had. All singers and lovers of music always have a welcome. Everyone come, and maybe the Liberty Hill quartet will sing for us.

CHAS. COOPER WRITES CONCERNING WORK

In answer to the many inquiries I have received in connection with the news item of last wek concerning work, I beg to advise that I appreciate the ready response I have received from many throughout the county. To the many who have written me letters, let me ask that you please accept this as a temporary answer to your letter. Each of you rest assured that your letters have been put on file and that you will have proper consideration.

On account of being so very busy I will not answer you personally right at this moment, but you will receive a personal letter from me in due time.

Since so many are wondering just what kind of work I will have, beg to advise, that I have accepted a job as state manager or director for a large company of Memphis, Tenn. These people want to buy mussel shells in car load lots at any point in Alabama. This is entirely a new business to me, but it has a very promising out-look for employment for sveral hundred men.

Up in Missouri and Arkansas, on the White River, I understand that more than one thousand people have been making a living in this line of work for several years.

Mr. Harry Dixion, of Memphis, Tenn., is down with me now, giving instructions as to how this business will be run. He tells me that his company will organize camps on the various rivers of Alabama. At each of these camps about twenty men will be employed. This company furnishes all necessary equipment, which consists of boats, boiling vats, and all necessary equipment for getting of the shells out of the river.

You might be interested to know that the first test made on the Coosa River up in Talladega County has proven to be a success. This week, Mr. Dixion will be making a test below Mitchell Dam, on the Coosa River.

In this week's paper you will note our adv., where we will buy shells. This ad is put in for the benefit of perhaps some who will want to begin gathering shells before our camps are established. At a later date we will request interested parties to meet me at the courthouse for a conference.—Yours very truly, Chas Cooper.

CENTER HILL NEWS

The teachers of Center Hill Sunday school entertained their classes with an Easter egg hunt Sunday after Sunday school, which was enjoyed very much by the school and several visitors.

We had two good singings last week. One of them was Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb. The other Saturday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb.

Several from this place attended the singing at Oak Grove Sunday afternoon.

A wedding of much interest to their many friends throughout the country was that of Mr. William Price and Miss Addie Collum, who were quietly married last Sunday afternoon by Rev. J. E. George at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Argo of Lomax spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Crowson.

Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Cobb and son, Kenneth, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb Sunday.

Mrs. V. Miller and Misses Olean Miller, Mildred and Bable Cobb, were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb Sunday.

Mrs. Doyl Miller and children of Pleasant Grove spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb and daughter, Imogene, spent Thursday in Clanton with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gillespie.

Mrs. L. A. Spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Jim Sims.

Messrs. J. W., Jr., and Fred Collum and Ted Cobb spent Saturday night with Mr. Cleo Gay of Mars Hill.

Mr. Alton Cobb was the dinner guest of Mr. J. O. Cobb Sunday.

Remember next Sunday is our regular preaching day. Come see who preaches.

CANE CREEK

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. Services will be conducted by our pastor, Rev. Wm. E. Robinson. Everybody is invited to attend.

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely. The Easter egg hunt was enjoyed by everybody.

Our B. Y. P. U. will put on their regular program next Sunday night at Mineral Springs before preaching.

We greatly missed Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nix Sunday, who were away on account of illness of his mother, Mrs. Nix, of Thorsby. We trust she will recover soon.

We had a number of Mt. Springs folks with us Sunday to take part in our egg hunt. We were glad to have them. Visitors are always welcome here.

Mr. Henry Williamson of Ft. Deposit was visiting relatives around this place. It had been some 20 odd years since he had been in this community. He is a brother of Mr. Charlie Williamson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rennie Robinson had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Willis Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hudson from Selma were visiting Mrs. M. O. Lambert Sunday.

Our B. Y. P. U. is coming along slowly. There is plenty of room for improvement. We are still in hopes. Come on out each Sunday night and let's do some real work.

We have planned to meet at the church a while every Wednesday night and sing a while, and will be glad to have anyone who will to come and help us.

We are going to have our singing again Sunday afternoon, second Sunday, and will possibly change it then. We would like to have a large crowd.

Remember all services and everybody is invited. Always welcome at this place.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., April 3.—Zeta Phi Eta, national professional speech arts fraternity for women, has installed a chapter on University of Alabama Campus. The chapter was installed by Mrs. Pearl Benett Broxom, University of Iowa, and Miss Lois Gregg Secor, Brenau College, who are national officers of the organization.

Active members of the group are Martha Courtney Gatlin, Louise Smith, Frances Ordway, Mary Helen Caffey, Janella Jackson, Dona Louise Skinner, Dorothy Hamilton. Pledges are Marie Sears and Sara Mae Hammond.

Engineering students of the University of Alabama will leave Monday for an industrial tour of inspection of various plants and commercial concerns throughout Alabama Monday. The group will visit Birmingham plants Monday. Tuesday they will be at the plant of the Gulf States Steel Company at Alabama City and the Goodyear company at Gadsden. Wheeler Dam and the nitrate plant will be visited Wednesday and the group will spend Thursday at Russellville at the marble quarry.

Senior engineers will spend Monday in Birmingham, including steel plants, furnaces, rolling mills, and WAPI radio station. Tuesday will be spent at the corps area tactical schools at Maxwell field, Montgomery. The Pensacola naval air station will be visited on Wednesday and Thursday.

The Blackfriars, dramatic organization at the Capstone, will present, "Skidding" by Aurania Iouzerol, Monday and Tuesday evenings. The play will also be produced in Bessemer and Northport.

Miss Josephine Eddy, acting head of the department of home economics at Alabama College, Montevallo, will speak at the University of Alabama on April 2 at the Tuscaloosa chapter of the American Association of University women. Her subject will be "Selection of Silk Materials and Hosiery."

The fifth annual institute of the Alabama Congress of Parents and Teachers will be held at the Capstone on June 20 to 22. It will be held in collaboration with the sixth annual State Education Conference, slated for the week of June 18. Mrs. A. C. Watkins, education secretary of the body and instructor at Columbia University will be among those attending the meeting. Many other prominent educators from Alabama and other states will attend.

Alabama tracksters will open the season Saturday, April 7, 1934, at Tulane University in New Orleans. Last season the Alabama squad defeated the Greenies by a count of 67 to 50, winning nine first places to their five.

Four of the strongest men of last year are missing from the Bama lineup this year so the Tide will appear slightly weaker than heretofore. Several newcomers are looking good but they will hardly make up for the veterans lost.

Alabama's baseball nine looked pretty good in their first game of the season Saturday at the Capstone. The Birminhgam Barons took them to the count of 7 to 4 but the Bama men showed promise this early in the season. Boston Red Sox will come to the University on Friday, April 6, for the next game. The first conference encounter will be with Ole Miss on April 9 and 10.

IN MEMORY OF POLLY VARDEN

Our hearts were saddened on March 25th, 1934, when aunt was taken from us to a better world than this. We all should not wish her back again, for we hope she is resting in the arms of Jesus. Everything on earth was done for her that loving hands could do, but God thought it best to take her to her beautiful home on high. Only those who have felt the strain know how hard it is to give up our loved ones. But when death calls us, we should all be ready to meet her on that bright and shining shore.

Oh, we miss her around our fireside at home. We also miss her at church. How lonely we feel since she has left us. There is a vacant place in our home that never can be filled. Her smile here on earth, no more will we see. But, oh how hard it was to give her up. Lord, help us all to live to meet her in a better world than this. It is sad for us all to part, but the Lord knows best.

Her suffering here on earth was terrible. The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. As I said before, we all ought to be ready to meet her in a better world than this, for we don't know how soon the time will be for us to meet her up in heaven.—Written by her neice, Vivian Best.

CLARA MAE BOATFIELD

Clara Mae Boatfield, age 7 years, died last Saturday night at the family home near Samaria church. Burial was at Samaria cemetery Sunday afternoon, in charge of Martin, Funeral services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Jones.

Clara Mae is survived by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boatfield, and several brothers and sisters.

IN MEMORY

Of our Dear Little Clara Mae Boatfield, a loving sweet obedient child. She was sick for several days with measles at which time pneumonia developed. Great was our darling's suffering until God called her home on the sweet Easter Sabbath morning about two o'clock. We know that many of her relatives and friends at other places will weep with us here in our great loss of Clara. Still we know that God's will must be done on earth as well as in heaven. He giveth and He taketh and doeth all things for the best.

She was laid to rest in the Samaria cemetery by Mr. Martin.

We want to thank the many friends around Clanton for their kindness shown us during the sickness and death of our dear granddaughter. Budded on earth to blossom in heaven. —Mrs. Selma Veazey.

THE HEALTH OF THE NEGROES IN ALABAMA

In connection with the observance of Negro Healh Week, from April 1 to April 8, the provisional mortality figures for 1933, just released by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Halth, are interesting. The death rate for the colored population, as was that for the white population, was the lowest ever experienced. Each year, since 1930, the death rate has been decreasing. Where the colored death rate was 15.2 per 1,000 population in 1930, it was only 12.6 last year. This was 1.5 times the white death rate. In the cities over 10,000 population, the colored death rate was 15.9; in the towns 2,500 to 10,000 population it was 16.6, and in the rural districts of Alabama, 11.1 per 1,000 population.

Tuberculosis is the outstanding health problem among the colored population. This disease is the second leading cause of death for this race. For the white population of Alabama it ranked as the eighth cause of death. In 1933, the colored death rate from tuberculosis of 121.9 per 100,000 population was nearly three times that for the white population. Because of the close association between the colored and white races in Alabama, tuberculosis among the negro presents an important health problem for both white and colored population alike. Alabama needs more facilities for finding and caring for its tuberculosis population, both white and colored. The seriousness of the disease among the negro race makes it necessary that special attention be given to reaching this group of the population.

ASSOCIATIONAL B.Y.P.U. MEETING

The annual meeting of Unity Associational B. Y. P. U. will be held at Billingsley Baptist church Sunday, April 8, beginning at 2:30 p.m. All unions are expected to be represented at this meeting. We urge all who are interested in young people's work to come. The officers for the new year will be elected.—Mabel King, B. Y. P. U. Associational Secretary.

ANNUAL SINGING HELD AT POPLAR SPRINGS

Easter has come and gone but the ones who attended the Easter singing at Poplar Springs will probably enjoy the memories for many days or years. The 1934 singing was one of the best to be held at this place in many years. As it is the first all day singing of the year, it gives everybody a great thrill to practice the new songs. Proceedings for the day were as follows:

Called to order by W. M. Devaughn, who sang one song. Prayer by Rev. George Barnett. Mr. Davaughn was unanimously elected chairman for the day. He appointed the following: committee, Jesse Jones, Emmitt Wilson, L. T. Grant, W. L. Jones, Dewey Hughes, Lee J. Grant. The Prattville Quartet with Edward Jones as manager, gave some good selections. The new Clanton Quartet with W. M. Devaughn as manager was also very good. Everybody seemed to enjoy the lunch hour and as far as we know everybody had plenty to eat.

Directors for the afternoon were A. O. Boswell, Red Harden, Archie Devaughn, L. E.. Eads, J. B. Williams, R. T. Grant, Marion W. Easterling, Grover Gilliland, Lum Robinson, Johnnie McBride, Mr. Painter, W. L. Sanders, Gerthie Easterling, and J. R. Robinson. The Rainbow Quartet from Sylacauga was added to the quartets in the afternoon and proved to be a great attraction. A duet was rendered by Red Harden and Floy Devaughn. A bass solo by Red Harden and an octet by the Clanton and Rainbow quartets won the applause of the audience.

Those performing at the piona throughout the day were Ralph D. Grant, Violet Hammonds, Lena Mae Handcock, Beatrice McDowell, Bertie Grant, Lee J. Grant and Henrietta Bean. The closing song was by L. T. Grant. Closing prayer by J. Z. Mims.

With a singing school taught by Mr. W. M. Devaughn, and another taught by Mr. Red Harden, starting this week, and interest running high, we predict for Chilton County a good year and a bright future in the musical world.—Secretary.

The Established Merchant

If any new argument were needed in behalf of the established tradesman's rightful claim to the patronage, it seems to be provided by the unpleasant position in which many people now find themselves as a result of their tie-up with a clubbing enterprise which is under official investigation in Massachusetts. Not a few New Hampshire residents interested themselves in this proposition. The question is whether full return was received for the money invested in memberships.

That the reputable merchants in every community should be given the preference by home buyers over transient agents of outside concerns, whose promises are sometimes for from fulfilled—even though no outright breach of the law appears—admits of but little controversy.

Established merchants are all-the-year-round citizens. They pay personal and property taxes. They go into their pockets to help support the various local charities. A large amount of the money they receive over their counters goes right back to the community institutions—the schools, churches, the streets, official salaries.

Again it is important to remember that when you spend your dollars in the store of a merchant with whom you are familiar, whom you meet almost daily—if not in his place of business, then on the street or elsewhere—you are much more certain of getting full value for your outlay. He does not try to beat down your sales resistance with suave and high-sounding inducements for you to buy what you do not need. He never misrepresents his goods — the reputable tradesman; he can't afford to do it, in the first place. For he depends mainly upon regular patronage; and his customers must not be deterred from coming again. He deserves support.—Manchester Union.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the most reassuring developments in Uncle Sam's foreign relations to come to the notice of the public in a long time, was the recent friendly exchange of notes between our state department and Japan. The note from the Oriental empire came in the shape of an informal and personal message to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, from Koki Hirota, the new Japanese Foreign Minister, and it was delivered by Horishi Salto the new ambassador to the United States.

The Japanese note says, among other things: "It is a matter of gratification to both our countries that they produce very few commodities which represent conflicting interests in their foreign trade, that each supplies what the other wants, that they are good customers of each other's products and that they are strengthening their relation of iterdependence year after year.

"I firmly believe that, viewed in the light of the broad aspect of the situation and studied from all possible angles, no question exists between our two countries that is fundamentally incapable of amicable solution. I do not doubt that all issues pending between the two nations will be settled in a satisfactory manner, when examined with a good understanding on the part of each other's position, discussed with an open mind and in all frankness, and approached with a spirit of cooperation and conciliation."

In his reply to this message Mr. Hull, as our Secretary of State, expressed gratification at the sentiments mentioned above, as coming from the Japanese Foreign Minister, and added that he fully concurred in the opinion that there is no reason why relations between the two nations cannot remain peaceable and friendly. Continuing he said:

"It is the fixed intention of the American government to rely, in prosecution of its national policies, upon such processes. If, unhappily, there should arise in the future any controversy, between our two countries, the American government will be prepared, as I believe it has always been in the past, to examine the position of Japan in a spirit of amity and of desire for peaceful and just settlement, with the confident expectation that the Japanese government will be prepared to examine the position of the United States in the same spirit."

This exchange of notes is undoubtedly a happy one. To the sensible American there can appear no legitimate reason why relations between the United States and Japan should not remain peaceful, and why all questions between them ought not be settled by friendly agreement. Certainly the Pacific Ocean is big enough for both nations, and happily, as is set forth in the two notes, Uncle Sam and the Jap are such good mutual customers that any sort of hostilities would be disadvantageous to both nations.

It is now pretty generally conceded that Uncle Sam is not going to mix into any European war which may arise. We had all of the mixing in Europe we wanted in the last World War, and the results since the armistice have not been conducive to our waging any more struggles "to make the world safe for democracy." We have a real interest in the Pacific, however, and if there is any danger of an international clash it would seem to be centered there. For that reason we ought to use every effort honorably possible, to remain on good terms with the Japanese, and to expect similar treatment from them.

Incidentally, the recent turn of events greatly strengthens the hand of those who have insisted on a strong naval preparedness program for Uncle Sam. Further naval limitation negotioations are in the offing, and the fact that the world now knows that Uncle Sam is determined to look after his own interests is going to give us additional standing when we go into any conference which may be called.

Forcing Crop Production

Those Americans who complacently believe there is nothing in this talk about regimentation of industry, and who refuse to believe that we are in the midst of a revolution of sorts, ought to learn something by watching the progress of the Bankhead cotton bill which was recently passed by the national House of Representatives. The bill comprises a new effort to restrict the raising of cotton by governmental compulsion. The day of begging the cotton farmer, or paying him to reduce his cotton crop is evidently about over. The next effort will be to compel him to restrict the crop by law. So does paternalism grow when once introduced into government. First came the effort to induce the American farmer to cut the size of his crops by persuasion, through a campaign of education. When this didn't work, the government, under the New Deal, started in to pay him to be good. Millions were paid to the agriculturists to reduce their cotton, wheat and other crops, and the government spent additional millions in buying up and destroying spring pigs. But even this didn't work. The government cannot go on spending money indefinitely to pay the farmers to reduce their crops. Persuasion, both verbal and monetary, have failed to work. If the system is to be continued, the government must now step in with a stern parental hand and "make" the farmers cut down on their production. It is true that the Bankhead bill is only to operate for two years and that it applies only to cotton, but paternalism has a way of growing rapidly once it is introduced, and who knows what will follow, once the camel has his nose under the tent?

The theory behind the cotton reduction program is that if the American farmers will reduce their crop of cotton for a year or two, the big surplus will be gotten rid of and the price of the staple will rise. But a great many people believe that there is a flaw in the logic. Large quantities of cotton are exported and the price in our market depends on the world price. Now, the world price depends on supply and demand. If the other cotton producing countries would cut their crops as America does, something might be done along the line of reducing the supply. But unfortunately this will not be the case. Already we are getting stories that Egypt, Russia and other countries which produce cotton, learning of the imminent crop reduction in America, are preparing to increase their crops of the staple during the next year or two. Therefore the African and Asiatic cotton grower is apt to profit while the American farmer loses.

The experience of Great Britain with the curtailment of rubber production a few years ago is a case in point. When British rubber production was restricted, other rubber producing countries increased their crops until there was greater over-production than ever, and prices went to the sub-cellar.

But the worst thing about the enforced cotton production plan is not the possibility that it will not work. It now would seem to indicate that we are confronted with a new program of government control. If Uncle Sam can tell the farmer he must raise only so much cotton, wheat and hogs, how long will it be until he will want to tell all of us where and how much we must work, how much we shall receive and just what we ought to eat and wear?

Tax Burdens

Say anything to the average man these days about the terrible tax burden that is being piled up by the president's economic advisors, and the reply you will get is this: "Let the rich do the worrying about taxes. They'll have to do the paying, not us. Why should we worry?" Well, the answer to that brand of reasoning is this:

If the rich are made to pay, the rich will find a way to pass the burden on down the line, so that in the end every penny of these burdensome taxes will be paid by the average man. He may not realize that he is paying it, because it won't reach him in the form of a direct tax. But he will pay it just the same, just as all down through the ages he has always paid it, and always will. He'll pay it in increased rent, in a surcharge on everything he eats or drinks or wears or uses. He'll pay it in reduced wages, because wages won't be advanced so long as this drag exists on the rich man's income. He'll feel it for many a decade to come. No more stupid, shortsighted and pittifully unintelligent stand could be imagined than this silly one that the poor man need do no worrying about future tax burdens because the rich will have to do the paying. It is one of the world's oldest economic fallacies. Big money will pay the tax penalties in the wake of this orgy of spending at Washington, it is true, but big money will recoup every loss it may be made to suffer in this channel. Ultimately the consumer will pay, and pay. And the "consumer" means all of us, omitting no one.

Don't go on voting for the extravagances of the New Deal with any such fool ideas as that you won't pay your full quota of every dollar of it. Because, in the end, you will be the goat. Every penny of it ultimately will come out of your meager earnings. It has always been so. It always will be so. For every folly of the present we'll pay in the years to come. Only ignorance, crass, benighted ignorance will deceive itself with the crazy anodyne that the rich will pay and the rest of us escape. The recorded history of this old planet of ours stands to disprove that theory in toto. Always in the end the ultimate consumer pays. And you and I, and the rest of us, we are "the ultimate consumer."—Philadelphia Dispatch.

If the administration runs out of English letters in making up departments for the New Deal, it might try the Greek alphabet. For instance, Mississippi River improvement could be known as Delta, Delta, Delta, and Mr. Farley could label his patronage organization Pi, Pi, Pi.

Benjamin Franklin advised his fellow American to "save and have." But the trouble nowadays is that if yau save you won't have it long. The government will take what you have saved away from you in taxes to give to the fellow who didn't bother about saving anything.

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

These Would-Be Governors

These would-be governors—one by one they come, speak and go, and we learn a little something from each. From McCord we learned much — maybe too much — about Graves, but nothing about Dixon. We have not, so far, had the chance to hear Graves tell what he knows about his opponents, but from reading the papers, we can get a pretty good idea of his line. And, then, last Saturday Mr. Dixon came down and let the cat out of the wallet for fair. I have read several of Mr. Dixon's speeches in "Grandma" and the one he delivered here was just another one of those things. He told about the wanton recklessness of the governors of Alabama for some time past, and I don't suppose he was guessing, either, for he read the figures from a paper he carried. He told all about how the Democratic regime at Montgomery has muddled things all up since time immemorial. In fact, if all he said is true, it has been some time since Alabama had anybody at the state helm who had any idea what a dollar is worth, or cared a rap, for that matter. We hope, soon, to have the pleasure of listening to Col. Graves, and get his side of the picture, and let's all hope it will be a brighter one than has been shown to us heretofore. For, from reading the speeches of McCord and Graves in the papers, if half they say about each other is true, we don't need either of them—that is, for governor—they might fit in somewhere down around Kilby or thereabouts, but never at Goat Hill. And, if half Dixon told on the Democratic party is true, we don't need ANY Democrat down there for Governor, unless they depart from the faith of their fathers in great degree. His speech at Clanton, as has been the case everywhere, was a burning indictment of Democratic management of state affairs. And yet, in spite of the fact that Alabama is bankrupt under such management, our local Democrats have the face to ask Republican voters to turn to them, and help them put such mangement in charge of Chilton County. If you hanker to know the comparative conditions of Chilton County and the State of Alabama, it will not be hard to find out. We wish everyone would do this, and then see if they can have the gall to vote Democratic or ask anyone else to do so. I expect to give a few figures on this in the near future—look for them.

Culp, the Politician

I've heard of lots of ways to get votes, or to try to get them, but on passing by the office of Will Culp one day last week, I witnessed an entirely new system. Will had a big box of red-striped stick candy there, and when he had a caller, said caller got a grab at the candy box. I suppose a fellow would get two grabs if he paid his tax while he was there. And just to prove that Mr. Culp was up on his job, he had all the accessories to go along with the candy. If it left his taster a little too sweet, then Will had a box of salt handy to take the edge off; then, too, there was a tube of tooth paste handy in case the candy eater didn't like the taste of the candy; and if it should give said candy eater indigestion, Will had a box of soda handy. And last, but not least, Will had a few cigars handy, with which to send his caller on his way rejoicing. I asked him why he didn't have a few boxes of snuff handy, in case his caller was a lady, and he replied that most women denied the use of snuff nowadays, and so he had left that off the list. Will hopes to get a vote for every stick of candy, and if he could do this, I expect he would be willing to order a car load. I imagine, however, that Will's record in office, and his accommodation of the tax-paying public will get him more votes than all the candy he could buy. If the taxpayers appreciate service, then he should receive a good vote.

6,000 Voters

According to the list of qualified voters, published in this issue of The Union-Banner, Chilton County will have a qualified list of approximately 6,000 voters. The present list carries 5,788 names; with the supplemental list, which will be published soon, the number should be around the 6,000 mark. Of course, the list carries some names of people who are dead; and there are some who have moved away, and will not cast absentee ballots; and, too, there will be many who, for one reason or another, will not vote in the coming elections. Still, after all is said and done, if it is a good day, our primaries on May 1st shrould bring out something in the neighborhood of 5,000 actual voters. Who said the people were not interested in politics any more? Hard times or no hard times, Chilton County people have certainly been getting in shape to vote, of late.

The Prayer is Answered

At present it seems that the prayer of the veterans is about to be answered. The veterans pay bill, which President Roosevelt vetoed a few days ago, was carried back and put over, in spite of the veto. The House carried it over by the record vote of 310 to 72, and the Senate came back the next day and finished the job by carrying it over by a vote of 63 to 27. The fellows who are keeping a weather eye out for storm warnings in this political world, certainly got a thrill, for they saw the first break away from the president on a major issue. To them, this break was very significant; it pointed out that, while the country was in close corners they were willing to give in and trust his judgment, but when time was not precious they (the congressmen) would like to have a little say- so in matters, and that they considered things not so rushing as they once were. Reports say that the president "chided" congress for passing a bill to pay out money without first setting out a way to get the money to pay the bill. Maybe the fellows decided they would get the money from the same place the president got that with which he put thousands of yearling boys in the forestry camps. That seemed pretty easy to manage, and maybe they thought that, if it came to a show-down, those forestry camps might be closed and the money paid to the soldiers. After all, which deserves this money most, the C.C.C. boys or the veterans? That is an easy one to answer. I have read several letters from boys in the camps, and they are forever telling what a grand time they are having—never a word about what kind of work they are doing, if any. If the government can furnish the boys with a year-around vacation, maybe it can furnish its war veterans with a few of the necessities of life, as it goes along. Maybe, too, the congressmen had an idea that they might ought to do something to put them in with the vet voters, for it isn't so long until election time again, you know.

Making Speculation Safe

Some cynic the other day, referring to the present effort in Congress to put through a drastic bill for regulating the stock markets of the country, made the remark that the government was now seeking to make "speculation safe for democracy." Some control of our markets where securities as well as commodities are bought and sold, is of course necessary and desirable. There should be the fullest publicity required about all securities which are offered for sale, and concerning the companies who are offering the securities. Neither should speculation on thin margins be encouraged. Just how much of this regulation the government should have a hand in and how much ought to be left to the good judgment of the stock exchanges themselves is of course a matter for honest difference of opinion.

But aside from this, the cynical remark quoted above will bear some thinking about. It will never be possible for this government or any other government to make "speculation safe for democracy." So long as there are suckers who like to buy things because they look cheap, who think they can get something for nothing, or acquire riches by taking long chances, there is going to be unwise speculation. And even the cleverest of those who deal in high finance, get caught once in a while, which makes speculation all the more a dangerous game for the novice. The government cannot protect the plunger and the sucker against the results of their own folly, much as it may desire to do so. Something must be left to individual effort, despite all socialist theory to the contrary. The government cannot make a man a good financier, or a shrewd speculator, if nature has made him a reckless fool, any more than the government can make the lazy man prosperous, or a profilgate one successful.

Too many people in the Uunited States seem now relying on the government to pull them out of a hole which they dug for themselves. This it is impossible for the government to do, no matter what administration is in power. This paternalistic idea of government is not of American origin. It was not employed by the men who converted this continent from a wilderness into the greatest of modern nations. If the sturdy pioneers had waited for the government to protect them in their pioneer efforts and to do their trail blazing for them, the United States, if it existed at all, would still comprise a fringe of settlements along the Atlantic coast. The pateralistic theory has come to us lately from Europe. Europe may have borrowed it from the Orient. At any rate it has resulted in the breakdown of government and the rise of autocracy from the Ural Mountains to the Rhine and beyond.

If any man thinks that the government can frame a law which will enable the Federal Trade Commission or any other commission to make him a successful trader, he is in for a rude awakening. Only brains and long vision can do this, backed by plenty of money and still more luck.

Even the Brain Trust has not yet found a formula for changing the lamb into a wolf. And we doubt if it ever will.

Grover Cleveland Harris

Grover Cleveland Harris, carrier on Clanton Route No. 3, was born near Traveler's Rest in Coosa County, May 18, 1882. His father moved to Chilton County when Grover was about five years old. He attended the schools of Chilton County for all his education. He married Miss Bessie Durbin on October 2, 1910; they have two children, Grover C., Jr., and Elizabeth Harris. Mrs. Harris died April 13, 1931. On January 21, 1932, he married Mrs. Estelle Alston Watts. Mr. Harris entered the postal service as carrier on Route 3 on August 1, 1906, and has held this position continuously aver since, except for 10 months, from September 1, 1919, to June 30, 1920, when he was acting postmaster at Clanton. He farmed until 1904, when he took a place in the store of Harris & Eiland, near Fairview, working there until his postal appointment to the postal service in 1906. Mr. Harris is a member of Clanton Baptist Church, and has been its treasurer for 14 years; he is a deacon, also. He has passed through all Masonic bodies, including the Shriners. He is also a Woodman, and an Oddfellow, and is now Secretary of the local Woodmen's Lodge. In talking over his life with Mr. Harris, he talked along the same line as his brother, Grady. He believes that when a man has carried mail as long as he has, and has put forth the effort that he has to be the efficient workman that he has proved himself, that nothing much can be said of him other than that he has done his duty and that well. If Mr. Harris has a hobby I know nothing of it. I never heard of him being on a hunting trip, and he doesn't fish much. I suppose he is too busy for that. But when you name baseball or football, he is all ears, then. He gets a great kick out of these sports, and may always be found giving his whole-hearted support to our local teams. He is an easy-going fellow, taking life as it comes, and making the most of it. He is the senior member of the local carriers force in point of service; in other words he is the "big brother" of the force, and is generally addressed as "Mr. Harris" by the other "boys" in the office, who regard him as a capable carrier, a man in every sense of the term, and a great fellow to know.

Dr. and Mrs. P. I. Hopkins were in Clanton gaain for a short while this week on their return home at DeKalb, Illinois. Since passing through here a little over a week ago they visited Dothan, Pensacola, and Mobile. At the latter place they enjoyed a visit to the famous azalea trail. Doctor Hopkins looks natural, appears to be in fine fettle, with a happy outlook for the future. He said "I have enjoyed the fine weather down here immensely, and I wish I could take a bundle of it back home with me. When I get there I will perhaps have to get out my skates and overcoat for several weeks yet."

Politics is unusually quiet in Chilton County, which fact is a surprise to many who thought this would be the most turbulent campaign in our history. There is some reassurance in the indication that our political leaders realize we have had enough bickering already. What we ned is a return to the days when people may be permitted to cast their votes free from high pressure of political muddy waters. It seems that we shall have that opportunity on May first.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

The Christian Life Conference, held in Thorsby Friday, Saturday and Sunday, was a great time. The weather was perfect, the attendance large and the program most interesting and inspiring. There were 114 guests seated at the banquet; 90 attended the sunrise prayer meeting and an outdoor breakfast which was held in the grove west of dormitory hill. The sermon by Dr. J. W. Campbell, of Nashville, given Sunday morning, was inspirational, also the service Sunday evening at the Lutheran Church and the candle lighting service. We all feel inspired and uplifted by the three beautiful days.

At the Congregational Church on next Sunday there will be Sunday school and Christian Endeavor as usual, but probably no morning service.

Services will be held in the Lutheran Church next Sunday as follows: Sunday school, 9:45 a.m. Swedish services, 10:45 a.m.; and English services, 7:30 p.m.

There will be preaching at the Baptist Church both morning and evening next Sunday.

A Beautiful Custom in Thorsby

The singing of Easter Carols from place to place on Easter morning in Thorsby was a beautiful part of the lovely Easter day. The sweet young voices raised in hymns of praise, resounded through the streets and gave to shut-ins what perhaps was their highest point of contact with the spirit of the holy and happy season. While to all who heard this sweet music from happy youths must have come the thought, as to the writer, that the "World which goes forward upon the feet of my children," could not but be a better world when the young people gave their time and thought to the bringing to others the message of hope and joy that "Christ the Lord is risen indeed." And in this manner "Welcomed the Happy Morning."—Appreciative Hearer.

Lesson for April 8

THE CHILD AND THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:1-14; 19:13-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Suffer little children, and forbid them not to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven. Matt. 19:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Blesses the Children.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus and His Smallest Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Entering and Growing in the Kingdom.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Sin of Neglecting and Misguiding Children.

I. The Greatest in the Kingdom of Heaven (vv. 1-4).

1. The disciple's question (v. 1). The prominence given to Peter in connection with the announcement of Christ's purpose to build the church and the payment of tribute with the money in the fish's mouth, provoked jealousy on the part of the other disciples. Seeing that the kingdom was to come to realization despite the tragedy of the cross, the disciples thought it best to have settled their place of rank in the kingdom. Instead of entering into sympathy with Jesus in the dark hour of his passion, they were supremely concerned with the dignities to be conferred.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 2-4). Two vital truths stand out in his reply:

a. Condition of entrance into the kingdom (v. 3). He showed them that the great question which should concern them was as to whether they were really in the kingdom. Their behavior revealed the fact that they needed conversion before they could enter into the kingdom.

b. Those possessing childlike humility are the greatest (v. 4). It is highly important that we understand childhood. The child is dependent, lowly, and docile. Doctor Morgan sets forth the following characteristics of childhood:

(1) Imperfection. The child is not only the emblem of imperfection but is subconsciously aware of it. Because of this it awaits instruction and correction in order for development.

(2) Simplicity. All the powers of the child's being express themselves freely, readily, and naturally.

(3) Submissiveness. While the child has inherited sin yet it yields to the touch of the skillful hand.

II. Jesus' Identification With His Believing Ones (v. 5-9).

1. Receiving the believer in Christ's name is receiving Christ (v. 5). Through faith in Christ we become God's children, and so completely is our life interwoven with his that he regards treatment of us as treatment of himself.

2. The awful peril of causing a believer to stumble (vv. 6-9). To cause to stumble means to give occasion for a moral fall. This particularly refers to the carnality and selfishness which were expressing themselves in the disciples' contention for pre-eminence. Their behavior was not only an injury but a stumbling block to others. Every Christian should solemnly inquire as to whether his life would help or hinder his fellow believers. Sinning against Christ's own will meet a sure and awful fate.

III. The Heavenly Father's Special Care for Believers (vv. 10-14).

1. They are under angelic guardianship (v. 10). So precious is the believer in God's sight that angelic messengers are provided (Heb. 1:10).

2. The Son of man came especially to save the lost (vv. 11-14). The heavenly Father does not will that anyone should perish. All are the objects of the Father's seeking love.

IV. Jesus Receiving Little Children (Matt. 19:13-15).

The setting of this text should be most carefully noted. Jesus had been speaking of the sanctity of marriage which is the bulwark of the home. Into the sacred enclosure of the home comes childhood to complete and ennoble it.

1. Children brought to Jesus (v. 13). Most likely they were brought by their parents. Parents naturally desire the blessing of the Lord for their children. Many parents who are careless as to themselves, desire to bring their children into touch with Jesus Christ.

2. Rebuked by the disciples (v. 13). They regarded children as too insignificant to engage the Lord's attention.

3. The disciples rebuked by Christ (v. 14). These words uttered by the Lord have placed a peculiar dignity upon children.

4. Christ laid his hands upon the children (v. 15). This action no doubt indicated his pronouncement of blessing upon them and his tenderness for them.

Our Duty to Make Enemies

To incur enmity is a necesary part of the life of triumph in Christ. Christians carry to men a message of death as well as of life; and men know it. If we speak and live the whole counsel of God we shall not sin by making friends among those who ought to be our enemies.

Knows What's Best

God is too wise not to know all about us, and what is really best for us to be, and to have.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our thanks to the good people for their kindness and sympathy during the sickness and death of our sister, Miss Polly Varden. Especially do we thank Dr. Hayes and also Dr. Ezell for their kindness and comforting words to us all. Dr. Hayes did everything in his power to aid her, but God in His wisdom, saw fit to take her from our midst. Again we wish to thank each and everyone for their kindness. May God's richest blessing rest upon each and everyone.—Written by her brothers and sisters.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

VELVET BEANS ARE ADVISED BY LOWERY

Auburn, Ala., April 3. — For that portion of Alabama south of Birmingham, planting of more acres to velvet beans is recommended by J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist, Auburn; and also by the county agents. The velvet beans grow abundantly and are a practical crop to be planted on the land removed from cotton. It furnishes excellent grazing for livestock in the fall and winter. It is a soil builder, being a legume.

Planting velvet beans with corn is recommended. They may be planted either in the drill with corn, in alternate rows, or two rows of corn and one of velvet beans. In the hog areas farmers plant corn and peanuts in alternate rows with velvet beans mixed with corn.

Velvet beans may decrease the corn yield slightly, explained Mr. Lowery, but the extra feed made by the beans and soil improvement more than offset corn losses. It may be best to postpone planting of velvet beans in corn until corn has had one cultivation and thereby given a start ahead of velvet beans.

The best variety of velvet beans for Alabama is the early speckled. For fertilizer the recommendation is 200 pounds of superphosphate or the equivalent of basic slag per acre.

"One of the strongest arguments for use of velvet beans and corn on rented acres," said Mr. Lowery, "is the fact that no other combination of crops offer the farmer as much as this combination for the amount of money spent for seed. Most farmers have—or can easily obtain—seed corn and if velvet bean seed must be bought the amount needed to plant an acre is so very little."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Senator Bankhead's compulsory cotton control bill was approved by the Senate last week after previous passage by the house. With its administrative backing, it is predicted by leaders that it will soon become law although a number of senate amendments were yet to be approved by the house. Central feature of the bill is to limit the 1934-35 crop year to ten million bales through imposition of a heavy tax on all cotton sold above that figure.

The year 1933 was a busy one for all extension workers. In addition to their usual duties they were busy with the application of the production-adjustment campaigns, relief activities, and organizing credit facilities.

Cotton contract signers will be required to meet all terms of the contract and furnish evidence (of compliance before receiving second benefit payments in the fall, according to officials of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Of the 3,421 cases of voluntary bankruptcy in Alabama last year, 167 were farmers. Increases in farmer bankruptcies last year were chiefly in northern and eastern states. The number of cases in the South and West decreased.

FEBRUARY FARM INCOME 63 PER CENT OVER 1933

Auburn, Ala., April 3.—The monthly cash income of farmers from the sale of farm products in February, 1934, is estimated at $385,000,000, by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. This compares with $424,000,000 in January this year and $254,000,000 in February, 1933. The total cash income of farmers including benefit and rental payments in February was $413,000,000, or 63 per cent greater than in February, 1933.

Rental and benefit payments to farmers in February were $28,000,000 compared with $60,000,000 in January and $49,000,000 in December. The payments were practically all made to cotton and wheat farmers. Payments to wheat farmers amounted to $14,000,000 and payments to cotton farmers including the exercise of cotton options by farmers also amounted to $14,000,000.

While there is usually a decline in the monthly income of farmers at this period of the year, the decline from January to February this year was less than usual. After allowing for the usual seasonal change in income from January to February the total cash income from the sale of farm products in February was 54.5 per cent of the average monthly income in the period 1924-1929, compared with 50.2 per cent in January and 36.5 per cent in February last year, which was the month of lowest income in at least the last decade for which monthly cash income estimates are available.

The seasonally adjusted increase in cash income from January to February was general for all groups of commodities and was largely due to the rise of nearly 9 per cent in the price of farm products from mid-January to mid-February. The greatest increase in income was from the sale of poultry and eggs and was largely in response to greater than usual increase in the marketing of eggs.

ENTERTAINMENT AT BILLINGSLY

There will be a musical entertainment at the Billingsley Methodist Church Saturday night, April 7, at 7:30 o'clock for the benefit of the Elementary school. Admission will be five and ten cents.

We will have duets, quartets and several of our favorite instruments. Also have refreshments to sell.

Everyone come and bring your nickels and dimes. We will have a good time together. The candidates are especially invited.

SERVICES AT COLLINS CHAPEL

Brother Dewey Robinson of Thorsby will preach at this place Sunday, April 8. Everyone is invited to attend.

OUTSTANDING OPTIONS EXPIRE ON MAY 1

Cotton producers holding approximately 14,500 cotton option contracts were reminded today by the Aricultural Adjustment Adiministration that these options must be exercised by May 1 or the proper arrangements made for an extension. It is estimated that outstanding options are for approximately 90,000 bales of cotton.

According to the terms of the cotton option contract, the option expires unless it is received for execution before May 1, 1934, or unless a formal request is made for an extension. This formal request must be made on a form provided by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration (Form C-5-B) which has been furnished each option holder, and which specifies the conditions under which the option may be extended.

If an extension is obtained by the option holder, it is provided that the purchase price of 6 cents per pound is to be increased at the rate of 40 cents per bale per month or part of a month the contract is carried after May 1, 134. This is to cover carrying charges on the cotton.

There is quite a bit of sickness in this community at the present time. Little Miss Imogene Waldrop was seriously ill last week with measles. She is some better now. Ralph and Louie Compton, J. D. Davenport, Billie Jean Morgan, Jimmie Woodley, Raymond Waldrop and two of the Carroll children are suffering with measles.

Mr. Monroe Franklin left last Thursday for McLester clinic for a medical examination.

Miss Mary Clements left Sunday for St. Vincent hospital, whree she will undergo an operation.

Mrs. H. T. Hodgens is worse at the present writing.

Mrs. S. M. Edwards went to Birmingham Tuesday for medical treatment.

Rev. Maurice Hodgens spent the Easter holidays with home folk. He preached a very interesting sermon at the 11 o'clock hour Sunday.

Mr. W. E. Miskelley is in Birmingham on business.

Mr. Herbert Wright carried a load of produce to Birmingham last Tuesday.

Mr. Agil Compton visited his brother of Six Miles last Tuesday.

Mr. Barney Davenport spent the Easter holidays with home folk. Mr. Curtis Reagan of Baton Rouge, La., accompanied Barney home. Mr. Rogers is a class mate of Barney's at Talladega.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Clements and family, Mrs. Mollie Hodgens and little Miss Arlis Hodgens, Misses Leacy Newell, Ola Rogers, Hazel Tillery and Mrs. Everett Wallace attended the Nivens-Clements wedding at Birmingham Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Adair had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kay of Birmingham.

Mr. Paul Dawson is in Birmingham this week looking for work.

Mr. and Mrs. Euell Dawson and family had as their guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smitherman and baby, Mr. Clarence Turner, Ara Wright and Miss Emmarene Dawson of Prattville.

Essie Mae and Lucille Dawson entertained a number of friends Sunday afternoon with an egg hunt.

Mr. Louie Wright has returned after an extended visit to Prattville.

LOST HIS WAGON TAP

Will Thomas, of Beat 16 lost a tap off his wagon one day last week, between his home and Clanton. He was traveling on the Higgins Ferry Road. This is an extra large tap, and Mr. Thomas can not get another one to replace it. He will pay a reasonable reward if the finder will return it to him.

BETHSALEM NEWS

Our Sunday school is progressing nicely with a real good attendance.

Mr. Monroe Askins and mother of Montgomery spent the week end with Mrs. Askins's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Wilkins.

Mr. and Mrs. George Headley of the Highland community spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilkins and Mr. and Mrs. Ed McGee.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughue Williams spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Wash Bowles.

Mr. Len Green spent a while with his sister and family, Mrs. Lela McGee, Sunday morning.

Misses Pauline and Flora Strickland, Laura Hill and Edna Spigener spent a while with Mr. and Mrs. O. O. McCary Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Bowles of the Indian Grave community spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. Bowles's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wash Bowles.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chandler and family spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Mann Stroud.

Mrs. Lois Terrill was the Saturday afternoon guest of Mrs. Marie Brigance.

A large crowd from Bethsalem attended the Easter singing at Poplar Springs Sunday afternoon.

Next Sunday afternoon is our regular old time singing evening. Everyone come and help us out.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnice Wilkins spent Sunday with Mrs. Wilkins's mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Altman Gray were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clim Billingsley of the Shiloh community.

Mr. Charlie Vinson was the Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Litt Cox and family.

Our B. Y. P. U. met last Sunday night with a very good attendance. We invite everyone that will to come and help us out.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala. — Tony Armistead and Pennie Elliot of Montgomery, had been fishing quietly for some time near their Lake Martin camp when suddenly they saw something glistening in the water.

They paddled out to the spot and picked up a 2¼-lb white perch as it attempted to swallow a bass weighing three quarters of a pound.

Although the bass had become lodged in the perch's mouth, both were alive when they were taken from the water.

Mayor W. A. Thompson of Citronelle, has advised the state game and fisheries department that municipality has just completed impounding three acres of water to be called the Chautauqua Lake.

Springs will supply the lake with about 200 gallons of water per minute. The work has been done as a CWA project and the lake will have a depth of about 16 feet.

Mayor Thompson said the city proposes to use the lake for swimming and fishing purposes. He plans to stock it immediately with bass.

Fox hunting rapidly is becoming one of the most popular sports in Alabama.

An enthusiastic fox hunter himself, congressman Henry B. Steagall, of Ozark, has been instrumental in organizing two fox hunting groups in southwest Alabama.

The first to organize was the Southeast Alabama Fox Hunters Association with a membership representing 10 counties. The association was formed at a dinner given at Bluff City Inn by Congressman Steagall.

A branch of this body, the Henry County Fox Hunters Association, later was organized at Abbeville.

COTTON INSECT CONTROL VITAL ON CUT ACREAGE

"Why," the United States Department of Agriculture is often asked, "do you recommend reductions in cotton acreage and at the same time seek new ways to control cotton insect pests? Why not let the insects reduce the crop?"

In the first place, the department entomologists reply, crop destruction by insects means a total loss of the time and money the farmer has spent in planting and cultivating his cotton. No farmer can afford such a sacrifice of time, effort and money. In the second place, the entomologists continue, insects cannot be depended on to destroy the cotton surplus in an orderly manner. Left to their own devices, the boll weevil and other serious pests might destroy all of one farmer's planting or all the cotton in one section, leaving other plantings and other sections practically untouched. The cotton acreage reduction program is designed not only to reduce the number of bales produced in 1934, but to control production so that every farmer may expect to make a fair profit on his crop. Thus it is necessary to control both production and insects.

Some growers haye expressed concern over the added damage to be expected from insect pests concentrated in smaller cotton acreages. Any tendency to such concentration, the entomologists point out, will be at least counterbalanced by the better opportuity for control. Farmers this year can select for planting the fields that are fartherest from woods and other hibernation grounds of the boll weevil. With less land to care for, they give more time to its preparation and cultivation and can produce an earlier crop of cotton, all of which reduces damage by the boll weevil and other insect pests.

NOTICE!

Rev. Parker, of Lomax, announces that he will hold a five-day meeting at the Tabernacle at Jemison starting next Thursday night. Everybody invited.—J. W. Teasley.

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for Judge of the Nineteenth Judicial Circuit, composed of the counties of Autauga, Chilton, and Elmore, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries in May and June, 1934.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated in the coming Democratic primaries.

Respectfully,

J. B. ATKINSON.

(Paid political adv., by J. B. Atkinson, Clanton, Alabama.)

When the worries, noise, confusion, high-tension work, or hectic pleasures of your waking hours "get on your nerves," here is a simple time-tested preparation that will bring a feeling of calm and relaxation and allow you to get a good night's sleep.

Dr. Miles Nervine quiets your nerves. It is not habit-forming and does not depress the heart. Why take chances with dangerous habit-forming drugs? Why use narcotics that make you dull and depressed?

Millions have found relief, relaxation, sleep, by using Dr. Miles Nervine. Although first used more than fifty years ago, Dr. Miles Nervine is as up to date as today's newspaper. Nothing better for the home treatment of overtaxed nerves has ever been discovered.

Your druggist sells Dr. Miles Nervine. We guarantee relief, or your money back, with the first bottle or package.

IN MEMORY OF MAVIES WILLIAMS

On March 17, 1934, the death angel visited the home of Mr. Eugene Williams. The angel came here to gather flowers for God's throne. This time it was a sweet little bud that was gathered and one that will be greatly missed by all that knew him, for little Mavis was a sweet bud. He was 11 years old. He and I were great pals.

Mavies was sick about a week and I am sure all was done for him that loving hands could do, but God saw fit in His tender mercy to call him home to live with the angels. For Jesus said, "suffer little children to come unto me, for of such, is the kingdom of heaven." Little Mavies was a sweet pal and we always loved him. It seemed that most of our pleasures were when we three were togteher. We have rambled the woods together so many times that it don't seem right for him to be gone, but we know our dear Lord does all things right. So now we must just realize that our loss is heaven's gain.

Weep not dear ones for Mavies, for he is now resting in the arms of Jesus. His little body was carried to Mt. Nebo for burial March 18 with Martin in charge.

Dear Mavies, you have left us
For that heavenly home so fair.
Safe in the arms of Jesus
You are free from toil and care.

A precious one from us is gone.
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home
That can never be filled.

Oh, the friend that has departed.
How we miss him from his place
How he left us broken hearted
How we miss the form, the face.

Dearest Mavies, how we miss you,
How we miss your smiling face.
But we hope we will meet you
In that land of love and peace.

Mavies leaves to murn his death, father and mother and several brothers and sisters and a host of other relatives and friends. Written by two of his little friends.—R. T. and Billie Carter.

SINGING AT ARCHIES CHAPEL

I am authorized by the pastor to announce an all day singing in the Harp and Harmony books at Arches Chapel church the fifth Sunday in April. Everybody cordially invited to attend. Six miles east of Jemison.—W. B. Cooper.

MRS. SENIE CONNELL DIED

Mrs. Senie Connell, age about 20 years, died Monday night at a hospital in Sylacauga. The body was brought to Refuge where funeral and burial was held at eleven o'clock Wednesday.

Mrs. Connell is survived by her husband, Jodie Connell, and two children. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Baker.

IN MEMORY OF A. J. JONES

Many hearts were saddened when the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones on Sunday April 1, and carried away our beloved father and grandfather, Mr. A. J. Jones. He had been sick about ten days when God saw fit to take his beloved soul from our midst. So weep not dear ones, for God is the giver and taker. His will must be done, not ours. All was done for grandfather that loving hands could do for him, but God knew best and carried him away to that bright, delightful land where immortal joys forever flow.

There is a vacant place in his home and in the hearts of his children that can never be filled. Grandfather was loved by all who knew him. So be reconciled, one and all, for our loss is heaven's gain.

Grandfather lived to be 84 years of age and leaves to mourn his going away fifteen children, Mrs. Jane Bates, Mrs. J. A. Jones, Mrs. E. S. Chasteen, Mrs. Ruth Jones, Mrs. I. V. Jones, and Mrs. W. C. Smith, all of Clanton; Mrs. Alice Caton, Mrs. Leola Jones and Mrs. E. N. Jones of Prattville, Mrs. A. C. Bussie and Mr. Ernest Jones, of Lomax; Auburn Jones, of Haleyville, D. B. Jones, of Baton Rouge, La., Calvin Jones, of Montgomery, and Rufus Jones; also 95 grand children and great grandchildren and a host of relatives and friends.

The body was laid to rest in New Harmony cemetery Monday, April 2, at 4 o'clock p.m., with Rev. Cox and Cecil Ellisor, of Verbena, officiating. Spigener was in charge.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are glad to state the health of this community is very good at present.

We are having a good Sunday school here. We are glad to see the good work going on. We had an egg hunt Sunday and had a nice time. Don't forget Sunday school will be here next Sunday at 2 p.m. and preaching at 3 p.m. by Brother A. B. Canant of Wilton. So lets all come and hear a good sermon.

Mr. Frank Cox and family of Bibb county were guests of Mr. Bill Holcombe Sunday.

Mr. Turner Anderson and wife were the guests of Mr. G. G. Nabors Sunday.

Mr. Walter Sparks and wife were the guests of Mr. Leen Denson Sunday.

Mrs. Sallie Lucas and her son, Hubbard, were the guests of her daughter, Mrs. Mack Nabors, Sunday.

We have a good subject for our Sunday school lesson next Sunday, "The child and the kingdom." It teaches us, first, to cease to be self-seeking; second, trust Jesus as a little child; third, treat the lowly with kindness. A good lesson for all the young and old.

JUBILEE SINGERS COMING HERE

The Pullman Jubilee Singers, of Birmingham, will appear at the Union Baptist church, (colored) Clanton on Monday night, April 2, at 8 p.m.

This program was postponed from March 26, on account of a heavy downpour of rain. Admission, adults 10c, children, 5c. Special seats for white patrons.

PROVIDENCE, BEAT 13

There will be singing at this place Sunday afternoon. We expect to have a good singing and we invite everybody that can to come and enjoy the afternoon with us.

Bring any books that you have. We use them all, and too, we hape to have some Harbor Bells No. 3, so if you have one bring it along.—O. B. Martin.

from
COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

By Dan Smith

October 14 was a big day for America. March 4 was an important day for the Roosevelt family. December 25 is a looked-forward-to day for all kiddies. October 31 is the night that wiches ad goblins long for and April 6, tomorrow, is the big day for the students of C.C.H.S. and outsiders. For at eight o'clock tomorrow night the jolly Juniors present their annual play. This year they have the King of Comedies with minstrel skits, songs and dance numbers, all princes of their kind, to entertain you with. Oh boy, aren't we looking forward to Friday night, April 6. The admission is only fifteen and twenty-five cents.

You Juniors can count on every student being there, especially the seniors. They will support your play in typical Senior class style.

Who will be Miss Chilton County High School? A beauty contest, sponsored by the industrious Junior I class is almost over, only one more day is left for the votes to come in. This beauty contest closes at one o'clock tomorrow afternoon, so the class who wants its representative to win had better hustle. Each vote costs one cent and the proceeds of the contest will go into the library fund that the Jr. I class is raising.

Each of the six grades has an entrant. The entrant and their grades they are representing are, Jr. I, Theda Wyatt; Jr. II ..... Jr. III, Geraldine Deloach; Sr. I, Sarah Lawrence; Sr. II, Grace Plyler; and Sr. III, Maralyn Hardy.

Everyone is excited over what the outcome will be. The girl who will have the honor of being Miss C.C.H.S. will be announced next week.

Why should we make this a custom —to select the most beautiful girl in the school?

Another graduate shines at Auburn! Herman Harris, who was valedictorian of his class in 1932, was recently elected the president of his fraternity. This is a double honor, not only to be president of his fraternity, but this office is usually held by a senior. We're expecting big things from you, Herman.

The Senior III class led with the election of their annual Who's Who. Those students who were chosen to be honored this year are, best all around Jeanette Tiffin; cutest, Maralyn Hardy; most dignified, Roberta Cochran; neatest, Ova Lee McCutcheon; most popular, Pauline Plyler; friendliest, Pauline Plyler; most original, Mary Charles Cox; biggest flirt, Helen Moore; most independent, Jeanette Tiffin and best dressed for school, Ova Lee McCutcheon. The boys list is, best looking, James Arnold; best all around, Joe Moore; best athlete, James Tiffin; most dignified, Dan Smith; most popular, John Ezell; most loyal senior, Dan Smith; biggest heartbreaker, Grady Reynolds; laziest, T. H. Walton; friendliest, Jesse Frank Foshee.

Another step toward graduation exercises has been made by the Senior Class. Last Friday the ivitations, cards and diplomas were selected, and the orders will be sent in soon.

What's the matter with the Who's Who in other classes?

Chilton's first baseball game did turn out in a big way. Last Friday afternoon Chilton met Marbury High on the local diamond and true to our hopes, Chilton won. The final score was 10 to 5. Our next game will be at Marbury tomorrow. Let's have a larger crowd of students than we did last Friday. We play Jemison next Wednesday.

Who Am I? * * * Pauline Plyler was the Miss last week. Now strain your wits on this one. * * * I am an entrant in the beauty contest. I have good chances of winning. I have dark hair. Of course I am a girl. I drive a car. I have played basketball. Who am I?

The Senior II English class, under the direction of Miss Frances Gulledge, canot be too highly complimented on the splendid program in chapel last Friday. The subject of this program was the story of Stephen Collins Foster, the famous composer. He is known for such songs as "Old Black Joe," "Old Folks at Home," "My old Kentucky Home," and numerous other southern melodies. Students taking part on the program told of Mr. Foster's life and works. As each song was discussed the student body joined in with the class in singing a few verses. The program was unique in its subject matter and method of presentation and was fully enjoyed by all. Foster's song, "Oh, Suzanna," was sung by Myrtle Pitts and Sara Elizabeth Venable, and was one of the features of the program. The school was glad to have with them at this time Mrs. Percy Pitts, who played the accompainment for the duet.

Rev. M. Lockhart reports that the singing school at Refuge has started off in a great way. Prof. W. M. Devaughn is the teacher.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

Well, this old spring weather that we are now having seems to be giving some of us spring fever, but who would mind a little thing like that if they can enjoy God's Sunshine for a bit?

We met about two o'clock Sunday afternoon with our little Sunday school, with very good attendance. We were sorry however that part of the teachers were absent. We hope that they may be able to attend next Sunday. Let's remember that we will meet next Sunday at 10 o'clock, the regular hour.

We were glad to have with us some visitors from Sardis community. May they see fit to visit again, and also that others too, may visit us. Naturally, it being Easter, an egg hunt was given for the little folks after Sunday school.

We then returned to the church and the chairman called the society to order and we enjoyed singing for about an hour. Oh, that we may learn to sing from the heart, praise unto God, and not just merely from the lips. Especially that good old hymn entitled, "Have Thine Own Way Lord." And how Bro. Paul Oden can make that song sing. I do like to hear him sing this one. Pardon me for this personal reference, but I don't suppose that many know who I am anyway, except the editor and some few around here.

We expect to have with us next Sunday at 2 o'clock, Pilgrims Rest to sing for us. All lovers of music and singers are invited to come and be with us.

Depression? Did you ever hear of that anywhere before? Friends, there won't be any depression in heaven, so let's forget about it and do something for God. Try and go there to spend eternity. This life is short here on earth, so let's think about spiritual things and I just believe ole' man depression will soon die out. We would soon forget about it. Too many like to enjoy life too well, I fear, these days. So you see what a jamb we have gotten into. Just turn to God's word and you can find the remedy. If the wicked would forsake their evil ways and the unrighteous their evil thoughts and ways, what difference it would make. Who is going to be first to make the start? Or had we rather see the world in its uneasiness, with all kinds of codes and temporary remedies, not knowing where we are headed for than to honor God? What shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

There was an owl lived in an oak.
The more he saw, the less he spoke;
The less he spoke, the more he heard.
Why can't we be like that wise bird?

I know of no better way of being like that wise bird in the above poem than to go to church and listen to God's word preached. Will you?—A Member, T. G. Rucker.

Mr. Leo Brewster, accompanied by Mr. Julian Evans, spent the week end with Mr. Brewster's parents at Centreville.

"Mr. Jones," began the timid-looking young man, "er—ah—that is, can—er—I—will you—"

"Why, yes, my boy, you may have her," smiled the girl's father.

The young man gasped.

"What's that? Have whom?" He asked.

"My daughter, of course," replied Jones. "That's what you mean. You want to marry her, don't you?"

"Why, no," said the young man. "I just wanted to know if you could lend me $5.

"Certainly not!" said Jones, sharply. "Why, I hardly know you."

CHARLES ROBER WRITES

Editor Union-Banner:

To the voters of Chilton County, of which I am one: I am for Judge Reynolds. When Judge Reynolds took the office which he now holds, our county was on the verge of bankruptcy. Now what is it? It is one of the greatest counties in the state. My motive is when you have got a good man, keep him. We all make mistakes. I know I made a great one when I was foreman for the Alabama Power Company, and went to Bessemer contracting. I made three times as much money as the power company was paying, but in six months things died out, and I have always wished I had stayed with the power company.

Now you know what Judge Reynolds has done, and if you cast your ballot for him he will be the same as he has always been to you. Republicans, you have a leader in Judge Reynolds, who fears nothing and stands firm by the things that are honest, true and just. I am satisfied that every working man in Chilton County will agree with me. Go to the polls on May 1st and cast your ballot for Judge Reynolds. Boys, you have a grand party with a gallant leader, so let's keep him.

Experience is the best teacher and you know the judge has that. Now, in conclusion, you have it to yourself, and consider the matter thoroughly before casting your ballot. I am a carpenter by trade and in the world by myself, and I only publish this for you people who have never looked into what the judge has done for you. I am now in Shelby County doing a little work, but will be back in Chilton in time to cast One Big One for Judge Reynolds.—Yours truly, Chas. H. Rober, Chelsea, Ala.

Buying Drugs Blindfolded a Dangerous Thing

READY TO EXCHANGE WARRANTS FOR STATE SCHOOL BONDS NOW

County Superintendent of Education, Luther Little, states that Alabama five per cent refunding bonds have been received, with which to liquidate $36,000 of indebtedness of the Chilton County Board of Education which has been brought forward since 1932.

All holders of conditional warrants issued by the Chilton County Board of Education in 1932 should bring these warrants immediately in person to the office of Superintendent Little, and have them exchanged for state bonds.

PLYMOUTH CAR DELIVERIES SET NEW ALL-TIME RECORD

Detroit, March 30.—Plymouth Motor Corporation established a new all-time delivery record during the week ended March 24, H. G. Mooch, general sales manager, announced here today.

Sales to retail buyers totalled 7,845 units during the week, an increase of 3.3 per cent over the 7,594 units delivered during the previous peak week, ending Sept. 2, 1933.

Shipments of new Plymouth cars to dealers also reached new high levels. The corporation shipped 9,899 units during the week. This was a gain of 6.3 per cent over the previous week and was four and one-half times as many units as were shipped in the corresponding week a year ago.

Mooch said that the shipments from March 1, through March 27, this year, totalled 39,264 units, as compared with 6,454 units shipped during the entire month of March, 1933.

In announcing the new retail delivery record, Mooch revealed that Plymouth has received a total of 169,287 orders from dealers since January 1. This figure represents an increase of 398.34 per cent over the 33,970 orders at this time last year.

MAPLE SPRINGS

B. Y. P. U. was very well attended Sunday night. We did not have any Sunday school Sunday. Everybody wanted to be in time for the singing at Poplar Springs, but now let's everybody come back next Sunday and bring a well prepared lesson. Those who missed the singing Sunday missed a treat. We had a beautiful day and a wonderful singing. We enrolled several new members Sunday night. How glad we were to get them. Are you attending B. Y. P. U. at some place each Sunday night? If not, come and join us. We will be more than glad to have you.

Mrs. Bill Wise spent a while Thursday afternoon with Mrs. W. F. Glenn and daughters.

We are sorry to learn Mrs. Bill Davis is very sick. We hope she will soon be well again.

Mr. Holland Popwell and Mr. Aaron Guy spent a while Monday with Mr. Arthur Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise had as their week end guest Miss Ruth Wise from Cooper.

Misses Elsie and Lera Glenn had as their guest Sunday afternoon Miss Annie Ree Jones.

Miss Pearlie May Dennis spent a while Saturday afternoon with her sister, Mrs. Eunice Sandlin.

Mrs. Frank Guy spent Monday afternoon with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Mims.

Messrs. Ottis and Oliver Glenn visited friends in Fairview community Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mitchell visited the singing school at Chestnut Creek Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise had as their Monday night guest, Rev. W. E. Robinson.

PURSE EMPTY, RENT DUE, AND LADY LUCK SMILES

Once in every so many moons, Lady Luck, or whatever agencies destine the fate of man, deals a lucky hand and some mere mortal is the recipient of a gift that might have dropped from the laps of the gods.

Mrs. Bessie Griffin, Clanton, a widowed mother of several children, is willing to testify that the days of miracles have not passed, and that some agency still prepares miraculous pitchers.

Only a few days ago, Mrs. Griffin declares she was without food for herself and her children; two of the children were ill with measles; her rent was due and her purse was empty.

But a light shone through the clouds when she was notified that she had been awarded $25, given jointly by the Chilton County News and The Union-Banner in a contest in connection with the Kiwanis Trade Week which was staged a few weeks ago.

Thirty-seven other awards were made by Chilton County merchants who sponsored the trade event.

WALNUT CREEK

Rev. C. W. Walton, president of the Alabama Annual Conference, Methodist Protestant church, will make his official visit to Clanton Circuit on April 7 and 8. He will preach at Shady Grove Saturday at 11 o'clock, where the quarterly conference will be held in the afternoon. He will be at Walnut Crfeek for the evening, and also will preach at eleven o'clock Sunday morning. He will go from there to Cedar Grove, where he will preach Sunday night. Everyone is invited to attend these services.

Mell Martin, Malley White, Walter Bentley and D. A. Wingard spent Tuesday on Pennymotley. When they returned they had plenty of evidence that fish were biting fine.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR RESTORATION OF CITIZENSHIP

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Malcolm Ratliff, who was convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton County on November 11, 1927, for manufacturing whiskey, and sentenced to a term of one year and one day to 13 months in the penitentiary, will make application to the state board of pardons for restoration of his citizenship.—(Signed) — Malcolm Ratliff.

C. W. A. HISTORY

surveys. The triangulation markers will be the last word in setting land line disputes and incidentally may affect some county boundaries.

In constructive and efficient work, Washington has on several occasions, given recognition to the pace set in Alabama.

Throughout, Alabama was one of the few states in the Union in which no charge of graft was made and substantiated. Thousands of complaints were received, but each complaint was investigated to completion and full reports made.

The tenor of most of these complaints were that "I need a job more than my neighbor, and why can't I get one," or "There is politics in the CWA."

The Alabama organization from the outset recognized the difficulty of preventing a politician from playing politics whenever an opportunity was presented, and exerted its utmost effort to prevent political pressure. The county CWA director, for instance, was chosen from another county and was a stranger to the people among whom he worked. Despite these precautions, however, a few politicians wedged in but as rapidly as these situations were revealed, they were corrected.

Thad Holt, director of the CWA, attributes the success of the program principally to those who worked with him. But the greater part of the success and the fact that Alabama perhaps can match any state in the union for constructive work done per dollar expended, lies in Mr. Holt's ability to expended, lies in Mr. Holt's ability to choose competent men to do the job.

Virtually all of the county CWA directors were engineers of years of experience and training. Most of them before the depression, drew salaries as high as $10,000 a year. The same applies to the men in the state organization.

SINGING CONVENTION FOURTH SUNDAY IN APRIL, COURTHOUSE

By request of Prof. O. L. Devaughn chairman of the Chilton County singing convention, we are announcing that the spring session of the convention will meet at the courthouse in Clanton all day Sunday, April 22nd. Arrangements are being made to have some visiting singers and quartets here at that time. The Vaughan publishers of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., have already promised to have a representation at the convention, very likely one of their quartets. Probably some of the other publishing houses of the South will be represented.

Prof. Devaughn urges the singers of the county to co-operate with him in making this convention one of the best. Singers of adjoining counties are being notified, and will be expected to be well represented.

OLD FOLKS MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP 5TH SUNDAY

Mr. J. Dudley Collins of Friendship community asks The Union-Banner to announce that the annual old folks and ministers meeting will be held at Friendship church the fifth Sunday in April. This meeting last year was the best ever held up to that time, and it is hoped that this year it will be even better and more largely attended. An invitation is extended all old people and ministers of all denominations.

FOSHEE-JONES MARRIAGE

A marriage of interest to many friends in Chilton County was performed about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning by Dr. S. J. Ezell at his home in Clanton, when he solemnized the union of Mr. John W. Foshee of Maplesville and Mrs. Anna R. Jones, of Clanton, as husband and wife.

The many friends of the contracting parties join in extending congratulations and best wishes.

Fishermen might do well to keep an eye skint for rattlesnakes as they venture forth into the woodlands around stream or lake. Andy Jones got afoul of a big one near Crumpton's camp Tuesday.

FOREST FIRES NOT OVER

Montgomery, Ala.—The first three months of the calendar year have comprised quite an unusual fire season, it is announced by the Alabama State Commission of Forestry. One of the reasons was the irregular precipitation. It is pointed out that it is not so much the amount of rainfall that reduces the natural fire hazard as it is the distribution, both as to place and time. It is peculiar of Alabama weather that several inches of rain may fall at a particular point in a few hours, while within a very short distance there may be no precipitation whatever. Any particular locality may show a substantial rainfall for the month, but all of this is likely to occur on two or three days instead of being distributed throughout the month at short intervals. Such conditions as these permit severe dryness in many locaities and add greatly to the fire damage

Another element that entered into the situation is a psychological one. With a considerable number of President Roosevelt's forestry camps scattered about the state, many landowners conceived that they might relax their own vigilance somewhat in the protection of their holdings. This, of course, is seriously in error, since there is no circumstance whatever that can take the place of prompt and energetic action on the part of the landowner, his tenants and employees in the prevention and immediate suppression of fires on hi s holdings.

Re-Employment Offices Merged

Chilton County Office Closed. Mr. Stokes Transferred To Talladega

Consolidation of national reemployment offices in counties in Alabama into 15 district offices was announced yesterday by A. J. Speer, Alabama reemployment director.

The district offices will be located in strategic centers to continue to provide employes for Public Works Administration projects, which include all Federal highway construction.

Among towns in which the district offices will be located are Montgomery, Selma, Mobile, Anniston and Birmingham.

In the Montgomery district will be included also the counties of Autauga, Chilton, Coosa, Elmore, Lowndes and Bullock.

Mr. Speer also announced the appointment of John B. Bethea, Jr., formerly manager of the St. Clair County reemployment office, as manager of the Montgomery district office.

C. A. Dart, Jr., formerly manager of the Montgomery office, will be assistant district manager.

Mr. Bethea is a World War veteran and was formerly executive secretary of the Scottish Rite bodies of North Alabama and secretary of the Masonic Temple and the Association of Public School Allies of Alabama.

Mr. Speer said that every effort was being made to strengthen the reemployment service, which aside from supplying labor to public works enterprise and to private industry without charges, has amassed important figures on the unemployment situation in Alabama. These figures show the number of persons without employment and the types of work in which they are skilled.

Rev. P. G. Carter, former pastor of Clanton Baptist Church, will preach at the Jemison Baptist church next Sunday and Sunday night. An earnest invitation is extended to all to attend the services.

REV. M. LOCKHART AND OTTIS MURPHY GET BIG SACK FLOUR

Somebody is going to have biscuits and more biscuits for the coming several weeks, and at a minimum cost too—or rather at no cost at all. Lady Luck was the doner; or did these lucky guys earn the flour by being able to estimate weights accurately by merely looking at the object?

The weight of the big sack was exactly 316 pounds, and only two fellows guessed that number—Rev. M. Lockhart and Ottis Murphy. Therefore, the sack was divided in half and 158 pounds given each, or at least the division will be made when the parties call at Clanton Cash Store.

By figuring a little you will find that the big sack contained thirteen and one-sixth 24-pound sacks. Figuring by barrels, the big sack contained 1.657 barrels, or nearly one and two-thirds barrels.

The brand was "Lite Flake" put up by the Abilene Flour Mills Co., of Abilene, Kansas. Everyone who bought a small sack of this flour for the past three weeks was permitted to guess at the weight of the big sack.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR OF THE KIWANIS IS COMING THURSDAY

The Kiwanis Club of Clanton will be honored at its meeting Thursday night by the attendance of Sam Heiburn, of Montgomery, who is Lieutenant Governor of the Third Division of the Alabama District.

This will be the official visitation of our Lieutenant Governor for this year, and all members of the club are expected to attend.

Mrs. J. Watts Moore, Helen and Joe, were in Montgomery Saturday.

Ad in paper—Position wanted about March 1. At present time employed at City Hall, but will work if I have to.

End Of C. W. A. Here Is Officially Declared

Final and Complete Report of Operations Prepared and Submitted By County Director, Armistead Leake

In the following article we will try to give a history of the operations of the Civil Works Administration in Chilton County. In previous articles we have given figures on several of the projects, estimates on others, and have tried to point out the worth of the CWA to the county, both in money and in material improvement.

In this article we intend to comment on each phase of the work, and to give further figures. We will show how the several heads under which the work has been carried forward have cooperated at all times, all looking to the best interest of the people of the county, and of the work in hand.

The Civil Works Administration has finished its work here. The officials of our county, the head of the relief organization, and the head of the local CWA have worked in perfect harmony at all times. They have discussed all problems that have arisen, and followed the course that they have deemed wisest. They have made some mistakes. After all, they are human. But so smooth has been the operation of this gigantic undertaking, that we feel that the officials merit applause for the manner in which they have carried out their work, rather than censure for any inconsequential errors. We believe we can speak for Chilton County in offering such applause to these officials, and we have condemnation to offer.

So much for that. As we set forth the facts, we believe the worth of the CWA will be apparent to all, without our speaking further of it. In addition to the CWA, the county officials, the relief officials, and others in charge, we also offer a word of commendation to those citizens of Chilton County who have given, unsparingly, of their time and means in helping to make of the whole great undertaking the success that it has been.

Officials

Beginning November 18, 1933, and closing March 31, 1934, the CWA program has been carried forward under the following officials. County CWA Board, L. H. Reynolds, Chairman; Luther E. Little, Charles Duke. Director of Social Relief, Miss Kitty Clyde Austin. Manager Reemployment Office, Cecil G. Stokes. Disbursing Officer, F. J. Callen (November 18, to January 13), and F. L. Harris. County C. W. A. Directors, R. L. Pittman (November 18, to January 31); E. J. McCrossin (February 1 to February 9); Armistead Leake (February 10 to finish of program). County CWA Engineer, John A. Bridges. Cooperating with the above were the following: County Board of Commissioners, L. H. Heynolds, judge of probate; Charles Duke, Joseph E. Cobb, J. C. Atchison, Grover Bice (acting in place of J. M. Mims), and H. E. Robinson (anpointed after death of Mr. Mims). County Engineer, T. J. Arledge. Superintendent of Education, Luther E. Little. Numerous citizens of the county helped in every way possible, in donations of money, materials and labor.

Projects

There were 24 completed projects, covering all kinds of work, reemployment, surveys, drainage, road and bridge projects, and others. In addition to these, 24 other projects were left incomplete, necessitated by quota reductions, and the stopping of the program. The percentage of completion on these projects ranged from the School Cleaning Project, 19 per cent complete, to the Enterprise School Auditorium, 98 per cent complete. These incomplete projects included other surveys, buildings, roads, drainage, the Clanton airport, school grounds, and others. There were 10 projects approved which were never started, because of lack of time. There were other suggested projects which were never approved.

Money Spent

The following figures are taken from the final report given by Mr. Armistead Leake, Director of the CWA for Chilton County. These figures are final and authentic.

The total expenditures on the CWA program by the several contributing agencies were as follows. CWA Labor, $107,712.27; materials and other costs, $12,569.01; total $120,281.28. Chilton County, cash, $15,506.21; donations (materials and equipment), $10,145.31; total, $25,651.52. Board of Education, and local communities: cash, $8,990.26; donations, materials, equipment and labor, $4,418.99; total, $13,409.25. Total spent in Chilton County for CWA program, $159,342.05. The total of contributions within the county to the program, by the county, the board of education, and local communities and citizens was $39,060.77.

Number of Workers

The number of workers varied at different stages of the program. Below we give the numbers of workers during these different periods. Nov. 18 to Dec. 15—805 workers; Dec. 16 to Dec. 22—845; Dec. 23 to Dec. 29—830; Dec. 30 to Jan. 10—855; Jan. 11 to Jan. 19—880; Jan. 20 to Feb. 8—

Obituaries and Poetry

The Union-Banner continuously receives a flood of long obituaries and poetry regarding deceased loved ones. Some of these we use and some we are compelled to leave out. We leave them out not because we want to but because we are compelled to. When we do fail to print such articles, we do not want our friends to get offended at us.

We know that the families and close friends of deceased ones like to see long eulogies about their loved ones, but we have to look at such things from the standpoint of the general public. In other words, we ask ourselves the question: "Will the majority of our readers be interested in reading these articles, or will it interest only the close relatives and friends of such party?"

We want to print a paper that is of as much general interest as possible to all of our readers. With this in view, we urge our friends over the county and elsewhere to make their obituaries and poems as brief as possible. Lots of papers charge for inserting such articles, and we may have to adopt the same plan.

BERRY SHIPMENT SOON TO START

Car Loads Will Begin To Move About the 23rd of This Month

According to an opinion expressed by Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, it is indicated that car load shipments of strawberries will begin to move from Clanton about April 23. Some berries in small quantities are expected to come in within the next week, with perhaps some express shipments made to nearby markets.

Condition of the berry acreage in this section is extra fine. The cool nights are holding the crop back a little, and a good rain is needed to speed up fruiting of the plants.

Dief says he has had more inquiries from the markets this year than ever before, and indications are that the price will be satisfactory for the season. Acreage in South Alabama has decreased this year, while that of the Louisiana district has increased some.

Buyers have already been here making investigations and inquiries about the crop in this section. They will have representatives on the spot when car shipments are ready. Mr. Farrell of the freight department of the L. & N. Railroad was here last week checking up on the shipping facilities.

About 60 cars to be shipped from Clanton this year is the estimate of Mr. Diefenderfer, who is manager of the Clanton Berry Growers Association. Growers of the Stanton and Maplesville districts will ship from here with the Clanton growers. "We shipped 70 cars last year," said Dief, "and we could have reached 100 cars if the growers had picked their berries on Saturdays instead of wasting their time coming to town and letting the berries grow too ripe."

Information has been received estimating that 35 to 40 cars will be shipped from Thorsby this year, and around 20 cars from Jemison.

Time Extended For Tax Payers

Collector Culp Will Extend Every Possible Aid As He Did Last Year

Tax Collector, W. G. Culp, announces that he will make extension of the time in which people will have to pay their taxes, in a manner similar to that which he adopted last year.

While no definite date of the time extension is stated, Mr. Culp intimated that he will be just as liberal as he possibly can under the law, and will extend every opportunity to the taxpayers to take care of their taxes before resorting to the sale provisions that are authorized for delinquents.

It will be recalled that the policy adopted by Mr. Culp in handling delinquent taxes last year made it possible for many people to handle their tax matters without serious inconvenience.

Our people will be glad to know that they shall again this year have the same liberal policy extended to them by the Tax Collector.

PREACHING AT SAMARIA

Rev. J. W. Jones, pastor, wishes his members and the public in general to be reminded that next Sunday and Sunday night are the regular hours of worship at Samaria Baptist church.

Furthermore, he earnestly hopes that all will attend the services.

$160,000 RENTAL TO OUR FARMERS

Representing Increase of $10,000 Over Amount Paid To the Growers In 1933

United States government rentals will pay the cotton farmers of Chilton County approximately $160,000 this year, according to figures released by County Agent, J. W. Fant, compared to $150,000 rentals paid in the county during 1933.

Based on the normal average the county's production of cotton this year will be 11,000 bales, compared to the average crop of 18,000 bales.

The cotton acreage reduction program of the Federal Government has become an outstanding phase of agricultural activity in Chilton County during the past year. In the summer of 1933, when every effort was being made toward the conception and success of the plow-up campaign, few counties in the State gave more whole-hearted support to this program than did Chilton.

Rallying around their leader, C. E. Stapp, the farmers joined in the 1933 cotton program, responding a hundred per cent toward the success of the same. Again this year, under the able direction of County Agent, J. W. Fant, our farmers have shown the same splendid spirit of co-operation in the government's efforts to assist them.

The program of production curtailment has received full endorsement and support from our cotton farmers. Figures released by Mr. Fant show that the county's cotton acreage has been reduced by about 40 per cent through the application of the 1934 program. The approximately normal crop of 42,000 acres has been reduced by some 16,000 acres, leaving only 35,200 acres to be cultivated in the staple this year.

Mr. Fant states that contracts have been received from the local adjustment board, and are now ready for final approval of the growers before they are sent to Washington.

J. H. Williams Gets A Step Up

Clanton Man Appointed As Bank Supt. of the State of Alabama

J. H. Williams, deputy state superintendent of banks since November 16, 1932, Saturday was promoted by Governor B. M. Miller to head the department, succeeding H. H. Montgomery, who resigned April 1 to accept a position with the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans.

Miss Addie Lee Farish, a product of Womans college and long experienced in the banking business, was promoted from office assistant to deputy superintendent.

Widely Experienced

Mr. Williams, whose appointment as superintendent was effective immediately, is a native of Chilton County, where he received his early education. His banking career dates back to 1911 and has included wide experience with both state and national banks.

Since his early manhood the new superintendent has taken an active part in the progress of financial institutions and at one time taught a course in the American Institute of Banking. For 10 years prior to coming to the department in 1929 as an examiner he was cashier of the Citizens Bank of Guntersville. He was appointed deputy superintendent under Mr. Montgomery November 16, 1932.

Miss Farish was educated at Woman's College of Alabama and for more than 10 years was connected with the Bank of Camden, her home town, as bookkeeper, assistant cashier and finally cashier. She was appointed office assistant in the state banking department in February, 1931, shortly after Governor Miller took office.

Mr. Williams had been recommended highly for the position of superintendent by financial leaders over the state.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION NEXT SATURDAY AT COURTHOUSE

Next Saturday night, April14, is the time heretofore set for the fiddlers convention at the courthouse. The committee of the American Legion sponsoring this entertainment say they are working out details of the program, and have assurance of a fine program to present.

All fiddlers, musicians and entertainers are invited to come and participate. There will be prizes for everyone.

While the price of admission is not yet announced, it is certain that it will be small enough to permit any and everyone to see the show. Everybody come and have a big time.

Prof. L. M. (Red) Harden is planning on beginning a singing school at Shady Grove, on the Mitchell Dam road, beginning next Monday night.

SCHOOL TEACHER WRITES CONCERNING CHAS. COOPER

In last week's issue of The Union-Banner I read with great pride the questionaire sent out by the Chilton County Teachers Association.

We are glad to note that the teachers association is joining other associations in the matter of trying to get a line-up on the candidates for the legislature.

We all should be familiar with the fact that it is not the governor, the probate judge, nor the county superintendent of education that makes the laws by which the teachers are governed. It is the members of the legislature that make the laws.

I am personally acquainted with Mr. Chas. Cooper, who is a candidate for representative of Chilton County. He is chairman of the board of trustees where I have been for a number of years and I have never seen a trustee who has taken more interest in schools than Mr. Cooper has.

He believes in giving school teachers a "square deal." So in sending Mr. Cooper to the legislature we, the school teachers, the school children and the schol patrons will have a real friend in the legislature.

Mr. Cooper has taught school some himself, and now has three children in school. He is a square shooter, and believes in doing the right thing. —Respectfully submitted, Mrs. Marion McGalliard, teacher of Morganville school, located one mile north of Mt. Creek.

IN MEMORMY OF GATSY WELLS

From our care our heavenly father took away our loved one dear. In her home across the river she'll be free from every fear. We shall meet her, yes, we'll meet her in those mansions built on high in that blessed home eternal we shall meet her bye and bye.

We miss her, oh, we miss her, but she's only gone before. By God's grace we'll meet her in heaven where sad partings come no more. It sigeth low in every heart; we hear it each and all. A song of her who answers not, however we may call. It is hard to take the burden up, when she has laid it down. She brightened all the joy of life, she softened every frown, but, but, oh, tis sweet to think of her when we are troubled; thanks be to God that such have been tho.

She is here no more, sleep on dear one, enjoy your rest. Your soul is now at home, among the true, the pure and blest, where sorrow cannot come. Sleep on, dear one, the storms may sweep, but shall not harm you more. Where you are now you will not weep, and sighing all is o'er. Oh, living friend, you too, must pay the debt our friend has paid. So be prepared to meet the day when low you must be laid.—Written by one who loved her.

FOR MEMBER OF CONGRESS

I wish to represent you in Congress from the Sixth Congressional District, composed of Bibb, Chilton, Green, Hale, Perry, Shelby, Sumpter and Tuscaloosa Counties. I pledge my best efforts to serve my district, my party and my nation well. I want your vote and influence. Thank you.

PETE B. JARMAN, JR.

Percy Pitts Lays Case Before Voters

To the Chilton County Teachers Association:

As a candidate for member of the legislature, subject to the action of the Republican primary to be held May 1, in compliance with your request of April 5, pertaining to my ideas and opinion regarding public education, I hereby submit the following:

1. Every boy and girl should have an equal chance for at least a high school education. This should be furnished by Alabama at the expense of our state, free of charge, including incidental fees. Many of our states have free schools and free text books. I believe that Alabama is able and could furnish at least free schools, in view of the fact that we have compulsory school attendance law in Alabama, this should be done. I believe that the greatest obligatoin any county or state has today is the education of our girls and boys, the women and men of tomorrow.

As to our high institutions of learning, including three state colleges and five normal colleges, from my observation in the past, I am convinced that possibly they are and have been spending too much money in the past in erecting palatial buildings and equipment at too much cost per student, as compared with the expenditure of our elementary schools. I am not against our higher institutions of learning; however, I believe our elementary schools in the past have suffered at the expense of higher institutions of leaning. In recent months no one heard of either of the higher institutions of learning, supported by the state, closing their doors, as this happened to many of our elementary schools by reason of insufficient funds.

2. I am not familiar with the California law; however, I will say that proper appropriations should not only be made first for our public schools, but should also be paid first.

3. I do not agree with the ruling of the Attorney General which recoghizes education as a secondary rather than primary function of the state government. Many attorneys disagree with his interpretation of the law, and certainly if his ruling is correct the law should be amended at the next meeting of the legislature. I believe you will agree with me that it is morally wrong, if not legally wrong.

4. I favor providing every community in the state a minimum educational program of at least seven months each year.

5. From my observation and experience in the legislature I am convinced that our state Education Department could function properly with about one third of the high priced employees they now have and have had on their payroll. For your information, the state educational department at Montgomery has so many employees, including various directors and specialists, that it is necessary for the State of Alabama to provide two large two-story buildings to provide office space for these employees. Each one of these buildings is approximately the size of our county courthouse. Much money could be saved here, and the money saved by this method could be very useful to our schools, also in my judgment, with the economy practiced in all departments of the state, together with the Fletcher Budget Bill written into our Constitution, the income tax amendment taking care of our indebtedness, our revenue derived from present taxes will relieve the financial plight of our schools; provided, also, adequate laws providing certain revenue that we are receiving shall go exclusively to the elementary schools. This apparently has been overlooked at the expense of the schools.

6. "A man is judged by his past record." Of the many times your organization or members of your organization have called upon me in behalf of the schools of this county and state in the past, I only recall one instance in which I could not grant your request. At this time a few members of your organization requested that I vote for the consumer's sale tax, which, as you know, I fought on the floor of the House of Representatives, because I thought it was unfair and unjust during these depressing times to put this tax on the shoulders of the poor man. When the income tax came up, after several attempts, we voted to submit the income tax to the vote of the people. This tax only affected the net income of the individual. It was my pleasure both as a member of the legislature, citizen and a voter, to use my best effort in behalf of the proposed amendment which was ratified in the recent election and is now bringing into the state treasury approximately $500,000 yearly, and only affects those who are able to pay.

I believe by reason of my experience as a member of the present legislature and by reason of my knowledge of the affairs of the state and county that I am better fitted than ever to be of service to my county and state in our law-making body. Of course you realize that there are 106 members of the House of Representatives and it is necessary to have the majority of this number to insure the passage of any measure in that body.

Thanking you for any consideration you may give my candidacy as your representative in the legislature of 1935, I am.—Respectfully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

DANIEL FOR SUPERINTENDENT

Dear Editor:

In behalf of my friend, Mr. J. E. Daniel, I wish to say a few words through your paper to the voters of Chilton County, especially to the voters who have not had the opportunity of knowing Mr. Daniel personally. I have had the pleasure of knowing Mr. Daniel for several years. I know him to be an honest, straightforward citizen, and his character is above reproach in every respect.

It has been the good fortune of Maplesville high school to have him as principal for the past three years, and I would like to mention a few of the things done for the schoole. By a strong, sincere effort on the part of Mr. Daniel, the school has been placed on the list of accredited high schools. In order to do this a new room was built, the science laboratory, home economies department, manual training shop and library were brought up to the standard requirements of the state. Last but not least, he carried out a school program which was highly accepted by the state board of education. Mr. Daniel is greatly commended by the community for his success in the bulding up of Maplesville school.

I also wish to say to all my ex-service "buddies" that Mr. Daniel did his part during the World War. At the close of the war he was in an officer's training camp at Jacksonville, Alabama waiting for a call from Uncle Sam to go across and help protect our country.

I wish to say that I am not a politician, as some might think politics is my motive for writing this article. I am contented with the humble position I have. I am simply interested in the welfare of our children both spiritually and educationally. The scripture says that people perish for lack of knowledge.

I believe we have in Mr. Daniel a man competent to impart knowledge to others and to inspire the teachers of our county to render the best service. I hope that every voter in our county will read his platform and give it careful consideration before voting.—Yours truly, J. R. Bearden.

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

No man ever found happiness looking for it. The man who deliberately chooses to travel the road of duty will sometimes on that road stumble over happiness. He will not be looking for it. He will not even be thinking about it, but he will suddenly discover that he has found happiness on the road of life's duty.

The Bible speaks of the second coming of Christ as the blessed hope of the Christian. It is the blessed hope. There is something in the human heart that rebels at the thought of death. The normal man doesn't wish to die. God put in the human heart a love of life. I hope Jesus will come in my life-time. I do not want to wear a shroud and I don't care to die. I am sure, however, if Jesus tarries and I have to die, that I will have dying grace. There is no sting in death for a Christian. If I die, then when Jesus comes, my body will be raised from the dead. All Christians who are alive at the coming of Jesus will be translated to meet the Lord in the air. We will be changed in a moment. We will not have to die. "The dead in Christ shall rise first." Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds. When Jesus comes you will note that the righteous dead will get up before living Christians are translated. It seems to be the Lord's way of compensating those of His own who had to die. Jesus is coming sometime. He may come in my lifetime. I hope He will. I had rather go to heaven by way of the uptaker than to go by way of the undertaker.

"Will I know my loved ones in heaven?" How many times have we heard that question? All we know is that we are to be intelligent in heaven and we ought to know as much there as we know here. The Bible teaches that we shall know even as we are known. It is my opinion that heaven is going to be far more real than some of us have imagined. We often have such ghost ideas of the hereafter. I think in heaven we shall have our friendships. "There is no marrying and giving in marriage." In other words, life is no longer based on the sex relation. I think the real affinity of souls will abide forever. I will have an attachment, I believe, for my mother and my father up there. I believe that all of our real soul qualities will go with us to eternity. There will be no sin and no jealousies. There will be no misunderstanding and there will be no strife. "That which is seen is temporal. That which is unseen is eternal." Pure love and friendship and all things that make for nobility of the soul we will have in the world to come. I am looking forward with great joy to visiting with some of my friends who have gone on before me.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

Univresity, Ala., April 10.—More than 100 boys and girls from Alabama high schools will come to the University of Alabama campus from April 10 to 14, to attend the annual debating tournament held at the Capstone. The question will be "Resolved, that the United States should adopt the essential features of the British System of Radio Control and Operation." Two groups will participate in the tournament. Schools in towns up to 10,000 population will debate on Tuesday, April 10, to Thursday, April 14. School representatives from towns of over 10,000 will speak from Thursday to Saturday. The winning team of both groups will be given one-year scholarships to the University of Alabama.

A total of 254,014 women and girls were gainfully employed in Alabama in 1930 as compared with 314,330 in 1910, according to a study by the bureau of business research of the school of Commerce, University of Alabama. There were 104,445 women and girls employed in agriculture.

Sherman Rogers, associate editor of the Liberty Magazine and director of the National Recovery Crusade, spoke before an assembly of students Thursday morning, April 5. Mr. Rogers declared that right here in this country we have the greatest undeveloped market in the world for our products. "For five years," he said, "one hundred and twenty-three million Americans have not had enough to eat nor enough clothing to wear. What we must do is to increase the purchasing power of our country. We are coming out of this depression one hundred per cent or we are not going to come out at all. Our people must get together and lay aside their petty hatred else the efforts of our great president will be in vain."

DISTRICT B. Y. P. U. CONVENTION

Over 200 B. Y. P. U. members form Eastern Alabama will attend the thirteenth annual Eastern District B. Y. P. U. Convention that will meet with the First Baptist church of Talladega Alabama, Dr. J. M. Thomas, pastor. The first session of this meeting will begin at seven o'clock on the night of April 24. The closing message will be brought on the night of April 25.

The Convention theme will be "Ready To Do His Will." This will be stressed in every message of the convention. The four devotionals will also emphasize the theme, the devotional subjects being "O, Zion Haste," "Oh Love That Will Not Let me Go," "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations" and "I'll Go Where You Want Me to Go."

Mr. W. A. Harrell, of Nashville, Tennessee, will bring the opening message of the convention. Others appearing on this program will be Mr. Davis Cooper, Jr., director of the department of education and training, Montgomery; Mr. Henry C. Rogers, state B. Y. P. U. field worker, Montgomery; Mrs. Henry C. Rogers, state convention junior-intermediate B. Y. P. U. leader, Montgomery; Mrs. T. M. Floyd, manager of the state Baptist Book Store, Birmingham; Miss Hazel Kyle, Birmingham; Miss Mary Ellen Caver, former missionary to Africa; and Rev. Leroy Priest, Attalla.

A unique feature of this convention will be the Junior and Intermediate Sword Drill contests.

Mrs. Henry Wadkins, of Phenix City, is president of this district and Miss Velma Kennedy, of Alexander City, is the Junior-Intermediate leader.

Delegates will be entertained on the Harvard plan and will pay a fifty cent registration fee.

The Home and Foreign Field Campaign and the Missionary Reading Course will be launched at this convention.

L. H. REYNOLDS

Candidate for Probate Judge of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republican Primary, May 1, 1934

To the Voters of Chilton County, Alabama:

In submitting to you my candidacy for nomination in the Republican primary on May 1st, I deem it proper that I give a brief review of my record, and the things accomplished by the county since you honored me by electing me as Judge of Probate. I have always advocated a candidate stating openly and publicly his views, both in public speakings and by writings, in order that all of the people might know his policies and accomplishments. In this way the people are more likely to know the qualifications and record of the man elected to office.

Being in the midst of a severe financial depression, with every voter and every business oppressed on every side with financial troubles, and many of our people in Chilton County actually in need, it is highly important that before nominating or electing any official to office that each voter should be concerned with that candidate's qualifications to render the greatest service to the people, and one who is most able to run the affairs of the county with the least possible expense to the taxpayers. Within the history of Chilton County there has not been a time when this thought should be more carefully weighed by the voters. Taxes are unreasonably high, governmental expenses upon the taxpayer have borne him to his knees. This burden upon the taxpayer in Chilton County has been lightened some, but it must be further lifted from the taxpayer's shoulders. The running expense of the county must continue to be cut down as much as possible, and that candidate should be given careful consideration who is most able to help and assist in getting every penny of assistance for our county from both State and National Government. This is a time for facts, service and experience.

County Indebtedness

It is within the memory of many voters of the county that when I entered office in 1917 the county owed approximately $238,000.00. At that time those who served as jurors and had county warrants were compelled to discount them as much as 50 per cent. The county was thus compelled to do business on credit and pay exorbitant prices for everything purchased. In my promises to you then I told you that I would not put the county further in debt and I would advocate and work for paying the debt which the county already owed. The bonded indebtedness of the county was $200,000, costing the taxpayers, in interest, $10,000 per year. This debt has been reduced under my administration to $81,000, a saving now of over $5,500 each year to the taxpayers in interest alone. During all of this time the county has been working on a cash basis, and during all of the time that I have served as Judge of Probate, no person has ever had to discount any county claim of any nature whatever. They have always been paid immediately and 100 cents in the dollar. As stated above, the people of the county should demand the facts, and I am pleased to submit to the people that by the practice of rigid economy during my terms of office we have accomplished results.

Out of a list of fifty counties in Alabama, as shown by The Birmingham News (a Democratic paper) of April 1st, 1934, Chilton County stands second in the smallest indebtedness per person. In other words, our county is only excelled by one county, the county of Hale, in the smallness of the indebtedness per person. Out of this entire list of fifty counties only one county, that of Hale, has a smaller total indebtedness, bonded or otherwise, than Chilton County. The indebtedness of Hale is $75,000, and that of Chilton is $81,000.

I submit to the voters that no better argument could be made than that this county has been economically operated and for the best interest of the taxpayers. I have this list in my office and will be glad to show it to whoever might call by to see it. It has been said, "By their fruits you shall know them." During this time we have also erected a new courthouse, the jail has been rebuilt, and a good system of roads to every man's house in the county. All of this has been paid for out of the income of the county, with no additional indebtedness.

Reduction of Taxes

I am not a member of the Board of Review which hears taxpayers' appeals for the reduction of taxes, but I have for the past two years through the county papers advised the taxpayers how to properly ask the Board of Review to have their taxes reduced. I have had blanks printed for this purpose and have assisted the taxpayers in filling out these blanks free of charge. I have used my influence and means in every way possible to reduce taxes, and I might say that in the past two years the taxes of some four or five hundred taxpayers have been reduced. If I am nominated and elected to the office of Judge of Probate, I will continue to use every effort possible to reduce taxes as low as possible consistent with the proper and efficient operation of the affairs of the county. In this connection also, the Probate Judge is Chairman of the Court of County Commissioners, and in this way assists and aids the Commissioners Court in disbursing the funds of the county. Of course, the more economically the money of the county is spent, the more the taxes of the county can be reduced.

Schools

It his always been my policy and shall continue to be to render whatever assistance possible to our schools. I have always advocated a free school to every child in the county and I have advocated before the Commissioners Court donating funds to many of the schools over the county who make application to the Commissioners Court for help. It will be my policy in the future to aid and assist the schools as far as consistent with the revenue of the county.

Roads

Chilton County has a road system excelled by few counties of the state. I have advocated in the past equal distribution in spending the road funds throughout the entire county impartially, and providing a good road to every man's door. I believe the roads themselves throughout the county will evidence this accomplishment. I have always advocated purchasing as little road machinery as possible in order that the money may be spent with people in the county; that their labor might be used upon the roads and their teams and trucks might be used and thus spending and paying the greatest portion of this money out at home with our people.

Care of the Old and Needy

Under my administration the county almshouse has been improved, new buildings erected, and the quarters made as comfortable as the average home of Chilton County. The county is caring for the old and needy not only in the almshouse, but in private families, and the county is now paying a monthly compensation to around 51 people outside the almshouse, who, by age or misfortune, are unable to provide for themselves. It shall be my policy, if elected, both as an official and privately, to aid human suffering wherever it may be found, and to advocate that the county make adequate provisions for the care of our old and needy citizens so that they may be supplied with all necessary food, clothing and shelter during their declining years.

County Affairs

I have promised in the past to conduct the affairs of the county in a systematic and business like manner, giving to every person, regardless of politics, a square deal. I submit my record to the voters of the county as to whether or not I have kept this promise. If I am nominated and re-elected, I shall continue to conduct the office in a businesslike and fair manner, showing courtesy and efficiency to every person.

R. F. C. and C. W. A.

During the past six years, Chilton County has been stricken, as the rest of the world, with a serious and most devastating panic, as well as the disastrous storm which took many lives and did much property damage in 1932. I was elected Chairman of the Red Cross Building Committee of Chilton County, and for several months I assisted, at my own expense, and donated considerable funds towards re-building this property and re-supplying the stricken people of the storm, and as far as property loss is concerned, our people were placed back in as fair position as they were prior to the storm.

Several months before the RFC and CWA laws were passed, at my own expense, I visited several places in the county and registered the needy and unemployed. We were making every effort possible to take care of these people by giving them work by the assistance of the Red Cross. As soon as the RFC came into existence, which was about November 20, 1932, and early in December I made application for $50,000, for the purpose of providing relief for the needy and unemployed. On account of the opposition of some of the officials of the county to this application this money could not be secured for several months. Finally, after mass meetings were held, this question was submitted to the voters of the county and adopted and recommended by them. Due to the opposition and campaign made against the county applying for this money, the first payment was not received until late in the spring of 1933. The county thereby lost several thousand dollars of this money. To the present date the total of something like $250,000 has been received as a free gift to our county and paid out to the needy and unemployed. In addition to this, many thousands of dollars have been given away in food and clothing.

The RFC was replaced by the CWA about November 20, 1933. We were one of the first counties to put our allotted quota to work. After that time we added to our list of workers until there were approximately 1,300 people on the payroll and about 800 on the relief rolls and something like $12,000 to $15,000 per week was paid to the citizens of our county by the federal government. The county received substantial benefit from this in road projects, drainage projects and the building of schoolhouses and other work in the county, and all without any substantial cost to the taxpayers of the county. It is astounding to say that some of the officials of the county and some who are now opposing my candidacy for this office, were making speeches and advising against the county getting this money for the needy and unemployed. Did those who opposed the county receiving this money from the government do this because they were unwilling for the needy to have jobs and food and clothing, or did they do it for political reasons?

An official can render as much service outside of the official duties of his office, for which he draws no pay, as he can by adhering strictly to the duties of his office. In the past few years and during the depression this has especially been the case with me and my office, because the needs of the people went greatly beyond the duties of the office of the Judge of Probate. Probably half of my time for the past two or three years has been spent with matters not pertaining to the office, for which I received no pay, in helping and assisting the people of the county in getting funds, food and clothing from the Red Cross, CWA and RFC. All of this was done without one penny of compensation to myself and without even my expenses being paid. When people are hungry, and when the women and children of our county are suffering from the cold of the winter, without sufficient clothing, and when men are without jobs and have no means to provide for their families, it is no time for political squabbling, but a time for action, and that was my policy then. I commenced to work and secure for my people every penny of money, food or clothing that we could possible get for them. Our people now, I believe, are in better condition and great credit is due to the federal government for the aid and assistance given to us. It shall be my policy, if nominated and elected, with the experience and cooperation that I have had with the relief agencies and the state and federal governments in their relief administrations, to continue to help secure for Chilton County every dollar, and all food and clothing that is due us.

At the present time there are 843 people on the relief rolls of Chilton County, and on April 2, 1934, I received a telegram from Thad Holt, Director of Relief Administration of Alabama, advising us that Chilton County is allotted the sum of $11,574.00 for the month of April, 1934.

Without being too optimistic and with the continued cooperation of the people, I believe the future holds for us better times, and if elected, it shall continue to be my policy and responsibility to aid and assist and continue to work as I have in the past to hasten normal and better times for our county.

General Duties

It is a matter of great concern to the people how the office of Probate Judge is filled. The duties of the office are varied, dealing not alone with the mere issuing of licenses of all kinds and financing the county, but protecting the widows and orphans in their property rights; winding up estates of deceased persons, probating wills, keeping a correct record of mortgages, notes, and your land deeds and all other papers affecting title to your property; presiding over the Commissioners Court, issuing all warrants for disbursing all money expended by them. He keeps the pension rolls and is responsible for the proper distribution of all Confederate pensions coming into this county. Before him come for disposal cases of paupers, insane persons, and all children under 16 years of age, who may become involved in the eyes of the law. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that the Probate Judge be a man of mature judgment, thoroughly competent, honest and with a desire to see justice administered and the laws upheld.

Certainly no one would charge that experience and a clear understanding of the duties of the office would not be desirable. In no county office and in no time is experience needed as badly as in this office and at this time. I am basing my claim for re-election on the record that I have made as a public official. If reelected, I promise a square deal to all people in every interest and to re-dedicate my every effort to the best interest of the county and its people. On the other hand, if I am defeated at the polls, I can hand the commission back to the people in better shape than when I found it, and regardless of the outcome of this election, the rest of my time upon this earth shall be devoted to the best interest of the people of Chilton County.

Respectfully submitted,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

Paid Political Adv., by L. H. Reynolds, Clanton, Ala.

AUBURN NEWS NOTES

The 62nd annual graduation at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute will take place May 27-28-29. A large class will graduate. On the following Monday, June 4, the summer session will open; and on September 4 and 5 the next regular session.

The Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is rapidly becoming outstanding as a co-educational institution. Attendance of women has increased rapidly in recent years and all courses are open to men and women on the same basis, according to Dr. J. J. Wilmore, chairman of the administrative committee.

Following each major depression there is a revival of interest in learning, including higher learning. The Alabama Polytechnic Institute is now adjusting its work so as to render the maximum service in solving the problems of the future by training young gentlemen and ladies.

We believe that now is a rare and unusual time for young gentlemen and ladies to be in college, preparing themselves for the future. It is, of course, a time for rapid changes but there are many indications that the "new era" in which we find ourselves will enhance the reward for wise training and thorough preparations.—Dr. John J. Wilmore, Auburn, Alabama.

History reveals that nations have progressed in proportion to the training of the people. The most backward nations are those in which the people are the most illiterate. The same principle applies to individuals. Men and women have achieved—and are achieving—in proportion to their training plus their courage, their integrity, and their energy.

H. F. McCARY ENDORSES BEAN

I am not directly interested in the schools, as I have no children, but I feel a great interest in the children of Chilton County, and therefore, I would like for a man to be elected to the office of supernitendent of education that has the real interest of the children at heart, and I feel that a man must know what it means to raise a family and really know the needs of children. I think W. T. Bean will come the nearest knowing the needs of children of any man that I know in the county. I have lived in sight of his home for 9 years and have been in his home many times. I have never been with nicer people. Mr. and Mrs. Bean's children are the most able children that I have ever met and I htink that if Mr. Bean is able to raise as fine children as he has raised, he is able to take care of the schools of Chilton County.

I think that all who vote for Mr. Bean will do a wise thing. I am sure he will put forth every effort to build up every school in the county. I have nothing against the other gentlemen in the race, but I endorse Mr. Bean for what I know about him and his family.—Good wishes to The Union-Banner and its many readers.—H. F. McCary.

TWO NEW PARK CAMPS SET SET UP IN ALABAMA RECENTLY

Montgomery, Ala.—During the 3rd emergency conservation work period, extending from April through September, Alabama will have six state park camps, according to Page S. Bunker, state forester. Camp SP-1 was established at the Geneva State Park near Hacoda in Geneva County in July, 1933, and in October camp SP-2 began work at Cheaha State Park in Cleburne County, SP-3 at Little River State Park in Monroe County and SP-4 at Weogufka State Park in Coosa County.

The DeKalb County C.C.C. Camp has now been turned over to the National Park Service and is known to be Camp SP-5. The camp is located near the southern limits of Ft. Payne, within a short distance of Lookout Mountain. It has been assigned the development of DeSoto State Park, a 527 acre mountain site at Wade's Gap, fronting on DeSoto River.

Another C.C.C. company turned over to the Park Service is to be moved to the Gulf State Park in Baldwin County. The camp, which has been designated as SP-6, will be located on the park overlooking a fresh water lake which covers about 350 acres, and will be less than a mile from the surf. The camp site is about half a mile from Highway No. 3, near Loxley, and is in the midst of an interesting growth of pine and oak. Just south of camp, the terrain breaks off abruptly to a savanna about fifteen feet below. The project to which the C. C. C. company has been assigned is the development of a beach park of about 717 acres, in a locality popular with vacationists due to delightful ocean breezes.

SCHOOL PROSPECTS FOR 1934-1935

Montgomery, Ala., April 9. — The announcement from the Relief Administration in Washington last week that the original plans of the federal government to finance the public schools in rural communities and small towns for this year would be carried out shifts the attention of the public to prospects for schools for 1934-1935. These are far from encouraging.

According to the latest estimates of the state department of education, the total payments expected for education for the fiscal year ending September 30 are $6,712,000. These compared with the total appropriations of $9,607,000 indicate that the appropriations will lack approximately 30 per cent of being paid. For 1933-34 the appropriations were 43 per cent short. This means that the schools will fare almost as badly next year as they did this in so far as state monies are concerned.

As concerns local revenues for the schools, these will probably be less than the revenues for the current year. As is generally known, property assessments were considerably reduced at the beginning of the present year. Since local school revenues are based almost entirely upon the property tax, these reduced assessments will necessarily curtail materially the yield from the district and county millage taxes. They will also be felt in the state three-mill tax for education.

This gap of $2,895,000 between the appropriations for education and the expected payments of these appropriations is a problem which at the present time is puzzling the school authorities of the state. These, in turn, are passing it on to the candidates for the legislature as one which should command their interest and close attention.

SINGING AT SHADY GROVE

There will be a singing at Shady Grove on the Mitchell Dam highway Sunday night, beginning at 7:00. The Clanton quartet, composed of W. M. Devaughn, Floy Devaughn, Jesse Jones and "Red" Harden, and others will be there. Come and bring your song books.

SHELBY COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION AT NEWALA

The spring session of the Shelby County singing convention will be held at Newala schoolhouse next Sunday, April 15th. The singers of Shelby are expecting singers from several counties and are looking forward to a great day. Several good quartets are to be on the program, and there is a possibility that the Stamps Melody Boys from Dallas, Texas, will be there also. The singers of Chilton and adjoining counties have a cordial invitation to attend.—Waters Bolin, secretary.

Where Will We Get Taxes?

Says the Manufacturers Record:

"If government ownership of power plants and railroads is established, from what source can many subdivisions of government hope to secure needed revenue heretofore furnished by power and railroad taxes?

Railroad taxes in some communities and counties have been the sole support of their public schools. Without this revenue the activity and well-being of these communities will be seriously impaired."

The question of raising money to run the government never seems to bother the bureacratic theorists. They seem to feel that the government can manufacture money out of paper if necessary and that this will be good money because they say it is. The demagogue favors destroying the man of wealth and at the same time making him pay the cost of government. Certainly both things cannot be accomplished.

Taxes paid by public utilities, including the railroads, play a very important part in the upkeep of many of our local governments. Already the passing of some of these utilities is being felt by certain communities in the Middle West. The departure of the electric interurban railroad is a case in point. In many rather sparsely populated counties the interurban roads formerly paid an important percentage of the local taxes. But electric interurban railways seem to be passing out of the picture in many localities, where tracks are being taken up and power house dismantled. This makes quite a difference in the distribution of taxes and that which is lost by the passing of the electric railway has to be made up by the farmers and other property owners of the taxing unit.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

One of the severest critics of the present "Brain Trust" theory that we are suffering principally because of an overproduction of agricultural products, and that the only remedy lies in curtailment of production either voluntarily or by law, Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who recently delivered a very enlightening radio address on the subject in which he punctured many of the arguments used to sustain the now popular theory of getting rich by producing less.

On the subject of overproduction Senator Borah pointed out that 80 per cent of the world's population is on the poverty line and added that in our own country at least 40,000,000 people are now living below what might be termed the poverty line, compared with the normal American standard of living. If this great world population were properly fed and clothed there would be no surplus of goods and the Senator pointed out that the principal trouble now is not overproduction but faulty distribution.

In touching on the theory of helping the farmers by curtailing production, Senator Borah said, in part:

"In practice it (the reduction of production), strikes first at the consumer and his purchasing power being such that the consumer cannot take care of the raise, it falls on the producer. Take our experience with hogs. Pigs were destroyed, the farmer was induced to curtail production, a processing tax was laid. But in the effort of the producer to compel the consumer to take care of this tax it was found that the consumer did not and could not do so. He bought less meat. Therefore the packer passed the tax back to the producer in the form of lower prices for his hogs. There is just so much purchasing power in the country and when you increase the price prior to increasing the purchasing power the consumer must deny himself and eat less or eat not at all."

In touching on the proposal to curtail production by taking 43,000,000 acres or one-eighth of our crop-bearing land out of production, Senator Borah pointed out the difficulties which will be encountered. He showed how the proposed reduction of cotton acreage threatens to increase the acreage devoted to the raising of peanuts, which indicates that when one crop is curtailed, all must be curtailed either by agreement or government fiat. He continued:

"A reduction of 43,000,000 acres means a reduction of farm population of about 3,250,000. What are you going to do with these people? How are they going to make a living? Where are we going to place them? Industry is crowded. Indeed at this very time it is proposed to send some 2,000,000 from the crowded industrial centers back to the farm. Thus the hegira from the farm going out will meet the hegira to the farm coming in. The people who understand these farms know the land, who have made these farms, are going away and those who know nothing of the tilage of the sail are going out to the farms. The plan will inevitably give us more idle and dependent people, to feed and to clothe. It will inevitably lower the purchasing power of the people generally. My contention is we should leave these people on the land, and do everything we can to keep them on the land. They may have to endure great hardships as must all, for a time. But they are better off, infinitely better off, mentally, morally, physically, on the lands than they would be drifting here and there, either dependent upon charity or crowded in the congested centers to fight in strange surroundings for a miserable existence."

Senator Borah's logic here is convincing and his questions will be difficult for the theorists to answer. Most Americans, it is believed, will, when they understand its meaning, be opposed to compulsory migration of rural people, and federal regimentation of the agricultural innustry. It smacks too much of the way the peasants have been handled in Soviet Russia. Nor is it easy to believe that destroying wealth, and producing less wealth, is the road to riches, especially when there are so many hungry mouths to be fed, so many thinly clad backs to be clothed. The solution to the problem is not so much curtailed production as an increased purchasing power to be brought about by sane and economical government and by the protection and development of American industry.

The Campaign Approaches

As we approach the campaign of 1934 it is becoming more and more evident that from the Republican standpoint the prospect is much more favorable so far as the congressional elections are concerned than is the case with the senatorial contests. The reason for this is easy to find. Congress was elected in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, when the Democrats gained dozens of normally Republican districts. Some of these are sure to go back into the Republican folds this year. On the other hand, the senators who come up this year were elected in the Hoover Repulican landslide in 1928. In that year the Repulicans captured many states which are normally doubtful, some with Democratic learnings, while the Democrats held on, principally, to the states of the Solid South, which go Democratic in spite of landslides. This means that in 1934 the holding Democratic senators come from states which are rather sure to go Democratic, while the holding Republicans must contest in states many of which are usually doubtful, especially in off year elections. In fact the Democrats say they have hope of increasing their Senate majority.

But the Republican leaders at Washington expect to make substantial gains in the House of Representatives. A glance over the makeup of the present House shows that they have good grounds for this belief. In an interesting political survey in a recent issue of the Boston Transcript, Oliver McKee, Jr., points out, in showing the Republican chances for political gains, that "Indiana for example has a full Democratic delegation of 12; Illinois has but eight Republicans out of 27; Iowa but 3 out of 9; California, 9 Republicans out of 20; Colorado, 4 Democrats, no Republicans; Idaho, 2 Democrats, no Republicans; Michigan, 7 Republicans out of 17; Missouri, 13 Democrats, no Republicans; Nebraska, 5 Democrats, no Republicans; Ohio, 6 Republicans out of 24; and Washington, 6 Democrats and no Republicans."

This survey of the situation in normally Republican states shows why the leaders of the G. O. P. hope to make sizeable gains in the next congress. It will not be a question entirely of how popular President Roosevelt may or may not be when election rolls around. Local issues usually play a considerable part in off-year elections. The Democrats captured the state administrations of most of the states in 1932. In some instances these administrations complicate the issues in the election this year. Indiana is an example. The Democratic state administration in the Hoosier commonwealth for reasons which are too lengthy to go into here, has lost most of its popularity since it was swept into office in 1932. This is bound to have its effect in the elections in Indiana this year. The state now has a solid Democratic congressional delegation. Local issues will cut deep into the results this fall in the interest of Republican success, no matter what national issues may come up before the election.

In the meantime there are indications that certain phases of the New Deal policies are meeting with increasing opposition.

A significant development along this line is a recent editorial in the Hearst newspapers under the caption "The Position of the Hearst Newspapers." Hearst supported the Democratic cause valiantly in the 1932 election. In part the editorial says:

"Indeed so far has the Democratic Party of today departed from the principles of its founder, that Thomas Jefferson has been sympathetically referred to as the 'Forgotten Man.'

"The so-called Democratic party of the present day is a conglomerate party, a composite party, a mixed and mongrel party.

"It contains some Democrats and more demagogues, some state socialists, some communists, and a sprinkling of bolsheviks.

"The party is mainly a party of mal-contents, and if there are any ists, iks, or ogues in existence not included in the above list of fanatic and fantastic theorists, they doubtless, nevertheless, enjoy adequate representation in the hybrid Democratic Party and find sufficient bond of unity in envious opposition to anybody who possesses anything or who has accomplished anything."

These are harsh words, much harsher than are used by most of the Republican partisan leaders in their attacks on the majority party.

It is evident that the campaign of 1934 is rapidly warming up.

We will never believe that the motion picture is really tamed down until it begins reproducing Jane Austin's novels.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

The "Brain Trust" Again

The much-discussed "brain trust" at Washington, which the present administration has kept on hand in an advisory capacity, is now in the national lime-light again. The president has been censured far and near for dispensing with congress while he has been in office—some of this, maybe, has been unwarranted, inasmuch as President Roosevelt took over the governmental reins at a crucial time, when something had to be done and that quickly. Maybe it was for the best that he have full rein to act quickly and surely, especially so since he has proved himself a man of exceptional judgment. But the most of the cracks that have been taken at him were not so much that he hung congress out on the line to dry before pressing them into service, but that, in a manner, he replaced our duly elected congressmen with the "brain trust," an advisory board made up of college professors. Lots of clear-thinking Americans couldn't see why these theoretical-minded college professors should have a chance to try out their pet theories on the American public, as if we were a colony of white rats or rabbits, when we had men there, selected as representatives of the people to work with the president. And, I believe, these "doubting Thomases" have every reason to believe that thir suspicions were realized, for, if one single idea that the "brain trust" has advanced has worked out, I have not heard of it. But now things have taken a new turn. It seems that this "brain trust" had a cat in the wallet which they expected to spring on this country. It seems they were planning all along to steer matters in such a way that the people of this country would eventually become so disgusted that they would be ready to stage a revolution like that put on a few years ago in Russia; it seems, also, that they have been using Mr. Roosevelt as their tool in much the same capacity that the Communists used Kerensky in the early days of the Russian revolution. I do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt was in on the plot, although his action in recognizing the Communist Russian government might lead one to believe that he might have had an inkling of some of the workings. But I cannot believe that President Roosevelt is another Benedict Arnold. He is a very wise man, but I believe (if the accusations against the "brain trust" are true) that they just "put one over" on our president, while he was studying his problem and thinking about something else. Any way, the president, himself, is not so sure that everything is as it should be. He is saying nothing, but letting the investigators have full rein to see if they can get to the bottom of the matter, if there is anything to the accusation against the professors. I imagine he will be the proudest of us all if the plotters are uncovered. And, too, this investigation, if it proves anything on the "brain trust" will prove the inadvisability of recognizing the Russian Communistic government. It will prove that the "reds" recognize no treaty nor agreement which conflicts with their plans to Communize America and the world sooner or later. That is one of the ground sills of their plan, to enter into any kind of agreement or treaty which will help them in realizing their ambitions, without the slightest idea of keeping their pledges. There is a clause in our own treaty with them that calls for immediate cessation of all attempts to communize this country, and we have been warned that the Russians would treat this as a mere scrap of paper. At present these predictions seem about to be borne out. Certainly the Communists have not entirely ceased spreading their "red" propaganda here, and now it seems that we may see uncovered some real plotting in high places.

Americans Want Results

In old countries, the most of the office holders are members of the nobility, that so-called "upper class" of people. And it makes no particular difference as to whether said office holder is highly efficient or not. A person may be elected to office, do enough to just merely get by, and still get his office again. But this is not the case here in America. Americans look for, expect and demand results. The latest high official to get in hot water by inaction is Miss Frances Perkins, our Secretary of Labor. She has been censured numbers of times for inactivity, and lack of capability and forcefulness. Only a few days ago, C. C. Woods, labor conciliation expert since 1911, handed in his recognition, together with a fiery denunciation of Miss Perkins as a national official. Here in substance, are some of his words: (to Miss Perkins) "When you were appointed to your office, the American people had a right to expect you to fill the office and to show action in your official capacity. They expected you to be able to use your office to avert strikes, etc., when the time came, and bring serenity to the labor world. You have done none of this. The president has been forced to take time off to do your work for you, thus forcing more work on him, already over-burdened. In words of every-day use, you have fallen down on the job. I have held my position since 1911, and you are the least able, by far, of any Secretary of Labor that I have worked for and with. And so, in the face of such a condition, I am tendering my resignation, not caring to be a partner in a complete failure, so recognized by the president, other officials, and the people of our country. And, with all due respect, I would advise you to do the same, and so make room for a more efficient official—one who knows how to run the office, and who has the courage to do so." Miss Perkins is the lady, you remember who intimated that it would be a good idea to teach Southerners to wear shoes.

The Two Eagles

For many, many years, the American eagle has been the official insignia of the United States of America. In critical times, drawings appeared, depicting the big American eagle atop the Stars and Stripes, and defying the world to "start something". Of late, however, certain sinister interests have brought about a change in this eagle business which shows to a nicety their complete reversal of opinion. A few days ago I noticed a cartoon which depicted this reversal of opinion in the best form possible. It showed the flag—the same good old Stars and Stripes—being carried at the head of the nation's people, and perched on top of the staff was an eagle. But here is the difference. That eagle was not the grand old American eagle that has guarded the nation from the beginning, but rather, the "blue eagle," which, at best, is a poor drawing of that noble bird, and which looks more like a buzzard than an eagle. That drawing just about tells the story of the feelings of these "modern" leaders. They are willing—indeed, attempting—to place the blue eagle ahead of the American eagle as our American standard of progress. I submit that such a drawing is a base insult to our flag, just as the attempt to force the NRA and its blue eagle emblem on our people is an insult to their freedom and intelligence. The blue eagle and its aims are as un-American and as different from our age-old ideas of freedom and justice as the eagle itself is different from our American eagle. Are Americans peons? Are they willing to lay down their right to freedom of thought and action in return for doles and pittances? I don't think so. There have been predictions of revolt ere long in this country, and that may be true. When such comes, however, if it does, it will not be a revolt against our government and its methods, but rather against the oppression which is being brought to bear through heartless codes and regulations which restrict everything, even our nation-old personal liberties. What would Washington think, if he could look in on us today? I believe he would shame us for traitors for allowing such high-handed pracedure.

No Backing Up

Here's a good one. You know the rehabilitation program which is about to be started by the government calls for the supply of oxen for certain farmers who cannot get mules and horses to pull their plows, especially on farms of less than 20 acres. The newspapers of the country, in giving the particulars of the new set-up, observed that Uncle Sam must not have taken anyone's religion into consideration when he made the ox ruling, thus intimating that the plowing of oxen would be the supreme test of a man's religion and his ability to hold his temper. I have never plowed an ox, but I have heard that they are very obstinate, and test the patience to the utmost. I was talking over this matter with Ed Edwards, the cement man, when he made a characteristic Ed Edwards observation. Ed can say some funny things at times. He said the officials could have been a little easier on the patience of people by furnishing them jennets to plow instead of oxen. "But, then," he added, "jennets couldn't be used in new ground at all. If this were tried, the farmer would be kept busy hitching and unhitching his jennet. You know, in a new ground, there are lots of little stumps, which cause lots of stops, where you have to pull back and skip over the stump. When plowing a jennett, when the plow hits a stump, all you can do is unhitch—you can't pull that old jennet back. All the men you can get around a jennet can't back her an inch. No, I guess a steer would be the best in the long run, after all."

Edward Warren Miller

Edward Warren Miller, carrier on Clanton Route 4, was born near Rockford in Coosa County, December 15, 1882. His family moved to Chilton County while E. W. was quite young, and got all his education from schools in and around Clanton. He married Miss Bertha Elma Frazier March 4, 1903. They have eight children—six boys and two girls. Mr. Miller farmed until February 1, 1911, whe nhe entered the postal service as carrier on Route 5. He carried this route until February 2, 1913 when he was transferred to Route 8. This he carried until August 1, 1928, when, after the death of W. J. Armstrong, Route 8 was divided between Routes, 1, 5, and 4, and Mr. Miller was transferred to Route 4. I suppose I might correct in saying of Mr. Miller that he is the "life" of the postoffice force. He keeps the fellows laughing and in a good humor all the time. Many are the practical jokes that are pulled on him, but he always comes back for more. Mr. Miller is a very popular man, both with the other members of the postal force, and with the people whom he serves on the daily rounds of his route. Easy going and likeable, he numbers his friends as he makes acquaintances. And he is one of the busiest fellows you ever saw, too. He owns a dairy near Clanton, and when he is not busy with his postal duties he may be found—"juicing" the cows, or pitching hay, or some other kind of work. Most people work to live but I believe "Boss" lives to work. In telling of his life he had the following to say: "I was born just below the devil's half acre in Coosa County. I belong to nothing (churches or secret orders), and very little belongs to me. There is only one way I can boast of having a little something over the other boys in the office. I can boast of having more children than any other thre of them except one. I can't say I 'raised' them, but they have put their feet under my table, any way. People talk to me about working so hard, but I don't work as hard as they think I do—I just work regular, that's all." That's Mr. Miller all over—busy at work for a while, then a stop for a rest and a joke, then back at work again.—Man in the Moon.

What Shall We Do?

I do not claim everything has been or is now perfect. No man is perfect and no system if government has yet been devised by man that has been or is perfect. Many men are selfish, covetous and monopolistic in spirit. They must be restrained by law and it is by law we as a nation have prospered. Such men and their ideas have to be curbed. We do it by law. The great distinction between the government of King George, against which the fathers of the republic rebelled, and the one they proceeded to set up is that instead of the king's decree, representatives of the people legally chosen, meet in congress and enact the laws to which all owe obedience. Our government is a government of laws. We do not want the functions of government delegated to bureaus and commissions selected by the president or by congress itself and given authority to enforce the laws as the men composing them see fit. This is against the spirit of the constitution, if not a direct violation of it, and this is the most important question confronting us today. What are we going to do about it?—Arthur A. Hargrave, in the Rockville, Ind., Republican.

Evidently the G. O. P. is not dead in Pennsylvania. Seventeen candidates have applied for the Republican nomination for governor.

It is said that having a photograph taken of one's hands is getting to be quite fashionable in Paris. It's a good bet this fad will never be popular in the underworld.

A year or two ago fear was often expressed that German business was on its way to dominating the world. This fear is removed. Reports from Berlin now are that German business men are going in for golf in a big way.

The Man on the Corner

Some Sights He Saw—
and Some He Saw Not

Mr. Cecil G. Stokes, manager of the National Re-Employment Office of Chilton County, in Clanton, for several months past, has received notice of his transfer to Talladega. The transfer is effective April 13.

In a farewell statement to the people of the county, addressed to them through The Union-Banner, Mr. Stokes says:

"I desire to express through your paper my sincere appreciation for the cooperation given me by the good people of Chilton County. My transfer is effective April 13th, but I expect to visit the county often. With kindest personal regards to you, and each reader of The Union-Banner, I am, cordially yours, C. G. Stokes, manager National Re-Employment Service for Chilton County."

His many frineds here will regret that Mr. Stokes is to leave us. During the time he has been here in the important work of managing the National Re-Employment Office, Mr. Stokes has endeared himself to all with whom h has come into contact; and they are many indeed.

He has proven himself to be an able executive, thorough and painstaking in his work, and fai rto all. His duties of selecting workers were exacting. He performed them without having the charge of politics, partiality or personal interest made against his performance of his duties.

Personally Mr. Stokes is one of the finest personalities we have had among us. He is a polished and refined gentleman. His friends here, while regretting his departure, commend him heartily to those whom he goes to serve in another place.

Where Are We Being Led?

Two brilliant minds have recently delivered themselves of tremendously important messages to the people of Indiana, through the Indiana Republican Editorial Association, in convention at Indianapolis.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, one of the nation's most vigorous defenders of free speech and a free press, did well to point out that while the collapse of Republican forms of government takes various forms in various crises, "in any breakdown of republics, we find one common factor—the newspapers were eliminated."

This, as Col. McCormick says, is necessarily so. In the presence of a free press, the tyranny of dictatorship becomes an impossibility. Hence, "the ferocity with which the successors to republican governments destroy the press."

Coy. McCormick shows that intelligent newspapers are deadly to tyranny; and adds: "How necessary they would be to the republic was seen by Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and their followers, who would not allow our constitution to be adopted until the Bill of Rights was assured, the first plank of which protects the freedom of the press!"

Representative James M. Beck, of Pennsylvania, in his address to the editors, sounded a warning that some of the trends in government now to be observed in this country will, if continued, result in the destruction of the basic institutions of the republic.

Mr. Beck, although a life-lang Republican, spoke not so much in the capacity of sponsor for any partisan platform as in that of defender of a fundamental philosophy which cuts across party lines.

If he, as a member of the party which has traditionally traced a Hamiltonian lineage, seemed at times to swing far in the direction of Thomas Jefferson's opinions in the matter of states' rights, it was, he made us understand, because the present leadership of the Democratic party (traditionally "Jeffersonian") has seemed to out-Hamilton Hamilton in its insistence upon the strongest of central governments at Washington. Extremes are dangerous, no matter in which direction.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania took occasion to state his appreciation that President Roosevelt is a great leader, and that "few of his predecessors have ever surpassed him in swiftness of decision or courage of action."

"We do not question his abilities as a leader," said Mr. Beck, who, in that, undoubtedly speaks for millions, "but we do feel greatly concerned as to where he is leading us." And that, of course, in a nation builded upon the principles of Republican democracy, is entirely a proper concern.

In a time when there are observable so many signs of a drift toward dictatorship, it is well that the public carefully think through all the potential consequences.

For, as Mr. Beck notes, the appetite for power grows by what it feeds on; and it should never be lost sight of that no ruler is capable of more thorough abrogation of popular rights—wittingly or unwittingly—than one who "unites with complete power the intoxication of popularity."

Scientists say that within ten years apparatus will be perfected which will take a three quadrillion dollar hoard of gold out of the sea. And in ten years from now that may be just enough to pay the public debt.

W. T. Bean, Republican Candidate County Superintendent Education

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

Since it will be almost impossible for me to see every voter in the county before the primary, I am taking this means to try to reach the people relative to my candidacy for the position of county superintendent of education.

I want to say, first, that before I entered the race for this same position last spring in the special election I was solicited by about four hundred people to do so. (This number was not guessed at, but was had by actual count.) I made a clean fight and won in the primary. I lost in the general election on account of two major reasons, which are related below. After the election I went to the trouble and listed the names of every person who was behind with his or her poll tax for one or two years. I then got several people who are familiar with the people of the county to help me separate the Republicans from the Democrats as best such information could be gotten. By actual count there were almost eight hundred Republicans behind with their poll tax. In other words there were over six hundred Republicans more behind with their poll tax than there were Democrats behind with theirs. I could not overcome this great number. This is a matter of record and not guessed at information. I do not believe that there was a Republican in the county who could have been elected at this election when I was defeated. A second great reason why I was defeated then is because there was a great number of Republicans who were over-confident of the success of the ticket and did not go to the election. Many of them have been to me and apologized for not going to the election and voting for me. I call attention to this because I want the people to know why I was defeated, and because I do not believe that I should have to bear the stain of this defeat through life because our people were unfortunately behind with their poll tax and could not vote, and because the Republicans who had won every election in the county for the last twenty-three years, did not believe that a Republican in Chilton County could be beaten.

Since I was persuaded by over four hundred people to enter this race, and since I suffered the humiliating defeat that was caused almost wholly by the causes related above, I think it fair and just to me, if I have been found worthy, that I be given a chance to redeem myself from that defeat in the eyes of the people of Chilton County. I have no doubt but that I, if nominated, will be elected with the rest of the ticket by the biggest majority that the Republicans have ever put over. My defeat, undoubtedly, aroused the party as it has not been in many years, and today it is in the best shape it has been in many years. If I had thought that it was a weakness on my part, that caused my defeat, I would have never entered this race, but I was solicited by a great number of people who said that they did not believe that I got a fair deal last June. In that campaign my campaign committee sent out about seventy-five letters of inquiry relative to the political situation in the various beats, and all except one reported everything perfectly favorable for our ticket. The truth is that we just didn't have the voters qualified.

As to my policies of running the schools, I will say that it would take almost a whole newspaper to express myself in detail, but I do want to state my views on a few of the more important matters. I do believe with my whole sould that every white child should have an equal chance to obtain an education. In stating this I do not do so merely to gain a vote. I proved that I fully believed in this principle when I was superintendent before. I then, with less than a fourth the money that is now available for schools, gave every white school a seven months free term. There were seventy-two white schools in the county when I left this office, and now there are about one third of that number in my opinion that are in no better and many people tell me not as good as they were then, despite the fact that there are now more than four dollars for every one that was available for school purposes then. These one and two teacher schools must be made just as efficient as the consolidated schools as far as it is possible.

Inducements must be made to attract the very best teachers to want to go to them and remain there. The smaller schools should share in their part of the building and repair funds just the same as the larger ones. This type of school will probably be in existence as long as we have schools and they must be cared for to the best ability of the county to do so. We have a great number of good schools that are doing efficient work. The work of these schools must not be made less efficient, but the less efficient schools must be made better. Education opportunities for every white child must be made as nearly equal as wisdom and good judgment can bring about.

One of the biggest school problems confronting the people of Chilton County today is that of consolidation. This is a question that no one seems to know just what is the best way to handle. Here is the situation as I see it in this county. The job of consolidating the schools of the county is but a little more than half completed and the money has given out. The question in the minds of school officials today is, "How can the question be solved?" In general terms, every time that a school is consolidated, more expense for transportation is forced upon the payroll, and the term of school throughout the county is thereby shortened. Here is the nearest solution that I am able to give to the consolidation question: Let every community settle its own problems for consolidation. If a community wants consolidation, and money will afford, let it have it, and if it doesn't want consolidation, leave it off. But I want to repeat that if I am elected I will exert every effort to see that the small and unconsolidated schools be properly equipped, beautified and made as nearly equal to the big schools just as hastily as the available money will permit. No fair minded person can object to education opportunities being made equal.

In connection with what I have said relative to letting the people have a voice on consolidation, I wish to say that I believe that the people are competent to settle all of their local school problems, and I believe that they are fully competent to elect their superintendent of education, to elect their county board of education, to elect their local trustees and to elect their own teachers. I fully believe that any school will have a better school with a teacher with whom they are satisfied and with whom they will cooperate than the same community would have with even a little better teacher with whom they were not satisfied and would not cooperate; therefore, I believe in letting the people have a voice in their school affairs.

To have efficient schools, we must have efficient teachers. To have efficient teachers, their interest must be cared for in every way. I believe in rigid economy in school matters just the same as I do in any other business transaction, but I do not believe that this economy should come at the expense of the overburdened teachers. Teachers should be paid an adequate salary to induce the best men and women to go into the profession and remain there. I wish to say to the teachers that if I am elected to this position, that your interest will be taken care of to the very greatest extent that good sound judgment and common sense will sanction, remembering that the school exists for the interest of the child and that the interest of the child is best taken care of when we have good teachers and ample length of term of school. I will say further to the teachers of this county that if it should become necessary that the teachers have to donate any time in order for the full term to be completed, that the county superintendent and all of the office force will donate just as much time as the teachers do, and should it ever become necessary that the teachers have to wait for their pay or teach on the credit of the state, the superintendent and all office force will also wait for their pay just as the teachers might have to do. If one class of school should be asked to donate their time, all classes of schools will come under the same column. All of this is nothing less than just and right.

The two big questions of eliminating incidental fees from the schools and the furnishing of free text books are far from being settled. I realize that these are important questions that are uppermost in the minds of the school people today, and the only promise that I can make is that I will foster any local or legislative movement that is just, economical and sound that will help to solve these questions. I believe with the long and varied experience that I have had, and with the knowledge I have of the people of the county and the state, and with the knowledge I have of the working of the county affairs in general, I can do as much and probably more along these lines than either of the young men who are my opponents.

It is in and through the Republican party that I am looking for my support and election, and I wish to say that I have been a loyal Republican ever since I became a voter. I have voted a one hundred per cent Republican vote every time that I have ever voted in a party election. For the last twenty-two years, or since I was old enough to vote, I have been called upon to use my little influence in every campaign. This has cost me much time, and I have gone to much expense. I have done my part as best I could. The party fell down on me last June for the reasons that I explained above. I want one more chance to help redeem the party and the party redeem me. But if I should not be nominated, your choice will be mine in November.

In my concluding remarks I want to insist that you put the interest of the children of the county ahead of that of any candidate. If the election of either of my opponents is for the best interest of the schools as a whole, then that one should be elected, but upon my record as a citizen, and upon my record as a teacher, and upon my record as a former county official, I am willing to stand or fall in this election. Upon my life's record I am asking for the position to which I aspire.

I wish it were possible for me to see every one who will participate in the May and June primaries and talk to you face to face, but since this is not possible, I am asking you to take this as a personal appeal for your assistance in the approaching election. If I fail to see you before the election, you may know that I was deprived of this pleasure for lack of time.

I want every voter to know and feel that you cannot vote for anyone who will appreciate the favor more than I will.

Very sincerely,
W. T. BEAN.

WALNUT CREEK

Rev. C. W. Walton was with us Saturday night and Sunday. Everybody enjoyed his messages that were very forcefully delivered. Brother Walton is a great man. He has meant much to the Methodist Church in Alabama.

Our annual singing the second Sunday in May will be held as usual. We invite all the singers in the county who can do so to come and help us make it a great singing.—C. M. Nolen.

Mesdames J. E. Evans and M. A. Gore visited relatives and friends in Prattville Sunday.

ENDORSES W. G. SHAW

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to congratulate Mr. O. B. Martin of Providence community and A. B. Thrash of the Union Grove community in favoring Mr. W. G. Shaw for Commissioner of the First District.

I live in the western part of the district and I feel sure that Mr. Shaw will carry this part of the district 90 per cent. I would like to add to Mr. Thrash's piece to second, third and fourth district. Mr. Voter, please visit the first district and convince yourself. I have known Mr. Shaw all his life. He is a hustling and accommodating man. I don't think any one will regret supporting Mr. Shaw. Yours truly, O. S. Smith.

APPOINTING BOARD TO NAME ELECTION OFFICERS FOR MAY 1

It is learned that C. Fenn Jones and J. Renfroe Mullins will act with Sheriff W. H. Gillespie, as the appointing board to name officers who will conduct the primary elections of May 1st. Mr. Jones and Mr. Mullins will serve in place of L. H. Reynolds and J. Z. Mims, who are disqualified on account of being candidates.

Appointment of election officers will be made in the next few days.

Mrs. Charles Lamar of Montgomery is spending this week with Mrs. G. L. Phillips.

From J. P. Bean

To the Voters of Chilton County:

First, let me expres my most sincere thanks for the confidence you had in me by electing me to the office of Commissioner of the First District eight years ago. I tried at all times to conduct myself in a way that you wouldn't have any just reason to regret voting for me. I tried to give every one with which I had to deal a careful and honest consideration.

The Commissioners Court, while I was a member, tried at all times to work in harmony, of which I feel very glad, trying to plan for the best interest of the entire county. In selecting men for machine work I tried to select the most efficient men. In selecting machine helpers I selected men, when practicable, that had the greatest responsibility. I tried to divide the road money in the Beats with all the people living nearest the work to be done. I always took special interest in looking after the welfare of the unfortunate old people.

The above is a few of the things I did while in office. I am asking you to elect me again, promising you just a few things.

First, that I economize in every way possible. That I divide the road work more equally among all people in the community where the work is to be done. That I give all people who have teams or trucks the hauling to be done in my District, thereby giving the people their tax money back, and the roads too.

That I use my influence in securing aid for the oldaged and unfortunate of our county. I believe in good roads and good schools and good churches.

I am asking your most careful consideration of me. If you find that I am worthy of your confidence and support no one will more greatly appreciate your vote and influence than I. If you see fit to vote for some one else, remember I will not think hard of you. If you vote for me and I am elected, don't fail to call on me at any time. I will give you careful consideration. If you don't vote for me and I am not elected we will all be friends the same as ever.

Now to the ones that I have not canvassed, please don't feel slighted, for I am making a house to house canvass which is very slow and if I don't get to you by election day, don't feel that I am not interested in you. I am as much interested in the ones I don't see as the ones I do. Hoping to be at your place soon, have your question in mind and feel free to ask me any thing reasonable. If I can answer you I will be glad to. If it is something I don't know, I don't care for telling you that I don't.

Hoping you may see fit to vote for me May 1, I am yours very truly, J. P. Bean.

SINGING CONVENTION FOURTH SUNDAY IN APRIL, COURTHOUSE

By request of Prof. O. L. Devaughn chairman of the Chilton County singing convention, we are announcing that the spring session of the convention will meet at the courthouse in Clanton all day Sunday, April 22nd. Arrangements are being made to have some visiting singers and quartets here at that time. The Vaughan publishers of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., have already promised to have a representation at the convention, very likely one of their quartets. Probably some of the other publishing houses of the South will be represented.

Prof. Devaughn urges the singers of the county to co-operate with him in making this convention one of the best. Singers of adjoining counties are being notified, and will be expected to be well represented.

FIDDLERS CONVENTION AT THE COURTHOUSE, ON APRIL 14th

Chilton County Post of the American Legion will sponsor a Fiddlers Convention to be held at the courthouse in Clanton on Saturday night, April 14.

A committee of the Post was appointed at the meeting Monday night to make arrangements for the entertainment.

Full details as to the program of entertainment will be formulated by the committee and published next week.

OLD FOLKS MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP 5TH SUNDAY

Mr. J. Dudley Collins of Friendship community asks The Union-Banner to announce that the annual old folks and ministers meeting will be held at Friendship church the fifth Sunday in April. This meeting last year was the best ever held up to that time, and it is hoped that this year it will be even better and more largely attended. An invitation is extended all old people and ministers of all denominations.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eiland and daughter, Miss Ruby, of Montgomery, were in Clanton last Friday. Mr. Eiland was attending to some business for Alabama Machinery Company.

Several new cases of measles is reported this week in Cooper community.

CENTER HILL NEWS

Sunday school was fine Sunday. There were not so many present as we would like to have had. Some have the measles and others stay away for fear of getting the measles.

Rev. Green preached two wonderful sermons, one Sunday at 11 o'clock and another one Sunday night. Everybody come next Sunday as he will preach for us again on Sunday and Sunday night, if nothing happens.

There will be a Sunday school convention at this place next Sunday afternoon. Everybody come and bring your 1934 song books as there will be singing after the convention.

Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Cobb visited Mr. and Mrs. Wess White Sunday afternoon.

Rev. Green and Mr. W. R. Scott were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb Sunday.

Mrs. Ellis Crowson spent the week end with her sister, Mrs. Herman Argo, of Lomax, who has been sick for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Collum spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cobb.

Misses Willie Mae Childress and Mildred Cobb were the guests of Misses Irene and Olean Miller Sunday.

Miss Wylda Smitherman was the dinner guest of Miss Bernev Dean Cobb Sunday. They attended the singing at Providence Sunday afternoon.

Misses Irene and Olean Miller and Willie Mae Childress and Master Sewell Miller spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller of Free Springs.

Mrs. W. R. Scott spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Buster Scott. She came to help nurse her granddaughter, Lucille, who has been real sick with the measles. We are glad to report she is better now.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Thomas spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Miller.

Don't forget Sunday school Sunday and come to the convention Sunday afternoon.

Misses Irene and Olean Miller and Mabel and Mildred Cobb visited Mrs. B. L. Cobb Saturday afternoon.

Messrs. R. H. and Leo Davis and their little brother visited their sister, Mrs. Joe Carey, Sunday.

Candidate For Circuit Clerk of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republican Primary of May 1st, 1934

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am a candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, subject to the action of the Republican primary of May 1st. I wish to say that I will very greatly appreciate the honest consideration of every voter, and I hope you will, after due consideration, feel justified in casting your ballot in my favor on the day of the primary.

I ask each and every voter to consider my candidacy for this office with particular reference as to my ability and qualifications to discharge the duties thereof, and to attend to the public business of the office.

You, of course know that I have held the office of Circuit Clerk two terms in the past. I was elected in 1910 and held the office until 1923. I am glad that I can point back to my record in the office and make the claim that I established a record of efficiency in the discharge of my duties. This claim is supported by the fact that every examination that was made of my office gave me a good recommendation for efficient, careful and satisfactory conduct of the public business that came through my hands.

I believe you will agree with me that the most important thing the voters should consider in electing a Circuit Clerk is to choose the man who is able to run the office in the most efficient manner. In this respect I am glad to have you take my measure, fully, fairly and impartially with that of every other candidate. You have my past record upon which to base your answer to the question of whether or not I am able and qualified to fill the office properly.

Also I ask you to take into consideration my record as a supporter of the Republican party in Chilton County. I regard it as important that every official who is placed in office by the Republican party should be a man who is able and willing to carry out a policy that will be constructive, elevating and creditable to the party as a whole. I have been active, loyal and zealous in support of the Republican party, both as a private citizen, and while I was an official of the county.

I have always advocated and worked for harmony in the Republican party. I have never written an article criticizing a Republican official; but on the other hand, I have done what I could to assist our Republican officials. Because the success of our party depends, in a great measure, upon the actions of the officials who are elected and put into office by the party.

When you come to decide upon your choice of a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Clerk on May the first, I urge you to consider my record as a Republican, both in and out of office.

In conclusion, I want to assure every Republican in Chilton County that I most sincerely appreciate the confidence that you have placed in me in the past. I have tried to give a just measure of honest and faithful service in return for your confidence.

My only purpose is to continue to serve my people to the best of my ability. If the Republicans of Chilton County want me to serve as Circut Clerk again, I will accept the honor with thanks. I hereby pledge each and everyone that I will discharge the duties of the office in a manner worthy of the respect and confidence of all, and with that same degree of efficiency which is my proud possession from my former experience in the office.

Respectfully yours,

M. D. FOSHEE.

JEMISON HIGH WINS IN STATE CONTEST AT MONTEVALLO

Four girls from the home economics department of Jemison High School, represented their school at the interstate high school meet at Montevallo April 5, 6, and 7.

Before entering the contest at Montevallo, a local contest was held in the schools to determine the contestants to go.

These girls contested in foods, clothing, child care and home nursing.

The entries were as follows: meal planning and preparation, Gladys Cobb and Josephine Adams; afternoon dress, Francis Killingsworth; travel costume, Gladys Cobb; school dress, Mildred Caldwell; home nursing, Josephine Adams and Francis Killingsworth; child care and training, Gladys Cobb.

First place in group B in the state was won by Gladys Cobb and Josephine Adams for meal planning and preparation. Minor points were won in other entries. Jemison high school scored third place in group B in the entire state.

THANKS TO AMERICAN LEGION

Dear Editor:

Please allow me a small space in your paper to express many thanks to the American Legion Post No. 6 for the help they gave me at the last meeting. It was small but it helped me lots. I like to be with the boys. They have good meetings. Every exsoldier in the county should belong to the Legion. It is worth while. They cannot help but enjoy going to the meetings. I am not a Legionnaire, but I do enjoy being with them. I like to play for the meetings. Thanking each and everyone again, am yours,—Reauby Chasteen, Route 7, Clanton.

Chas. Cooper Gives Views On Education

I noticed in last week's issue of The Union-Banner that the school teachers of Chilton County want to get a line up or rather the "low down" on candidates for representative.

In answer to same I wish to say that I thought the greater portion of the Chilton County teachers knew how I felt towards schools and school teachers, but since perhaps some of the teachers might not know my position and attitude towards schools and school teachers, I beg to advise that it affords me a great privilege to have the opportunity to "spill the beans" to you teachers.

In the first place I will say that I favor schools being run seven to nine months at public expense.

The reason I say seven to nine months is because several farmers feel that they need the services of their children in making crops and cannot afford to let the children go to school the full nine months. I favor nine months if the parents arrange to send their children that long.

In my platform I mention the fact in no uncertain terms that I favor paying teachers a living wage, also bus drivers a living wage.

You ask what part of each fund do I think ought to go to the schools. I favor a sufficient appropriation to maintain the schools, regardless as to what particular fund it might come from.

I figure that the school system should be at the top when it comes to being cared for.

You also want to know my plan of obtaining school funds.

In answer to this question I will say that we already have plenty of sources from which taxes are obtained, in fact too blooming many taxes.

In my opinion there is but one fair and sensible solution to the present unsatisfactory state of affairs, and that is to cut out all of those high salaries that are sapping the very life blood out of the working people.

For example I understand that Dr. Denny of the University of Alabama gets a salary of twelve thousand per year, that a road overseer over at Selma gets twelve thousand a year, that Bill Feagin gets more money than some people can count, per year, as a salary and commission on school books.

The last few years the school teachers, bus drivers and school house builders have received a dirty deal at the hands of our legislators, and for that reason I was prompted to get in the race for representative from Chilton.

For instance, take the Fletcher Budget Bill that was passed not long ago. This act repudiated the debts the state owed to teachers, bus drivers and school house builders. This bill provided that no debts made before the 1st of October, 1932, could be paid out of funds collected after the first of October, 1932. In fact Mr. Blan, our state treasurer, told me in person that according to the Fletcher Budget Bill that he could not take new money and pay an old debt with it.

In my opinion this is the most damnable piece of legislation that was ever written upon our statute books.

This same legislature passed a bill authorizing the governor to go down to the First National Bank at Montgomery and borrow three hundred thousand dolars to pay themselves off with.

It seemed that they did not give a continental whether the teachers, bus drivers and school house builders got their pay or not. They even fixed it so they could not get any part of what was due them before the first of October, 1932.

Had it not been for the vote and influence of the school teachers in the interest bearing warrant bill election, we would have lost our home and every earthly possession we have in payment of a state high school building we built. We built the high school building according to plans and specifications, upon the promise the house would be paid for when completed.

completed. When the job was complete we asked for our pay. The state treasurer, Mr. Blan, told us that he did not have the money and would not have it until after the first of October. After that time I called by to see Mr. Blan again. Then it was he told me that according to the Fletcher Budget Bill he could not take new money and pay a debt that was made before the first of October.

Since the school teachers aided us in the interest bearing warrant bill, we were able to sell the warrants we held for building the school house at ninety-two dollars in the hundred. We had a clear loss of eight dollars besides interest.

The eight dollars and interest we lost on each hundred dollars of warrants we held on the school house job ran up into money as we had several thousand dollars worth of these warrants. Te sum and substance of the affair was that we lost about one year's time building this house for which we did not receive any pay for our work. It took what we got for the warrants to pay for the material we used in this high school building. We had to pay the material men eight per cent for carrying the debts.

It was not fair for us to have to accept ninety-two cents in the dollar for what the state owed to us. Neither is it fair for the school teachers to be forced to accept pay in part, and at the same time all of the other state workers getting their payroll monthly, one hundred cents in the dollar, and the members of the legislature getting their pay every Saturday.

So in conclusion let me say, if you people send me to the legislature, just rest assured that the school teachers and all other working people of Chilton County will have a representative who will be looking for their best interest. I thank you.—Chas. Cooper.

Our Sunday school is getting along very nicely, although the crowd was small Sunday because of sickness. Many are on the sick list this week.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Matthew Minor and also Miss Everee Minor are still improving very fast. Mrs. Claudie Easterling is much better. We hope they will soon be well again and back at church, as we miss them very much.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Easterling are the proud parents of a big baby boy which arrived at their home last Monday. Both mother and baby are doing fine.

Miss Gertie Easterling was the Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Bryant.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Mims visited Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Mims Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Easterlisg and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Easterling Sunday afternoon at Pinedale.

Next Saturday night and Sunday are our regular preaching services. Rev. E. J. Orange will be with us, so let's come back to church and bring someone with us. Come with a well prepared lesson next Sunday and everyone show a greater interest in the work of the Lord. We extend a hearty welcome to all.

Mr. Marion W. Easterling opened up his singing school at Montgomery Monday of this week. We wish him great success in his work there.

A Perfect Hostess and a careful mother...

THE modern American homemaker has a duel objective in life. She wants to be a perfect hostess. And she wants to be a careful mother. Not so many years ago this would have been virtually impossible; the attainment of one meant the sacrifice of the other. Not so today—thanks to Electric Refrigeration! The woman who equips her home with a new 1934 Kelvinator, or General Electric, automatic electric refrigerator is ready at all times for hungry guests. She is ready, too, for hungry children. She knows she has secured the ultimate protection for her food supplies, and finds exhilarating joy in the freedom this brings to her. Why not be one of these yourself? You can have a new General Electric or Kelvinator electric refrigerator almost for the asking?

$10.00 brings a new "G-E" or Kelvinator to your home. Balance payable as you enjoy it.

IN MEMORY OF MR. A. J. JONES

On April 1, 1934 the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones and carried away our loving father, who was 84 years of age the 15th day of last October. He leaves a vacant place in our home that connot be filled. He was a beloved father, husband and friend, but God saw a better place up in heaven for him, where he could wear a crown and wait for the coming of us. Oh how we miss him at the fireside and at the table. He was kind to everybody and had a tender heart.

He suffered about two weeks, but oh, bless him, he is in a palace where there is no more sorrow, pains or worry for him.

Oh, dear children, do not weep for him, for he is awaiting the coming of us, to meet him at the throne. We wish to thank each and every one for their kindness during the sickness and death of our father. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, Mrs. Amanda Jones, Mr. Ernest Jones, Mr. J. V. Jones, Mr. J. A. Jones, Mrs. J. C. Bussie, Mrs. E. S. Chasteen, Mrs. W. C. Smith, all of Clanton, Ala. Mr. E. N. Jones, Mrs. Alice Caton of Prattville, Mr. O. B. Jones, of Baton Rouge, La., Mr. Auburn Jones, of Haleyville; Mr. Calvin Jones, Montgomery, Ala., Mrs. Jane Bates of Clanton and Mrs. Lela Jones of Marbury.

The body was laid to rest at Lomax in the New Harmony cemetery, with Spigener in charge. The pallbearers were the children, Mr. E. N. Jones, Mr. J. A. Jones, Mr. D. B. Jones, Mr. Ernest Jones, Mr. Calvin Jones and Mr. Auburn Jones.—Written by his beloved wife and daughter.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., April 10.—Ozark Ripley, hunter, fisherman and author, paid Alabama a visit recently and left with its sportsmen a simple little lesson in conservation.

He said he had learned his most valuable conservation lessons from the Indians with whom he hunts and fishes in Canada. Here are the three guides he said they follow:

1. Protect forests against fire.
2. Preserve the female of game species.
3. Leave some for the other fellow.

"If we practiced conservation as the Indians do we would have plenty of game and fish," declared Ripley.

He described his experiences with a small Indian boy who followed him on a hunt and meticulously stamped out cigarettes he carelessly dropped in the forest; of an Indian guide who deserted a wealthy hunter when the latter killed a cow moose, and of his own guide who refused to let him catch more than four brook trout in the "greatest trout stream I have ever fished."

Each July Ripley, with an Indian guide, paddles up Hudson Bay in a canoe and spends four months enjoying what he describes as "the best fishing in the world."

He said he caught the largest rainbow trout he ever hooked in northern Georgia during his recent tour of the South. It weighed 18 pounds. He reported woodcocks to be on the increase in many sections of the country and said he saw several large flights of ducks on his way South, although breeding conditions in the North are "terrible."

"I love to hunt your Alabama quail because you find them under such widely different circumstances," said Ripley. "I also enjoy hunting your wild turkeys. Both are great sport."

MT. PLEASANT SCHOOL NEWS

The faculty and student body are very busy getting ready for final examinations and commencement exercises.

We are happy to state that a large number of our pupils who have had the measles are back in school.

Sunday school was reorganized here three weeks ago. The enrollment is approximately thirty-five. We wish to invite every one to attend Sunday school. Rev. Davis Durbin will preach Sunday morning at eleven o'clock.

Lucille McCain, a sixth grade pupil of Thorsby, visited the sixth grade pupils here Wednesday.

Mr. R. B. Johnson, our former principal, visited friends in this community Saturday afternoon.

The following basket ball boys and girls enjoyed a weiner roast in the pine grove below the school building Wednesday night. The pines were lighted with Japanese lanterns. Interesting games were participated in from 6:30 til 7:30 o'clock, after which everyone enjoyed roasting weiners over the bonfire. Those enjoying this occasion were:

Messrs. Leonard Burnett, Cecil Traywick, Julius Traywick, John E. Childress, Earl Melton, Chester Jones, George Chambers and the two pairs of twins, Dolphin and Delphin Popwell, Wilton and Wendell Massey, and Misses Myrtice and Jewell Cost, Callie Cooper, Virginia and Burene Edwards, Gladys Turner, Marie Melton, Pauline and Lorene Price, and Ertice Riggins.

Misses Willodean Bean and Myrtle Williams were visitors to our school Tuesday.

Mrs. J. H. Godard of Thorsby visited B. F. Massey last Thursday.

Mr. L. R. Clackler, who is employed at Coal Creek, Tenn., spent the week end with his wife and children.

Little Eula and Jean Price spent Monday night with their teacher, Mrs. Merchant.

Francis Smith spent Thursday night with Everee Smith.

Oma Lee Pounds spent the week end in Thorsby with her grand mother, Mrs. Pounds.

The pupils are enjoying volley ball, base ball and play ground games now.

The commencement program will be announced in next weeks paper.

ENTERPRISE CLUB MEETING

Our meeting met in regular session last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. B. Stroud. Our demonstration agent, Miss Pardue, met with us and gave us an interesting illustration on dry cleaning and renovation of clothes. One coat, dress and hat were cleaned. After all the business of the meeting was tended too Mrs. Stroud invited us into the dining room and served cake, hot chocolate and coffee to the following members:

Mesdames C. L. Wilkins, Joe Thomas, W. A. Wilkins, A. L. Pierce, J. C. Hathcock, J. M. Williams, B. D. Guy, Misses Lucille Griffin, Vivian and Elma Silas, Ruth Pardue and little Misses Ida Mae Wilkins, Dot and Nell Pierce.

Our next meeting will be held at the scholhouse on Wednesday, May 2.

There were several of the members that were not present, as it was such a pretty day. We are going to pretend that you were working in your garden or else you had the measles. So let's just see how many can be present next time.—A Club Member.

MRS. CENIE CONNELL

The departure of Mrs. Cenie Connell, of Sycamore, formerly of Refuge, near Clanton, occurredat a Slyacauga hospital on the morning of April 3rd, where she had been rushed two days before for an emergency treatment. Mrs. Connell was 22 years old and was blessed with splendid health until a few days before her death, when she was smitten with bronchial pneumonia, which, with other complications, caused her death.

Mrs. Connell was born October 22, 1911 in Chilton County, where she lived most all of her life. Mrs. Connell was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Baker, of White City. She was married to Mr. Jodie Connell on December 11, 1926 by the Rev. M. Lockhart at Refuge community. This was the first couple united by him.

Mrs. Connell was a faithufl and consistent member of Refuge Baptist church, five miles east of Clanton.

In the life of Mrs. Connell the indwelling spirit of Christ manifested the power and beauty of the new life. There were three children born into the home. One had already preceded its mother to the grave. She leaves a husband and two children, Moses, 5 years old and James four months old, and a host of friends and relatives to mourn her loss.

The great concourse of friends and neighbors attending the funeral together with the many floral offerings attest the high esteem and great love that was hers in the community wherein she lived. The funeral services were held from the Refuge Baptist church with Rev. J. W. Jones of Thorsby ond Rev. Nolen from Walnut Creek and Rev. M. Lockhart, her pastor, conducting the funeral.

"You will have to bring someone here to identify you. Have you any friends?"

"None—I'm a tax collector."

Mrs. M. A. Mullins and Miss Bettie Mullins have returned after a brief visit to Montgomery.

"...and it was all so simple when I found out my trouble, My physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood.

"The reasonableness of one of the S.S.S. ads caused me to think that S.S.S. Tonic was just what I needed for my let-down feeling, pimply skin and low resistance. I wanted more strength and a clear skin.

"It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal—and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores ... in two convenient sizes ... the larger is more economical.

from

COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

By Dan Smith

The writer is more than pleased to be able to make the following announcement. Word has been received from the authorities that the schools will continue for nine months. This not only means that the doors of C.C.H.S. will remain open a month longer, but it also means that the students will be given the advantage of nine months of school. They wouldn't leave school "three-fourths finished" as they would if we had only eight months. Now the teachers may go straight ahead and carry out their program of instruction without any hinderance. The federal government aiding Alabama schools, as well as schools in other states, proves our government's interest in her future citizens.

Don't forget the baseball game with Selma tomorrow. It will be one of the best of the season. Two strong teams will "raise the dust" on the diamond. Come on out and boost Chilton.

Ladies and gentlemen the winner of the beauty contest sponsored by the Jr. I Class was Grace Plyler, who represented the Sr. II class. She led with a total number of over 900 votes. Congratulations, Grace.

Chilton's baseball team, in its true form ventured on the enemy's ground last Friday and came back with a victory of 7 to 6 in their belts. The defeated team was Marbury High.

On Wednesday of this week Jemison challenged us. The game was played here. At the time of this writing the score was not available. So far we have two victories and no defeats. Keep it up.

Our heartiest congratulations go to the Junior class on the result of their play last Friday night. Never before in the past few years has the auditorium held such a crowd for a play. It was tremendous. Every seat and all extra chairs were taken. It would bring a smile on anyone's face to see such a response by a community to a school play.

The large crowd was not the only thing, No, sir, equally as noticeable and commendable as the attendance was the play itself. Nothing but praise can be heard for Miss Kendrick and those diligent Juniors who worked hard to turn out a successful play, and did.

We hope and feel sure that the regular Senior class play will draw as large a crowd.

The Seniors should use Sarah Hollis's medium of advertising. This was fine class spirit, Sarah, and much credit for the successful advertising goes to you.

The P.-T. A. of C.C.H.S. observed Parent's night on Tuesday of this week. A good attendance of parents enjoyed the fine program. Chilton County High School may and does boast of her P.-T. A.

Charles Foshee, of the Senior Class, represented this school in the visit by boys of C.C.H.S. and other schools to Mitchell Dam as the guest of Mr. John Hollis, superintendent of the dam.

The Senior class and their sponsor, Miss Frances Gulledge, are busy making preparations for the commencement exercises which are only five weeks off. They intend to make the commencement exercises this year the most beautiful and impressive of any before.

The Senior class is looking forward with much enthusiasm to the entertainment to be given them by the Juniors. This entertainment, an annual event of much interest, will probably be in the form of a banquet and will be held in a few days.

Who Am I? * * * Geraldine Deloach was the one last week. Now worry over this one * * * I am full of pep. I love to swim. I am popular. I do not have black hair. My name has nine letters in it, three different vowels. I am a Senior two * * * Who Am I?

Mrs. Percy Pitts, representing the Chilton County Post of the American Legion Auxiliary, made a splendid offer Monday to the students in the form of a poster making contest. The subject of the poster is to be about the poppies made by disabled World War Veterans. A local prize and a chance at the national award awaits the winner of the contest here.

Shhh, don't tell a soul * * * (The following articles are in no way connected with the character of the school, they being written by the editor of this column for the entertainment of the student readers.) Boy, oh boy, what that beauty contest didn't reveal * * * I wonder if those "capitalists" received any interest on their investments? * * * Some say the name of the contest was misleading. It should have been called a popularity contest. Were they right? * * * The impossible almost happened one night last week, but it didn't and it won't. Just wait and see * * * The new girl last Friday nigh caused quite a lot of comment. Their leaving early was noticeable * * * Well, well, well, too bad they went to Birmingham last Saturday night.

The school was delighted to have as their guest last Friday Dr. Cooper, a representative of Southwestern University. Dr. Cooper talked to the boys of the Senior Class and especially interesting was his description of life at Oxford University in England, of which he is a graduate.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

We were disappointed somewhat by Prilgrim Rest not showing up to sing for us Sunday, but it being rainy, was doubtless the cause. Maybe they will come and sing for us yet. Anyway, we went ahead and sang some while waiting for them to come, which was enjoyed by all, it seemed.

Remember next Sunday is the third Sunday and our regular preaching day. And remember too, that visitors are welcome to come and be present. Though some of us may not show that by their friendliness that you are welcome. Come on any way and hear a good message from God's messenger, Rev. Bentley. It will do your soul good.

The Sunday school meets at 1:30 and preaching at 3:00. Come early and be with us in Sunday school.—A Member.

A JUNIOR PARTY

A very striking event of the school year was a delightful party given by the faculty and Jr. I's and II's honoring the members of the Jr. III class of Mt. Pleasant Jr. High School at the home of Everee Smith, a popular member of the Jr. II class, on last Thursday evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock.

The members of the Jr. II class made very attractive hand-painted invitations for each of the ten members of the Jr. III class.

The home was very beautifully decorated in beautiful pink rose buds and white lilies, carrying out the class colors of pink and white.

Delightful games were enjoyed throughout the evening after which a delicious ice course of pink and white was served to over fifty members of the Jr. High School as follows:

Misses Gladys Turner, Ertice Riggins, Pauline and Lorene Price, Ruby Melton, Myrtice and Jewell Cost, Marie Melton, Callie Cooper, Julia Cox, Annie Loyd and Alice Lee Price, Francis Smith, Mable Gillespie, Irene Burnett, Laudelia Clackler, Gladys Bell, Mary Will Smith, Mary Francis Bruce, Louise Parker and Everee Smith.

Messrs. Clifford Traywick, John Edmond Childress, Cecil and Julius Traywick, Hubert Duke, Delphin and Dolphin Popwell, Wendell and Wilton Massey, Chester Jones, Jessie Eiland Gerald Powell, Kinnard Gillespie, Morris Clackler, George Bell, Rennie Baker, Revie Caton, and Carl Sanders.

BAKER SCHOOL NEWS

The Jr. II and III classes of Baker Junior High school are going to present one of the best plays of the season on Saturday night, April 21st. The title of the play is "A Fortunat Calamity." The characters are as follows:

Mrs. Marian Merkle, a proud mother, Annie Lee Bates; Alta, her daughter whose desire is to become rich, Gladys Wyatt, Ruth, just a plain girl, Pauline Sisk; Kate Van Tyle, a good natured cook, Mildred Coe; Dinah Johnsing, a servant, Caudell Chapman; Rastus Johnsing, an honest coon, Vernon Baker; Joe Brown, a revenue officer, Coy Lockhart; Bernard Gillion, a jovial young man, Fonzie Coe; Albert Campbell, who plays a crooked game, Clint Billingsley.

This play is really worth your money, ten cents and fifteen cents. You will miss half of your life if you don't come.

COTTON OPTIONS

Last week there appeared an article in this paper in reference to the cotton options. This article stated that if one had not exercised his cotton option it would be necessary to do so before May 1st.

If you have pooled your option and drawn four cents per pound, you have exercised the option already and have no more to do with the sale of it. When the manager of the pool sells your cotton option, if it sells above ten cents you will have a balance coming to you.

Little Miss Sarah Marsh and brother, Frank, have returned to their home in Birmingham after a visit to their relatives here.

CHILTON CO. SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION TO MEET SUNDAY

The following is the program for the Chilton County Sunday School Convention called in its monthly session at Center Hill next Sunday, April 15th.

The churches west of the L. & N. Railroad, known as the first district in the S. S. work of Chilton County Association, are asked to send representatives from their Sunday schools to meet with the Center Hill Baptist church, two miles west of Jemison, next Sunday p.m. beginning at 1:30.

REFUGE NEWS

We had Sunday school Sunday although the crowd was small, as there are several cases of measles in this community.

Bro. Durbin filled his regular appointment at White City Sunday.

Our pastor went to Pates Chapel Sunday.

Bro. Baker was at home Sunday and also attended Sunday school.

There is now being taught one of the best singing school at this place that has ever been taught here, and with much success. Mr. Devaughn can really get singing out of a class All who fail to visit this school really miss something worth while.

One of the saddest occasions that has ever happened to this community was the death of Mrs. Senie Connell. She suffered several days with pneumonia. God saw fit through her suffering to call her from this earth. She leaves her husband and two small children, but we should realize that God always knows best.

REV. JOSEPH W. HOWELL DIED

Rev. Joseph W. Howell, age 79 years, passed away at his residence in the Hampton community Saturday evening. He is survived by his widow one son, J. A. Howell; three daughters, Mrs. M. L. Hemstock, of Franklin, N. H.; Mrs. W. E. Holcombe, of Columbiana, Ala.; Mrs. W. E. Burkhalter, of Verbena, Ala.; one brother, J. G. Howell, of near Rockford, Ala.; several grandchildren.

There was a short service held at the home Sunday at 2 p.m. and the body was carried to Swamp Creek, near Rockford Monday and a short service there at 11 a.m. Rev. J. S. Kelley officiating with Spigener in charge.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are having some fine weather here at present and the farmers are making good use of it.

Mrs. Alice Denson was a guest of Mr. Bill Holcombe Sunday.

Mr. T. M. Jones and family and Mr. Lee Nabors and wife of Jemison were the guests of Mr. G. G. Nabors Sunday.

Master Thomas Cox was a dinner guest of Mr. G. G. Nabors Sunday.

Mrs. Dora Ambrose of Wilton was a guest of Mrs. Nannie C. Moore Sunday afternoon.

The Sunday school and preaching was rained out here Sunday. So lets all meet next Sunday at ten o'clock a.m. for Sunday schol with a good lesson. We have a good subject, "Jesus Teaches Forgiveness." Note lesson truths as to win forgiveness. First, an honest accounting. Second, speak the truth. Third, seek forgiveness. A good lesson for all, so lets all have a good lesson.

MAPLE SPRINGS

Remember next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days. Sunday afternoon is our singing evening here. Everybody come and bring someone with you.

Those on the sick list this week are Mr. Arthur Mitchell, Roy Wilson, little Ollie Bell Ray, and Mrs. Lester Downs.

Concord - Billingsley

Next Sunday is our regular preaching day at this place. Everybody is invited to attend.

Mr. Ocie Williams is sick with the measles. Hope he will soon be well again.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Cox spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Brown Sunday.

Mr. T. J. Deramus returned home Saturday after spending several days with relatives in Selma.

Several from here attended the all day singing at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emily George and Mr. Keith Dickinson of Eden were the week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dickinson.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Deramus of Stanton spent Wednesday night and Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Williams.

Miss Bessie Williams spent the latter part of last week with her aunt, Mrs. J. Bob Deramus, of near Haynes.

We are glad to know Miss Kate Dickinson is able to be out again after being sick for several days.

Mr. J. P. Williams and sons, Clarence and Allen, and little daughter, Mary Evelyn, and Mr. T. J. Deramus, attended preaching at Pleasant Hill Sunday. They visited Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Deramus Sunday afternoon.

CONCERT AT CLOSE OF REFUGE SINGING SCHOOL

Prof. W. M. Devaughn announces a concert to be held at Refuge Friday night, April 20, at the close of his singing school. The program will consist of solos, duets, quartets, choir singing, etc. It will be a clean and wholesome program, and well worth your attendance. Charge for admission will be 10 and 15 cents.

Prof. Devaughn has been teaching the Refuge school two hours each night, and will continue throughout this week and next, concluding with the concert. He adds that this is one of the most interesting little schools he has taught in a long time.

CRATES — ALL who want Strawberry Crates will please come for them Friday or Saturday.—J. N. Dennis.

H. A. HARRIS

Candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republican Primary May 1, 1934

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am again coming to you through the columns of The Union-Banner and soliciting your vote and influence in my race for Circuit Clerk in the Republican Primary of May 1, 1934.

As I stated before, I am teaching school, and will be so engaged until April 20. So it will be impossible for me to see you in person as I had hoped to do.

I am making this race solely on my own record and merits, and ask you to investigate and consider same before making your choice. If, after consideration, you think me worthy and competent, I will greatly appreciate your vote and help in any way.

In answer to some questions asked through this paper, I am glad to make the following statements: Being a school man, and realizing the importance of educating and developing the boys and girls into useful citizens, I believe that the schools are a primary function of the state, and should be so considered. Therefore, I believe the schools should be given at least an equal show with other state departments, because on the training and development of its citizenship depend the welfare, progress and prosperity of the state. I am opposed to added tax burdens, but believe that through readjustment, proper distribution and equalization of present taxes and economy in government our schools can and should be maintained. I believe that all boys and girls should have an equal chance.

I yet hope to see many of you before the primary. But if I should fail to see you, please consider me in marking your ballot. I promise every effort possible to render service that will be satisfactory, and to be kind and courteous at all times.

I want to express my appreciation of the manner in which the present Republican primary campaign has been conducted by all the candidates, and by The Union-Banner as the publicity medium of our party.

To my friends who receive this paper, I want to ask that you please speak to your neighbors who do not receive it, and say a word in my behalf.

Respectfully,

H. A. HARRIS.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Plans are being mapped out to have our school picnic on Saturday, April 21. No place has yet been appointed but this well be given out later. We trust that all who attend school at Vermont this year can go. Two large trucks will carry the band of happy picnickers to some selected spot where a day of real pleasure will be spent. A number of the parents will accompany the merry group.

The Vermont community baseball team tore loose and bagged another one-sided victory last Saturday when they ran rough-shod over the Clanton Cotton Mill team again, Winning by the score of 16 to 7. The cotton millers started off like they intended to swamp the boys, by driving in a 4 to 0 lead the first two innings. But, alas, their will-power broke down the third and fourth frames, when Smith, Burnet, Trice, Sansom, in fact, all of them, commenced blasting everything the pitchers served up to the home plate. We are proud we won, but sorry that one of the cotton mill boys was severely hurt by a batted ball. We hope for him a quick recovery.

Our team goes to plantersville on next Saturday, April 14. Let's hope they can go down there and turn their long-range guns loose on those highly "touted" Plantersville pitchers and come back home with victory number three in the bag.

Our final review began last Monday. Our final examinations will begin next Tuesday. Everyone is busy trying to get set for making a high mark during those four last days of school. Examinations should not be so repulsive, as most of us think they are. They are nothing to dread—just a summing up of a few of the principles and concepts which have been established during the days of a regular course.

Miss Manning made another pleasant trip to Auburn last week end. She says she had a lovely time.

We are planning to have our graduation exercises on Friday night, April 20. The speaker for this occasion will be announced in our final news write up in next wek's paper.

"So you're living with your wife's folks now?"

"Yes, we just had to have a new car, you know."

Mr. Aubrey Taylor, senior student at Auburn, spent the past week end at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Taylor.

BETHSALEM NEWS

Our Sunday school met Sunday morning at 10 o'clock with a real good attendance.

The health of this community is not so good yet. The measles are still raging around here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hollman were the Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hughie Williams.

Mrs. Ida Williams and Mrs. Eunice Green spent Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Jettie Wilkins and Mrs. Lela McGee.

Mr.and Mrs. Litt Cox and family were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Wilkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Green and family spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ed McGee and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilkins.

Mr. J. L. Askew attended the singing at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

Mrs. Docia Vinson spent Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Askins and family.

Mrs.Anna Spigner spent Wednesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Askins and family.

Our old time singing was rained out Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphus Moore were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Wilkins spent Tuesday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Doll Mims.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Billingsley attended the singing at Pleasant Grove Sunday.

Miss Edna Spigner spent a while Sunday morning with Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bowman.

Next Sunday is our regular preaching Sunday. Everyone is invited to come and bring someone with you.

Our B. Y. P. U. was rained out Sunday night but maybe there will be some pretty weather from now on. Everyone come and help us out, that will.

FOUND HIS WAGON TAP

Mr. Will Thomas reported to The Union-Banner Tuesday that he found his wagon tap which was advertised as lost last week.

It was found in the road three miles from town by Mr. Mid Mims, who later read about it in The Union-Banner and returned it to Mr. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Page and Miss Peggy Page spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp in Dothan.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

PROGRAM GIVES DAIRYMEN AID

Auburn, Ala., April 10.—A nation-wide adjustment program in increase the income of dairy farmers has been announced by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The plan was taken to the milk producers for discussion and revision last week in a series of 15 regional meetings over the country.

Adoption of the plan is up to the dairy farmers. In addition to increasing the producers' incomes, the program seeks to hold dairy production at or near the seasonally low levels of recent months until purchasing power in the cities recovers sufficiently so that consumers can buy larger quantities of milk products at better prices.

Provisions supplemental to the dairy adjustment plan include relief distribution of surplus milk to underfed children in cities, possible transfer of healthy cows from surplus dairy areas to needy farm families which have no cows. And provisions for eradication of bovine tuberculosis and possibly Bang's disease.

As tentatively outlined, the program contemplates an expenditure of 165 million dollars but is devised for extension to as much as 300 million dollar undertaking in event of congressional adoption of pending legislation to aid the dairy and beef cattle industries. The cooperating farmers would receive benefit payments in addition to higher prices because of a more balanced milk production, and furthermore would save on feeding costs.

Benefit payments would be at a rate of about 40 cents for each pound of butterfat which dairymen reduce below their 1932-33 sales quota, amounting to about $1.50 on each 100 pounds of surplus fluid milk which they reduce within the prescribed percentage limit. Individual dairymen would choose their own method of reducing production by adapting their feed practices, reducing the number of cows, or otherwise.

PLYMOUTH PRODUCTION SPEEDED UP RECENTLY

Twelve thousand workers, the largest force in Plymouth's history, are now employed a tthe Plymouth plant to help meet the phenomenal demand for the new merchandise.

The Plymouth factory is operating day and night, six days a week. Factory output is fast catching up with the deluge of orders which followed the introduction of the new and finer Plymouths.

Shipments to dealers everywhere are being made in constantly increasing volume. More than 10,000 cars were sent to dealers during the week ending March 10, the largest single week's delivery in Plymouth's history.

In the same week, retail deliveries of new Plymouths were 6,614, five times greater than during the same period in 1933. Plymouth sales did not reach this figure last year until June.

Mrs. Arthur Johnson and Miss Alma Allen visited Montevallo Monday.

CAN HARVEST SEED OF AUSTRIAN PEAS

Auburn, Ala., April 10. — Saving Austrian winter pea seed in Alabama has been somewhat uncertain but observations and information gained to date show that farmers in most sections will be justified in trying to save their own seed, according to J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

In tests conducted in recent years from 500 to 600 pounds of seed per acre were harvested and a dozen or more counties have reported harvesting from 15,000 to 35,000 pounds.

If a two-horse farmer left one acre for seed and made 400 pounds of seed he would have sufficient home-grown seed to plant 13 acres," Mr. Lowery said. "A good growth on these 13 acres would add nitrogen equivalent to around 3 tons of nitrate of lime or nitrate of soda, and in addition organic matter equivalent to that in 65 carloads of stable manure."

Mr. Lowery suggests that an acre be left for seed and that if seed are formed the vines be allowed to die down and then raked up with a rake and run through a thresher from which the concaves have been removed.

If a thresher is not available the vines may be piled on a tight floor or sheet and the seed beaten out with sticks.

The Auburn specialists pointed out that if seed production fails on the acre left for seed that a total loss is not sustained, because the vines can be turned and followed with a corn or hay crop.

AUBURN CATALOG IS OFF THE PRESS

The 1934 edition of the annual catalog of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn has been printed and copies are being distributed throughout Alabama. It is a 300-page book in which is printed full information about the Alabama Polytechnic Institute and the various courses offered.

There are nine different schools listed and the degree courses of each one are explained. These schools are the school of agriculture, the school of architecture and allied arts, the school of chemistry and pharmacy, the school of education, the school of engineering, the school of home economics, the school of science and literature, the school of veterinary medicine, and the school of graduate studies.

A total of 21 degree courses are offered in these nine schools. In addition standard courses in pre-medicine and pre-law are offered for preparing students to enter the leading law and medical schools throughout the nation.

All courses offered at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute are open to girls as well as boys. Auburn is the oldest co-educational institution in Alabama and the second oldest in the South. Women were admitted to Auburn in 1892.

In presenting the catalog the Administrative Committee—composed of Dr. John J. Wilmore, Dr. B. H. Crenshaw, and Dr. L. N. Duncan—announced that the next regular session will open on September 4 and 5. The catalog is free.

PROCESSING TAX AMPLE

Returns from processing taxes now in effect are meeting budget estimates made by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, and will provide sufficient to finance the various adjustment programs now in operation, and also approved surplus removal purchases. Expenditures to be incurred in the programs now in effect—wheat, cotton, corn-hogs, and tobacco—involving rental and benefit payments and surplus removal costs, will total $859,350,000 according to the latest revised budget estimates. Collections of taxes for the entire period are estimated at $863,595,000.

COTTON OPTIONS EXPIRE

Producers holding options on government-held cotton must exercise these options by May 1, or make proper arrangements for extensions. Approximately 14,500 cotton options are outstanding for approximately 90,000 bales of cotton. Under its terms, the option expires unless it is received by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for execution before May 1, or unless a formal request is made for an extension.

AUBURN SUMMER SCHOOL

The twenty-second annual summer session of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn will open on June 4. It will continue for 6 weeks, or until July 13. On July 16 the second term of the summer session will open to end on August 18, at which time the third commencement exercises of 1934 will take place.

The purpose of the summer session as announced by Dean Zebulon Judd, director, is to offer a broad program of studies—both graduate and undergraduate—to meet the needs of all classes of students who have been graduated from accerdited high schools and are prepared to pursue any of the curricula offered by Auburn or by any other standard college or university.

Courses completed during the summer may be used as a basis for obtaining teachers' certificates or for their extension or renewal, and also for reinstatement of certificates. Required work done will be credited toward degrees.

A large faculty has been arranged, the majority of them being regular professors and instructors at the regular session. In this way, explained Dean Judd, summer school work is conducted on the same high plane as is work in the regular session.

Dean Judd said that necessary expenses for attendance at a summer session at Auburn are nominal. Fees are low; room and board very reasonable. Dormitories will be open to girls on a low cost basis.

CHECK ON COTTON

Certificates of performance for the 1934-35 cotton acreage reduction program agreements are being prepared by the cotton section of the Agricultural Administration. Producers will be required to execute this evidence of compliance during the summer, after cotton has been planted and before the second rental payment is made. In addition to the formal terms of the agreement, such as the correctness of the description of the farm covered, the acreage planted to cotton in 1934, the acreage marked as rented acres, the average productivity of planted and rented acres and other sections of the agreement, the certification of performance also will concern itself with the land-lord-tenant relationships.

IN MEMORY OF CENIE CONNELL

She was a sweet flower that God planted here on October 16, 1910, but the angels had a better place for her up yonder, and they came to her bedside on April 3, 1934, on Tuesday morning and bore her sweet soul away. It was about 7:30 o'clock in the morning when everything is so still and quiet.

She was a kind and loving friend to everyone she met. She always wore a bright and shining smile, but God called her to a better place than this. She always loved to serve her Lord best of all. She is only asleep with Jesus. Just mend up broken hearts and prepare to meet her some day when God calls you.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, Mr. Jodie Connell, two children, James and Henry Connell, one 5 years old and the other four months old, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Baker; four sisters, Pernia Aria, Delen, Lell Baker, and Tresia Logan.

Let's remember that God giveth and God taketh away, for He knoweth all things best.

Funeral services were held at Refuge Wednesday morning with Rev. M. Lockhart, Rev. Jones and Rev. Nolen in charge, at 11:30 a.m. All was done that loving hands could do, but God took her home to a better world than this.

Lesson for April 15

JESUS TEACHING FORGIVENESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 18:15-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors.—Matt. 6:12.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Helps Peter With a Hard Question.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Lesson in Kindly Conduct.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Practice Forgiveness.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Is True Forgiveness?

This lesson touches a most vital subject, a most practical one for our everyday lives. We are always surrounded by wicked men. Ill-treatment we shall most surely receive, for all who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution (II. Tim. 3:12).

I. How to Gain an Erring Brother (vv. 15-20).

To bring a sinning brother to a knowledge of his sin and restore him to fellowship with his Lord and to fellowship with the saints is to gain him. Therefore the transcendent aim should be to win him. The method to be used is

1. Personal (v. 15). Go and tell him his fault alone. The aim in this personal effort is not to charge him with sin but to bring him to see his sin.

2. The help of a comrade (v. 16). "Take with thee one or two more." The presence of one or two Christian brethren helps in making known his fault.

3. Tell it to the church (v. 17). Sometimes the church can accomplish that which the individual and the one or two brethren fail to do.

4. The binding authority of the church's decision (vv. 18-20). When the church follows the instruction of the Lord, gathers in the name of Jesus Christ and is actuated by the Holy Spirit, its decisions are final.

II. The Limit of Forgiveness (vv. 21, 22).

1. Peter's question (v. 21). From Christ's teaching as to the efforts to bring about reconciliation in case of offenses between brethren, he knew that the spirit of forgiveness would be required. The rabbis taught that one, two, or even three offenses should be forgiven but the fourth should be punished. Peter disposed to be gracious inquired, "Till seven times?" showing his readiness to forgive his brethren not three times merely but twice three times and a little over.

2. Jesus' answer (v. 22). This answer astonished Peter. Jesus said "not till seven times but until seventy times seven," showing that willingness to forgive should be practically limitless. The Christian should be so filled with the love of Christ that he will forgive whenever being called upon to do so.

3. Christ's principle of forgiveness (vv. 23-35). This principle is illustrated by the story of the two creditors.

a. The gracious creditor (vv. 23-27). The king in this parable represents God. The servant who is greatly in debt represents the sinner—any sinner, every sinner, you and me. We were hopelessly in debt to God. Ten million talents are equal to about $12,000,000. To meet this obligation would be an utter impossibility. This man's plea for time, promising to pay all, resembles man's vain imaginations that he can pay his debt to God; that by his future good works he can atone for his past grievous sins. The law says, "Pay all," but Christ forgives all. By the justice of God's law we are hopelessly doomed. By the grace of God we are freely pardoned.

b. The cruel creditor (vv. 28-35). The man who was forgiven so much found the man who owed him a small sum, about $17. He shut his ears to the man's entreaty to be patient with him, flew at his throat and cruelly put him into prison. The great mercy shown him did not touch his heart, so he refused to be merciful. Every one who is unforgiving shows that the forgiveness of God in Jesus Christ has not been experienced. Being set free from so great a debt as our sins against God, we should make God's act of unlimited forgiveness toward us a standard of unlimited forgiveness toward others. In dealing with others we should always keep before us

(1). That we constantly need the forgiveness of God. When we pray, "forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," let us be sure that we have put away all thought of things held against others.

(2). There is a day of judgment coming and at that day we shall be treated as we treat others. No mercy will be shown to those who have not shown mercy. God's action toward us should be the standard of our action toward others.

What Union Means

Union with God in Christ wraps up every blessing. You cannot go beyond this. It is the summum bonum, containing all, and more than all, that heart can desire, or imagination can fathom.

The Glory of Our Christ

We can never add anything to the honor or glory of Jesus' name. All the works of the holiest people of God since time began and through all eternity can never add to his glory.

WARNS POULTRY RAISERS AGAINST FAKE REMEDIES

Hatching time and the 8 to 12 weeks that follow bring a serious menace to chicks in the form of coccidiosis, one of the most dangerous diseases of young chicks. The disease is spread by contamination of the food, waters and soil with the droppings of infected chicks.

The severity of coccidiosis depends in part on the number of disease-producing organisms which are taken into the body of the young fowl. In non-fatal cases, the chicks recover and the organisms usually disappear within a month's time unless reinfection has taken place. However, reinfection does take place often when the yards and brooder houses are not kept in an extremely clean and sanitary condition. Removal of the droppings and maintaining other sanitary practices generally will prevent reinfection.

Poultry growers are sometimes led to believe that certain veterinary medicines will cure this malady, says Dr. H. E. Moskey, veterinarian of the Federal Food and Drug Administration.

The Adiminstration in the enforcement of the pure food and drug law has removed from the market stocks of so-called remedies for this disease. According to the consensus of opinion of veterinary medical authorities, there is today no drug nor combination of drugs which can be considered a cure for coccidiosis of chicks.

Chicks infected with the disease frequently recover naturally, and if proper sanitary methods are followed they will not become reinfected. Poultry growers have sometimes attributed natural recovery of their chicks to some nostrum which has been sold to them. There is little or no evidence available at the present that any established veterinary preparation on the market is valuable in the cure of this virulent malady.

The best known remedy for coccidiosis is plenty of milk and clean chicken yards and house.

STUART WOODSON WINS NOTE BOOK CONTEST

The notebook submitted by Stuart Woodson, of Lay Dam School, was judged one of the best received in the notebook contest conducted by "My Weekly Reader," during the past semester.

Accordingly, a check for one dollar, the amount of the prize, has been sent to his teacher, Mrs. J. W. Lecroy, which she has presented to Stuart, with the compliments of the American Education Press, Inc.

LIQUIDATING SCHOOL WARRANTS

County Superintendent Luther E. Little reports that this office has been very busy during the past week liquidating school warrants and exchanging state bonds for the same.

"We are pleased with the progress we have made in this work," he said, "and hope to have it all completed in a short time."

Turning Austrian Peas And Vetch

Simple Rule Given Farmers by County Agent, J. W. Fant

At this time of the year we are concerned with the turning of Austrian winter peas and vetch.

In parts of the county these crops haven't made the growth they usually have at this time. If the plants look green and are growing, don't get in too big a hurry to turn it under. If the plants are yellow and haven't started to grow by now, you might as well plow the land.

I am giving below a simple rule for determining when to turn vetch and peas:

1. Find a place in the field where the growth is average.
2. Measure and stake off a place 10 feet square. (10x10 - 100 sq. ft.)
3. Cut the plants, bundle up and weigh. If the vetch plants from this plot weigh 13 pounds and Austrian peas weigh 15 pounds, you have enough growth on the land to be equivalent to approximately 300 lbs. of Nitrate of Soda.

Mr. J. B. Wilson, Extension Specialist, will be in the county April 17-18 to give some demonstrations in turning peas and vetch. He will have with him several types of plows and you will have an opportunity to compare the work done by each. If you are interested meet us at one of the following places:

New Cedron community — O. H. Lawrence's farm, April 17, 8 o'clock until 12.

Isabella community—Isabella school April 17, afternoon.

Clanton community—Walter Popwell's farm, April 18 from 8 o'clock until 12.

Jemison community—Louis Allen's farm, April 18, afternoon.

Come to one of these meetings and see the different type plows in operation and learn the best method for handling vetch and peas.

LUTHER PATRICK TO SPEAK AT FAIRVIEW SATURDAY NIGHT

Dr. J. P. Hayes asks The Union-Banner to carry the announcement that Mr. Luther Patrick will speak in behalf of Judge McCord's candidacy for governor at Fairview, in Chilton County, at 7:30 p.m., Saturday of this week, April 14th. Mr. Patrick is a forceful speaker, and the public is assured of being entertained as well as enlightened, if they will attend.

DR. CARSON TO BE AT BAPTIST CHURCH NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Dr. W. H. Carson, southern Baptist missionary to Africa, will lecture and show moving pictures at the Baptist church Friday night at 7:30. Dr. Carson has been in Africa fourteen years and is an unusually fine talker. His pictures are African scenes along with scenes of missionary work done by the churches. He is an old seminary friend of mine, and I am anxious that the public hear him tell about his great work that he is doing for the Master. Everybody is invited. Tell your friends. This is something worth seeing. No admission charges. Come —you are wanted.—S. J. Ezell, pastor.

Fifty per cent of the initial quota of 805 workers was supplied direct by the relief office. The remainder came through the National Reemployment Service, the office managed by Mr. C. G. Stokes. In reducing the quota, close touch was kept with the relief office, and at all times the officials endeavored to keep the most needy on the CWA rolls.

Safety and First Aid

All through the program, each project had with it a competent timekeeper, who acted as safety man for that project. His duties were to keep close watch on the men while on the job, and every injury, no matter how slight, had his immediate attention. He carried a safety kit, supplied by the government, which contained medical supplies, such as gauze, bandages, alcohol, iodine, and the like, with which to render first aid. In more serious cases he had orders to carry the injured worker in to the office, where he might have the attention of a physician. Once each week these timekeepers were called in and fully instructed in this first aid work. These courses were managed from time to time by experienced first aid men, among them Mr. Woodson and Mr. Newton of Alabama Power Co., and Drs. Gragg and Lawrence, and others. During these courses all safety men were compelled to come in, and 24 CWA employees took the examination at the end of the course, and received certificates. The Safety Division of the CWA program was under the supervision of Mr. C. E. Gulledge, assisted by Reese G. Mullins and Miss Eleanor Rowell, R. N.

Summary

To go into itemized description of every phase of this great undertaking would tax the patience of our readers. In giving the above, we have endeavored to give the outstanding information, without going into tiresome details. We might liken the CWA program to the work of a great army. It has come, has done its job well, and has gone again. It has furnished many of the people of Chilton County work during the winter months, when the going is the hardest, and has left with us better roads, much valuable information gathered by the various surveys, additions to school buildings, the airport at Clanton is 65 per cent completed, the swamps have been drained, and many worth-while jobs have been done. Too, we have been very fortunate in the directors and officials of the CWA that have been supplied Chilton County. Mr. Pittman was a very thorough man, and did a fine job of setting the program up in the county.

Mr. Armistead Leake is one of the most pleasant and efficient men we have ever had the pleasure of knowing, and much credit is due him for the tactful manner in which he has handled matters. When reduction of the quota was forced, some misunderstanding and disappointment was bound to come, but Mr. Leake has brought to his work such an atmosphere of personal good-fellowship that matters have gone much more smoothly than might have been the case.

Again we must mention the spirit of cooperation that has existed between officials of the CWA, the relief office, and the county. We feel that they have all done a great job and done it well. We congratulate them, and the people of Chilton County for this good work. And we join, with the citizenry of the county, in a vote of thanks to the national government the state CWA officials, and all concerned, for all that Chilton County has received in the attempt to provide jobs, and to help the needy of the county.

OAK GROVE

Here's to a glorious success. Seventeen scholars enjoyed the past week at Oak Grove. For five consecutive nights, Miss Rosalie Martin stood at the desk drilling on the wonderful principles set forth in the immortal book, "Pilgrims Progress." We highly recommend to other unions this book as a marvelous example for a study course. We regret that others did not attend but we are glad that some is interested in the on-going of God's kingdom.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Webb and family of Birmingham were the guests of friends and relatives Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Lessley were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Seay Sunday.

Mr. Forrest Glass of Birmingham was the week end guest of his family at Oak Grove.

We are pleased to announce that Oak Grove B. Y. P. U. will be well represented in the Eastern District Convention which meets in Talladega April 24 and 25. The union is sending two delegates, Charles Nix and Hubbard Watson. The former will appear on the program in the afternoon session of the first day. The latter is going for the benefit of the union by getting notes and bringing a report to the union.

April 15 and 22 are set dates for special collections for expenses of one delegate. If anyone can or will give any offering, please act accordingly on the mentioned dates. We trust that this investment will be well worth while on everyone's part. This is a challenge to other unions. Let's put a large number of Chilton County B. Y. P. U. delegates in Talladega on these above dates. We can do it, if we only will. The question is, "Will you make a sacrifice?"

Mr. Wallace Jones and mother, Mrs. Willie Jones, and Mrs. G. L. Phillips spent Sunday afternoon in Prattville.

One of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lowery is sick with pneumonia.

Clifford Mullins, of Tuscaloosa, spent a few days in Clanton this week.

CLARA MAE BOATFIELD

On Sunday morning, April 1st, at 2 o'clock, the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boatfield and bore away the sweet spirit of their darling girl, Clara Mae. She was seven years old, and had been sick for two weeks with measles and pneumonia. All was done for her that earthly hands could do, but God in His love and sympathy saw fit to call her home out of her suffering and pain.

It was hard to give her up, but God's will must be done. There is a vacant place in the home that can never be filled. Clara Mae was a sweet and precious little girl and will be missed by all who knew her, because to know her was to love her.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boatfield, two brothers and one sister and a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted at Samaria Sunday afternoon at 2:30, with Martin and Sons in charge.—One who loved her.

O. C. BENNETT NOW MANAGER OF E. L. KLINNER STORE HERE

Succeeding Mr. Herbert Klinner, Mr. O. C. Bennett last week became manager of the local furniture store of E. L. Klinner Furniture Company, with headquarters in Birmingham.

Mr. Bennett has been here with this firm since last August. He went with E. L. Klinner in Birmingham a short time before he came to Clanton. Before going to work with this firm Mr. Bennett had been in the furniture business in the Birmingham district for fifteen years, during which time he had worked with the larger furniture establishments in Birmingham.

Mr. Bennett will have to assist him Mr. Puckett, who will care for the outside work of the business. Mr. Puckett comes from Birmingham, where he has been working for one of the E. L. Klinner stores.

Dr. J. E. Edgar is sick this week.

New Relief Work Plan Is Outlined

Meeting of Officials Held At Courthouse Wednesday Afternoon

Miss Virginia Denton and Mr. Lewis Ford, of the State Relief Administration, came to Clanton Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of outlining to local officials complete details of the operation of the new program of federal relief and work as it will be applied in Chilton County through the rural rehabilitation set-up.

Miss Denton and Mr. Ford met with the Commissioners Court and local relief officials Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of explaining the new program.

Thursday County Agent, J. W. Fant, Miss Ruth Pardue, Mr. Leake and Miss Austin will attend a meeting in Sylacauga, at which there will be outlined a program of cooperation of Extension Service workers with the rural rehabilitation relief program.

It is expected that the application of the whole program in detail will be available for publication next week.

TOM THUMB WEDDING MONDAY

The Clanton Grammar school is going to give a Tom Thumb wedding at the Courthouse in Clanton on next Monday evening at 8:00. The admission price is 10 and 15 cents. The patrons and friends of the Grammar school are urged to attend.

Little Miss Eugenia Inez Wyatt spent Friday afternoon and Friday night with her cousin, Miss Ruby Eiland, in Montgomery.

WARNING to EXPECTANT MOTHERS

If you have ever been a patient in any hospital, you are probably familiar with the advantages of a liquid laxative.

Doctors know the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can thus be controlled to suit your individual need.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have now learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without discomfort at the time, or after. Dr. Caldwell's long experience with mothers and babies, and his remarkable record of nearly three thousand births without the loss of one mother or child, should give anybody complete confidence in any prescription which he wrote!

But most important of all, a gentle liquid laxative does not cause bowel strain to the most delicate system, and this is of the utmost importance to expectant mothers and to every child.

Expectant mothers are urged to try gentle regulation of bowels with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a delightful tasting laxative of delightful action, made of fresh herbs, pure pepsin and active senna. Not a single mineral drug; nothing to cause strain or irritate the kidneys.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved preparation and kept ready for use by all druggists.

VETERANS TO GET PAY RESTORED

Raise Will Take Effect For Service Connected This Month or Next

Washington, April 15. — Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs Sunday night made public plans to pay out $37,427,000 to 179,000 veterans of the Spanish War, the Boxer Rebellion and the Phillipine Insurrection under provisions of the independent offices appropriation act.

The administration announced that 57,000 veterans of these conflicts would be restored to the pension rolls and that 122,000 would receive compensation increases so that they will get 75 per cent of what they were receiving at the passage of the economy act in March, 1933.

Hines said that by April 30 the 57,000 who were cut off the rolls last year will have been restored to the lists. He added that because of the detailed work involved the 122,000 will receive increases might not get them before May 30.

In a letter to each of the veterans involved, George E. Brown, veterans claims service director, said:

"This office is doing everything in its power to speed this adjustment; even to the extent of restoring immediately, where possible under the law, a portion of the pension formerly received, pending final action on the claim."

EVANGELISTIC MEETING BEGINS ON NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT HERE

A series of revival meetings will begin in Clanton next Sunday night, April 22, at 7:30 o'clock, and continue each night for about two weeks. Rev. W. W. Harmon will conduct the services.

The place of meetings will be in the Wade Building across the street from the postoffice.

Special music will be furnished by the Pratt City Quartet and the Bible School Quartet.

Everybody is invited to attend these services.

Time Extended For Tax Payers

Collector Culp Will Extend Every Possible Aid As He Did Last Year

Tax Collector, W. G. Culp, announces that he will make extension of the time in which people will have to pay their taxes, in a manner similar to that which he adopted last year.

While no definite date of the time extension is stated, Mr. Culp intimated that he will be just as liberal as he possibly can under the law, and will extend every opportunity to the taxpayers to take care of their taxes before resorting to the sale provisions that are authorized for delinquents.

It will be recalled that the policy adopted by Mr. Culp in handling delinquent taxes last year made it possible for many people to handle their tax matters without serious inconvenience.

Our people will be glad to know that they shall again this year have the same liberal policy extended to them by the Tax Collector.

He—I would like to have some good old-fashioned loving.

She—O.K. Come out to the house and I'll introduce you to grandma.

BETTER BUSINESS SIGNS REPORTED OVER NATION

Cleveland, April 15.—The magazine Steel said activities in the industry moved forward three points to 51 per cent of capacity last week.

Chicago, April 15.—The Chicago Association of Commerce in its weekly survey of business conditions said automobile sales continued at a fast clip and that both mail orders and road travelers said buying continued to advance.

New York, April 15.—Further gains in steel and automobile industries offset recessions in electric power output and freight car loadings last week a survey showed today. Dunn and Bradstreet said merchants do not expect the peak of buying of Spring goods to be passed before May. F. W. Dodge corporation reported contribution contracts about three times the volume of a year ago.

Chicago, April 15.—A complication of March sales of chain stores for 28 companies, including two mail order firms, showed an increase of 26.8 per cent over a year ago. This year's March sales stood at $264,008,875 for the companies.

New York, April 15.—Paul H. Davis and Company reported today that market values of 50 representative stocks at the close of the week were $13,972,211,750, an increase of 0.24 per cent over the close of the preceding week.

CHARLES COOPER

Mr. Cooper is a candidate for Representative of Chilton County in the Legislature of Alabama, in the Republican Primary of May 1st. He says he expects to represent the working men and women of his county, if he is elected to the Legislature. On another page of this paper Mr. Cooper has a letter regarding his candidacy addressed to the Republican voters of Chilton County, which he wants everybody to read.

New Committee For Relief Work

Will Direct New Rural Rehabilitation Program In Chilton County

The Chilton County committee for administering and directing the new program of rural rehabilitation under federal relief has been set up and composed of the following persons:

J. W. Fant, County Farm Agent; Miss Ruth Pardue, County Home Demonstration Agent; Judge L. H. Reynolds; Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, director of relief; W. A. Gulledge, merchant, of Verbena; H. S. Shaw, farmer, of Clanton.

It will be the duty of this committee to determine the kind of rehabilitation needed by families on relief. Their determinations in all cases will be made on the basis of surveys and information compiled by case workers under direction of the relief office here.

No indication was given as to the time when the new rehabilitation program will be put into actual operation.

COUNTY CONVENTION AT THE COURTHOUSE NEXT SUNDAY

Prof. O. L. Devaughn, chairman of the Chilton County Singing Convention, again wishes to remind everybody of the all day singing at the courthouse in Clanton next Sunday afternoon. It will begin at 10 o'clock and continue until about 3:30 in the afternoon. An invitation has been extended a number of outstanding composers and directors over Alabaam and adjoining states. Some have promised definitely to attend, and some have stated that they would attend if possible.

The singers of the county are expected to cooperate in making it the best singing of the year. Those who have supplies of different books are asked to bring them, as all of them will be used.

DR. LEE ROY MIMS IN SOMERVILLE, MASS.

The Union-Banner is in receipt of an interesting letter from Dr. L. R. Mims, who at the time of writing was in Somerville, Mass., working for the government in the department of Agriculture bureau of animal industry. Lee Roy writes that he is seeing lots of interesting sights around Boston, but the east wind off the Atlantic is mighty cold and disagreeable to one acustomed to Alabama's warm sunshine.

Dr. Lee Roy Mims is the son of Mr. E. H. Mims, who lives two miles east of Clanton. He graduated in veterinary medicine at Auburn a few years ago, and since then has been practicing his profession at Jasper in Walker County. He went to work for the department of agriculture a month or so ago.

JOHN ARANT HURT IN WRECK

John Arant, young man of Wadsworth, was brought to Central Alabama Hospital by Martin's ambulance last Saturday night. He was in a truck wreck from which he sustined a fractured hip.

Several people, among whom was young Arant, were traveling on a truck. The driver lost control of the machine and it ran into a bank.

BIG DAY AT BILLINGSLEY SATURDAY, APRIL 28TH

There will be a barbecue, baseball games, etc., at Billingsley on Saturday, April 28th. Let everybody come and have a good time. It will be a fine opportunity for candidates to meet their friends. So come, everyone, and enjoy yourselves.

Chilton County High School News

(By Dan Smith)

You ask why all the seniors and juniors are wearing smiles a mile long this week. Well, here is the reason why and one can't blame them either. The reason for the gay atmosphere is the annual junior-senior banquet to be held tomorrow night. About this time every year for the past few years the junior class entertained the dignified seniors. Good eats along with wholesome fun and entertainment has always made this event one to be looked forward to. Although it is a time of play and fun, there is, as a close observer will find, beneath the gaiety, a feeling of sadness, which adds to the meaning of the event. Only a few weeks remain in which the cheerful and friendly faces of their senior friends will smile upon the juniors. So with due dignity and delightful anticipation the junior class will entertain the Senior class with a banquet in the basement of the Baptist church tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

A different and very delightful program has been planned and those who attend are promised the best time in their lives. The banquet has been appropriately titled, "The Last Round Up." The program will be in keeping with the title.

And the members of the faculty will be guests of the juniors also. Yes, sir, the juniors and the teachers will forget school for a few hours Friday night and enjoy the banquet of banquets.

The members of the chemistry class are certainly grateful to Mr. John Hollis for one of the most educational and interesting talks that they have heard. Mr. Hollis, who needs no introduction to the chemistry class, on Monday morning, in the most splendid manner, discussed the making of steel. From the time when the ore is taken from the ground until the steel is made into nails, fence wire and barb wire, was covered by Mr. Hollis in his splendid lecture. With easily understood illustrations on the blackboard, Mr. Hollis explained the many phases in the making of steel. At the end of the ninety minutes everyone left with a knowledge that was equal to a day spent in a steel foundry. Mr. Hollis stressed the importance and not just possessing a practical knowledge or a technical knowledge but the importance of possessing both. By pursuing our studies at school, we can gain a technical knowledge and by applying ourselves to some job may we obtain a practical knowledge.

Mr. Hollis is a man deserving to be and capable of being a model for any young man who wishes to succeed in life. For one such as Mr. Hollis who has gained a remarkable knowledge of that which will improve one's ability to fill the duties of his position and make for him an enviable record among fellow citizens by the straight but rough road of hard work, not too high an honor can be paid.

Mr. Hollis's talk last Monday was a result of the program of the Kiwanis Club of Clanton to assist young people of Chilton County in preparing for life. Different men are speaking over the county along the lines or which they are best informed. C.C.H.S. was fortunate to have Mr. Hollis talk and so well was his lecture enjoyed that we ask for more.

Some time soon visitors to the school will see another attractive ornament on the campus as reuslt of the efforts of the senior class. This new addition will be a beautiful sun dial with matching benches. "Beautiful, attractive, clean," these and other nice things will be what people will say about the campus of Chilton County High School. Through the efforts of Mr. Warr, and the senior classes of the past few years, the campus has been built up every year until it is one of the most beautiful campuses in Alabama.

Quite a number of C.C.H.S. students motored to Montgomery on Wednesday of last week to see the Avon Players in "Hamlet" and "Othello," two famous Shakespearean plays. Miss Frances Gulledge and Miss Bonnie Clyde Griffin were the members of the faculty, who, along with several parents, chaperoned the crowd.

A brief resume of the plays were given in chapel last Monday by Roberta Cochran, Dorothy Waite, Grace Plyler and Charles Gandy.

Just a matter of a few more weeks now until the senior play will be presented. Save your money because the senior class of '34 promises something different in plays.

Again Chilton saved her baseball record from being marred by a defeat. This time it was close but remember Selma was a strong team. Last Wednesday we tied Selma 15 to 15. A remarkable game, enlivened by the pitching of Bill Armstrong and batting of Joe More, Ted Littlejohn and others.

A game for tomorrow had not been announced at the time of this writing but watch for signs on the sidewalk. Credit for real advertising and school spirit should be given to whoever does that sign painting.

Passing through the halls one's attention is drawn to the display of booklets and drawings on the bulletin board. The booklets are products of the Junior III civics class and are about items of recent interest such as the NRA and the CWA. Booklets on crime, Chilton County, and men in our government are shown also.

It was pleasing to learn that one of our graduates, Tom Frank Teel, has accepted a fine position as a traveling representative with the Wilenski Leather Company of Birmingham.

Mrs. Yeager, prominent photographer, at Montevallo, was here last Friday and pictures of the Senior class were made. These will be grouped into one large picture and each class member will receive one of these group pictures.

CHILTON SWAMPS JEMISON, 16 to 8

Chilton High's baseball team went to Jemison last Tuesday afternoon, and trounced Jemison High 16 to 8.

Chilton counted three times in the first frame. J. Busby dropped Moore's long fly and Moore went to second. Baker walked. Jones forced Moore at third, but went safe himself. Cost dropped Littlejohn's fly, filling the bases, and Tiffin followed with a triple. In the fifth Chilton counted three more. Littlejohn was safe on Ellison's error, and Tiffin followed with a long hit which J. Busby lost in the weeds and went for a homer. Dennis was safe on Martin's error, and Wilder brought him in with a triple.

In the sixth Moore walked, stole second, and scored on Littlejohn's single. In the seventh, Moore was hit by a pitched ball, Baker walked. Jones was safe on T. Cobb's error. Littlejohn tripled, scored on Tiffin's long sacrifice fly, Williamson was safe on Howard's error, stole second, scored when Wilder singled, Wilder stole second and scored when Armstrong singled, Armstrong stole second, went to third on a fielder's choice, and scored on an error. In the eighth, Armstrong doubled, and scored on Moore's single. In the ninth, Jones singled, stole second, and scored when Howard let Tiffin's sizzler get through him.

Jemison scored two in the first, when Howard singled and T. Cobb got a homer. In the third Nelson singled, stole second and came in on T. Cobb's single. Armstrong weakened in the fifth and Jemison put together two passes, and four singles to score four runs. They made their last score in the sixth, when Watson walked, stole second and scored on J. Busby's single.

Armstrong had the better of H. Busby in a pitcher's duel in which each gave up ten hits, as five of Chilton's hits were for extra bases. T. Cobb got Jemison's only extra base blow. Armstrong struck out 14, walked five and hit one. H. Busby struck out eight, walked four, and hit one.

Middleton Takes Stuart's Duties

To Handle Matters In United States Court of Bankruptcy at Montgomery

Announcement was made Saturday by M. S. Carmichael, referee in bankruptcy, that arrangements are being perfected for J. Osmond Middleton to handle certain of the trust and receivership work in the United States court in bankruptcy at Montgomery.

It is stated that Mr. Middleton expected to carry out incompleted matters in which the late M. Hugh Stuart had been trustee in a manner which would be beneficial to the widow of and estate of Mr. Stuart.

Mr. Middleton is at present assistant attorney general in charge of civil cases of the United States farm administration. It is expected that he will resign from this position. Referee Carmichael said that Mr. Middleton had informed him that he was not willing to end his work with the farm administration until he could do so in a manner acceptable to his superiors and without injury to the interest of the government. There is much litigation pending in which Mr. Middleton represents the government and it is not known when the government will be able to dispense with Mr. Middleton's services. In the meantime Mr. Midleton is to begin his work in bankruptcy court which he is able to do since there is no immediate trial work to be done for the farm administration.

NEGRO DEMOCRAT SEEKS OFFICE IN RALEIGH, N.C.

Raleigh, N. C., April 15.—For the first time since fusionist days of the 1890's, a negro is seeking public office in Raleigh on the Democratic ticket.

Henry C. High, waiter, filed notice yesterday of his candidacy for justice of peace in Raleigh township. He handed in his fee to Harvey C. Correll, secretary to the Wake board of elections, and, when asked his party affiliation, answered "Democrat."

The last negro to run for office here was Jim Young, who was elected to the legislature back in the '90's.

W. O. W. "BLOW OUT" AT MAPLESVILLE FRIDAY NIGHT, APRIL 20

Woodmen of the World in the Central Alabama District will have a big time at Maplesville Friday night of this week, when a special initiation ceremony will be performed by a crack degree team in charge of E. N. Shanks, Special Deputy.

The meeting will be called to order at 7:30 o'clock' by Col. L. A. Ellington, of Montgomery, King of the Forest in Alabama.

Refreshments of various kinds will be provided, including a big pot of Brunswick Stew.

All Woodmen of Chilton County are especially invited to attend. Mr. Shanks says Maplesville Woodmen are all set for entertaining a raft of visitors who will be there from Selma, Montgomery, Marion, Tuscaloosa, and Clanton.

BATES-STREET ANNOUNCEMENT

The following announcement appeared in last Sunday's Birmingham News:

Shellie H. Bates, of Suttle, Ala., anounces the engagement of his daughter, Mary Louise Bates, of Thorsby, to Samuel Tutus Street, of Birmingham, the wedding to take place in June.

BERRY PICKERS TO GET ONE AND A HALF CENTS A QUART

Members of the Clanton Berry Growers Association through the recommendation of the Board of Directors, have agreed to pay a uniform price of one and a half cents a quart for picking strawberries this year. This information was given out Tuesday by L. E. Diefenderfer, business manager of the Clanton Association.

FIRST BERRIES LAST SATURDAY

Jim Higgins of Thorsby Takes Honor of Showing First Quart this Year

Reporting the first appearance of ripe strawberries at Thorsby this year, Mr. J. M. Smith, manager of Thorsby Fruit and Truck Growers Association, says:

"The first quart of ripe strawberries for the season of 1934 was brought in Saturday, April 14, by Mr. Jim Higgins, our genial depot agent, taking the honor from Archie Robinson, who has been supplying the local market with the first strawberries for a number of years. Local shipments will begin in a few days, and reach car lots around April 25."

L. E. Diefenderfer, manager of the Clanton Berry Growers Association, was showing a few ripe berries last Saturday. Monroe Parrish, of Providence, picked enough berries Saturday to make a shortcake for Sunday.

A fine rain came last Sunday, and local showers continued Monday, proving a very great stimulant to progress of the berry crop in Chilton County. If we do not have a freeze indications are that the production of berries will be excellent, and that picking and shipping will be in full progress within a few days.

Dief stated Tuesday morning that a number of crates would be shipped by express this week, and that a car will be set in here for loading on Monday of next week.

DEVAUGHN'S CONCERT WILL BE AT COURTHOUSE FRIDAY NIGHT

The musical concert for the close of Prof. W. M. Devaughn's singing school, which he has been teaching at Refuge for the past three weeks, will be held at the courthouse in Clanton Friday night of this week, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. A program of varied selections will be rendered, including class singing. The Vaughn Happy Two will present some selections. A small admission will be charged at the door.

CANDIDATES RALLY AT MARBURY SCHOOL FRIDAY, APRIL THE 27

Friday, April 27, is to be a big day at the Marbury school. A big chicken dinner served on the ground. Public speaking at which the people will hear all candidates or their representatives.

There will be baseball games kitten ball, and something entertaining every minute. The occasion is sponsored by the Marbury P.-T.A. Everybody invited. Remember the date, Friday, April 27.

Citizens Endorse Sanders For Member Legislature

We, the undersigned of the community in which W. L. Sanders resides, are glad to endorse and recommend his candidacy for Representative in the Legislature of Alabama. We have known W. L. Sanders for several years, and our personal contact with him in community and county affairs are such that deserve commendation.

Mr. Sanders has served as a patron of our school for several years, and was serving as trustee when elected to his present position as member of the County Board of Education.

Mr. Sanders has always been open and fair on all questions of interest to the schools of our county. His service for the cause of education and the welfare of others has been a pleasure, as well as free. We feel that the voters will make no mistake in supporting Mr. Sanders for the legislature in the coming election.

ENDORSES MARTIN FOR MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am writing to ask that the Republican voters of Chilton County investigate the record of Mr. P. M. Martin, who is a candidate for member of the school board. I have known Mr. Martin for a number of years, and know him to be a man well qualified for the position that he seeks.

Mr. Martin served for a number of years as trustee of the Union Grove school. During that time he worked unceasingly for the good of the school and largely due to his efforts the school there grew from a small school to a nice junior high school, housed in a new building.

Mr. Martin is the only candidate in the northern or middle part of the county. I believe that the northern part of the county should be represented on the board. And in view of the fact that Mr. Martin is a man worthy and well qualified for the position, I urge upon the Republicans of the county to cast their vote for him.

With best wishse for the success of the Republican party, I am, respectfully,—D. C. Littlefield.

GET-TOGETHER PARTY PUT OFF

Dear Editor:

I am sorry, but the get-together party for the candidates that was to be had at my camp on April 17th, is hereby put off at present, as I cannot get ready to take care of it at that time. I will have it after the primary in May.—Yours very truly,

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., April 17.—It was not until 1930 that every one of the 67 counties of Alabama had graduated at least one woman student from the University of Alabama, a study made by Evelyn Howard of Florence, senior in the college of education, reveals. Crenshaw County completed the list in 1930 when Clio Landers of Highland Home received her degree.

Miss Howard's research revealed that more than 2,000 women will have graduated from the University at the end of the current session. The first degree went to a Sumpter County girl, Rosa Lawton of Livingston in 1900.

By the end of the first decade only 20 counties had graduated women students; from 1910 to 1919 the number grew to 39; and from 1920 to 1929 every county with the exception of Crenshaw was represented among graduate women. Since 1930 Crenshaw has graduated three women here.

To date 1934 women have received degrees from the University. Of that number only 246 came from without the State of Alabama.

University, Ala., April 17.—Officers of the Carolina Hunt Home Economics Club of the University of Alabama for the ensuing year include Jean Cody, Springfield, Mass., president; Helen Moore, Birmingham, vice president; Louise Schmitz, Tuscaloosa, secretary; Mary Alba Warner, Mobile, treasurer; and Alice Mason, Huntsville, reporter. Miss Cody will represent the club at the American Home Economics Association meeting at New York, June 24-29. The Carolina Hunt Club sponsors dime dances at the University, the proceeds from which are added to the club's scholarship fund.

Hueytown won first place among towns of 10,000 population or less in the Alabama State High School Debating League eliminations being held at the University of Alabama. Bay Minette and Ft. Payne tied for second place. The members of the winning teams of the city championship and small town championshp will receive one-year scholarships to the University.

Hugh Merrill, Anniston, was elected president of the student body of the University of Alabama in the annual student elections this week. Merrill was chosen over Charles Hawkins, Birmingham, by 1,885 votes to 1,400.

Bob Ed Morrow, Selma, won the race for vice president of the student association, defeating Joe Meaver, Cochrane, with 1,768 votes to 1,478. Secretary to the association was won by Frank Davidson, Meridian, Miss., over Sam Neyman, Greenville, Miss., with 2,317 to 854 votes.

Joe E. Jessup, Dothan, defeated Albert Tait, Birmingham, in the closest race of this years elections for business manager of the Crimson-White, student publication. Jessup won by 55 votes, polling 1,627 against 1,572 for Tait.

Mortimer Jordan, Birmingham, and John Horne, Clayton, went into office without opposition. Jordan is to be business manager of the Corolla, student yearbook, next term, while Horne is to assume the duties of editor.

A run-off will be necessary to determine the president of the Cotillion Club, for which four candidates competed. Jim Smith, Leighton, and Teddy Jackson, Mobile, will be voted on in the run-off this week.

Alabama's baseball team will go back on the road this week, when the squad meets Ole Miss in Oxford, Mississippi, and then goes over to Atlanta for two games with Georgia Tech. The Crimsons already have played both these teams this year.

Ole Miss will be played on Monday and Tuesday, while Tech is to be faced on Friday and Saturday.

Alabama's two left handed pitchers, Lee Rogers and Lefty Scott, have been hurling great ball for the tidesmen this year. Rogers and Scott have carried the burden of the pitching this spring, twirling in all of the games played.

Happy Campbell, third baseman, who was out of the line-up for more than a week, leads the batters, now that he is in harness. Campbell has gotten three triples in two games and tops the batsmen with six hits in eight times at bat.

Coach Drew will send his track squad against Tennessee next Saturday on Denny Field. Alabama has had two dual meets this year, facing Tulane in New Orleans and going over to Atlanta to meet against Georgia Tech.

Miss Esther Rutledge, Demopolis, a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and a junior in the college of Arts and Sciences, was crowned "Miss A-Day" at the conclusion of the annual A-Day celebration at the University of Alabama. The selection was made by popular ballot of the student body. Delta Delta Delta sorority won the Spirit Cup for the sorority showing the best spirit on "A" Day. Miss Frances Boykin, Mobile, member of Tri Delta Sorority won the prize for being the best model in the fashion show. Miss Mary Harmon Black, Birmingham, a member of Alpha Gamma Delta, was awarded second prize in the fashion show.

Phi Gamma Delta fraternity was presented a loving cup by the "A" club for winning the inter-fraternity relay trials. The commerce school was awarded the cup for having won the flour fight with the engineers. A loving cup was presented Miss "A" Day.

Hocking Smith, University, was awarded a prize in the competitive drill.

BOYS WRITE FROM Ft. McCLELLAN

Editor Union-Banner:

We boys from Chilton County have come out well so far, only one or two having failed to pass. We are station at Ft. McClellan, and belong to the fourth company, and are having a big time. We are staying in tents —six boys to the tent. All the boys in our tent are from Chilton County. This is called the conditioning camp. We will be here for two weeks more and then will be sent on to the regular forest camps. There is not much to do here but keep the camp clean, and that is not hard to do. There were over three hundred of us that came over Wednesday on a special train, and there is supposed to be about seven hundred more coming to this camp tomorrow from somewhere.

We would like very much to have the Union-Banner so that we can know what is happening in old Chilton, and we will write enough along to tell how we get along in camp, if anyone cares to know. If anyone in Chilton wants to write to us, do so. We will be glad to hear from them and will answer. Well we will sign off for this time.—The boys from Chilton, Howard Boles, Houston Little, William Hicks, John Freeman, Charlie Miskelley.

Our address is Fourth Company, Ft. McClellan, Ala.

PLAY AT PLEASANT HILL CHURCH

A play, "Mother Mine," will be given for the benefit of Pleasant Hill Church next Saturday night, April 21. Admission will be 10c and 20c. Don't miss this. We are going to draw the lucky number on the quilt, which is being sold for the church. You had better come along and see who gets this quilt. It might be you. Don't forget the date, April 21, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. See this and have three hours of real fun.—A reader.

Jesus said "A certain rich man died and was buried and in hell he lfited up his eyes being in torments." That is not like the average funeral sermon. I often wonder what would be the effect if the preacher at a funeral should say something like this. "My friends, I am sorry to say it but from what I know about the deceased and from what I know about the Bible, I am afraid this poor fellow has gone to hell. He didn't live like a Christian and as far as I know, he never trusted Jesus Christ as his personal savior. I wish to extend sympathy to the bereaved ones. It is an awful thing to have a loved one die and go to hell."

Did you ever drive down a country road and pass a cemetery and look at tombstones and the mounds and stop to think that some whose bodies sleep in the cemetery possibly went to hell? Jesus said, "The road to heaven is a narrow road and not many people travel it. The way to hell is a wide road and many there be who travel this road to destruction." The Bible is explicit. There are only two places in eternity. Heaven and hell. The Christian goes to heaven and the sinner goes to hell. Heaven and hell are separated by an impassable gulf. The Bible teaches that "there is no other name given under heaven among men whereby we may be saved except the name of Jesus." The Bible teaches that "He that hath the son hath life. He that hath not the son of God hath not life." It teaches that "the wages of sin is death but that the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

There is a law of gravitation in the spiritual world just as there is a law of gravitation in the physical world. The rich man didn't go to hell just because he had money and the poor man didn't go to heaven just because he was broke. The rich man went to his place and the beggar went to his place. Heaven is a place and hell is a place, but these places are what they are because of the people who are there. A sinner wouldn't be happy in heaven. He would be out of step. He would sing off key. He couldn't stand the decency. There would be no night in which he could hide to commit sin. I speak reverently. If a drunkard went to heaven just as he is in this world, he would look for a bootlegger. If a gambler should step off this planet into heaven just as he is, he would try to get into a poker game. If a godless politician should step out of the underworld of an American city and go to heaven just like he is, he wouldn't be happy because he couldn't organize the angels and the redeemed to put over dirty political schemes in God's eternal city.

Rolls-Royce Subsidiary Uses Ford Chassis to Create New Brewster

In the foreground of that hallowed New York showroom where Rolls-Royces are sold stands a black and silver automobile deb. Clothed with a glistening Brewster body is a converted Ford chassis, an unaltered V-type Ford motor. It is the new "Brewster," first of (its makers hope) a long and distinguished line.

Brewster & Co., organized 124 years ago, is one of the oldest existing American firms. Aristocrats rode in its carriages until the automobile came along and relegated horse-drawn vehicles to oblivion or Bermuda. Brewster got in line with a car of its own which had a sleeve-valve motor. When this was discontinued, Brewster built custom bodies for all makes of fine cars. Then Rolls-Royce of America bought Brewster and set it to furnishing bodies for its cars. The depression did dismal things to the expensive automobile market but Rolls-Royce, sustained by an eminent name and unblemished reputation, kept going.

The new Brester marks a bid by that company for recovery demand in the small town-car field. What degree of cousinship, if any, exists between the regal Rolls and the Ford-motored Brewster is something for experts to figure out. Production has begun in the Rolls-Royce plant at Springfield, Mass.

The car displayed is a "cabriolet de ville." (That is a town car that recognizes the chauffeur as a human being by giving him a pull-over top and side windows for protection against weather.) It sells for $3,500 f.o.b. Springfield, taxes extra. Most striking feature of the body design is the focusing at a point below the radiator of all lines from the bumpers, mud guards, and radiator shell. The passenger compartment seats 5 persons. A sales point stressed is the fact that the 2 folding seats face forward.

Such features would not have been possible on the original Ford frame. For that reason the length is extended 15 inches, giving the car a 127 inch wheelbase. In other respects the Ford chassis has been altered and improved. It is fitted with double silencers, "booster brakes" which make for smoother slow-ups, improved springing, special radiator, thermostatic shutter control. Wheels and fenders are also special. Weight is 3,525 pounds, about 700 pounds heavier than the regular Ford sedan. Extra weight adds to the car's riding qualities without seriously affecting the getaway.

Automobile makers have repeatedly flirted with the small town car. Ford put such a body on his regular chassis in 1929. He abandoned it in spite of the good sales because it offered no possibilities for mass production. Chrysler also makes cars of this type.

J. S. Inskip, president both of the Rolls-Royce of America and Brewster & Co., originated the new car. It was designed by Carl Beck, chief body designer for Brewster. They are so confident of general appeal that they plan 2 other models of the sport type —one a four passenger with collapsible top, the other a 2-passenger collapsible.

The Brewster merchandising philosophy is the offering of a fine car considerably lower than those heretofore available. Most "luxury cars" sell for $5,500 or more, which gives the Brewster a $2,000 advantage. Also, the company points out, it is much shorter than comparable fine cars, enabling it the better to negotiate traffic and enhancing its chance for slipping into restricted parking space. The Brewster will not affect the market for American Rolls-Royce which is manufactured at Springfield under licensing agreement with the British company. Average price of the Rolls is around $18,000.

Through newspaper announcements of the new car are about the only advertising it has received, many inquiries are being made and several have been sold. Edsel Ford was an early buyer.

CARD OF THANKS

We hereby tender our sincere thanks to all the friends who so kindly assisted us in the sickness, death and burial of our dear husband, son and brother, Ermon Crumpton. We particularly thank Mr. E. G. Smitherman, of Randolph; and J. N. Cofer. We thank Dr. Pickering and Dr. Franklin for their interest and kindness. We also thank the friends for the beautiful floral offerings. We can never forget the kindness of our friends in this sad bereavement.—Mrs. Julia Crumpton, Mrs. Tempie Crumpton, Olan Crumpton.

NEW SALEM

There will be memorial services at this place as usual on the first Sunday in May, beginning at 9:45 o'clock. Everyone who brings flowers to put on the graves, please keep them until after the service and follow the children to the cemetery with the flowers. Don't foret the time—9:45 o'clock. The singing societies will meet with us on the first Sunday afternoon instead of the fourth Sunday in this month, and we also will have some good quartet singers with us.

Come one and all, and bring your dinner. Let's make it a great day for our friends and God, in memory of those who have passed away.

Charley C. Bowles of Route 6 was in the Banner office Monday and arranged to have the paper sent to his son, Howard, who is in the forestry camp at Anniston.

OUR TAXES
PLAY A VITAL PART IN OPERATING STATE GOVERNMENT

NEARLY $1,000,000 or about one-half of the $2,000,000 tax bill of Alabama Power Company for 1933, went to the support of Alabama's public school system.

If all this $2,000,000 tax bill had gone into the state treasury, it would have paid one-third of the $5,939,000 expended for administering and operating the state government for the fiscal year ending September 30th, 1933. While Alabama Power Company, along with every citizen and business interest in the state, disapproves of wasteful public expenditures, it is nevertheless glad to do its part in helping to pay the necessary cost of government, to support the schools, to maintain the state judiciary system, to build and improve roads and streets, to maintain fire and police protection and all governmental functions which must be maintained if the state is to progress.

Every business enterprise should bear its fair share of taxation, including the business of electric distribution whether publicly or privately owned. Taxes lost to state, county and municipal schools, to streets and roads, and other essential governmental functions when municipal operation takes the place of private operation, must be made up by the remaining tax-paying citizens.

Endorses Dennis For Probate Job

To the Citizens of Chilton County:

As a farmer of this county, I wish to endorse the candidacy of J. N. Dennis for probate judge.

I have know Mr. Dennis practically all of my life and have been intimately associated with him for the past thirteen years. During this time I have been greatly benefitted in my farm life by his helpful suggestions which he so freely gave. Although Mr. Dennis is a business man, I have never known him to be too busy to stop and help me or any other man with our problems, and now I feel that the time has come when we can show our appreciation of his help by casting our ballot for him as probate judge.

The duties as probate judge, as I understand them, are many, as they are looked upon as a "public servant." Should Mr. Dennis be our next probate judge, we will have a man in office who is thoroughly qualified for his duties, as he has had years of experience which qualify him for the regular office routine; he is a "man of the soil" which will enable him to understand the farmers burden from taxation; he is kind and courteous to all, and last, but not least. he is one of our County's outstanding business men. He has made a success and his own business and I feel sure that if he is elected that our county will continue to live within its income and will prosper in every way.

Mr. Dennis is a tried, trained and true Republican. He has the respect of the people of the county and I conscientiously believe that if he is our nominee that it will be easy to elect him as our probate judge this fall.

After you think about this matter carefully, I hope you will decide that Mr. Dennis is the man to cast your ballot for on May 1st.—Respectfully, O.H. McDowell.

Legislature Candidate Appeals To Citizens

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

You voters are aware of the fact that it will be but a few more days until you will have the opportunity to select the men whom you want to serve you for the next four years.

As a candidate for representative, I have up to this time tried to see as many of you in person as I could, and will continue to do my best to see as many of you as is possible; however, it will be impossible for me to see each of you, so I am taking this method of having a little heart-to-heart talk with you.

In the first place I will say that I was born in Chilton County, my father and grandfather were natives of what is now Chilton County. My great grandfather, Peter Cooper, came to what is now Chilton County several years before Alabama became a state, so to me, in all sincerity, Chilton County is really and truly my "father land."

The primary motive that prompted me in getting in this race for representative was nothing other than a desire to represent the men and women of Chilton County who have to work for a living like I do.

I presume the most of you voters have already seen my platform, but for fear some may not have seen it, I will now mention a few of the outstanding things for which I will work to accomplish if you send me to the legislature.

First, I want to reduce automobile tags down to a flat rate of three dollars, and a flat rate of five dollars for truck tags up to two-ton capacity.

I want a $2,000 homestead exemption. I mean by this, if your home is not worth over two thousand dollars that you will not have to pay any taxes on it.

I favor free school books if it is possible to get them. If impossible to get free school books I favor letting the convicts make them as they are doing in some other states which will reduce the cost of books to a price within the reach of most any patron.

The books we pay one dollar for can be bought for about twenty cents in states where convicts make the books.

If elected I will not vote for any more taxes of any kind.

If elected there are several laws which the last legislature passed that I will try to have repealed.

The last legislature passed a law, the substance of which runs as follows: "If you sell a piece of land you will have to employ a lawyer to write the deed and pay him a ten-dollar fee. If the lawyer makes a mistake in writing the deed he is not liable for any damages that might arise by reason of his mistakes." This law should be marked off of our law books.

Another law that ought to be repealed is the one that requires a farmer or any other person to carry a rule with him when he goes fishing, to measure the fish he catches. If he catches one which lacks a little being eleven inches long he must throw him back in the river. I do not have time to do much fishing myself, but I have a lot of farmer friends who fish quite a bit when it is too wet to plough or when the crops are layed by.

In my opinion, we have a lot of trashy laws that ought to be done away with.

If you voters send me to the legislature my purpose will be to go down there and do something and then come back home and go to work.

In concluding these remarks, permit me to ask that you weigh carefully the facts in the case before you cast your vote, bearing in mind the fact that a vote for Charles Cooper means that the working men and women of Chilton County will be properly represented in the next legislature.

You will also bear in mind that I will be a true Republican right on if you decide to elect one of my opponents to represent you.

If I am not elected I will not jump over in the Democrat pasture as has been done in the past.

My purpose will be to help elect the nominee regardless as to whom this nominee may be.

The Tennessee Company that gave me a job getting up Mussell shells is very anxious for me to ship a car load next week, and, since several men in the county are beginning to gather shells this week, it will be necessary for me to spend quite a bit of my time with these men who have begun work. I may not be able to see all of you between now and the first of May, but rest assured that your vote and influence will be appreciated just the same.

When you go to vote you will not have any trouble finding my name on the ticket. Thanking you in advance for your favorable consideration of my case, I beg to remain, yours for service, Charles Cooper.

P.S.—I am requesting Charlie Easterling to bring his three hundred year old fiddle to Clanton next Saturday afternoon. He will bring his daughter with him to beat straws on this old fiddle. So all of you Republicans who like good old time fiddling look out for Charlie Saturday evening. If it should happen to be a rainy day next Saturday I am asking Charlie to come the next Saturday. — Chas. Cooper.

THIS MIGHT BE A FRIEND OF YOURS

By T. E. Harris,
DISTRICT MANAGER

SOUTHERN BELL
Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Recently a telephone subscriber, while paying her bill, gave us the name of a former subscriber and asked us to try and induce her to put her telephone back in. "They are friends of ours," she said, "and we and their other friends miss having them at our social gatherings. When they had a telephone we called them frequently but now we can't. If you telephone people," she said, "I can make them realize how anxious their friends are for them to have a telephone, I believe they will. I'm sure they can afford one. In fact, I don't think they can afford not to have a telephone."

Telephone users everywhere are anxious for their friends to have telephones, too. Some people doubtless had their telephones removed without stopping to think about what it would mean to their friends. Now they are finding that in doing without their telephones they have been sacrificing too much in happiness in addition to the resultant inconvenience to both them and their friends. They have learned also that being without telephone service isolates them, narrowing the scope of their social activities. Others have had it brought home to them that the lack of a telephone near at hand in emergencies can easily prove to be expensive and even endanger life.

It is not surprising that we are so often told that the pleasure, comfort, convenience and protection that a telephone in the home affords far outweighs the small cost of the service. So much so, in fact, that it really doesn't pay to try to get along without a telephone in the home.

Supplementary List of Qualified Voters of Chilton County, Ala.

State of Alabama, Chilton County:

I, L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate in and for said state and county, do hereby certify that to the best of my knowledge, information and belief, the following is a true and correct additional list of the qualified voters of each precinct in Chilton County, as the same appears from the records on file in my office and such other available information as I have been able to obtain. This additional list together with the former list published on April 5, 1934, will constitute the list of qualified electors who will be entitled to vote at any election held in Chilton County from the time of the publication of this list until another list is published as provided by law.

Given under my hand and official seal, this the 16th day of April, A. D., 1934.

L. H. REYNOLDS, Judge of Probate.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

Our Sunday school was rained out Sunday evening. Remember to be present next Sunday at 10:00 o'clock. Two good sermons were delivered by Bro. Bentley, our pastor.

The happiness of a Christian were stressed in Saturday's sermon which was very impressive. Wish everyone could have heard it, or more at least. Just how much we have forgot God was touched upon Sunday. How much we should think about this.—A Member.

Mr. and Mrs. Grantham, and Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and daughter, Peggy, of Troy, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Barney Burnett.

WIFE OF GERTHIE EASTERLING WAS BURIED AT WALNUT CREEK

Mrs. Lealis (Davis) Easterling, age about 24 years, wife of Gerthie H. Easterling, died at their home in Sylacauga Friday, April 13th. The remains were brought to Walnut Creek by a Sylacauga undertaker and buried Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The funeral was preached by Rev. P. A. Lynch. The pallbearers were Austin Mims, Clarence Mims, S. V. Miller, J. J. Johnson, Alton Wyatt and C. P. Jones.

Mrs. Easterling was the daughter of Mr. John M. Davis, who lives down near Deatsville. The Davis family formerly lived in Friendship community near Clanton. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Jean, four years old, and Jadie, three years old.

SERVICES AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

W. N. THOMAS ENDORSES COBB FOR COMMISSIONER 1ST DIST.

As the date for the primary election is near, when the Republican voters will select their nominee to go before the people in the general election, I would like just a few words to ask each and every voter to carefully consider each candidate that is in the race for Commissioner from the First District. Now, folks, after due consideration, have we got a man that is better qualified, who can do more for the people just at this time than Mr. Joe E. Cobb, our present commissioner?

Just think what has been done under his supervision. Our roads are in better shape than they have ever been. Gullies across the roads and mud holes are almost a thing of the past. Roads have widened. Bridges built across some of the worst creeks, making it possible for the mail carriers and school bus drivers to make their route without several miles detour. And just think, all road subjects have been relieved from road duty.

Besides that, he has held office during one of the worst money-crises ever known to the people of today. Now, if he is re-elected, common sense teaches that he can do more in the future than he has in the past. In the meantime it fell to Mr. Cobb's lot to look after the alms house, or poor house as it is sometimes called. We hear no complaint from there. A few years back that was all you could hear, the way those poor, unfortunate, old folks were being treated.

Now, I don't claim Mr. Cobb has not made any mistakes, nor does he claim he hasn't. And more than that, I don't care who is elected, they will make mistakes. I am sure if the voters see fit to give him the second term, as is customary with our party, they won't make any mistake. We have tried him and found him a good business man. I believe the time is now here when we need all of our officials to be straight, honest, truthful and God-fearing business men and not politicians, all the way from the president of the U. S. A. on down to the least little constable.—W. N. Thomas.

MR. ERMON CRUMPTON DIED

Mr. Ermon Crumpton, age 31 years, died at his home northeast of Randolph, on April 5. He was formerly the picture of perfect health and strength until the dreaded tuberculosis fastened its fangs upon him. He is survived by his wife, his widowed mother, one brother and many other relatives.

He was a young man much beloved by his many friends. It was a severe trial to give him up. He had spent his life here, but hope spans his grave. "He that believeth in me, though he were dead yet shall he live."

His return from death is sure. The price has been paid. On that glad tomorrow, earth's ransomed hosts will be saved from death by obedience. His loved ones will know him in the sweet over there.

Burial was on April 7 in the family cemetery. The floral offering was lovely.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We are glad to state that the health is very good here at present.

Mr. Lee Denson and wife were the guests of Mr. R. A. Hyde Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Denson were the guests of Mrs. Bess Holcombe Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Holcombe are the proud parents of a 9-pound girl born to them the 9th of April. The mother and baby are doing fine.

Miss Wilner Lucas spent the day Sunday with Miss Marguerite Nabors and Miss Marguerite Nabors spent the night with Miss Wilner Lucas Sunday night.

We are glad to state that Bro. R. A. Hyde will preach for us next Sunday at 11 a.m., and we welcome Bro. Davis and Bro. Kelly in our midst. Let's all meet at 10 a.m. with a good Sunday school lesson, and hear a good sermon, and do good and get good.

Miss Sophia Mullins, of Chattanooga, spent the past week end with her mother, Mrs. P. D. Wilson. Mrs. Wilson returned to Chattanooga with her to spend a few days.

Public Schools

Editor Union-Banner:

As your paper is doing everything in its power to serve the people in our county, will you permit me to use its pages to beg that the patrons of our county schools do everything in their power to supply their children with the necessary books and other supplies? I know that it is quite a long time till our next school term, but now is the time to plan for the future. As we all know, this is the year in which many of our books will be changed, and it will be impossible for us to get these books "second-handed." If for no other reason, this should make us begin planning now to furnish new books for our children next school.

We do not start farming without tools, neither do we go fishing without hook and line or other tackle, yet many of us will send our children to school without books or pencils or paper, and expect the teacher to teach their lessons as successfully as she does those of the pupils who have every necessary supply. Friends, the impossible can't happen. No matter how hard your teacher may try, she cannot be as successful without books as she can with them. I'm speaking from my own experience. This year I have taught in a small school where less than one-half the pupils had as many as three of their books individually. Of course, many of them had books together but even then only a few had all their books at hand when they needed them, and you can have no idea at the disturbance caused by a pupil asking permission, and then borrowing a book.

Another good reason for the individual ownership of books is the feeling of inferiority in a child by his constant dependence upon other children for his supplies. Not many of us have little enough pride but that it hurts us to be dependent upon others in any way, so how can we expect our children to be willing to constantly borrow when we have bred self respect and independence into them? We cannot expect our children to grow up with the independence for which our country is noted, if we force them to be dependent upon others when they are small. Because they are forming their habits and developing their character for the future while they are in school. No, by all means deliver us from that. The world has a surplus of that type already.

Yet another good reason for us to be anxious to supply our children's books is the habit of idleness which they too readily form if they have to borrow books. It is entirely too easy to "Not have a book," or to "Johnnie was usin' his book," and get out of the real work of a lesson. They do this again and again and the teacher can hardly be hard on them because she knows they cannot work without tools, and no teacher can afford to make a child loan his book.

I could write on in this way for hours and not use all the reasons. There is the possibility of scattering disease and the hard feelings caused between children, and even between their fathers or mothers, and the worry and concern it causes the teacher and many others I have not mentioned.

I am sure that after looking at it carefully from all sides we will see that we cannot afford to let our children go to school without every necessary book or other supply.

Let us everyone start planning now to furnish all the necessary equipment for our children, just as soon as their teacher can give them a list of their books. Let's plan to start the next school year right.

And last, but not least, let's give our children an equal chance with others, so that they can get the most out of their school and grow to be strong minded, independent men and women.

Let us raise a few chickens or turkeys or burn a little less gas, or many of us could do less hunting and easily save enough to buy our children the books they need. Let us plan now to be ready to start our children in school as they should start next term.—Respectfully yours, Edward H. Littlejohn, Jr.

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for thirty years. No matter what kind of pain I have, they stop it almost instantly. Never without them in the house.
Mrs. Chas. W. Webb, Indio, Calif.

You're The Loser

WHEN you allow Headache, Neuralgia, Muscular, Rheumatic, Sciatic or Periodic Pains to keep you from work or pleasure.

You can't go places and do things when you are suffering—and the work or good times won't wait for you.

Why allow Pain to rob you of Health, Friends, Happiness, Money?

DR. MILES ANTI-PAIN PILLS have been used for the relief of pain for more than forty years. They taste good, act quickly, do not upset the stomach, nor cause constipation, leave no dull, depressed feeling.

Thousands have used them for twenty, thirty, forty years, and still find that nothing else relieves pain so promptly and effectively.

Why don't you try them? Once you know how pleasant they are to take, how quickly and effectively they relieve, you won't want to go back to disagreeable, slow acting medicines.

You too may find quick relief. Why wait forty minutes for relief when Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you in ten to twenty minutes?

As a household remedy I have never found anything that equalled Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. Mrs. Silas D. Keller, Penfield, Pa.

I never found anything that was so good to stop pain as Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. I have told many about them and I find they are all using them. Mrs. Martha Lacy, Davenport, Iowa

I have been using Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills for years. I keep them on hand all the time. I can certainly recommend them for pain. Miss Audra Seybold, 2417 W. 2nd St., Dayton, Ohio

Your Anti-Pain Pills have been a wonderful help to me. I have used them for three years and always keep them on hand. Mrs. E. Pierce, Lapwai, Idaho

I have used quite a lot of Dr. Miles Anti-Pain Pills. They are fine pills to stop pain. Mrs. J. L. Kester, Shickshinny, Pa.

Another Amendment

Not content with obtaining adoption of his "lame-duck" amendment to the constitution, abolishing the short session and changing the dates for presidential inaugurations and the assembling of new congresses, Senator Norris now proposes to change the method of electing presidents.

At one time he advocated their election by nation-wide popular vote. His new scheme embodied in a proposed constitutional amendment, would introduce the proportional system, retaining the machinery of the Electoral College. Under the present plan a presidential candidate who polls a plurality of the votes cast in a state receives all of that state's electoral votes.

Under the Norris plan, which has Mr. Roosevelt's approval, a candidate's electoral vote in each state would be proportionate to his popular vote in the state. In 1928, although Mr. Hoover polled less than 50 per cent of the popular votes in New York he won its entire electoral vote because of his plurality over Mr. Smith. In 1932 Mr. Hoover got fifty-nine electoral votes from states in which 2,000,000 ballots were cast for him, while from other states polling a Hoover vote of 13,600,000, he received no electoral votes.

No matter how many presidential candidates were in the field, Mr. Norris would apportion to each electoral votes, or even a fraction of an electoral vote extending into one-hundredths, in accordance with their popular votes. Even with the present number of parties the scheme would lead to endless confusion. But since the tendency would be to increase the number of presidential tickets, there would be confusion worse confounded.

In American history there have been only two president who received less than a plurality of the popular vote—Hayes and Harrison. Six others, including Garfield, Cleveland, and Wilson, received less than a majority of the popular vote. The theoretical advantages claimed for the Norris proposal are outweighed by the practical disadvantages involved in such a radical change in the electoral system.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

If and when the bill to give the President power to negotiate trade and tariff agreements with other nations without review by Congress becomes a law, the question which will immediately loom into great importance will be, just what products we are going to encourage the rest of the world to send us in exchange for commodities which we may sell them in turn? Already most of the important commodities which we import are on the free list—this aplies to all things which are used exclusively by the farmers on the farm. When it gets down to the question of choosing what products we are to take from Europe, there is bound to be some difference of opinion together with some economic bitterness. To lower our tariffs means to bring into the country products which are now being made or grown in America. When this is done, somebody in the United States is going to be thrown out of work, and certain industries are bound to be curtailed and destroyed.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, in a recent radio address, well summed up this problem when he said: "The alleged purpose of the contemplated agreements is to increase our export trade. But in order to augment this trade we would be compelled to make certain concessions—such concessions would be in the form of lower duties on now dutiable products. This would in effect, of course, be letting down the bars for foreign dumping.

It naturally follows as an inescapable consequence that some of our industries would have to be sacrificed. But what industries are to be scrapped or guillontined for the sake of this burst of export trade? No answer has been given to this question, although it has repeatedly been pronounced by objectors of the bill. Under the proposed measure an industry would not know its fate until the newspapers announced that a trade agreement had been secretly consummated. It would not know the provisions of any proposed agreement until the matter was signed and then it might perchance be forced to dismantle its plants and discharge its employees."

Some economists have suggested that we may well make trade agreements with nations from whom we now import large quantities of commodities which are on the free list. The big republic of Brazil is cited for example. We are Brazil's best customer. We take a great deal more coffee from her than any other nation does. It is suggested then, that we might make an agreement with Brazil to take more of our own products because we are her best coffee customer. But the trouble here is that we are already taking the coffee while Brazil is buying more from Great Britain, France and Germany than from us. She already has our coffee business, so she should worry. It has been suggested that we might threaten to place a tariff on coffee if Brazil did not agree to take more American products, but Latin-American statesmen refuse to be worried about this. They are of the opinion that we will do no such thing, because the use of coffee is so widespread that a tariff on a commodity not produced in the United States would meet with national disapproval. No doubt they are right. Free traders would object to a tariff on coffee out of their antipathy toward all tariffs and protectionists would be inclined to favor it because they advocate tariffs only on the things which can be produced by our own farmers and our own workmen.

In short the question of making trade deals without injuring American business far more than it would be helped, promises to be a real problem. How real it can be will only be realized when the administration gets face to face with the problem, and begins to hear from sections of the country which are economically interested.

Let's Go Slowly

Considerable comment has been made in the newspapers on the action of the United States Treasury in refusing permission of New York bankers to participate in a Dutch loan of 100,000,000 guilders to France. The action of the Treasury was taken on the strength of the Johnson bill, which was passed the senate and will soon pass the house. This bill prohibits the making of private loans by Americans to nations which have defaulted on their debts to Uncle Sam.

There is general approval of the Johnson bill and of the action of the treasury department in refusing to sanction American participation in this loan to France. It will be remembered that when we made a debt settlement with France we cancelled that part of the loan which was contracted before the armistice. The settlement was regarded as a generous one, but France refused to pay a cent more than she could wrangle out of Germany in the shape of reparations. Since the American dollar was devalued, the French debt has been automatically reduced another 40 per cent but still France refuses to pay although she seems to have plenty of money for military affairs and for lending to her little allies in Europe.

The theory behind the Johnson bill is that nations which refuse to pay their just and legal obligations to the United States government are not very good risks. This is undoubtedly true but let us carry our examination of the question a little further.

The administration is now seeking to get through Congress a bill which will give the president absolute authority to negotiate trade agreements with other nations, without having the agreement subject to approval by congress. The contention of the administration spokesmen is that this will enable us to increase our exports by gentlemen's agreement. France, for example, will agree to lower her tariffs against certain American agricultural products and take a certain amount of these products in turn for our lowering of our tariff against certain French products.

But experience has shown us that an agreement with France, gentlemanly or otherwise, doesn't amount to much. The same can be said of all the other nations which have refused to live up to their agreements with Uncle Sam and pay their war debts. Now if agreements of this kind are not kept what assurance is there that trade agreements will be kept? In fact the American agreement with France in which the French were to take our apples in exchange for French wines has already flivvered, so far as the French are concerned.

Now if we are to authorize the administration to negotiate trade and tariff agreements with other countries — although the proposition is a very dubious one from several standpoints—why not provide that no agreements shall be made with nations which have already shown, by their action over war debts, that their agreements are no good? In other words, why not apply the principle of the Johnson bill a little further and see that we no tonly refuse to lend money to nations who do not live up to their promises, but that we refuse to enter into reciprocal trade agreements which stand every chance of not being lived up to?

Hands Off World Court

Talk about the World Court issue in Washington continues, despite the fact that it is not likely that the issue will come up for action in this session of congress. The proponents of the court had their day before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee several days ago and the opponents are to be heard in the near future. It is hoped that as many Americans as possible, who feel that our going into the court, would be a serious mistake, will let their two senators know what their views on the subject are.

Certainly, the time is not now propitious for Uncle Sam's joining the League Court. In fact, the time is less propitious now than it ever has been—for two reasons:

First, the League of Nations has failed to function in an effective way, and as the League weakens, so does the Court. Where, only a few years ago, another great war seemed like an insane dream, diplomats in Europe are now talking calmly about when the next one will begin. WWhen the time for the struggle comes the League will not be able to prevent it, neither will the League Court. Uncle Sam's membership in the Court will not assure peace, it will only increase the danger that we will become involved in the war.

Second, the makeup of European governments has changed during the past few years and this has necessarily changed the complexion of the League and its court. For the league and its court are not judicial, but political bodies and their complexions change just as the governments at home change. Democracy has faded out of the picture in Europe, and dictatorship has taken its place. First there were Stalin and Mussolini, then Pilsudski and Hitler, to say nothing of the new little dictator in Austria. Even France seems to be facing it. These dictatorships are intensely and selfishly nationalistic. Their ideas are not our ideas, their policies European situation, which cannot help afare not our policies. This change in the fecting the League and its Court, make it all the more desirable that Uncle Sam stay at home and mind his own business. It is not a case of preserving the peace of the world, but of trying to keep our boys out of the next war.

The Air Mail

In making possible a return of the air mail to private companies even before the passage of the legislation governing the matter, the president has done what he could do to remedy the situation precipitated by his hasty and ill-advised cancellation of the air mail contracts last month. As was demonstrated soon after the army had embarked on its venture of flying the mail, it was not equipped or trained to carry out the assignment. The deaths of ten flyers while they were either carrying or preparing to carry the mails, the loss of much valuable equipment, the inconvenience to the country by the curtailment and, for a week, total abandonment of the schedules was a large and altogether unnecessary price to pay for a gesture that, even if it had entailed neither loss nor inconvenience, would not have benefitted the country materially.

Though arrangements have been made to return the mails to private operators, nothing, apparently, has been done to prove satisfactorily the grave charges of "fraudulent collusion" that were brought against virtually the whole private industry. If the charges were true, they should in fairness to the public, be proved in the courts and those responsible punished. If they were not true, fairness and justice demand that the administration retract its words and apologize. There is no middle course that is fair to the public and the operators. Either fraud has been practiced or the industry has been slandered; the administration cannot honorably avoid proving one or admitting the other.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

White and Black

Although most people know better, every now and then some sap comes up again with the old "nigger" gag while contrasting the Republican and Democratic parties. Along with most everyone else, I have come to the point where such as this doesn't make me mad any more. I merely take a second look at the sap, consider the source from which the "nigger" charge comes, and simply let it pass for the ravings of a single-track mind, which, to tell the truth, it is. In looking over our voters list, I find three negro voters. We, a Republican county, carry three negro voters on our list. Now, let's consider Montgomery County, one of the strongest Democratic counties in the state. On this roll there are 182 names of negroes who vote. This gives Montgomery County a much larger percentage of negro voters than Chilton. At the same rate, comparing the number of voters here, with the number of negro voters, and taking this against Montgomery's negro list in the same ratio, Montgomery County should have about 366,000 voters. I believe I can safely say that Montgomery will not have much over one-fifth this number. That would put their percentage of negro voters far above ours, although we are a Republican county and they are Democratic. Now, who can holler "nigger" with the more just cause?

The Earth Wobbles

I noticed with much interest an article in a scientific magazine a few days ago, in which some big scientist and astronomer said that the universe does not run a true course, but that it wobbles somewhat, causing natural disturbances, such as earthquakes, tornadoes, the falling stars, meteors, drouths, floods, and many other things now attributed to other causes. Now, that is enlightening, if true. But I couldn't keep from laughing at what I imagined would be the response of most people if told that the earth wobbles, and I can't say but that they would be right, at that. I can imagine people saying: "The earth wobbles? Sure it is wobbling! It's been wobbling for years and years, and it's just about wobbled out, too. In fact, I believe it's on its last legs right now, and just about ready to cave in." You have heard of the dispute, wherein two men were discussing the earth. One of them said it was round, and brought up all kind of evidence to prove his case. The other contended that it was flat, and likewise had his proof. They decided to ask a third man, and let him decide for them. Said he: "Flat or round—it is neither, it is crooked." Somebody has said, of late, that the earth is flat AND crooked. Maybe that's right.

A Whopper

It's about fishing time again, so I suppose big fish stories will be in style again pretty soon. Here's one I read in a paper. It's a pretty good one, and supposed to be true. But I'll let you be judge of that. The story goes that a man near Elba, Ala., caught a trout that weighed eight and a half pounds, and was 24 inches long. I suppose bigger trout have been caught around here, but I have never heard of them. This I do know—whoever beats this will have to start early and fish late, or maybe start late and fish early, for the fisherman from Elba caught this big one "just before daylight." I don't know whether he had been fishing all night or not—the paper didn't say. All right, come on, some of you Ike Walton guys. Let's have your fish stories. But I'm warning you—if you bring any bigger than the one told above, you had best bring the fish along for evidence. I'll keep an ear open for "Uncle John" Robinson, Bill Simpson, "Major" Simpson, John Armstrong, or "Jelly" Bean, the barber—some of this team ought to be able to tell us some big fish stories, and, maybe, show us some big fish, too. It's a challenge to them, any way.

True to the Last

And here's another one for the hunters of the neighborhood to shoot at. If you can tell a bigger one, you will certainly meri' 'he presidency of the Ananias Club. I reck on this one is a little out of season, as this is not time for hunting, but you can remember it until next fall, and then try to beat it. This story goes like this: A bunch of hunters were gathered around extolling the merits of their bird dogs—and what wonderful stories were being told of these dogs. They had done just about everything but pick and fry the fallen birds for their masters. At last, one of the hunters who had kept silent all through and listened to all the glowing tales, arose and asked permission to tell of his dog. Here is his story: "Year before last I had a fine young pup—not the best I have ever had, but a promising young fellow, give him time. I carried him out one day, four of us. He pointed 19 coveys, and we all had about the bag limit, when the dog strayed from us. We hunted for him until dark, and had to give up. I went back and hunted him all the next day, but never found him. Then, last fall, I happened to be back in that neck of the woods on another hunting trip. Down in a kind of ravine, I found a dog skeleton standing at point. I walked up and found a collar around the neck, and, sure enough it had my name and address on it. That skeleton had once been my pup, Joe. And he had stayed and starved, rather than give up or jump the birds. As I said, he wasn't the best I ever had, but I believe he would have learned to be steady on the point if he had lived." If you know a better one, let's hear it.

John Jackson Mims

John Jackson Mims, rural carrier on Clanton Route No. 5, and better known as "Jack" was born about three miles Southeast of Clanton on May 17, 1877. His first teacher was the late Alfred Popweli, and the school was at Poplar Springs. After this he attended schools in and around Clanton, taught by such well known teachers as J. B. "Doll" Downs, J. W. Moore, P. M. "Mord" McKee, Rascoe, Monroe, Hicks and others, finishing his education at Chilton County High School, after he had been a teacher in the schools of the county for years. In all he taught school 19 years. He married Miss Minnie Pearl Baker on January 30, 1896. They have one son. He entered the postal service as carrier on Route 3, on November 1, 1905, but resigned after a few months. A few years later he received appointment as carrier on Route 5, and after carrying this for a short time, resigned again. He was re-appointed to Route 5 on February 7, 1921, and has held this place since. In writing of the carrier this week, I find myself in a curious predicament. I can't refer to him as Mr. Mims, or "Jack," as that sounds awkward, in a way. You see, this particular carrier happens to be my own father, so I guess I'll have to refer to him as "dad" or "pap." That's more like it. On the other hand, I find myself overly blessed with knowledge of him. In fact, I believe I know a little too much about him—and some of it is not at all pleasant, but painful. That was just for a laugh, though. My "pap" never gave me but two real strappings, but how well I do remember those two. Yep! I flatter myself that I know this man fairly well. How well I remember how he has worked and schemed all these years that I might have an education and a chance in life, and I appreciate it fully, too. I remember well the look of disappointment that came to his face when he offered me a college education, and I, like a dunce, refused it. He belongs to no secret orders, and is a member of no church, although he attends church services and Sunday school regularly. I have never seen him smoke nor chew tobacco, and he drinks nothing stronger than a fount drink. He says that in his life he took three chews of tobacco and that pretty near killed him, so he has left tobacco off his list. When a young man he bought a half-gallon of whiskey, took one sip, which burned his mouth so that he couldn't swallow it, and that was the last of whiskey for him. He likes hunting, fishing, baseball, football, basketball, boxing and other sports. He likes his work as a carrier, but his hobby is raising big watermelons. I could tell and keep on telling of this man, but I must stop somewhere, so I guess this is as good a spot as any. But I know more of him—and how! —Man in the Moon.

What High Taxes Did

High taxes and the burden placed on the people by ill advised expenditure of the public money have been one of the prime causes for the wave of revolution which has swept over Europe during the past few years, according to the National Republic which declares, in an editorial in the current issue, that our own law makers both state and national could do quite a little toward the "nation defense" in the way of avoiding trouble at home, by taking a week off to study the long term effects of burdensome taxation. Under the caption, "What High Taxes Did," the editorial says:

"The recent upheavals in Europe should serve as a lesson to the national, state and local governments in the United States, but probably they will not. It would be well worth while if our legislators over the nation, when they are called into session again, would recess, suspend voting appropriations for an entire week, and during that week study the causes of unrest within the various nations of the world. Such a week might well be termed a 'National Defense Week,' for after all, if our leaders, national and state, can prevent an uprising of taxpayers, by using a little foresight to correct a situation that is fast breeding discontent, they will have contributed substantially to the peace and defense of the nation without purchasing a single round of ammunition.

"Revolutions do not happen—they are perpetrated. As Lenin once said: "Without revolutionary theory, there can be no revolutionary movement.' Revolution is promoted, usually by agents of subversive interests, many of them with programs, carefully disguised to the appearance of humanitarian projects.

"But the enactment of many of these socialistic schemes into legislation in many European countries has resulted in over-burdensome taxes, which bear down on the mass of people who are not at heart revolutionists, and thus the revolutionary theory is built up among those who would otherwise be immune. When the great majority are dissatisfied and ground down by taxes, the revolutionary leaders light the match, touch the fuse and the revolution is on. That is what happened in Russia, in Germany, in Italy, and later in France and Austria, where the revolutionary movements have not yet succeeded.

"It is easy enough to spend money, whether the government or the private individual is doing it. But to get along by economy, by balancing the budget, is much more difficult yet safer in the long run. Neither a recipient of easy money, whether it be a community or an individual, nor the taxpayer who must raise the money, appreciates a spendthrift government for a very long period of time. Sooner or later such government is repudiated, either at the ballot box, if democracy continues, or by revolution, as in the case of several European nations.

"In France, years of excessive taxation had created an intensive desire on the part of the people for a change. Lawabiding citizens, who had to pay the taxes, became dissatisfied with the spending spree of the minority-controlled, leftist government. When the fuse was set off, however, the communists, the monarchists and other radicals joined in the trouble. On one side of the street were representatives of the very radical groups which had helped bring on the unbalanced budget, while on the other, were representatives of the more moderate parties who were discontented because of the great burdens they were carrying as a result of governmental socialistic experimentation.

"In our own country, taxes, national, state and local, are mounting rapidly. By an increase in spending we are only storing up trouble for the future. Our legislative bodies, national and state, would do well to study the problem and its consequences before it is too late. Now is the time to begin to talk about unbalancing our budgets, from that of the United States government down to the smallest municipality. The taxpayer is now the forgotten man. But he will not remain forgotten, if the burden becomes too great."

Mr. and Mrs. Reedie Taylor, of Lafayette, were visitors to relatives and friends in Clanton the past few days. While here Mr. Taylor put in some time fishing on Lake Mitchell. He was accompanied by his father-in-law, John P. Lawrence, one of our most accomplished local anglers. They reported fine catches.

I went fishing Friday on Weogufka. It was the coldest day I ever experienced. We got plenty of fish, but we didn't have the fun of catching them in the usual way. We used a pick-axe to chisel 'em out of the ice where the creek was frozen a foot thick.

Robert Cost tells this story of a clock. When the home of Tom Ellison was blown away in the storm of March 21, 1932, of course the clock went too. One day last week the Ellison boys were plowing in a field near where the house was. One of them plowed up the clock. When the rust and dirt was removed from it the works began to tick, and it is still running.

Beginning last Sunday we had fine rains here. Mighty fine on strawberries. Dief felt so good over the first shower he went to church Sunday night. Buck Gore says he wants a hundred hands to start picking next Monday morning, and will take a hundred additional hands every day thereafter until he gets up to five hundred.

"The bacon, ma'am," replied Max, triumphantly.

Lesson for April 22

OUR ALL FOR THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 19:16-30.

GOLDEN TEXT—I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.—Acts 20:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Poor Rich Man.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Giving Jesus First Place.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Right Use of Money.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Stewardship of Possessions.

The lesson title is likely to be misunderstood and the teaching misapplied. Jesus did not directly, nor by implication, teach that eternal life can be obtained by parting with possessions. In his dealing with the young man, Jesus showed him his erroneous notion as to personal goodness and endeavored to reveal unto him his own essential nature.

I. A Certain Young Man Came to Jesus (v. 16).

For a full view of the characteristics of this man see Mark 10:17-30 and Luke 18:18-30.

1. His virtues.

a. Courageous (Mark 10:7). He was of high standing, a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23). To come to Jesus at this time meant to this young man ostracism from national fellowship. It required real courage.

b. Earnest (Mark 10:17). He came and knelt before Jesus.

c. High aspirations (v. 16). He wanted eternal life. There was an aching void in his soul in the midst of pleasures which affluence brings.

d. Pious and moral (v. 20). From youth up he professed to have conformed to God's holy law.

e. He believed that Jesus could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life.

2. His mistaken notions.

a. About Christ (v. 16). He esteemed Jesus to be good but did not apprehend him to be God.

b. Concerning himself. He was self-righteous. He thought he was good and that he could do something good.

c. Concerning eternal life. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works.

II. Christ Dealing With the Young Man (vv. 17-22).

Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors and then put his finger on the weak spot in his life.

1. Jesus' question (v. 17). "Why calleth thou me good?" Without giving him a chance to answer he declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good and therefore I am God."

2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20). "If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Jesus here met him on his own ground, namely that of the law. The law reveals sin and thus shuts the mouth of a self-righteous sinner (Rom. 3:19). The law curses instead of saves (Gal. 3:10). The gospel was given to save men from the curse (Rom. 1:16, 17).

3. Christ's command (v. 21). Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law the young man glibly asserted that he had kept them all from his youth up. In Christ's command to go and sell his possessions and distribute them to the poor, he put his finger upon the weak spot.

4. The young man's decision (v. 22). He decided against Christ. In the supreme test he chose his wealth.

III. The Relation of the Rich to the Kingdom of Heaven (vv. 23-26).

This teaching concerning the peril of riches was most timely. Covetousness was fast taking hold of the people. Judas was well under its sway.

1. It is difficult for the rich to enter the kingdom (vv. 23, 24). This difficulty lies not in the possession of riches but in trusting riches. The step from possession to trusting is a very short one. Riches are deceitful (Matt. 13:22). The tendency of increasing wealth is to destroy the nobler life of the soul. It lulls into security (Rev. 3:17); it leads to self-indulgence (1 Tim. 6:9), and to pride (Ezek. 28:5). Entrance of the rich into the kingdom is possible though difficult (vv. 25, 26). It is possible for the grace of God

a. To sanctify riches.

b. To so open a man's eyes that he may see his downward course and repent.

c. To change a man from self-seeking to self-sacrifice.

d. To make men humble.

IV. Rewards for Following Christ (vv. 27-30).

Those who turn their backs upon their country and possessions for Christ's sake shall receive a hundredfold in this life and eternal life for the world to come.

Trust in the Lord

Perfect trust is something which is one of the most charming characteristics of childhood, and which it is a sad thing to see lost through bitter experience of the faithlessness or cruelty of those about the child.

Uplift of Optimism

He who thinks the world is full of good people and kindly blessings is much richer than he who thinks the contrary. Each man's imagination largely peoples the world for himself.

Howell Turner, candidate for Secretary of State, was a visitor to Clanton Monday.

Public Speaking

JUDGE

L. H. REYNOLDS

Will Speak

Tuesday Night, April 24, at County Line Schoolhouse, at 7:30 o'Clock

Wednesday Night, April 25, in Beat 15 at Antioch Church, at 7:30 o'Clock

Friday Night, April 27, at Collins Chapel Schoolhouse, at 7:30 o'Clock

I assure you that I appreciate the crowds that I am having at my speakings and as I have stated, owing to the business in my office, it will be impossible for me to see very many voters during this campaign. I hope everybody will come to hear me that can.

This is your business and I will only tell about public matters and not private. It is not my intention to mention any other candidate.

This is Your Invitation to Be Present

(Paid political adv., by L. H. Reynolds, Clanton, Ala.)

Reynolds Replies To The Teachers

I would like to reply in your paper to the 6 questions asked by the teachers of Chilton County in your issue of Thursday, April 5, 1934, as follows:

1. I have always stood and will stand, if elected, for free schools for elementary grades, and then as far as the county or state funds will permit for a free high school, and then whatever is able to be spent to be applied to colleges. In other words, I believe the first effort should be made toward applying the public money toward the elementary grades, as this will effect the greater mass of the people and then applying the funds next in order to the high schools and colleges.

2. I believe that the education of the youth is one of the greatest duties of any government and unintelligent and uneducated people will make a bad government and, therefore, I believe that school appropriations should have the preference over all other appropriations of the state. However, I have always stood for the conduct of governmental affairs in such a way that all appropriations could be met and I believe if the money is properly and legally handled this can be done, but where the same cannot be done, I would give the schools preference.

3. I do not know upon what legal basis the attorney general held that education was a secondary, rather than a primary function of the state government, but, of course, if this is the law, I believe it should be changed, as certainly, education should be the primary function of any government.

4. I favor provisions for guaranteeing every community in the state a minimum education program of at least seven months each year. About a quarter of a century ago I believe I made the first speech ever made in Chilton County advocating a three-mill tax. Also over a quarter of a century ago I advocated a minimum of seven months free school each year for the schools of Alabama.

5. Of course there are many remedies that could be suggested to relieve the present financial plight of the schools and generall I would say that one of the chief remedies would be to abolish the overhead expense in the operation of state and county governments. In other words my policy has always been and will be, if elected, to save all money possible in overhead expenditures in order that the greatest amount of money might be directly expended upon the education of our youth. In this connection I would like to say that the salaries of school teachers should be such that they might be well trained and efficient for teaching services, and I think that their salaries should be paid in preference to all other salaries, as it is disastrous to our county and state and nation to have our youth grow up uneducated.

6. As stated in question four, over a quarter of a century ago I advocated in Chilton County a three-mill school tax, and since that time I have advocated a liberal taxation for education. As Judge of Probate I have advocated the county donating and appropriating all that I felt the county could financially bear and during the year 1933 several different communities made application for money from the county for the purpose of improving and repairing school buildings and I advocated the county helping each of these communities.—Yours very truly, L. H. Reynolds.

Primary Election Laws

We are publishing the following digest of Alabama Primary Election laws for the information of the voters of the county:

The chairman of each county executive committee of the parties entering each primary election shall at least forty days prior to the holding of the same certify to the probate judge of the county the names of all candidates for county offices.—(Acts of 1931, page 75, section 8.)

That any person desiring to submit his name to the voters in the primary election, shall, not later than March 1st, preceding the holding of such primary election, file his declaration of candidacy in the form prescribed by the governing body of the party with the chairman of the county executive committee, if he be a candidate for a county office * * * before March 1st next preceding the holding of such primary election and pay any assessments that may be required to be paid by him.—(Acts of 1931, page 76, section 12.)

The various candidates entering said primary at least fifteen days before such primary election may file with the county executive committee of his party lists of names suggested for offices for said primary election, and the county executive committee of his party may make up from the list of names so presented to it, a list of names of election officers, six in number for each voting place * * * as names to an appointing board of the county for appointment as officers to conduct the primary election and present the list so made up by it to the appointing board of the county.—(Acts of 1931, page 77, section 13.)

The ballots of every voter shall be kept secret and inviolate * * * and said ballot shall be numbered on the back hereof by one of the inspectors before being deposited in the ballot box and a corresponding number placed by the clerks on a record to be kept for that purpose by them, which record shall be enclosed in a separate envelope and sealed and directed to the chairman of the county executive committee, and delivered to him by the returning officer, and to be kept by such chairman, and opened only as herein provided * * * after the time allowed by law for filing contests and if no contest is filed, the chairman of the county executive committee shall destroy sealed records.—(Acts of 1931, page 81, section 19.)

It shall be the duty of the returning officer to return and deliver to the chairman of the county executive committee of each of the parties participating in the primary election at the office of the judge of probate at the county seat the ballot boxes and returns which have been delivered to him by the officers of said election, and each ballot box and returns shall not be allowed to leave his possession and must be returned to him to such chairman not later than Thursday, noon next, following said primary.—(Acts of 1931, page 82, section 23.)

After the counts of the votes is finished and certificates of results have been prepared and designed * * * the inspectors shall also, in an envelope, addressed to the chairman of the county executive committee or other governing body of each party participating, seal up one certificate of the result and one tally sheet and such envelope with those contents in it, together with the proper ballot box, shall thereupon be immediately delivered to the returning officer, who shall keep the same securely in his possession and by noon of Thursday following the primary shall carry and deliver the box and envelope separately to the proper chairman of the county executive committee of the political parties participating in such primary, at the office of the probate judge of the county. After the result has been canvassed and declared by the county executive committee, the chairman of such county committee shall securely keep the ballot box, until it is known that there will be no contest, but in any event not less than thirty days and if in that time no contest has been propery instituted, such chairman shall then destroy the contents of such box without examining the same. * * * —(Acts of 1931, page 83, section 26.)

The counting of the votes completed, the results shall be publicly proclaimed * * *. Said certificates shall be signed in triplicate by each of the inspectors; one copy of the same shall be forthwith posted in a conspicious place at such polling place, one copy shall be deposited with or mailed to the chairman of the county executive committee of each of the political parties in the primary, at such place as the county executive committee of the county shall designate at which to receive such returns. * * * —(Acts of 1931, page 84, section 28.)

The county executive committee of the party or parties participating in said primary election shall meet at the courthouse of their counties, not later than Thursday noon next following said primary election and receive said returns, canvass and tabulate the same by precincts and publicly declare the results thereof; and the chairman of each county executive committee shall forthwith and not later than noon of the next day, certify the returns to the chairman of the state executive committee * * *. The chairman of each county executive committee shall within three days from the date the county executive committee canvassed the returns of the first primary election, certify to the probate judge of the county, the names of the two candidates who receive the highest number of votes in the first primary for nomination to any county office.

The chairman of the county executive committee is charged with substantially the same duties with reference to the second primary as the first.—(Acts of 1931, page 84, section 29.)

That if, in any primary election held under the provisions of this act, there shall be a tie vote cast, then in such event such tie shall be decided by the chairman of the county executive committee if the office be a county office.—(Acts of 1931, page 87, section 30.)

All contests for county offices shall be heard and tried by the county executive committee as to the candidates for county offices.—(Acts of 1931, page 88, section 36.

The chairman of the county executive committee upon the filing with him of any contest as herein provided, shall, within five days, call said committee together at the county seat at the time not less than ten days nor more than twenty days, after the filing of such contest to hear and determine the same. — (Acts of 1931, page 91, section 44.)

An appeal shall be filed with the chairman of the county executive committee from whose decision the appeal is taken within ten days.—Acts of 1931, page 91, section 45.)

At any primary election which may be held in any county in this state in which the chairman of the executive committee of the political party holding such primary is a candidate for nomination to any office, such chairman shall be disqualified from performing any of the duties with reference to the handling of absentee ballots, which are now required to be performed by him. Such chairman who is thus disqualified shall at least forty-five days prior to the date of such primary, certify to the presiding judge of the Circuit Court of the county the fact that he is so disqualified, and within five days, thereafter, said circuit judge shall appoint a qualified elector of such county who is a member of the political party holding such primary and who is not a candidate, to perform such duties.—(Acts of 1933, page 194, section 4.)

The officers for each election district shall be of the same number as required by law to hold regular state elections and their duties and responsibilities shall be the same as those of regular state elections, and said officers shall be apponited by the same appointing board as officers to hold regular state elections. Where more than one political party enters into said primary, the appointing board shall appoint from and for each political party election officers to conduct said election. The election shall be conducted in the same room or voting place. Only one returning officer for each voting place shall be appointed. In the event the persons selected as election managers fail to appear at the polling place by 8:00 o'clock, then their place shall be filled by those who have been named by the appointing board and do appear. In the event none so named appear by 8 o'clock, then the voters present and qualified to participate in such primary election may from among themselves select officers to conduct such election in the voting district, and such substituted persons shall have all the authority of those originally appointed. All election officers shall take the same oath required to be taken by officers of regular state elections, such oath may be administered by any person authorized by law to administer oaths or by any one of the inspectors.—(Acts of 1931, page 77, section 13.)

The officers for primary elections shall consist of three inspectors and two clerks for each political party entering the primary and also one returning officer for each voting place. —(Section 437, Code of Alabama of 1923, Acts 1931, page 77, section 13.)

A voter who is also a member of a political party shall receive the official primary ballot of his political party and no other.—(Acts 1931, page 76, section 11.)

Separate official ballots and other election supplies shall be furnished for each political party and the ballots shall be of a different color. At the bottom of each ballot the voter will find a pledge to abide by the result of the primary election, to aid and support all the nominees in the ensuing general election and should any voter scratch out, deface or any in any way mutilate or change the pledge printed on the ballot, his ballot shall not be counted.—(Acts 1931, page 78, section 14.)

The judge of probate is required to furnish to the officers of said election a copy of the official list of voters of each district or precinct in the county, and he shall furnish as many of said lists as there are parties participating in said primary and the judge of probate shall deliver other election supplies and lists to the sheriff of the county not less than three days before the day of the election, and the sheriff shall deliver the same together with the ballot box to the officers of said election at the voting place not later than 7:30 a.m. on election day.—(Acts 1931, page 80, section 17.)

If a name of a person desiring to vote does not appear on the official list furnished by the judge of probate, it shall be the duty of the inspectors to challenge such vote and when challenged, said voter, before his ballot shall be received shall be required to swear and subscribe to an affidavit which will be furnished with the election supplies and shall also be required to produce or swear to an affidavit of identification, however, if said proposed voter presents to the inspectors a certificate signed by the probate judge, under the seal of his office that such person's name appears upon the list of qualified voters and is entitled to vote in said primary and said certificate is dated subsequent to the date of publication by the probate judge of the list of qualified electors, then said voter may be allowed to vote without taking the challenge oath.—(Acts 1931, page 80, section 18.)

The ballot of every voter shall be kept secret and as the inspectors deposit the ballots the name of the voter shall be checked off the official voter's list. One of the inspectors, as he hands out the ballots to the voters, shall initial the same on its back and before depositing it in the ballot box shall examine said ballot and see that it contains the identical initials placed there by the inspector, and said ballot shall be numbered on the back thereof by one of the inspectors before depositing it in the ballot box, and a corresponding number placed by the clerks on the record to be kept for that purpose by them and which record shall be enclosed in an addressed envelope and sealed and addressed to the chairman of the county executive committee and delivered to him by the returning officer.—(Acts of 1931, page 81, section 19.)

All challenged votes shall be marked "challenged" on the back thereof by one of the inspectors and also a number corresponding to the number opposite the name of the challenged voter as it apears on the official list of those voting at such election. If the name of such challenged voter does not appear on the official list of qualified voters one of the inspectors shall add such name to the official list of qualified voters, and give it its proper number. All affidavits of challenged voters shall be taken in duplicate and a copy of such affidavits shall be returned with the votes in the ballot box of the party to which it pertains, and the other copy shall be mailed to the circuit solicitor.—(Acts of 1931, page 81, section 21.)

If a voter is unable to read or is so physically disabled that he cannot mark his cross mark on the ballot and requests assistance in preparing his ballot, one of the inspectors shall swear him as to such disability and thereupon two inpectors (the law will not allow less than two nor more than two) shall assist such voter, by one of them in the presence of the other inspector, marking his ballot as he directs. Every voter in preparing his ballot shall do so in the room or place where the election is being held and not elsewhere.—(Acts of 1931, page 82, section 22.)

The returning officer shall deliver to the chairman of the county executive committee of each of the political parties participating in said primary election at the office of the judge of probate at the county seat, the ballot boxes and returns which have been delivered to him by the officers of said election, and each ballot box and returns shall not be allowed to leave his possession and must be returned by him to such chairman not later than Thursday noon next following said primary election.—(Acts of 1931, page 82, section 23.)

No ballots shall be counted until the polls are closed, and before counting the ballots or examining the same, one of the official lists of voters for each party participating in the primary which was furnished by the probate judge and both numbered list of voters participating in the primary election shall be securely sealed in a separate envelope and each of the inspectors shall write his name across every fold at which the envelope if fastened could be opened. After the count of the ballots is finished and certificates of the results have been prepared and signed, the inspectors shall seal up in a separate envelope all the ballots cast at such election and shall put each ballot so sealed up into the proper party ballot box and shall also put into the ballot box one tally sheet and one certificate of the result and a ballot box with those contents in it shall be securely locked and sealed. The inspectors shall, also, in an envelope addressed to the chairman of the county executive committe, seal up a certificate of result and a tally sheet, and such envelope with said contents together with the proper party ballot box be immediately delivered to the returning officer, who shall keep the same securely in his possession and by noon of Thursday following the primary shall carry and deliever the box and envelope separately to the proper chairman of the county executive committee of the political parties participating in said primary at the office of the judge of probate.—(Acts of 1931, page 83, section 26.)

After the votes are counted by the officials, separate certificates for each of the political parties entering said primary and the results of said election shall be drawn up by said inspectors and clerks at each voting place and they shall be signed in triplicate by each of the inspectors; a copy of the same shall be forthwith posted in a conspicious place at each polling place, a copy shall be deposited with or mailed to the chairman of the county executive committee of the party, and the third copy shall be mailed to the chairman of the state executive committee of the political party.—(Acts of 1931, page 84, section 28.)

Any candidate may have a single watcher at a polling place to be appointed by him in writing and the appointment shall be presented to and filed with the inspectors. A watcher shall not appear as or be an election officer and shall not render assistance to anyone in preparing a ballot. The watcher may remain in the polling place from the opening of the polls and until the box is sealed and delivered to the returning officer and shall have the right to see and inspect the ballots as they are called off and see the tally as it is being made, and generally to watch the conduct of the election.

A returning officer shall not of right be in the voting place except to cast his own legal ballot and finally to receive the box from the inspectors in order to return it and he shall not be a watcher.—(Acts of 1931, page 81, section 20.)

In counting the votes one of the inspectors may take the ballots one by one from the ballot box at the same time reading aloud the name of the person voted for and the office for which such person voted for and the officials may separately keep a calculation of the number of votes each person received and for what office he received them.—(Section 504, code of 1923.)

The election officials appointed shall meet at the place of holding the elections by 8 o'clock of the morning of the election and the polls shall be opened between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock in the morning and kept open without intermission or adjournment until the hour of five in the afternoon and no longer.—(Section 448 and 486 of the code of 1923.)

The inspectors before they commence receiving ballots must cause it to be proclaimed aloud at the place of voting that the election is open.—(Section 487 of the code of 1923.)

Dewey Hughes

Republican Candidate for Sheriff of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republican Primary of May 1st

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am doing my best to see all of you before May the first, and to ask you for your help in my race for Sheriff. If I fail to see you, please give me a fair consideration, and if you see fit to cast your vote for me, I will certainly appreciate it.

I will be satisfied with whoever the majority of the voters think is the best for the place, and can carry our party to victory in the general election.

I know we always hear a lot of things about different ones in an election, but I am glad the Republican party has carried the campaign on a high level so far.

Friends, I wish to state to you through our paper that I have not promised anyone a job with me, if I am elected as Sheriff. I feel like anyone would have plenty of time for that after being elected, and because of some talk I have heard, I wish to tell you this now.

With best regards to all, I am,
Your Friend,
DEWEY HUGHES.

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish the voters of Chilton County would consider Mr. Joe Cobb, of the last four years he has given good service. I think people will praise him for good roads. I believe if we re-elect him again he will be of more service to the county than he has been.

I have known him all my life. I have watched him since he has been a changed man. I believe Mr. Cobb is a good man since he has been a changed man. He goes to Sunday School every Sunday and to church. He is a quiet man. Never hear of him interfering with anybody's business.

In regard to his work I want to tell one thing; he put a bridge in at Watson Creek and it was said that it would not stay there until the first rain came, and the bridge is still standing. Said the water was so high you could have pulled a boat over it.

In regard to Beat 13, of Mr. Harrell. He was the overseer that I worked under for four years. I think he is one of the finest overseers that a county could have. He treated every man fair, I believe, the nicest as any man could. I have never heard of a man working for him say anything against him. And I will say that everybody in Beat 13 got their share of work with their trucks, that had trucks.—John Beam.

W. G. SHAW CANDIDATE FOR COMMISSIONER 1ST DISTRICT

To Every Voter of Chilton County:

I am a candidate for commissioner from the first district. I ran for this office four years ago, and the encouragement given me has encouraged me to try again.

I ask every voter to consider me for this office. I am making an honest effort to see every voter, but having other work to do makes it almost impossible. Those I don't see I will appreciate your vote and influence just the same.

I am not going to say what I have done or what I will do; give me a chance and I will show the people what I will do.

If I am elected, and if I make a mistake (which we all do) come and tell me. Will consider any one's advice. Let us cooperate. In the beginning I said I would not make any promises to any one. If I am elected I am going in with clean hands and pledge to no man.

I have always been loyal to the Republican party. When I was defeated four years ago I supported the nominee and expect to do so this time if defeated. If I am elected I will discharge the duties of commissioner to the best of my ability. Respectfully, W. G. Shaw.

ENDORSING MR. W. G. SHAW

Mr. Editor:

Will you give me just a small space in your paper for a few lines in regard to Mr. W. G. Shaw? I have known Mr. Shaw for a number of years and he has always been fair and square with me in all our dealings and I am sure there are numbers of people that will say the same thing. Just a moment. Friends, I am sure you all know Mr. Shaw. He is a candidate at the present time, trying to visit all his friends and fellow citizens of Chilton County, and I am sure he will do it, for Mr. Shaw is a hustler. If he doesn't come to visit you, you just were not at home, for he wants to meet all the voters of the county personally, I am sure.

We all know, and so does Mr. Shaw, that the voters of our county are back of our great government, whether it be federal, state or county. Mr. Shaw is asking for a small position in our county .government, and it is up to the voters of Chilton County to select a man that is capable of running our government to the best advantage of all the people—a man that will give all the people an equal show as far as he has authority to do so, and I, myself, personally know he did that once when he was road overseer in Beat 13 of Chilton County. The work that was being done in his district was equally divided among everyone that wanted to work. He never showed partiality to anyone. Now he is asking for a higher position, and I am sure he will do the same thing again if he is given the position he is asking for.

Mr. Shaw wants to take his small part in helping our president of the United State to put over the new deal, and I am sure he will do his part just the same as millions of other people are doing. I am one hundred per cent for our president of the United States and I am also one hundred per cent for Mr. Shaw, for I am sure you all know that if our people do not cooperate and pull together and do their part in every way possible, we cannot expect prosperity to return soon. Our president cannot carry out the new deal unless we help him to do so.

So think it over, people, and when you go to the polls May the first, cast a vote for Mr. W. G. Shaw, and I am sure you will never regret it, for I am sure he will serve you every way for the advantage of the people of Chilton County.—W. G. Glass.

OLD FOLKS MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP 5TH SUNDAY

Mr. J. Dudley Collins of Friendship community asks The Union-Banner to announce that the annual old folks and ministers meeting will be held at Friendship church the fifth Sunday in April. This meeting last year was the best ever held up to that time, and it is hoped that this year it will be even better and more largely attended. An invitation is extended all old people and ministers of all denominations.

Public Speakings By W.L. Sanders

Since this is a busy time of the year, and on account of sickness, it will be impossible for me to see every voter before the election, so I am trying to fill a few appointments in order to see as many as possible.

I will speak to the people at Enterprise ..... Thursday Night, 7:30 p.m., April 19

Thomas Junior ..... Friday Night, 7:30 p.m., April 20

If I should fail to see all the voters before the election, please don't feel slighted or that I'm not interested in your support and influence. I will appreciate the support of any voter, regardless as to whether I have talked to you personally or not.

Any candidate wishing to be at Enterprise or Thomas Junior on the above dates, come right along.

Hoping to have a large crowd at both places,

Yours truly,

W. L. SANDERS.

J. F. BONE ENDORSES DR. GRAGG FOR STATE SENATOR

Dear Editor and Friends:

It is high time for the voters of every community to center on a definite policy and unite for one great political purpose. This is the only way for us to reach a definite goal in the cause of good government. With this important fact in mind I wish to call your attention to Dr. V. J. Gragg, Democratic candidate for the State Senate from the Fifteenth Senatorial District.

I have known Dr. Gragg practically all my life. We have been intimately associated since our high school days in Clanton High School during the early years of the century. I have had a splendid opportunity to observe and to know thoroughly the circumstances surrounding every accomplishment of Dr. Gragg. I feel, therefore, that it is my duty to recount a few of the important facts which I know about his enviable career, and which have a direct bearing on his ability to fill the office he seeks.

Dr. Gragg is a native son of Chilton County. He was born and reared in the vicinity of Clanton, where he has lived all his life, and where, by virture of his active civic interests he has become one of the most useful citizens of that community. He has, indeed, earned the respect of active business and professional men in all parts of the State. He enjoys the confidence and friendship of everyone who knows him well.

Dr. Gragg's parents were among the pioneer settlers of the territory which is now embodied in Chilton County. The family from which our candidate descended has served the county well and with distinction as is testified to by the fact that the territory which is now Chilton County, was originally named Baker County, in honor of an Uncle of Dr. Gragg's, who was a member of the State Legislature at the time the territory was formed into a county.

Dr. Gragg's father was a farmer and school teacher, and it was in an environment of hardy, frugal, and industrious forbearers that the present aspirant to the State Senate was born and reared. He knew no luxuries and his only wealth was his ambition and his early determination to gain an education.

At the youthful age of sixteen, Dr. Gragg, himself, began teaching in the rural schools of Chilton County. After pursuing the profession of teaching for some years, which was mixed with a generous portion of farm labor, our candidate aspired to become a physician. By his own efforts, as a teacher and farmer, he earned every dollar that was used to pay his way through high school and college.

He graduated in medicine at Tulane University at New Orleans in 1908. Two years before his graduation he passed the State Board of Medical Examiners, and was licensed as a practicing physician. He was thus enabled to practice medicine intermittently during his last two years in college and earn the money necessary for defraying his expenses while obtaining his final degree in medicine.

His practice of medicine has been confined to the county of his nativity. Perhaps the greatest contribution made by Dr. Gragg for the benefit of his fellow citizens has been through his personal services and sacrifices as a physician and surgeon. In 1921 he took the leading part in organizing and establishing the Central Alabama Hospital at Clanton. His active connection with that institution has been consant and faithful ever since. As a surgeon of exceptional ability he has performed more than two thousand major operations, half of which have been given as charity to people who were not able to pay a penny for his services.

During the storm emergency of 1932 he threw open the doors of the hospital to the injured and suffering. Together with other doctors of the county he worked day and night administering medical and surgical aid to the injured. More than 67 persons were cared for in this great emergency at the hospital. Dr. Gragg did not accept one cent for his services.

All the while Dr. Gragg has had a keen interest in education, good government, and all worthwhile civic functions. As mayor of Clanton for three terms, he exemplified his interest in education. This is proven by the fact that during his tenure of office, the town of Clanton gave more money for the support of public schools than has been given during a like period before or since. At this writing he is continuing his services to the schools of Clanton as a member of the local school board.

The foregoing facts are given to acquaint the people with the important facts behind Dr. Gragg's life. He sprang from the ranks of the common people, and by his own ability and determination overcame the odds of poverty. He has made a career of inestimable value to his county, his state, and its people. The people of the Fifteenth Senatorial District can rely on the character and ability of Dr. Gragg. He will fulfill his pledges to his friends. On election day let us think sanely, choose with care, and build for permanence by supporting this worthy candidate with our vote and influence.

Yours for the best in government. —J. F. Bone, Principal Louisville High School.

PLATFORM OF PINK M. MARTIN FOR MEMBER OF COUNTY BOARD

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As you know that I am a candidate for a member of the Board of Education. I would like to say that I can't see very voter and talk with them, but would appreciate your vote and influence.

I believe in every child having the same chance to go to school. I do not believe in tearing up any school unless two-thirds of the people want to send elsewhere. I believe in a full term school if we have the money to pay for it. I believe in a free school and if elected I think we can work out a plan to stop that incidental fee.

I am in the northern part of the county. And our man for this plact at this time is out, Mr. C. C. Conway. There are two places to be filled and four of the Republicans out and three of them live at Cooper, in the southern part of the county. I would like to be one of your choice, and if not your choice will be mine in the general election. Asking you voters to consider my place and vote for the man whom you think would be the best for the place. Yours respectfully.—Pink M. Martin, Jemison, Alabama, Rte. 1.

J. W. BUSBY ENDORSES J. E. COBB FOR COMMISSIONER

Editor Union-Banner:

Please let me have space in your paper to say a few words for J. E. Cobb, who is running for re-election for Commissioner of the First District of Chilton County.

I will say that Mr. Cobb is a good business man, and he knows how to build roads. I can say we have the best roads in Beat 13 we have ever had; also he has built several good bridges in this Beat.

If you have any doubt about the facts in the case I will refer you to the doctors of Montevallo and Calera, as well as Jemison; also the mail carries of these places.

I unreservedly recommend Mr. Cobb for re-election. Why put a new man in the place of an upright honest well trained county official? Respectfully. —J. W. Busby.

VERMONT SCHOOL

Today brings our final exams to a close. Report cards will be given out tomorrow. We are proud to announce that the larger per cent of our enrollment satisfactorily completed the prescribed course of study and are now ready to launch into a new grade next term. We regret, however, that certain conditions are going to withhold the above privilege to several of our school and classmates, but we wish you better luck next year.

Our regular P.-T. A. was scheduled to meet last Monday night but at this writing no report can be given on account of the news items having to be sent in before the meeting.

Mr. Johnson and Miss Cagle met with other teachers last Saturday at Clanton to frame questions for the standard county sixth grade and ninth grade examination.

Tomorrow night, (Friday night) April 20, our graduation exercises will be given. We cordially invite all parents and friends to be present. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church, will deliver the Baccalaureate address. Superintendent Little will be present to greet the graduating classes with a brief talk. This program will begin promptly at 7:45 p.m. There will be no admission charges. The graduation this year will be as follows: Sixth grade—John Robert Klinner, Earl Klinner, Nell Chandler, Zannie Hayes, Audra Ratliff, Josie Mae Deason and Willie Hayes. Those completing the nineth grade are Mary Owen, Edna Simms, Mary Jo Chandler and T. J. Ratliff.

The graduates will participate in the exercises by presenting the following: Welcome address, by Mary Jo Chandler; Valedictory address, by Edna Simms; Class poem, by Nell Chandler; Class grumbler, by Mary Owen; Class will, by T. J. Ratliff; Class history, by Mary Owen, Class historian. Sixth grade valedictory address, by Audra Ratliff. The class colors are blue and white. The class flower is the rose and the class motto in "Climb, though the rocks be rugged."

Our attendance is holding up reasonably well, considering the fact that several cases of measles are scattered over the community. Our school has been much more fortunate than many of the other schools of the county, in the fact that we have not had over three or four cases in the district at any one time.

We notice the blue birds are busy building nests in the birdhouses constructed and put up by the sixth grade boys several weeks ago.

The baseball game with Plantersville last Saturday was called off due to failure of the team to meet appointment.

Our school picnic will be given next Saturday at Lover's Lane, five miles north of Jemison. Two large trucks will convey the group. All those that are going must be at the schoolhouse by nine o'clock Saturday morning. Several parents and the entire faculty will chaperone.

T. A. MADDOX FOR COMMISSIONER

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Since making my announcement as a candidate, asking for commissioner's office of the second district, knowing it almost impossible to see each voter and talk to them face to face, I am taking this method of speaking to you through this paper.

First, I want to thank each one that supported me when I was elected to this office eight years ago. I took up the duties of the office on January 15, 1927. At that time I gave all matters of business coming before the commissioners court my best consideration before passing on same.

If nominated and elected I will do my best to carry out the business of the office to the best of my ability. It will be my desire to spend the road funds equally over the district, dividing the work among the people in the community in which the work is being done. Giving people a chance to put teams on a haul where the distance isn't too long.

It would be my desire to spend as little money as possible for road machinery, only when necessary.

Would be willing to take care of the unfortunate people as far as the law would permit. I live near the almshouse and if elected would see that the inmates are properly cared for.

In 1927 the road subjects had to pay $5.50 or work seven days. During my administration, we, the commissioners, saw fit to discontinue all road subjects for an indefinite time. Also, we, the commissioners, decided to discontinue the road subjects and pay them for their labor.

I ask each and every voter to consider my candidacy for this office with particular reference as to my ability and qualifications to discharge the duties thereof, and to attend to the public business of the office.

I feel like the four years' experience I have had in commissioner's work would make me better qualified to take up the work the other man stops, than a man that hasn't had any experience in the work at all.

It was during my administration as commissioner when the commissioners quit buying gas for road machines from the dealers here and began buying in car load lots, thereby saving the county several hundred dollars each year.

In conclusion I will ask you to check over my past record as commissioner and especially would ask you to check over the road work I did in Beats 3, 9 and 14, which makes up the second district. If you find that I am worthy of the office for another term, no one would appreciate your vote more than I. However, your choice in the primary will be my choice in the November election.

Thanking you for your past favors, I remain your true Republican friend. —T. A. Maddox.

E. E. MARTIN ENDORSES MR. J. E. COBB FOR COMMISSIONER

To Republican Voters:

The writer of the foregoing has never before taken part in politics or made any statement to the public and is well aware of being scarcely, if known at all outside of his own community and cannot expect to bear with any great influence on public matters. But withall would like to make a few statements in regard to the election of Commissioner of the First District. The people of this community, Providence Beat 13, have been repeatedly informed that the voters of other districts, especially in the southern part of the county, have been asking the question and trying to learn whom we folks of this section want for our commissioner.

We feel grateful toward all these people for their interest in our behalf, we thank you. Also realizing this is a matter in which the whole county is concerned. We are here and now, stating that our choice, which we have every reason to feel the primary will bear us out in, is our present commissioner, J. E. Cobb.

Now in personally making this statement it is with full belief that the majority sentiments are being spoken. We are satisfied with our commissioner and see no reason for making a change. Mr. Cobb's record in court is open to all his supporters, claim he has been true to his conviction. Ever having at heart the common good of the people. Is not one to yield to the influence of any against his better judgment, and as for the roads in this section, surely no one could deny roads being in the best condition since there has been roads through here.

We cannot expect this Beat to go solid for Mr. Cobb. It is reasonable to presume other candidates will get a part of the votes. They usually do, sometimes, even in their own community. We are expecting Beat '13 to go, at the very least, tow-thirds our way, allowing a liberal margin for cases of doubt.

Now folks, this no exageration by any means. This is a careful check from pledges. We even have the support of some Democrats. We expect the north portion of Beat to go solid. We will have no run-off so far as this Beat is concerned. If anyone questions or doubts this, and if so interested, we especially urge a thorough tour of this section, then wait until after primary and count-'em-up.

Now, Mr. Voter, I wish it thoroughly understood, I am the sole author of this, not solicited by anyone and no one is writing over my name.

I have had no special favors from Mr. Cobb or any one; am not asking or expecting any, but am interested solely in the welfare of our public affairs.

Now folks, you can by this know where we are on this question.—E. E. Martin, Jemison Rte. 3.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

RENT ACREAGE LAND IN REDUCING COTTON

Auburn, Ala., April 17.—Land of good average fertility and not eroded, waste or gullied land, is to be taken out of cotton cultivation this year under the terms of the contracts signed by southern growers.

The purpose of the reduction of 40 per cent in cotton acreage, to be obtained by renting land to the Secretary of Agriculture, is a similar reduction in the production of cotton in 1934.

"Therefore, growers are not entitled, under the contract to select old, worn-out land and designate it as the rented area specified in the contract," says Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service, Alabama Polytechnic Institute. "There should be no skipping about in the field renting one poor spot here and another 'gullied' spot there. The rented acres must be tillable land suited to the growing of cotton and shall be fairly representative of the average cotton land on the farm. In other words, the adjustment administration agrees to pay growers benefit rentals for good average cotton land that produces on the average what the other cotton acres will produce."

While these acres of average land may not be planted to cotton this year, they may be put into food and feed crops for home use. Dr. Duncan again stressed the fact that food and feed crops are one of the great needs of Alabama agriculture, and for this reason a special concession was obtained in preparing the cotton contract so that this need might in part be filled.

County and community committeemen will give special attention to the land rented and the use to which this land is put, when they inspect the farm later for compliance with the terms of the contract, Dr. Duncan said.

COSTS OF PRODUCING PORK

Auburn, Ala., April 17.—A careful study of the economics of pork production in southeast Alabama is reported in a bulletin written by James D. Pope and Henry T. Wingate and published for distribution by the experiment station of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"The general system of hog production followed in this area," said the authors, "consists of fattening the hogs on runner peanuts during the fall and winter months and maintaining the herd on permanent pasture and hand-fed feeds, consisting mostly of corn, for the remainder of the year. On some farms early-maturing crops, such as Spanish peanuts, are used, thereby extending the length of the fattening period.

"Ninety per cent of the cost of producing pork on the farms studied was feed cost, of which 23 per cent consisted of home-grown feed fed by hand, 5 per cent of purchased feed fed by hand, and 62 per cent peanut grazed.

The most important single item of the total feed cost was the cost of producing runner peanuts for hog grazing. The two-year average cost of producing runner peanuts planted solid was $12.17 per acre or $1.67 per hundredweight.

"Cost of producing pork varied widely as between different farms, ranging from $3.00 to $9.00 per hundredweight of total gain on the majoriyt of the farms.

"The two-year average cost of producing 100 pounds of marketable and total gain was $6.73 and $5.60 respectively; income was $7.06 and $6.82 respectively. Pork produced per acre was 300 and 311 pounds for marketable and total gain, respectively. Net return per acre of land used for hog grazing averaged $5.70, the interplanted peanut acreage being reduced to a solid acre basis."

BRIEF RURAL ITEMS

What 4-H club members are earning is greatly worth while, but what they are learning is infinitely more valuable to them and their communities.

They say that nine-tenths of all tenancy is in single crop areas. Problem: Find the reason.

Sorghum is said to be the best crop to grow in Alabama for filling silos. Texas Seeded Ribbon (Gooseneck) variety is recommended.

Soybeans for hay, grazing or soil building will be planted in large quantities in Alabama this spring.

The farmer who makes his lands richer through wise management will not make himself poorer.

Spring greens furnish minerals and vitamins that are needed in the diet to preserve or regain health.

"History affords abundant evidence that civilization has advanced in direct ratio to the efficiency with which the thought of the thinkers has been translated into the language of the workers."

CONTEST FOR 4-H CLUB BOYS

As part of an elaborate program throughout the south, the Agricultural Development Bureau of the Barrett Company, distributor of American Nitrate of soda, is sponsoring a 4-H club cotton and corn contest in Alabama, it was disclosed recently by C. A. Sims, state Club leader. There will be many valuable awards, consisting of educational trips, 4-H club pins, etc.

Four educational trips to the National Club Congress, Chicago, Ill., will be given in December, 1934. Two trips awards will be made in cotton and two in corn; one to the northern half and one to the southern half of the state. To each county winner in cotton and corn who is not a state winner, will be given one 10-karat gold filled 4-H club pin.

The awards will be made on the basis of yields and 4-H club activities. Crop yields will count 60 per cent and club activities 40 per cent. All contestants will be required to use at least 100 pounds of American nitrate of soda per acre, but may use more if he so desires.

It has been learned that the Agricultural development bureau of the Barrett Company is conducting similar contests in behalf of the American-made nitrate of soda among 4-H clubs and Future Farmers of America in Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Virginia and both Carolinas.

Many leading agriculturists say that there is no better way to stimulate interest in better farming methods among boys than by offering worthwhile awards for excellence in those projects which have been assigned to them by their club leaders. In sponsoring these activities, the Agricultural Development Bureau is not only working for the advancement of agriculture but is also showing the way to a broader understanding between southern agriculture and American industry.

The contests are arousing tremendous interest among the club boys and it is expected that there will be strenuous competition for the prizes.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

GINKGO TREE RELIC OF THE FORMER AGES

Montgomery, Ala., April 17.—The living world of plants has in it a number of lone survivors of types that flourished in remote geological ages, says Col Page S. Bunker, state forester. Such plants seem somewhat out of place in their present surroundings resembling no other existing genera. Among such remnants of the life of past ages are the so-called Horsetail Rushes and the Ginkgo tree. The Horsetail Rushes are the survivors of a very large assemblage of plants, some of them 40 feet in height, that flourished extensively many millions of years ago. The Ginkgo tree is in reality a conifer, although instead of having needle like leaves the latter have more the appearance of hardwood leaves.

In some localities the Ginkgo is used extensively as a shade tree on streets and highways. It probably would have become extinct many centuries ago had not the Chinese retained it in cultivation mainly about the monasteries. It was wholly unknown in the wild state. However, recently it was found growing wild in the interior of China, but even in this instance there is some doubt as to whether the wild specimens were in reality from the seed of trees which previously had escaped from civilization.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala.—The student of birdlore and animal life in Alabama can get a good composite picture of his subject in the museum of the state department of game and fisheries, a place that draws every person who visits the historic capitol building.

Hundreds of interested visitors wander through the museum on the second floor of the state house every week, admiring the beautiful handiwork of a master taxidermist. This natural history collection was acquired several years ago from G. F. Monroe, then of Mobile. It has been exhibited several times at state fairs and includes 327 birds, animals, reptiles and fish. More than 200 of the 325 birds native to Alabama are exhibited.

Mounted in their natural state, with the interior of the glass fronted cases painted to resemble the surroundings in which the birds and animals make their homes, these inhabitants of the great outdoors present a colorful picture. As one enters he is confronted by a crouching bob-cat, apparently ready to spring down upon its prey. A large eagle spreads its wings nearby and in the glass cases smaller birds appear ready to dart away or are concerned with their feeding.

The beautiful yellow crowned night herron, or grosbec, looks out over a marshy lake, while nearby the purple gallinule and other natives of the coast marshes feed or stand idle. In another case a majestic bronze wild turkey looks up. He is flanked by several types of doves. Further on one finds the booby ganet and loon and Commissioner I. T. Quinn will tell you that these fishers are not as dumb as their names imply. Hundreds of other birds make an exotic array and all are identified by a handy directory system.

There are 54 animals on exhibit. As the visitor enters the museum a soft - eyed doe deer gazes over the back of a fawn, while a large buck glares as if he resents the intrusion of human beings into his realm. Further along a family of little spotted skunks, or polecats, look down with ferocious ocelot. The lazy little woodchuck, or groundhog, a grinning 'possum and his family and a bushy tailed 'coon are included along with many others in the crowded cases.

Twenty-five reptiles are on display, including a rattlesnake seven feet, four inches long, mounted so naturally they give the visitor the creeps, the snakes, lizards and other reptiles never fail to draw and interest crowds. Commissioner Quinn has added numerous birds, animals and fish since the Monroe collection was acquired and regards it as one of the most valuable wild life collections in the country.

NATIONAL 4-H CLUB CONTEST

Four-H Girls who can "doll up" becomingly have a chance to win fine prizes in this state this year in a contest to be conducted by the national committee on Boys and Girls Club Work of Chicago in cooperation with state and county club leaders.

The girls are required to model a complete outfit in one of four classes. They are a school wash dress or suit—a wool, silk or rayon dress or suit for school a "best" dress of any material—and in informal party dress. Winners of county contests, now being planned in many parts, will receive handsome medals and become eligible to the state revue in which the winner will receive a trip with all expenses paid by the Chicago Mail Order Company to the National Style Revue to be held at the National Club Congress in Chicago during the week of the International Live Stock Exposition.

The national contest will be staged in one of Chicago's finest banquet halls before over 1,200 4-H delegates and leaders attending the club congress, and will be a classic feature of the year's club program. Beautiful gold watches will be awarded class winners and a gold medal of honor to the national champion.

Economy of the outfit will be given an important rating to induce girls to exercise thrift and originality. Contestants are required to make their dress, but may purchase the accessories. Last year's national winning outfit, a tailored costume, cost $21.61. It employed a buckle and woolen scraps from an old dress. The reserve national champion outfit cost $13.64 complete, and included an original belt buckle made of two bracelets. A Louisiana girl won national honors on a cotton school dress and outfit costing $4.62. A 15-year old Arkansas girl won the same honor on a $7.54 outfit. Rules of the contest may be obtained from local or county club leaders.

ENDORESE JUDGE REYNOLDS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

Just a little note about our judge. I am for him myself, and I know a lot of others that are for him. I have been working for him, and expect to do more in the short time I have to work. He hasn't asked me to either.

Judge Reynolds has kept our county out of bankruptcy all this long time. We have good roads too. You should ride through some of the adjoining counties and see what roads they have. Take Shelby County, almost all of the waterboxes are broken through, their bridges reel and rock, you can't make more than twenty miles per hour.

Our county is not bankrupt. Our roads are good. We can go anywhere. Our bridges are good. We can drive sixty miles per hour on almost all the roads in our county.

Get out and look around and you will know how to cast your vote. It will make you proud of Judge Reynolds. Judge Reynolds is not just this and that man's friend, but he is everybody's friend—a friend to widows and orphans, a helper to his county. He is honest, true and sincere.

We don't need anyone experimenting these hard depressing times. It takes money to experiment. Judge Reynolds has had experience. He is the man we need. Now, dear friends, the Judge loves his fellowmen and appreciates what has been done for him from time to time. He is a friend in the time of need, so we'll soon need a judge. Let's use him again, what you say? He will appreciate your vote and you won't regret it.—Thanks, Mrs. Carolyn Shaw, Clanton Route 5.

NEW PLYMOUTH SEDAN

Detroit, April 17.—A Deluxe town sedan, hailed as the smartest model ever offered on a Plymouth chassis, was announced by the Plymouth Motors Corporation here this week.

In making the announcement, the corporation stated that the new model was developed to meet numerous dealer requests for a car of this type.

A four-door, four-window sedan, the new model is a "close-coupled car" but a large car, utilizing 114-inch wheelbase. A handsome new built-in trunk is mounted on the rear as standard equipment. Upholstery and certain interior appointments are new.

The new model is presented in four colors, black, fisherman blue, palm beach gray and gunmetal. It is not available without the trunk, which is part of the body.

Like other Plymouth models, the town sedan offers all of the basic Chrysler motors engineering features.

FORT DEPOSIT YOUTH IS DROWNED IN FISH POND

Ft. Deposit, Ala., April 15.—Burt Long, Jr., 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Long, Sr., was drowned in a fish pond a few miles from here Saturday when a boat capsized. The body was recovered about 10 p.m., Saturday night in 20 feet of water.

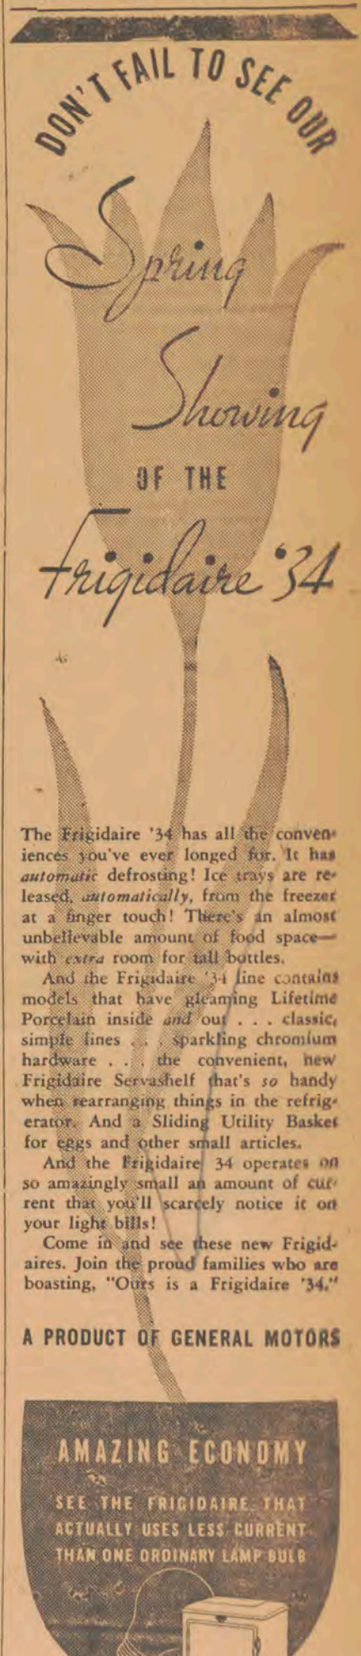
The youth was riding in the boat with several companions when the craft turned over, all swimming ashore except Long. Gordon Reese, a volunteer diver, found the body.

Long was a student in the Lowndes County High School here. Burial was in Sandy Ridge cemetery this morning.

SINGING AT POOR HOUSE

I am authorized to announce a singing at this place the fourth Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1:30 o'clock in the Sacred Harp and Christian Harmony song books. Everybody is invited to attend.

Singers throughout the county, come and help sing for these old people. It is the duty of everybody who can attend meetings at this place and help make it a success, to do so.



The Frigidaire '34 has all the conveniences you've ever longed for. It has automatic defrosting! Ice trays are released, automatically, from the freezer at a finger touch! There's an almost unbelievable amount of food space—with extra room for tall bottles.

And the Frigidaire '34 line contains models that have gleaming Lifetime Porcelain inside and out . . . classic, simple lines . . . sparkling chromium hardware . . . the convenient, new Frigidaire Servashelf that's so handy when rearranging things in the refrigerator. And a Sliding Utility Basket for eggs and other small articles.

And the Frigidaire '34 operates on so amazingly small an amount of current that you'll scarcely notice it on your light bills!

Come in and see these new Frigidaires. Join the proud families who are boasting, "Ours is a Frigidaire '34."

MEMORY OF DORENDIA DUPREE

In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Dorendia Dupree, who passed away April 17, 1933.

Just at the break of dawn
Our mother went away,
And left us so lonely here
Just one year ago today.

To her she said we could come
To her beautiful white home,
And how happy we would all be
Around the white house you see.

In answer to your prayers
Just before you went away;
Mother, we will meet you there
At the great white throne some day.

So lonely, lonely here
We have been day by day,
Dear mother, since you went away,
Just one year ago today.

Your rest is sweet in your city white,
No more sorrows, no more night,
No more ache for your dear heart
Of this sad world you bore your part.

We'll say thy will be done, Oh Lord,
Though we must suffer pain;
We'll face our grief and sorrow
And try not to complain.

Oh, do we miss our mother dear
Since she went away,
And left us so lonely here
Just one year ago today.

We would not have you come
From your white city of rest,
We loved you, oh we loved you
But God does love you best.

You looked so sweet and composed
In your white coffin you lay,
Just as if you could sweetly say
At rest, sweet rest, today.
Mrs. Martha Dupree Bradbury.
Mrs. Sallie G. Bates.

"Poor Hazel, she got cruelly deceived when she married that old man."
"Didn't he have any money?"
"Oh, yes, plenty of money—but it turns out he's ten years younger than he said he was."

Harold had taken his girl friend to lunch and she had spoken to a nice-looking man at the next table.
"Is that man a friend of yours? asked Harold.
"Yes," she replied.
"Then I think I'll ask him to join us."
"Oh, Harold, this is so sudden."
"What's so sudden?"
"Why, why, he's our minister.

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER

(By Bob Jones)

John Wessley said, "Give me one hundred men who fear nothing but sin, and who are determined to know nothing among men but Jesus Christ and Him crucified, and I will set the world on fire." John Wesley learned what all Christian leaders learn that the problem is always one of finding who can put over the program. Sometimes this writer finds a young preacher who is talented, but maybe he is selfish, or he may have some other fault. He may be jealous of other preachers. That is such a common sin. We don't need more men, we just need a better quality of man.

It is all right to sing "Jesus, I my cross have taken, nil to leave and follow thee" provided we can sing with the same enthusiasm "In the cross of Christ I glory towering o'er the wrecks of time." Some people talk about their crosses like they are sorry they ever followed Jesus. We do have to bear crosses, but we ought to rejoice that we are worthy to bear a cross for our Lord.

"Take my yoke upon you and learn of me for I am meek nnd lowly of spirit and ye shall find rest unto your soul." That is what Jesus said. You will note that we are not to find rest by sititng down, but we are to find rest for our souls by taking the yoke of Jesus upon us. In other words, we work but we work with Him. Work is not tedious and the yoke is not heavy when all our plans and all of our purposes are in harmony with the plans and purposes which Jesus Christ has for our lives."

Just a word about the SERVICE at the MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

L. H. REYNOLDS
Will Speak at the COURTHOUSE in Clanton
Next Saturday, April 21
at 2:30 P.M.

It appears from letters sent out that my opponents have chosen to pitch their campaign against me upon appealing to the young voters that I have had the office too long, and that they will give the young voters a chance.

In my speech Saturday I expect to give my hearers the full facts about my own public career, and also that of my opponents, and I will show that I am not the only candidate who has a record in office in Chilton. I especially want the young voters to hear what I shall say.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES TO BE NOMINATED

Meetings To Be Held at All Schoolhouses, Friday, May 4th, at 2:00 P. M.

The patrons of each school in Chilton County are herewith requested to assemble at their respective schoolhouses at 2:00 o'clock p.m., Friday, May 4th, for the purpose of nominating school trustees.

The attorney general in an opinion dated September 15, 1932, held unconstitutional House Bill No. 191, General Acts of 1931, page 672, providing for the election of school trustees for terms of two years beginning the first Saturday in May, 1932, and ending the first Saturday in May, 1934.

In an opinion dated September 16, 1932, the attorney general held that in view of an opinion declaring unconstitutional the act of 1931 providing for the election of trustees, the appointment to these positions will be governed by section 133 of the Alabama School Code of 1927. It now, therefore, becomes the duty of county boards of education to direct the patrons of each school under its jurisdiction, both elementary and secondary, including the county high school, to assemble on a uniform date for the purpose of nominating six discreet, competent and reliable persons of mature years from among the patrons of the school, from which number the county board of education will select three residing near the schoolhouse to serve as trustees for a period beginning the first day of July, 1934.

Only patrons of the school may participate in the nomination of the six persons from which list the board will select three as trustees.

A patron has been defined by the attorney general in an opinion dated February 20, 1931, as "those persons residing in the definite territory served by the school, who are parents, guardians or custodians of children, who are in attendance upon such school and who are eligible to so attend. A patron may or may not be an elector."

In order to be eligible for appointment as school trustee, ap erson must be a patron of that particular school within the above definition but need not be a qualified elector.

Large Attendance Sunday Singing

Spring Session of County Convention Held at The Courthouse

The spring session of the Chilton County Singing Convention, which was held at the courthouse in Clanton last Sunday, was probably the largest attended singing ever held in the county. And those who came here to sing and hear good singing were not disappointed. Chairman O. L. Devaughn kept the program going full sway from the time it began, at 10 o'clock, until the close, after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, with the exception of an hour given for dinner.

The committee on arrangements, appointed by the chairman, consisted of Jesse C. Jones, Prof. J. B. Hammonds, and Emmett Wilson.

Singers and plenty of listeners were here from every nook and corner of the county. They were here from several other places over the state and even from other states. Outstanding singers from off were: D. Keiffer Vaughan from Lawrenceburg, Tenn.; The Tennessee Quartet, the Harmony Ladies Quartet, from Birmingham; The Prattville Quartet, Prof. J. B. Hammonds from Wetumpka; Prof. P. B. Shaw from Brookside, Ala.; and others.

The Tennessee Quartet, which is also singing this week for the revival meeting downtown, was the feature attraction during the entire day. They sung several numbers both in the morning and afternoon, all of which were very inspirational from the standpoints of both spirit and artistic rendition. The numbers sung by the ladies were also received with much applause from the huge audience.

It is estimated that there were over 1,000 people at the gathering. About all of the parking space in a block every way from the courthouse was taken.

The regular session of the convention will be held next fall, very likely some time in September.

BERRY PICKERS TO GET ONE AND A HALF CENTS A QUART

Members of the Clanton Berry Growers Association through the recommendation of the Board of Directors, have agreed to pay a uniform price of one and a half cents a quart for picking strawberries this year. This information was given out Tuesday by L. E. Diefenderfer, business manager of the Clanton Association.

WILLIAM FRAY KILLED BY A TRUCK LAST FRIDAY MORNING

William Fray, young married man, about 25 years old, was instantly killed on the Montgomery Highway about 20 miles south of Clanton early last Friday morning, as he attempted to hop on a lumber truck.

Fray lived near where the accident occurred. It is said he hailed the truck, heavily loaded with lumber, for a ride to Prattville. The truck did not stop, and he tried to catch it. His hold failed and he fell under the truck. His body was severely mangled.

Reports say that the truck belonged to Bud Hawes and was driven by Earle Gray of Mt. Creek.

Fray is survived by his wfie and two children.

New Equipment At Wadesonian

"High Fidelity" Will Feature Opening Program With New Sound

Upon the installation of R.C.A. Victor Photophone equipment at a date in the near future, The Wadesonian Theatre, of Clanton, is planning to present to its patrons an exceptionally fine program of entertainment. The big feature of this opening program will be the presentation "High Fidelity," one of the most marvelous sound picture productions of all times. Date of this opening program will be announced in a few days.

Concerning the installation of new sound equipment, the management of the Wadesonian says: "Daily thousands of people are thrilled by the glorious sound reproductions in the great Roxy Theatre, in Radio City, New York. Now the patrons of the Wadesonian in Clanton will be privileged to listen to sound pictures just as thrilling, just as brilliant, just as realistic as those at Radio City.

"This new equipment for moving picture sound reproduction is the latest development of R.C.A. Victor photophone engineers, and is as great an improvement over the old type of talkies as they in turn were over the silent pictures.

"Come to the great gala opening then, prepared to hear a most astounding demonstration of what R.C.A. Victor phototone engineers have accomplished. It will be a great program centered around "High Fidelity." An evening of exceptional entertainment awaits you. Watch for the announcement of definite date when this new equipment will be ready for your approval.'

MUSICAL CONCERT AT COOPER ON FRIDAY NIGHT, MAY THE 11

What promises to be one of the most outstanding musical events of the season is the concert to be held at Chestnut Creek, Cooper, Friday night, May 11th, as the closing exercises of Prof. L. M. (Red) Harden's singing school, which he is now engaged in teaching at Shady Grove church on Mitchell Dam road. Prof. Harden has been teaching school at several places in the southern part of the county for the past two or three months, and he has given concerts at the close of each. He has put on some good ones, but according to his predictions the one to be at Cooper will be the best.

The program will consist of popular numbers, sacred and secular songs, quartets, trios, duets and solos. There will be visiting singers and quartets to entertain the visitors. The price of admission will be 10c and 15c.

The concert was moved from the place of the singing school on account of Chestnut Creek church being roomier and better lighted.

Must Keep Feed On The Farms

Regulations Prohibit Removal From Farm Where Grown On Rented Acres

County Agent, J. W. Fant, has made inquiry of the government relative to removal of feed stuffs from farms where grown on acres rented to the government. In response to the inquiry Mr. Fant has received the following information from Mr. C. H. Alvord, assistant to the chief of cotton production section of commidities division, Department of Agriculture:

"This is in reply to your letter of April 11, and we regret the necessity of advising you that it would be a violation of the cotton acreage reduction contract to permit any feed grown on rented acres to be removed from the farm on which it was grown, even though no rent was charged for the land in the production of same.

"Administrative rulings provide that all crops grown on rented acres must be consumed on the farm, and neither the feed nor any livestock produced from the feed grown on the rented acres can be sold or removed from the farm."

There Are Some Things Republicans Don't Want To Have A Voice In

(EDITORIAL)

Spokesmen for the Democratic Party in Chilton County lay much stress upon their appeal to Republicans to vote in the Democratic primary, in order that they (Republicans) may have a voice in Alabama political affairs. We do not consider this appeal as well founded nor very convincing to a citizen who will think for himself. Most of us already know what it means to have Democratic political promises offered to us in exchange for votes.

We wonder if it ever occurred to these Democratic spokesmen that the Republicans of Chilton County feel a just measure of pride in saying we have had no voice in and are not in any way responsible for the mess the Democratic party has made of Alabama's government in the past. We are, on the other hand, glad that we can say it was not by our votes that Democratic political ringmasters have been permitted to dominate our state, oppress our people, and distort the functions of our government. And, further, we do not have any fears that any considerable number of Republicans in Chilton County will consider joining a political party of the kind the Democratic leaders have shown us in Alabama. Republicans of Chilton County have dared to express their objections to Alabama Democratic political machine government, and will continue to do so.

We dare say there are Democrats by the thousands who feel in their hearts that the only sensible thing for them to do would be to denounce the perfidious leadership of their party in Alabama, refuse to follow the domination of the old crowd any further, and give their support to an opposition party that is free of politicians who hang as millstones about the necks of those who continue to tolerate the present Democratic party chieftains.

Democratic party government in Alabama stands already condemned by the words of its own standard bearers. Graves, McCord and Dixon, each and all would have you know that there is no safety for our State government in the hands of the other. Have you not heard them say so in the present campaign? We believe they tell you the truth, as it is a foregone conclusion that no one of these men will be able to break the shackles of his party and give Alabama the kind of business government we need. No matter who of the three is elected governor, the Democratic political ringmasters in Alabama will continue to crack the whip that has controlled and dictated our doom for the last generation.

Not alone as to Governor, but other State offices and departments as well, the Democratic political machine in Alabama is a stifling, strangling, and extravagant subterfuge of professional tricksters who play chess with those who vote the Democratic ticket, while the voters try to make themselves believe they have a voice in Alabama's governmental affairs.

Yes, if you vote the Democratic ticket, you will have a voice in State affairs; but it will be a voice sounded weakly in support of the most inefficient, inconsiderate, extravagant, and adominable ring domination that can be found in this country's annals. It will be a voice mingled with thousands of others, most of whom know that their voices are not heard and recognized by the dictators who heed not the wishes and welfare of the people, but suppress the public interest and follow only their own selfish designs and purposes. Republicans of Chilton County do not desire a voice in such political affairs. We choose rather to maintain our position of open, positive, public protest against such a system.

They tell us Republican votes are wasted. There are far more Democratic votes wasted than Republicans. It appears that, for many years, all Democratic votes have been wasted, so far as their effectiveness in bringing about a reform in government in Alabama is concerned.

If you want a comparison between Democrats and Republicans, compare your own county with the majority of other counties in Alabama, or with your state government. Chilton County has been managed by Republican officials for a long time. Our county is referred to as one of the best governed counties in Alabama, even by the Democrats. If the Republicans had made such a mess of Chilton County as the Democrats have of Alabama, we would not have the heart to ask anybody to support the Republican party. We would think it the sensible thing to quit it instead of join it. And frankly, that is the way we feel about the Democratic party in Alabama.

The only sure way to bring the Democratic party in Alabama to serve the people is for the voters of every county in the State to exercise such independence and fortitude as has been shown by the Republicans of Chilton County, and give their denunciation to Democratic mismanagement by voting with the opposition party out and out. You can never make the political sinners of the Democratic party repent and turn from their wicked ways by continuing to vote for and with them.

Many young voters of Chilton County this year will choose their political affiliation for the first time. The Republican party believes it is sound, reasonable and proper for these young people to cast their lot with the Republican party. By so doing you will be aligned with the people who guarantee good government in your home county; and you will be expressing a proper and deserved disapproval of the way the Democrats have misgoverned our state for many years.

The Republican party is not dead. Its glorious principles of patriotism and sound Americanism still live and move in the body politic of our nation. Instead of losing itself in the conglomerate isms and scisms of the present day, the Republican party stands guard boldly and fearlessly, and will emerge in future days revealed as the anchor that will hold us to the soundest and most enduring truths of Americanism.

Thanks for the invitation. The Republicans of Chilton County will stay by their own party. We will nominate good men to fill our own offices and elect them in November. Then we will keep right on with the business of running our county affairs in a respectable manner. We can not lend our endorsement to the Democratic party of Alabama.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Jones and children of Florence visited relatives here last week.

WARNING ABOUT UNFAIR ELECTION

Issued by J. N. Dennis, Chairman of the Republican Executive Committee

As your elected chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County I wish to sound this caution to all candidates and workers in the coming primary elections against any word or action that would appear unfair or illegal during the closing days of the campaign, as the people of our county believe in fair play and will not support any candidate in the general election who might receive his nomination in an unfair way by the use of money illegally or by any other manner of fraud, mud slinging or misrepresentation.

I wish to commend the Union-Banner for their stand for fairness and against mud slinging in this campaign and believe that they will continue same.

Every voter is guaranteed a secret ballot under our laws and will be protected accordingly as long as I am chairman of your executive committee.

Trusting that each candidate will give their full cooperation and support of a clean, fair and impartial election that will have the united support of our party and the respect of all good citizens, I am, Yours very truly, J. N. Dennis, Chairman Republican Executive Committee of Chilton County.

The principal address will be delivered by Princess Cantacuzene, granddaughter of President U. S. Grant, and chairman of the National Defense Committee of the American Legion Auxiliary.

General George V. Moseley, commander of the Fourth Corps Area will be the featured speaker on National Defense. Others who have accepted invitations to assist in the conference are: Lt. Col. J. F. Curry, Commandant, Maxwell Field; Richard T. Rives and Dr. B. F. Austin, Montgomery; Commander W. A. Abramson, the American Legion, Florence; Mrs. C. L. Salter, Talladega, department president, American Legion Auxiliary; Col. A. M. Shipp, U. S. Army, Senior Instructor the Alabama National and Col. Hartley Moon, A. N. C., the Adjutant General of Alabama.

A luncheon will be served in the Jefferson Davis Hotel at one o'clock at which time addresses, music and entertainment will be featured.

All residents of Alabama interested in the necessity of an adequate National Defense are cordially invited to attend the conference.

AKINS I. COLLINS

Candidate for Tax Assessor of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republilan Primary of May the First, 1934

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am making an earnest effort to see every Republican voter in each beat of the county, but, as you know, this is almost impossible and if I should fail to see you or your friend, I hope you will understand my intentions and realize that I want your vote and will ever appreciate your endorsement.

Now, voters, I appreciate the term you have just given me as assessor and if you think that I have given the right kind of service, which is only my duty, I will appreciate a second term.

If honored by re-election, I pledge to you the same honest and efficient service as heretofore.

If the majority of the people think best to elect my opponent I will be satisfied and do all I can to put the ticket over in the general election.

Thanking you for your many encouraging expressions, I am, yours for the success of the Republican party.

AKINS. I. COLLINS.

(Political Adv., by Akins I. Collins, Thorsby, Ala.)

W. L. SANDERS MAKES HIS FINAL APPEAL TO VOTERS

Since the primary of May the first is just ahead and on account of sickness and being busy it will be impossible for me to see every voter before the election. I want every voter to take this letter to be personal, and feel assured that your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated.

I wish to thank my friends throughout the county for the encouragement you have given me. There are a few things I will mention just here that I expect to advocate and support if elected to the Legislature.

In answer to the questionnaire put out by the teachers association regarding the schools, I wish to say that education is a primary function of the state and should be maintained. I feel that schools are more important than that of building highways, and if either of the two departments must suffer, let it be the highway department.

Alabama should furnish a minimum term of seven months free school.

The law for collecting incidental fees should be abolished and an appropriation made for this purpose.

Since there are free text books in many other states, Alabama should be able to do the same.

An efficient and economical school system should be set up and maintained, and if elected to the legislature, I shall use my vote and influence to that end.

The question of taxation seems to have been very popular in the legislature for the past twenty years or more. It wasn't a question of how they could reduce taxes, but how they could assess new taxes. Some have the idea that the state is not making any progress unless it is continually increasing its revenue.

I favor an equal distribution of the tax burden and the elimination of all unnecessary taxes. The convict department is costing the taxpayers too much money and at the same time are working in competition with the laboring class. Convicts should be used to build highways, public roads and render every service possible that is now being done by taxation.

The tax collectors and tax assessors in the State of Alabama, under the fee system, draw from the taxpayers each year from a thousand and seventy-five dollars in Blount County to forty-six thousand in Mobile. There are many other officials that draw too much money for the service they render. This kind of extravagance is the cause of our taxes being so high. I favor placing the officials on a reasonable salary.

If elected to the legislature I shall consider myself a servant of the people, and shall do my best to carry out the wishes of the people. My record as a citizen and as an official are open to the public. Since I have been serving on the board of education I have tried to get a dollar's worth of service for each dollar we spent. I have tried to throw no special favors to anyone but have served all alike. I have been open on all questions of interest to the public and expect to as long as I serve the public.

On my past record and the things I expect to try to do in the future, I'm asking for your consideration, assuring every voter (man or woman) my appreciation for your support and influence.

Yours truly,
W. L. SANDERS.

Sergeant—Did you shave this morning, Jones?.

Recruit—Yes, Sergeant.

Sergeant—Well, next time stand a bit closer to the razor.

CHRIST'S STANDARD OF GREATNESS

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:17-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many.—Matt. 20:28.
PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Become Great.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Become Great.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Who Are Truly Great?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Greatness Through Self-Denying Service.

I. The King Foretells His Death and Resurrection (vv. 17-19).

1. On the way to Jerusalem (v. 17). This was his last journey to the beloved city. He took the twelve disciples aside from the traveling pilgrims to make known unto them what was before them.

2. The betrayal and death foretold (vv. 18, 19). He thus went forward fully conscious of the awful tragedy of the cross. This is the third time since the transfiguration that he told the disciples of his suffering and death, but they were so filled with their ambitious schemes that they did not understand him. The treachery of Judas, the fierce persecutions of the chief priests and scribes, the unjust judgment, the delivery to Pilate, the mockery, the scourging, the crown of thorns, the cross, the hanging between two malefactors, the nails, the spear—all were spread before his mind like a picture. Though he knew all this he pressed on, not of necessity but deliberately. The joyous outlook of the victory which would be accomplished by the shedding of his blood led him forward.

3. The resurrection foretold (v. 19). The revelation of the cross would have been a dark picture had not the resurrection been made known. The resurrection life is always seen as the issue of the cross. The blessedness of the life beyond this "vale of tears" should induce us to press on. Christ is the example (Heb. 12:2).

II. The Ambitious Request of James and John (vv. 20-23).

1. The request (vv. 20, 21). This request was made by their mother. It was for a place of prominence in the kingdom. This is not the last mother whom children have used to carry out that which they are ashamed to do themselves. It is not wrong for mothers to be ambitious for their boys, but they should know that life's pinnacles are exceedingly dangerous. It is most desirous that parents should get places for their children near to Jesus, but the vain ambition of the world should not occupy their minds.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 22, 23). He spoke directly to the men, not to their mother, declaring that they knew not what they were asking. He showed them that the way to this position of glory was through suffering. The cup which they were to drink was of great pain and agony. The way to the places of glory in the kingdom of Christ is through the path of lowly and self-forgetful service.

III. How to Be Truly Exalted (vv. 24-28).

1. The angry disciples (v. 24). When the ten heard of the request of James and John they were filled with indignation against them. Their displeasure did not arise from the fact that they were free from the same selfish spirit, bnt that these two had crowded to the front.

2. Greatness among the heathen (v. 25). The rule of the world has always been by the strong hand. The standard has not been moral excellence but position and power. Even today the reason one nation rules another is that the one possesses heavier artillery than the other.

3. Greatness among Christ's disciples (vv. 26, 27). The standard here is a sharp contrast. The way to the place of prominence in Christ's kingdom is the way of self-abasement. To give is greater than to receive. The way up is down. To be serving some one is much better than being served. It is not wrong to be ambitious to be great but the basis of true greatness is that which human selfishness seeks to avoid. There will be degrees of rank in Christ's kingdom, but this rank will be character, not position or authority. The spirit of Christ substitutes the "greatness of love for the love of greatness."

4. Christ is the supreme example of greatness (v. 28). All who will be great should study and imitate Christ. Let us bear in mind that true greatness expresses itself in service to others, even to the giving of our lives. This will eliminate all our scrambling for place and power. The one grand test by which to know whether Christ's spirit controls one is whether he is serving others or seeking to be served.

We, Too, Can Forgive

In the power of his fellowship we cease to be contemptible. By the heart of his great love for us we can be warmed into the love for our poor brethren. In the might of his forgiveness we, too, can forgive.

Not Wholly Lost

"Up and be doing," is the word that comes from God for each of us. Leave some "good work" behind you that shall not be wholly lost when you have passed away.

"What are you taking for your dyspepsia?"

"Make me an offer."

ENDORSES W. L. SANDERS

As the election is drawing near and the voters are considering the various candidates, I wish to say a few words in regard to the race for representative. Mr. W. L. Sanders, an outstanding citizen of our community, also a member of the school board of education, is asking to represent Chilton County in the next legislature of Alabama.

I heartily endorse the recommendation given him by his community in last week's paper. There are a few things I would like to mention about his services since he became an official.

First, I must say that I have heard no criticism as to Mr. Sanders's service on the school board and this kind of a record speaks for itself. He has at all times seemed to be a servant of the people, and has endeavored to give the people what they wanted as far as he was able. When a candidate for member of the school board he advocated the election of county superintendent by popular vote, and had it not been for his services, the people of Chilton County would not have been permitted to cast their ballot for a superintendent in the last or coming election.

Mr. Sanders has not only worked for the interest of the child, but has been for the interest of the public in general. I recall the relief plan he inaugurated in this community which later covered the county. You remember this plan was to give food in exchange for work. Under this plan many received aid that would have otherwise gone in need.

Many of you taxpayers recall the mass meeting Mr. Sanders called, in which he called on the Commissioners Court to work the pepole on the public roads to enable them to pay their taxes. He also asked the court to help keep the schools open, as the state had failed to meet its obligation.

In view of his services as a citizen and an official I feel that he is due careful consideration by the voters of Chilton County. My personal knowledge of his character and ability to serve in the capacity for which he is asking causes me to make this appeal. I feel that your vote and influence in his behalf will not be regretted.—G. C. JONES.

H. A. HARRIS MAKES APPEAL TO THE REPUBLICAN VOTERS

Republican Voters:

I am making this my last appeal to you for your vote and influence in my behalf for Circuit Clerk on next Tuesday. I have not and will not be able to see all of you in person as I had hoped and intended to, but I want to assure you that I will appreciate your every effort ni my behalf.

I am making this race solely on my own merits and record; therefore, I ask that you investigate and if you think me worthy of your trust and confidence, then I will greatly appreciate your help and also that of your friends and neighbors whom you may be able to see for me, and I again promise to give you the very best service possible for me to render, and kind and courteous treatment—a square deal to all. Public office is public trust and if you honor me with your vote, I assure you that I will not betray that trust.

In conclusion I want to urge and insist that each and all Republican voters go to the polls on next Tuesday, May 1st, and vote for the man of your choice for each office to be voted for and then all line up behind the men selected and elect them in November. Your choice shall be my choice. Once more asking for your vote and influence, I am yours for a square deal.

Respectfully,
H. A. HARRIS.

Dr. Goldner, expert registered optometrist from Brackin's will be at office next door to Dr. Hayes in the Exchange Hotel Building in Clanton, Monday, April 30th, 1934, hours 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. and on Monday once every four weeks thereafter. Twenty-five years practical experience.

"Now, children," said the teacher who was trying to boost the sale of the class photograhps, "just think how you'll enjoy looking at this photograph when you grow up. As you look you'll say to yourself, "There's Jeannie, she's a nurse; there's Tom, he's a judge, and—"

"And there's teacher, she's dead," came a voice from the back of the class.

The teacher was giving the youngsters a mental drill. "Now, Bobby, tell me which month has twenty-eight days in it."

Bobby had forgotten. After a moment he had the answer. "They all have."

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child. ONE of the mysteries of life is how much care a man will take of thoroughbred animals—noting when they are "off"... and toning them back to the "pink of condition" to increase their usefulness... yet will shamefully neglect his own run-down condition.

But human beings are more important than animals. Yet some people just hope when "run-down" that they will "come around."

D. S. ROBINSON WRITES VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I take this means of recalling your minds to the fact that I am a candidate, asking that I may become a member of the Board of Education of Chilton County, by you casting your vote for me.

Now, voters, I will appreciate your vote and influence if you think I am the man for the place. If elected, I will do what the people want done, so far as the law will allow me, if not overruled by majority in board session. I believe the board ought to do the will of the people as servants ought to for those who have children to be provided for by the school board, and economize with the money provided for this purpose, not at the expense of the children's mind upbuilding, for children should have all necessary equipment to give them the necessary mind grasp.

Friends, I taught school ten years, nine of them in my home community, and one year four miles from where I lived, two and a half miles from where I was raised. I have helped raise and send to school 18 children; some of them have taught school, others are graduates from the high school and in some other business, and some of them are yet attending school. I feel that from experience I am qualified to serve my people in county school work. It would be a pleasure to me to help advance the cause of education in Chilton County.

A few words to the teachers of this county. I do not deem it necessary to call each item or question asked by your assembly. I am in line with every effort to carry the schools full term to make full grades for the children. I believe teachers should be paid reasonable salaries, and let them be paid—not just promised. Our children, our teachers, our money, and the money appropriated for this purpose should be applied that way and no other.

I have always voted with my Republican friends and will continue to do so if I am your choice, and if some other one is the choice of the majority then he is the man I will support in the general election to follow the primaries of May and June.—Respectfully yours, for better school work for the children, D. S. Robinson.

REV. J. W. HOWELL

On April 7th, just as the sun was sinking behind the western horizon the spirit of J. W. Howell winged its flight to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns.

Brother Howell, as he was commonly known, was born near Tallassee in Tallapoosa County, Alabama on the 18th day of August, 1854. At the age of thirteen he united with the Primitive Baptist church. At the age of twenty he was married to Miss Nicy Ann Sayers and to this union were born four children, Melissa L., Joel Abel, Nicy Matilda and Mary K. Mary K. died September, 1909.

On account of church records having been destroyed, it is impossible to give exact date, but about 1890 he was ordained to preach by Swamp Creek church in Coosa County.

In April, 1893 he lost his first wife. Later he moved over into Chilton County and on November, 4, 1900 was married to Mrs. Sarah E. Kicker, a widow who had one child, Minnie, who is now Mrs. O. H. Driver, of Verbena, Alabama. This marriage ceremony was solemnized by Rev. J. W. Nobles. To this union were born two children, Claudie Sayers, who died in May, 1902, and Laura E., who is now Mrs. W. E. Burkhalter.

In January, 1915, Brother Howell with twelve others, organized Zions Rest Church, where he preached for 17 years, until October, 1932.

He served as moderator for thirty-six years consecutively, never missing a single meeting. On account of his age and physical infirmity he was relieved of the moderatorship at the meeting of the Association in 1933.

It was pleasure of the writer to meet Brother Howell almost every day. He was a blessing and a benediction to me always.

Truly a good man has gone to his reward, and he can say with Paul the words he wrote to Timothy in II Timothy, 4:7-8.

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out ot this bereaved family and especially do we pray God's richest blessings on the dear widow who is left alone. "May the Lord bless and keep her," John 14:1.

Brother Howell is survived by his widow, Sarah E. Howell, three daughters, Mrs. Melissa Memstock, of Franklin, New Hampshire; Mrs. W. E. Holcombe of Columbiana and Mrs. Wm. E. Burkhalter, Verbena, Ala., and one son, Elder J. A. Howell of Deatsville.

Interment was at Swamp Creek church on April 9th, 1934. Spigener was in charge.

ENDORSES J. E. COBB

Editor Union-Banner:

Please permit me to say a few words through your paper, as the time is drawing near for the primary. No doubt many people are trying to settle their minds in regard to the question of who will be the best qualified and most competent man to lead the Republican forces in the great fight to defend our party in the general election to be held in November.

As a citizen of Beat 13 I would like to say a few words to the voters of Chilton County in regard to the commissioner's office of the first district. We have had many solicitations from the various Beats of the county relative to the question of whom the people of this beat want for our commissioner for this district. We appreciate the attitude shown us from other parts of the county. Therefore I use this means to express my endorsement of our present commissioner, Mr. Joseph E. Cobb. I don't feel like the people of Chilton County could go wrong to elect Mr. Cobb for another term. He has always been a trustworthy, honest and upright man in dealing with the public, always having at heart the welfare of the people at large.

It is an undisputed fact that Mr. Cobb is a good business man, and has a broad knowledge on the question of road building. Anyone passing through our section of the county couldn't overlook the great improvements made on our roads and bridges in the last four years. I have lived in this beat 30 years and can say that the roads in this beat are much better than I have ever known them to be.

In conclusion I do not hesitate in endorsing Mr. Cobb for re-election as commissioner for another term. If the people will investigate his past record as commissioner and a business man, and give him careful consideration, I feel sure you will never regret having voted for him.—Respectfully, J. D. Harrell.

V. T. COBB WRITES TO VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

As it will not be possible for me to see everyone before May 1, I take this means of making an appeal to you in my behalf. Please consider this as a personal appeal to all. After due consideration, if you feel that you can give me your support, it will be heartily appreciated. Should I be elected to this office, I promise you a conscientious, faithful and impartial discharge of the duties of the Sheriff's office. If I am defeated in the primary, your choice will be mine. Respectfully yours,—V. T. COBB.

W. H. CONWAY PUTS HIS IDEAS BEFORE PEOPLE OF COUNTY

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I am taking this opportunity to let the people of Chilton County know what I favor, as I can't get over the county to see every voter. I really wouldn't make any promises except to do the very best I can for the people of the county. I would favor doing more permanent work in the county and less temporary work. In building bridges I would favor building steel bridges and flooring with concrete, flooring our old steel bridges with concrete as the timber is gone. I would favor more gravel on roads and less scraping as you can't make a permanent dirt road. I would favor giving all the people some work in the place of a few continually, and it distributed over the whole county. I would favor reducing taxes by reducing the prices of the property and would ask the people of the county to fill out blanks and deposit with the commissioners court and have property reduced this year. This county, in my judgment, can be run on half the taxes that we are collecting.

I know that the farmers have had to cut their expenses half and the county can do the same thing and get along as well as the farmers. I favor spending our money to the best advantage for something that will be permanent and keep out of debt. I favored getting the first $50,000 from the government, as I saw it was a gift. When the Commissioners hesitated before they made their application for this money I went to them in person and got them to agree to make application for the money, if a majority of the people in the county would vote in favor of it. I had nothing to do with the way the money was spent. I am still in favor of helping the poor and trying to get them on their feet but I don't think we ought to waste it or give it to the folks that have plenty. I wouldn't be in favor of spending county tax money unless I knew exactly how and where it was going to be used.

I find in my travels around that the only objection I hear to my becoming commissioner is my age. Now if it had been a pick and shovel job I wouldn't have asked for it but the job that I am asking for I think I am capable of attending. I can drive my car all day long, and I believe my judgment is as good as it ever was.

I would like to see our county back in the condition that it was when I went out before. I left it out of debt with $10,000 in the treasury and only forty cents on the hundred for county taxes, and we really did more permanent work the eight years that I served as commissioner than has been done in the last twenty-four years, and five or six times the amount of tax money being collected now.

If what I favor meets with your approval I would appreciate your vote and influence in the primary on May 1.—Yours for success, W. H. Conway.

ENDORSES MR. J. Z. MIMS

Dear Editor:

Please allow me a small space in your paper in regard to Mr. J. Z. Mims. He is one of whom I am ecquainted with, and have learned to like because of his disposition. I find him to be a good man, with the desire to do the right thing. He is one who is fair with his fellowman and is ready to help always in time of need. You will find him the same, when you meet him.

I am sure you all know Mr. Mims. He is a candidate at the present time for probate judge. We know that he is a man capable of the office. He has just served twelve years as clerk of the county and has proved successful. I feel that he has done the best he could. I am sure you will agree with me.

Now as Mr. Mims is asking for a higher position, it is our duty as voters of Chilton County to go to the polls on May first and cast our vote for him. You will not regret it and I am sure he is the one we need in the office.—L. H. Nabors, Jemison, Ala.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT EARLE THOMAS FOR SENATOR

I have know Mr. Thomas several years. I was under his supervision in school every school day for five years. I think I personally know him. I would like to see him placed in a position to do us more good than a school teacher. Mr. Thomas is the only candidate for senator that is teaching school. He chose teaching for his vocation because he was interested in schools and their progress. He has had several years experience in teaching and knows the needs of the schools. He also knows the loss and sacrifice people have to make to keep their children in school. He is a splendid teacher but I feel sure that he will do us more good as senator, for he lives on the farm and knows the difficulties of farm life, and as senator he can help with all schools.

Chilton County should feel proud of having a man like Mr. Thomas to offer the senate. Mr. Thomas is young, his health is good, he has a broad, clear mind, and I feel like we will be badly hurt if he isn't elected.

This election is for the betterment of the country. The very best men should be elected—the men that will do you and the country the most good. If you know Mr. Thomas as I do, I feel sure he will be our senator. He is busy with school work and has not the time to talk with every voter personally, but I don't think you will regret it if you vote for him. He never fails to greet you with a smile, and a working man never gets too ragged or dirty for him to help. Think deeply before you vote, people. Let's elect the right man and vote for Earle Thomas.—H. E. Oden.

WARMER WEATHER EXACTS TOLL OF TIRE FAILURES

With warm weather driving demands ready to take their toll of tire failures, wise motorists will shortly be asking themselves this question, —will my tires be able to 'take it" this summer?

Increased motor traffic will be constant on the highways this year, due to many more cars being put back into service in addition to a large number of new automobiles recently purchased. So the motorist who has tire trouble on the road will be in a tough spot, is the belief of Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer, local Goodyear dealer.

"After everything has been said on the subject of tires and tire construction," continued Mr. Diefenderfer, "the fact that most tires have heat-resisting rubber compounds and probably tougher treads—it still remains that only one brand of tire has blowout protection which lasts beyond the newness of the tire. And that's a Goodyear, because of its super twist cord construction which continues to retain tensile strength long after the ability to stretch and come back to normal has left ordinary cords.

"Interesting tests recently made on tires at the Goodyear laboratories in Akron show that after being run 8,000 miles the supertwist cords showed 93 per cent of their tensile strength as against 82 per cent for ordinary cords and that at 16,000 miles the supertwist retained 81 per cent of its strength while the ordinary cord had slumped to 36 per cent.

"In other words," declared Mr. Diefenderfer, "the Goodyear tire has the ability to 'take it' and then some; and with more and faster driving than in years past, the car equipped with them will get the best mileagle."

ENDORSES GROVER A. BICE

To the voters of Chilton County:

I want to say a few words in behalf of Grover Bice, candidate for circuit clerk. I have known him for several years, and while he was our postmaster he was always courteous and willing to help or accommodate any way he could. He knows you every time he sees you, and is a poor man's friend. He treats all alike, rich or poor, for I've seen him as courteous to a poor man as he was to the wealthy.

"Greater love hath no man than he lay down his life for his friend," so says the Bible. Mr. Bice offered his all for his country during the World War. He and four brothers were active in overseas service so that his country might be saved. He fought for us here then and I am sure if he is elected he will do so again in any fair way to benefit his country. I especially appeal to the women voters who had loved ones in the war to give him your vote. You'll never regret any thing you do in his behalf.—Mrs. Hester Ann Merchant.

THORSBY BUSINESS MEN Endorse

GROVER A. BICE

Candidate for Circuit Clerk of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of The Republican Primary of May the First, 1934

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I herewith submit an endorsement and recommendation of the business men of Thorsby, to show you what the men I came in contact with and served every day for several years think of me as a citizen and a public officer. I appreciate the courtesy you have shown me and I found you always willing to stop your work and listen to me while appealing to you for your vote. If nominated and elected I expect to show you courtesy and give you service which you have a right to expect.

We, the undersigned business men of Thorsby, endorse and recommend Grover A. Bice as being of honest, Christian character, competent and deserving in every way of the vote and confidence of the people of Chilton County. Mr. Bice served us faithfully as our postmaster. His past record proves him fully qualified to fill the office of Circuit Clerk of Chilton County:

UNIVERSITY NEWS

As the years pass, the American people are becoming more and more willing to "stick to their bargains," says Roland M. Harper, statistician connected with the Alabama Geological Survey at the University of Alabama.

Dr. Harper, who has been making a study of marriage and divorce in this country, says that the increasing number of divorces is due to this weakness in our people which is becoming more and more pronounced.

Further evidence of this failing is revealed in the increased number of articles of labor strikes now in progress as well as those threatened.

"Industrial laborers agree to work for a set sum of money," Dr. Harper points out. "They know exactly how much to expect from their employers, but after a few months or so their childishness gets the better of them, they demand an increase in wages or they strike. It seems to me that there is a certain lack of sportsmanship on the part of those who have 'made a deal' but refuse to abide by it."

The statistician says that the number of divorces per hundred marriages in the United States has almost doubled during the last twenty years. In 1910 there were 8.8 divorces for every 100 marriages; in 1930 there were 17 for every 100 marriages.

"Here again is a case of failure to stick to the bargain. A couple will agree to live together until death does them part. After a while, however, they detect faults in one another and are ready to 'call it quits.' A generation or so ago people stayed married more than they do now. Moreover, there were fewer labor strikes.

"Then there are people who are crying to heaven to abolish toll-bridges. These bridges were constructed to save time in travel and to replace unsafe ferries. The people make agreements with the state or with private corporations to pay toll if a good bridge is constructed. After a few years they tire of this form of taxation and demand free bridges. But the bridges must be paid for, whether the people hold to their bargain or not.

SINGING AT ANTOCH POSTPONED

We wish to announce in your paper that we have decided to postpone the all day singing at Antioch church the fifth Sunday in April on account of sickness. We do not know at this time when the singing will be but will announce the time later. Everyone is invited to come and bring a full basket and help sing when we do have the singing. On account of the measles in this community, we decided to defer it for a while.—J. S. Johnson, pastor.

Albert Keller

The legions of friends in Cullman County of Albert Keller, who has been for the past thirteen years superintendent of education of Covington County, and now the outstanding candidate for state superintendent, were more pleased to receive a short visit from him first of the week, on one of his shorts visits to the many counties of Alabama, and while here he only had a short time to spend with a few of his thousands of friends and supporters in the old home county. We believe we will not be far from a correct guess in saying that Cullman County people will give him practically a unanimous vote.

Mr. Keller was born and reared on a Cullman County farm, worked his way through high school and college, taught school, later elected superintendent of education of Cullman County for three years, resigning to accept the position of superintendent of education in Covington County, and from what we know of the outstanding educational work of Albert Keller in behalf of the boys and girls of Alabama, we believe him to be the best fitted man in Alabama for state superintendent. His real worth in educational work has been recognized by educators of Alabama many times. He was honored in 1926 by being named president of the state association of county superintendents and was president of the Alabama Education Association in 1932-33 and is now a member of two important committees of the national education association.

Under the head of "What I Will Do," his first pledge is one that should win the ballot of every voter: "Go into office free of political debts and bound by promises to no individual or group."—Cullman Tribune.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Administration leaders are confidently predicting that the bill to give the president the right to negotiate tariff and trade agreements between the United States and other nations, independent of congress, will be passed in the present session of congress. There may be limiting clauses as to the length of time the presidential power will be in effect but, it is claimed that the bill is sure to pass.

A great many observers are stating that this will be another victory for the president. It will undoubtedly be another indication of the hold he has on congress. Our national legislative body is very jealous of its rights, and would not give such broad powers to the president under ordinary circumstances. The legislation, if and when it comes, will certainly be evidence of the grip which the president has enjoyed, since elevation to office, on our national legislative body.

But whether the power so granted will be a good thing for the president, politically, remains to be seen. A seasoned Washington political observer, one who has been in the national capitol for years, and is a personal admirer of the president, though not a Democrat, expressed to the writer of this article the other day the opinion that the president was making a political mistake in asking for this broad tariff revisionary power from congress. His theory was that it would be difficult for the president to make tariff agreements with foreign nations without lowering our tariffs on some commodities to the point where some of our American industries would suffer.

"Even in so doing," he said, "the president succeeds in increasing the export of certain of our commodities, the injury done to a local industry will far outweigh in its political effect any good done to another industry. In politics it is the fellow who gets hurt that remembers. The man who may be benefitted, conceding that any considerable number will benefit, is apt to turn his attention to something else, but the man who is injured will make a noise that can be heard all over the lot. If I were the president and congress passed a law conferring upon me broad tariff powers which might affect many American industries, as a matter of political expediency, I would veto the bill." This is, of course, only one man's opinion. Others may say that tariff negotiations can be carried on without injuring American industry. That remains to be seen. The political effects will weigh according to results.

For example: the transcript from a Ways and Means Committee hearing in congress, on the question of tariff agreements, quotes Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as stating: "I can conceive of a situation where Germany, for instance, might be willing to lower the tariff on lard in case, we will say, she could move some toys into the United States."

To this statement, Mr. Reed of New York is quoted as replying by question: "Would you favor lowering the tariff on things Germany produces and ships to this country and which we produce here in our own country.'

Mr. Wallace is then quoted as replying: 'If Germany can produce them more efficiently than we can, it would be of benefit to our consumers. Germany has a large number of small industries. They seem to be more efficient than our own. They are willing to sell at lower prices."

One can imagine the enthusiasm with which such a proposal will be greeted by the American toy industry.

Individualism - Collectivism

Are we to have individualism or collectivism? These two systems of ecnomic control, which have been battling each other for centuries, are now staging a contest for supremacy in the United States, according to Charles Henry McVey, who writes in an interesting manner on the subject in the current issue of the National Republic magazine. Mr. McVey says in part:

"Great social movements seldom come out in the open with a complete outline of their entire plan of campaign. Rather, they are content with advancing their ideas by indirection and gradually assuming power, put their plan into operation without going to the trouble of explaining to the general public just what it is they propose to do. This is all the more true when they sense that there would be active resistance to the program were he general public to understand just what it is that is being done.

"Underlying the entire present day unrest is a real conflict between the two ancient enemies who have contended for mastery through many centuries, and which resulted in some of the most famous struggles that are recorded in the pages of history. Individualism versus collectivism is not a new struggle, it has raged down the entire highway of progress. Today, under a new setting, we have again advanced ideas that were old when the Greek first encountered the civilization of ancient Persia and the pride of the Orient went down before the savage individualists of Hellenic culture.

"The advocates of collectivism would not have it so, but state solemnly that they are giving the world a new idea that will, if followed, bring about a millennium where there will be no more sorrow and where all will be well with a troubled world. But when we analyze their proposed remedy, we find it to be just the same old idea of collectivism brought up to date with a new garb to make it seem different from the old brand. Collectivism means 'the suppression of individuals to the state' with the state acting as the controlling factor in all the varied activities of life. This form of social life is the oldest form of organization known to man and more than likely it antedates all known history.

"Man and all that he had belonged to his clan and then, with the further development of social life he and his were subordinated to the tribe. With still higher ideas of social life, man was subject to the state. It was about this time that the idea of state control was first given form as a social philosophy, the theory that a man was born to benefit the state and that man, as an individual had only such rights as the state chose to give him. This idea of social organization reached its greatest height simultaneously with absolutism in government. It is true that this conception was challenged from time to time and it resulted in wars and strife which were carried on through centuries.

"Under the idea of state control, we find a Louis declaring 'The State! I am the State!' Then as though to challenge that arrogant statement, came the rise of the new spirit of democracy which began its first feeble steps in the beginning of the Reformation and reached its manhood in the rise of the Puritan movement in England when bold commoners dared to check, and finally crushed abolutism in that country, which has perhaps rightly been called the 'Mother of Freedom.'

"Individualism found its inception in the teaching of Christ, who with unequalled boldness cried: "Call no man master, for one alone is your master, even God, and all ye are brothers.' But the Christian idea had a long and weary journey before it was the accepted thought of what was to become a new age. Over and over again men fought bitterly for what they called freedom and were crushed by the might and power of a feudual state, but the idea of the right of the individual to freedom and to enjoy the fruits of his own toil would not die, though men died by the thousands to make good that claim.

"We, who have lived under a government which, with all its faults, has in the main protected a man in the enjoyment of the fruits of his own labor, know but little of the bitterness of living under conditions where the state was the sole director of human destiny and where the individual was completely submerged in the state until all sense of personality was lost and man became a thing, a chattel of little more value than a horse or beast of burden to be beaten or slain at the whim of a state which, after the fashion of states, at last becomes a man or a group of men clothed with limitless power."

Trustees of Tradition

The president of the University of Michigan told the D. A. R. chapters which met at Ann Harbor this week, that their organization may well be proud of its objective "so long as it keeps the nationalistics spirit in the right place in the frame of social interests and values."

The Daughters of the American Revolution are the trustees of a tradition. They are descended from the men and women who made the American people a free and independent nation. They would be untrue to their name if they did not resolutely resist every effort that is made to lessen our independence or our freedom of action, whether that effort springs from the "foreign influence" to which Washington conjured this country to be constantly awake or from the far more insidious wiles of our own internationalists.

A good many years ago James Russell Lowell wrote of the Europeans: "All without exception make no secret of regarding us as the goose bound to deliver them a golden egg in return for their cakle." As our capacity for producing golden eggs has increased, their cackle has multiplied in volume and insistence. The United States reeks with propaganda today aiming to tie up with one side or another in Europe, while they pick its pockets. Good neighborliness does not require that it do anything of the sort.

What this country needs is a rebirth of sane and virile nationalism, which, while according other nations a similar right, will look out for America first. The D. A. R. cannot protest too vigorously against the gelatinous internationalism and raucous pacifism of those 3.2 per cent Americans, who have a thought for every country but their own.—Detroit Free Press.

Some farm experts are advising the farmer to cut production and others are trying to teach him to make two ears of corn grow where one grew before. Which indicates to us that one half of the Department of Agriculture doesn't know what the other half is doing.

We would be more impressed with what Senator Brookhart says about the future of Russia if we didn't remember that a couple of years ago he said that prohibition was here to stay.

Jack's Record

This is the end of the first week of the major league baseball season, and as I promised some time ago, I am giving the record of Jack Hayes, White Sox second baseman, in the games played so far. I will give this record each week. Look for it, if you are interested in Jack and his progress. He had taken part in four games, through Sunday, and here is the record: Batting: 16 times at bat; 1 double, 4 singles, percentage of .313; 1 sacrifice; 4 runs scored; 1 run batted in. Fielding: 10 put-outs, 12 assists, total chances 22, no errors, percentage of 1.000; 1 double play.

Be Sure to Vote!

Remember, next Tuesday is the day of days—election day. There are many good men in the race this time, and it may be just a little hard to pick a choice, but it is our duty, as citizens, to go to the polls and make that choice. It is not merely a privilege, this voting business—it is a real duty to yourself, your fellow-man and your country. I believe Chilton County has the biggest list of qualified voters in its history. That is evidence that our people are waking up and taking a hand. But if you don't use your franchise, you are a dead weight on the others. The Democrats are expecting to go places and do things this year, and we Republicans should rally as never before to show them where to head in. If we can put the ki-bosh on them from snout to tail this year, it will put a crimp in their caps that will be hard to overcome. However, if our people play the slacker and stay away from the polls during this year's elections, and let the Demmies slip one over on us, what a Belshazzar's feast they will stage. The Democrats are begging Republicans to come to their aid. The Republicans are begging for nothing. All we want or need is for our people to stand by, true and steady, and we are not afraid of the result. And it is just as important that you vote in the primaries, too, to help nominate the candidates in our ranks who will give our opponents the strongest scrap. After all, what can a Republican hope to gain by going to the Democrats? What have they ever done for you upon which they can reasonably ask your support? Look about you. Observe the conditions in the affairs of your state and nation, then take a glance at the affairs of your own county. Compare the conditions of our state and county, and then abide by the knowledge gained by your comparison. After you have thought over the matter seriously, I believe you will agree that we have better cause to ask the Democrats to come to our methods, rather than that we go to theirs. But if they can't feel that way—if they just will not get the wool from over their eyes, then there is nothing that can be done about it. But there is one thing we Republicans CAN do. We can stand steadfast and fight to the last ditch, and I believe we will. Let's all go in there and do our bit during the primaries, and then, this summer we'll shell the Demmies off the map and follow it up this fall with the worst all-round defeat we have ever given them. Let's go!

How Nice!

Did you read that front page editorial in the Chilton County News last week? If not, you should have. The writer of that enlightening masterpiece would show us poor deluded Republicans the light. I suppose, just from reading the article, that this writer takes it for granted that none of us can read. I suppose, too, that he has an idea that we don't even know who we are voting for, nor what positions they are to fill. He presumes that we do not know that we are not voting in the governor's race, and other like state affairs. He would advise us along such lines. Thanks for the advice. How nice it is to have some enlightened fellow around to show us how things should be done, and how we should attend to our own business. I don't see how poor old Chilton County has managed to get along so many years without this Democratic advice. I reckon nearly all of us will wonder how we have managed, under Republican management, to lessen our county's indebtedness, while the great State of Alabama, under Democratic rule, goes further and further in debt. Strange, passing strange. It is a wonder this wise one of the News editorial force wouldn't pass some of his big ideas down around Goat Hill, where there is so much room for improvement. The writer of this editorial leaves the impression that he is sure it is mere ignorance that has caused us to vote under the elephant so long, but at the same time, it seems that all will be forgiven if we erring ones will only see the light now, and change our ways. If one will read between the lines a bit, though, this whole editorial boils down to something like this: "Come over into Macedonia and help us." It has been said, too, that "Where ignorance is bliss (and best) 'tis folly to be wise." Our county is in better shape than the state. Then, why change? The News is catching at straws—you know that one about "a drowning man will catch at a straw." Thanks for the advice, but we've seen enough—too much—of Democratic management of affairs, already.

Gag Rule

A few weeks ago a Gary, Indiana, school superintendent gave out the interesting information that certain members of the brain trust had plans to overthrow our government. It created such a furore that it was decided to make a senate investigation of Mr. Wirt's charges. Mr. Bulwinkle, the man in charge of the investigation, let it be known that he was "going to the bottom of this." Oh, how hot he was. He thought he had a chance to show up Mr. Wirt, believing that Wirt could not prove his charges. But when Mr. Wirt was put up, and pointed out the high and mighty Prof. Tugwell as one of the main schemers in the red plot, Mr. Bulwinkle and the rest of those Democrats had that investigation quashed like an egg-shell. They wouldn't stand for the truth. Prof. Tugwell, you know, is one of the brain trust, and has had much to do with the autocratic manner in which this country had been managed during the past year. He is one of the "powers behind the throne." He is one of the fellows who tell farmers they can plant so many acre sof cotton; he says what you can sell, tells you how much you can sell, and what you have to take for it. And, as such a high and mighty one, the Democrats are willing to shut their eyes to grave national danger in order to save their pet from suspicion of treason. But that is Democratic policy, to a nicety. Lacking in real worth while constructive ability, they are forced to draw on their showmanship. Facts have always been and always will be the natural foe of showmen. Facts always have and always will prove to be the undoing of showmen, whether those showmen be street fakirs or conspiring politicians. It is the age-old war between fact and fancy, in which facts have always won the battles, and always will.

David Daniel Easterling

David Daniel Easterling, carrier on Route 6, Clanton, was born about four miles east of Clanton, November 21, 1883. His school days were spent in schools in and around Clanton. He farmed until March 1, 1911, when he entered the postal service as carrier on Route 6, which he has held ever since. On October 8, 1904, he married Miss Kate Cox; they have six children, five of whom are living; these are Joseph E., and Clarence Easterling, Mrs. Glenn W. Moore, Mrs. Ruth Driver, and Miss Mildred Easterling. In my connection with the postal service as substitute carrier, I have had a chance to observe Mr. Easterling's work on his route; his patrons are all his friends. Mr. Easterling is another one of the carriers that have come on over from the old horse-and-buggy days. In fact, I suppose it could be said that he is the pioneer of motorized mail delivery at the local office. I can just remember when he bought a motorcycle along with P. M. (Mord) Mckee, and on pretty days he would go pop-popping around the loop. Those were the days when the rider had to trot the old bike down the road a ways until she cranked and then hop aboard and set sail. After some time he sold the motorcycle and decided to try an automobile, which were just coming into popular use at that time. He talked the matter over with W. J. Armstrong, and they bought a car each. Well do I remember that little old roadster of D. D.'s—I reckon it would look about like a punk-knot on a pine now, but it was the berries in those days. After this beginning, one after another of the carriers bought cars, until now, I expect the fellows have completely forgotten how to drive a horse. Well, there is only one way to judge a mail carrier—by the service he renders. Using this as a standard, and using the comments of the patrons of Route 6 as a measure, Mr. Easterling is a grand success at his job. His "folks" all like him fine, and that's what really matters after all. —Man in the Moon.

Not A Straw

Some politicians and newspapermen are seeking to get political significance from the results of the Illinois primary because the regular Democrats won the nominations and the total vote cast by Democrats in the primary was greater than that cast by the Republicans. They draw the conclusion from this that the Democrats will carry Illinois in the election this fall, and back up their assertion by calling attention to the fact that this was the first time in fifty years that the Democrats cast more primary votes in Illinois than the Republicans.

The Democrats may or may not carry Illinois in the fall elections. But the result of the primary gives little indication of what the result will be. The gain in the Democratic vote was due not so much to endorsement of the state and national administration as the fact that the Democrats unexpectedly caried Illinois in 1932 and feel that they have a chance to do it again. Usually primary elections in Illinois are perfunctory affairs so far as the Democrats are concerned. But with a victory in 1932 and the scent of victory in 1934 there is competition for Democratic nominations. Competition means more candidates and more candidates mean more votes. On the other hand, the Republicans had fewer competitive races, especially among congressional candidates, than usual. This means a lessening of interest in the Republican primary.

Take the district of Speaker Rainey for example. Rainey had opposition which was not serious but which stirred the Speaker's friends to make an extraordinary effort to get out the Democratic vote. The Republican candidate for congress was unopposed. And while regular Democrats won all over the state, the same was true of regular Republicans.

Illionis is not "in the bag" for the Democrats because of the primary. The result will depend on the popularity of the national and state administrations when the first of November rolls around. The primary is not a very reliable political straw.

Control of Schools

The fundamental purpose of the NRA is to spread employment and increase purchasing power; that is in the interest of the general public. Its secondary purpose is to establish "codes of fair competition" with the idea of removing or checking abuses or evils in each industry.

Probably many industries are acting in good faith in formulating and in operating under these industrial codes, but it is most unfortunate that some of them are charged with taking advantage of the situation for their own selfish interests.

A very good example of such a policy can be found, it is charged, in the proposed code of the text book publishing industry. Some of the provisions of this code (in so far as it extends beyond the fundamentals as to wages and hours) are said to indicate a very definite purpose on the part of some publishers to raise prices, to establish control of all the industry through a "governing board" and to endeavor to standardize in their own interest the different textbook laws of the various states, through a public "relations committee."

Certainly, if true, this is against the interests of the general public and not in keeping with the expressed objects of the New Deal. And this is a particularly unfortunate time for such an attempt, when the schools are just beginning to struggle back to more normal conditions and to replenish their textbook equipment which has, in the last two years, reached the lowest ebb. Is this another step toward the federal control of our schools, and curtailing the authority which each state has in its own educational system?

Th salary of Emperor Kang-teh of Manchukuo is $1,750,000 a year. A fair wage as things go, but Americans will naturally ask what bonus goes with it.

Both of our Democratic candidates for congress have had a fling at us now. Pete Jarman was here last week, speaking at the courthouse and other places in the county. Buck Oliver was here Monday and Tuesday, closing his visit with a speech at the courthouse Tuesday night. Interest in this race is very keen.

Lending Again

In the negotiations fo a new trade agreement with Cuba there is said to be under consideration a loan by the United States government to the Cuban government of ten million dollars, besides a credit in our new Export-Import bank of twenty-five to thirty million dollars to Cuban merchants for financing the purchase of commodities.

With all due regard to the administration's commendable intention to revive our foreign trade, Americans impressed by the present state of our previous foreign loans and credits will hear of these proposals with some disquiet. Recent events in Cuba have not disclosed Cuban conditions as very reliable as a basis of credit even though they are at the moment not in violent explosion. It may be possible that the ten million dollar government loan is fulfillment of an inducement to Cuba to bring her internal affairs to some sort of stability, but Americans will not understand that they are in duty bound to bribe the Cubans to save themselves from chaos. Cuba, we are often indignantly reminded by Cubans, is a free and independent state with which we have no right to interfere, and we are invited to cancel even the small legal right of intervention declared in the Platt amendment. In almost every Latin-American country the bogy of American imperialism is useful at least in domestic politics and every action taken by us for the protection of American rights and interests is exploited to inflame opinion against us, not by those foreign interests that compete with us. So-called liberalism in our own country apparently sympathizes with this propaganda.

Zeal for the stimulation for our foreign trade would better be tempered by considerations which these facts suggest. There is no duty on our part to buy from the Cubans their own peace and stability, and if the bargain is to be examined, as would be sensible, from the point of view of expediency, both the political and economic considerations which throw doubt on its wisdom ought not to be ignored. Perhaps ten million dollars or thirty are small sums to venture in the present day of astronomical figures of government largess but there is also an issue of sound policy. Conditions in Cuba suggest the probability that our loans will have no better luck than larger sums advanced to greater and presumably more responsible nations. And what was a loan will become an offense; not an obligation to be paid, but a sinister device of imperial exploitation to be conveniently repudiated in the sacred name of independence.—Chicago Tribune.

Linking Coosa-Tennessee

At the recent Coosa-Alabama rivers hearing before the board of army engineers in Washington, the possibility of linking the Coosa and Tennessee Rivers was touched upon and created genuine interest on the part of the engineers.

It was pointed out that the two rivers could be linked together by acquiring a short-line railway that runs between Gadsden and Guntersville, with the result that the Southeastern states would be brought into touch with the great Mississippi River system, penetrating the Middle West, with mutual advantage to both sections.

The fact also was emphasized that the great industrial territory around Chattanooga would be brought some 800 miles nearer to the gulf than it now is by way of the Tennessee, Ohio and Mississippi.

To provide this short rail link, following the opening of the Coosa and Tennessee, would, for insatnce, make it possible for shipments from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and other points, to avoid the haul around by New Orleans, by moving up the Tennessee to Guntersville, then crossing to Gadsden and thence to Rome via the Coosa.

Such a connection between the Southeast and the Central West would be of immense advantage to both sections, and it is well within the range of probability that the plan will be brought about, once the Coosa is opened. It may even come along coincident with this development.—Gadsden Times.

J. N. Dennis For Judge of Probate

"Mr. Jasper N. Dennis, prominent farmer and business man of Clanton, this week enters the list of candidates for Probate Judge of Chilton County, in the Republican primary campaign.

"Mr. Dennis is one of the leading Republicans of Chilton County. He has been known and recognized for many years as among the outstanding citizens of the county.

"He served in public office many years ago as tax collector and tax assessor. During all the years he has taken an active interest in support of the Republican party, particularly as chairman of the Republican Executive Committee.

"In addition to his political activities, Mr. Dennis has been in intimate contact with the people of Chilton County as a farmer and business man for many years. He has been a constant advocate and supporter of all measures looking toward agricultural progress and betterment of farm business and living conditions.

"It has been known for some time that legions of the friends of Mr. Dennis want him to be Probate Judge of Chilton County.

"It may be said that their confidence in him has been well placed, for he is indeed a man who is worthy, able and capable for the duties of that office."

The above is quoted from the Union-Banner of February 1, 1934, and shows you what they think of my ability and fitness for the place I am asking for. Please read this carefully and if you agree with them, give me your support in the primary election on May 1st, and I will try to show you that your assistance and confidence is well placed and appreciated.

L. H. Reynolds For Re-Election

To the Voters of Chilton County:

The present primary campaign is about closed. I have made several speeches, and have kept my promise that I would make my campaign upon my own record, and not upon the shortcomings of anyone. There were many things I could have said that I have left off, because I have held the greatest regard for peace and harmony among all Republicans of the county.

It is generally know that there has been in recent years some efforts made to drive from the Republican party everyone who did not do as a few supposed-to-be Republican leaders wanted them to do. I have opposed such ideas and such methods constantly and consistently. I have tried to conduct myself in such a way as to help keep all Republicans in our party, and keep them satisfied by recognizing the rights of all of them.

My policy has been to take the members of our party into confidence on all party matters, and insist that they have a right to vote as they pleased in our Republican primaries. The only test I have ever recognized as proper to put to a Republican voter was his support of the Republican nominees in the general elections.

The only charge I have heard being made against me is that I have held office too long. In answering this charge is the only time I have mentioned my opponents. After seeing some letters that had been mailed out, I felt that it was my duty to explain the record of my opponents in running for and holding office. I made this answer and explanation to those who heard my speech at the courthouse last Saturday. I am sorry that it became necessary for me to mention my opponents in this campaign, but since the literature has been sent out, I felt that it was nothing but fair that the voters have the full facts about the public record of all candidates.

These letters referred to the young voters and especially to the ex-service men and said if you would elect them to office they would give the young voters a chance. Both of my opponents have been elected to office in this county twelve years and this is the fifth time that they both have been candidates. Each of the three Republican candidates are men who have held office several times heretofore. It is not, therefore, a question of nominating a man who is new in the public service. The question is for the voters to select from the three of us the one whom you believe qualified and able to serve you best as your probate judge.

Permit me to say to the young men and the ex-service men that I had a boy that enlisted at 19 years old in the World's War and I honor and congratulate every young man that offered to sacrifice his life for his country and as far as the needs and wants of these young men demand help, there ought not to be any limit on our willingness to extend it to them. I have always stood for and favored a better condition for our young people.

Now, the nomination for Probate Judge is in your hands. You have a right to know all the facts before you make your decision. I most assuredly would not mention anything new in this issue of the paper that my opponents would not have an opportunity to answer. My campaign has been open and public. What I have to say I said it to the public in my speeches, or printed it in The Union-Banner so everybody could see what I was basing my campaign on.

I hope to see our party succeed in the general election this fall. This primary is only to select candidates to make the final race. We should all remember this one thing: We will have to meet many issues in the general election campaign, and we will have to meet them in the open.

Some have referred to me as a politician. I want to say to you voters in closing this campaign that the hardest political fight of my career was in 1933, tryng to overcome the opposition of some Republican officials of the county and make the way clear so the United States government could furnish our people with free money, free clothes and free food, and to give employment to the unemployed.

Since this matter has been fully explained to you, I leave it to the voters themselves to decide whether those officials who opposed the county getting this money and those free goods, did so because they did not understand the question, or whether their purpose was to play politics at the expense of the hungry and starving people of our county.

This opposition caused me a great deal of expense in both time and money, but I did the best I could, and the people of our county have received over $260,000 in cash from the federal government, and thousands of dollars worth of clothing and food. This did not cost you a penny. While it added work and expense to my office, I feel that I have been amply paid for my efforts in your behalf.

I had hoped those officials who opposed you getting this money and goods would explain their position to you before the primary. But no one has seen fit to make this explanation and the matter is left in the hands of the voters for them to draw their own conclusions.

Some of our county officials who are not themselves candidates have seen fit to secretly work against me. I am sorry they did not come out in the open and make their objections known to the people. I would have been glad of the chance to answer them publicly.

You all know it has been a custom in the past to put out circulars or bring charges when it is too late to be answered. I warn you to be on the watch for any such literature before Tuesday.

In conclusion, I want to say I appreciate the expressions of confidence I have received from my hundreds of friends and supporters in this campaign. If the Republicans of the county want to nominate me to serve you again as probate judge and as the candidate of the Republican party in November, I firmly believe I can and will win in the general election, and I assure one and all now that my determination to serve you as a public official will continue undiminished in the future.

Respectfully,
L. H. REYNOLDS.

M. D. FOSHEE FOR CIRCUIT CLERK

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

As it has been impossible for me to see each voter personally, I am using this method to solicit the vote of every Republican in this county, in my behalf, for Clerk of the Circuit Court.

I have made the race on a clean plane and am asking the Republicans of this county to nominate and elect me Circuit Clerk on the record I made while I was clerk, and on my loyalty to the Republican party.

I have not solicited any Democrat to endorse me or my candidacy through the paper, but am looking to and asking the Republicans of this county to nominate and elect me as their Circuit Clerk.

Assuring each and every Republican in the county that I will greatly appreciate your vote and influence, and with best wishes for the success of the Republican party in November, I am, respectfully, M. D. Foshee.

Rehabilitation Work Locally

Miss Kitty Clyde Austin, director of relief for Chilton County, has received a bulletin from the Alabama Relief Administration, signed by Mr. R. K. Greene, director of Rural Rehabilitation. From this bulletin we gather the following statements which will be of interest to the public as we approach the inauguration of the rural rehabilitation program in Chilton County.

"We are asking complete waiver of rent to the Relief Administration as it is impossible to rehabilitate the tenant unless he can be protected in the acquisition of property, which he will be encouraged to earn. The landlord in these cases has foregone any hope of collecting any debts or rent, when he abandoned the tenant, except what the tenant may be able to produce between the periods when he is out begging a living.

"Where landlords are able to advance such tenants, or could permit them to obtain some form of government loan by waiving rent to such agency, we hold that these tenants are the responsibility of the landlord and the relief agency will not subsidize the growing of crops by such tenants.

"We also feel that it is totally unfair to farmers who are financing their own crops to face competition of crops grown by such subsidy by the Relief Administration.

"Crops grown by families under the rehabilitation plan will not be sold in competition with crops grown by self-sustaining farmers, but will be exchanged within the relief administration with the urban section for supplies manufactured there by relief workers.

"The landlords cooperating for the benefit of having the property in use by the family maintained in good condition and improved proportionately to the value of such rent.

"He will see the family regain hope, and begin to practice better farming methods, produce his living from the soil and become an asset to the community instead of a charge upon it. His farming will be supervised by a competent foreman which should be helpful and instructive to the neighboring farmers."

In carrying forward the rehabilition program in Chilton County a committee of farm foremen has been named as follows: W. A. Adams, Mt. Creek; Glenn Sessions, Thorsby; Monroe Foshee, Clanton; and F. A. Shanks, Maplesville.

This committee will present waivers to landlords, as complete waiver of rent and debts must be made by the landlords before tenants can be taken for rehabilitation.

J. E. EASTERLING OUT FOR TAX COLLECTOR

Dear Voters:

As you know, next Tuesday, May 1, an election will be held to determine who will be the nominee of the Republican party for Tax Collector.

It has been impossible for me to see all the voters, so I am taking this means of asking for your support and influence.

I have always been a staunch Republican and a supporter of its principles. I have never had the pleasure of serving you as a public official. I am asking now that you give me the privilege of serving you as Tax Collector. I feel that I am qualified to fill this office, and I assure you that if I am nominated and elected that I will give you the best possible service.

After you think this matter over, I hope you will decide to give me your support, but should I not be the nominee, I assure you I will do all I can to help elect the man that you nominate. Thanking you in advance for your support, I am.—Respectfully yours, J. E. EASTERLING.

When you pay the price of a Knee-Action car, you naturally want genuine Knee-Action and all that goes with it. You want the new gliding ride at its best. You want the huskiest, sturdiest front-end you can buy. And, of course, you want shock-proof steering. You pay for them all—but you get them all, in the low-price field, only from Chevrolet. The reason is simple. Fully-enclosed Knee-Action wheels are costly to build—so costly that only Chevrolet, world's largest builder of cars, can afford to make the necessary huge investment in new machinery—and still keep prices among the lowest of the low. Only Chevrolet has the resources and the assured volume of sales that permit this extra production cost. Chevrolet does it because Chevrolet believes that, to KEEP ON SELLING THE MOST CARS, YOU MUST KEEP ON BUILDING THE BEST.

ENDORSES COBB FOR COMMISSIONER 1st DIST.

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me just a small place in your paper to say what I feel like I owe to our present Commissioner, Mr. Joe Cobb.

Three years ago up here in our community, in driving over to our church you had to almost stop to cross a branch that needed a bridge so badly. Now you can pass that same place and not realize a branch is there. I could name several such places within the radius of three miles of my place. We are without any doubt enjoying the best roads up here in Beat 13 we have had since I came to Chilton County.

I want to say I am a Democrat, vote a Democrat ticket but when someone has tried to do their best as I believe Mr. Cobb has, I believe in letting people know how you feel about such. Another thing I would like to say about Mr. Cobb, I believe he has everyone's interest at heart. Last summer I was in bed sick for four months, and I remember several times my wife would tell me Mr. Cobb had stopped and asked about me and offered to assist us anyway he could. Now folks, Mr. Cobb did not do this to get me to vote for him, because he knew I was on the other side. So I just feel like I would not be doing my duty not to let the people know I appreciate Mr. Cobb's work here in Beat 13 and him being a neighbor to me while I was down and out sick, even though he lived four or five miles away from me. I do believe he has tried to build us good roads and done his best, even if he does sit on the other side of the fence. Yours truly.—Bert Haggard, Beat 13, First District.

Thorsby Institute News

Last Friday night under the auspices of the Senior class of Thorsby Institute, a concert of spirituals, folk songs, etc., was given by thirty-five students of the Chilton County Training school for negroes. There was a very good attendance. Principal Anderson gave a short talk which was very much enjoyed. He and the director of music are evidently doing very good work in the school. The concert was worth hearing.

Saturday night, May fifth, the Helen Keller Literary Society will have its last program. Everyone is invited. Part of the numbers on the program will be contested. There will be original stories, poems, talks, two dialogues, and a drill under music. Admission will be ten cents.

School will close the twenty-fourth of May.

The public may use the Thorsby Institute baseball grounds, and tennis grounds near the Robinsons' when the school does not use them from 8 to 8:25 a.m., 12:00 to 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 to 4:15 p.m. Monday to Friday inclusive, they will be in use by the school.

The grounds are not to be used on Sunday at any time, not even in the summer. May 19 and all day May 24 the grounds are not to be used by the public for games.

ENDORSE MR. P. M. MARTIN

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

We wish to ask you to consider Mr. P. M. Martin on the first of May for member of the school board. We in the northern part of the county feel that this part of the county should be represented by one member on the board. Mr. Martin attends church and Sunday school regularly, so you can tell what type of man you are voting for.

Mr. Martin is a strong believer in the rural children being taught at home "where they should be" and eliminate so much transportation. He believes all children should have the same privilege in regard to school terms, and that children when transferred to senior grades continue in the next grade and not be retained in the ninth grade as has been the custom in some of the Senior Schools.

Mr. Martin is firm in his decision but always open for conviction. We don't say he makes no mistakes, for we all do, but will be ready to correct them when it is a proven fact. He was largely instrumental in helping to build our school from a rural school to a junior high school. Through his untiring efforts we now have a flourishing junior high school. The writers have worked with him as trustees and know many of his views on the school situation.

Having children of his own enables him to understand many of the problems that confront the parent and the teacher with regard to the betterment of the schools.

Having given this consideration, we believe he would make a good board member.—E. F. Conway, G. L. Glasscock.

There will be preaching at this place next Monday night, April 30th, by Bro. Bryant, of Birmingham. Many of us have heard him over the air and if you want to hear him in person come to Oak Grove April 30th. He is one of the most able speakers of the day.—W. J. Northcutt.

Percy M. Pitts For Legislature

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

As candidate for nomination and reelection as your representative in the legislature, I desire your consideration upon my qualification and past record. In the past I have used my influence and voted for those measures which I thought were for the best interest of Chilton County.

Many of you will recall the local bills sponsored by a few of our Democratic friends in the legislature, the purpose of which was to abolish the Commissioners Court and create in lieu thereof a board of revenue by appointment. This bill and other bills were seeking to take away from the people of Chilton County the right of local self government, were introduced and passed through the senate. After many weeks of effort on my part in the house of representatives, together with the help of my fellow members, we defeated these measures in the house of representatives, thereby making it possible for our county to continue, as in the past, in our form of local self government. The financial condition of our county, as compared with the other sixty-six counties of the state, justifies that our county affairs should be left in the hands of the people who select their officials by popular vote. By this means the officials of our county are in turn responsible to the people and not to appointive powers for their actions.

I have been unable to see but very few of the voters personally, however, I desire to assure you that your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated. If you think that I have made good of my trust in the past and have rendered services as would entitle me to your support I will give my very best efforts in your behalf as a member of the next law making body.

We have a fine bunch of candidates for nomination at the hands of the Republican party, and I trust that all of our people will go to the polls on May first and cast their vote for their choice, and that our entire ticket will be elected in the November election.

The following article was published in The Union-Banner regarding my record as your representative, on May 4th, 1933:

On Goat Hill

"I want to commend Representative Pitts for his fight against the sales tax. That outfit of lawmakers at Montgomery appear to be suffering from a tax complex, or something of the kind, but Pitts is generally found on the right side of each qusetion, insofar as the people of Chilton County are concerned. Sinister influence by special interests has been brought to bear in many instances—those lobbyists are not paid to sit around down there and listen and look pretty. They have a duty to perform. But a careful check on Mr. Pitts finds that he is not so easily swayed by these special interests and their agents. He works and plans toward the best interest of the people he is down there to represent—Chilton County's people. As a result, agents of the "special interests think he is not so "hot." Here is an instance to prove that. Recently, a bill came up which, if passed would have saved people of Alabama thousands of dollars every year, with Chilton getting her share of the saving, of course. While there were plenty of people urging him to vote for the measure, Mr. Pitts received only one letter against it—and that from a represenative of the big "special inerests." That letter threatened "political oblivion" for Pitts in coming elections if he voted in favor of the bill. He voted and worked for that bill. And he answered the "political oblivion" threat by a letter to the writer containing these words: 'I don't know that I will ever be a candidate again; but if I do, I would be glad of the chance to have you as my opponent in the race.' You tell 'em, Percy."—By the Man in the Moon, in Union-Banner of May 4, 1933.

Respectfully yours,

PERCY M. PITTS.

ENTERTAINS LITTLE FRIENDS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

At her home on East Second Avenue North, little Eugenia Inez Wyatt entertained a number of her little friends at a birthday party last Saturday afternoon from 3 to 4:30. It was in honor of her seventh birthday anniversary which occurred the next day, April 22nd. There were forty guests present, who were served at the punch bowl by Tommie Esther Parrish. The guest book was presided over by Essie White.

Numerous juvenile games were played, and the little ones were permitted to romp and frolic to their heart's content. The lucky one to guess at the object under the cake was Mabel Helen Baker, who received a story book. "The Old Spinning Wheel" was sung by Lois Rockett, and a cute little story was told by Grace Ezell.

Those present were: Tommie Esther Parrish, Juanita Newell, Melba Dee Mims, Erskine Wyatt, Margaret Miller, Evelyn Minor, Geraldine Thorton, Tressa Lee Culpepper, Bobbie Nell Culpepper, Julia Thornton, Mabel Helen Baker, Janice Roberts Baker, Julius Popwell, Betty Boo Hollis, Josephine Stanley, Bobby Newton, Ellis Stanley, Mary Wyatt, Melrose Wyatt, Essie White, Elizabeth Wade, Lois Rockett, Irvin Lande, Doris Gore, Bryant Gore, Betty Jean Armstrong, Gene Rutherord, Lorene Hutt, Sara Nell McCary, Eugenia Newton, Emma Frank McRae, Grace Ezell, Annie Kate Gore, Billie Ruth Fant, Mary Elizabeth Mullins, Jean Mullins, Jerry Williams, Wilma Parrish, Peggy McCary, Sara Dean Smith.

Assisting Mrs. Wyatt in entertaining the little guests were: Mrs. Betty Mullins, Mrs. Walter Fiquett, and Mrs. J. W. Cagle.

"I wonder why Peck always goes to a lady dentist?"

"I suppose it seems good to hear a woman tell him to open his mouth instead of to shut it."

A Personal Message From

Pete Jarman

To The Voters Of Chilton County

As my campaign for Congress comes to a close I wish to take this opportunity to sincerely thank each person in the Sixth District for their gracious influence and support.

It is my intention to visit the respective counties as soon after the election as possible and personally thank you all for your enthusiastic work in my behalf.

I am confident that next Tuesday I will receive a substantial majority of the votes in this county as well as the other seven counties in the district.

However, due to the frantic efforts of the opposition, I urge you to continue your good work until the last and not be influenced by last moment propaganda and misleading rumors.

I believe in the good people of this district as much as they believe in me, and look forward to a cooperative and constructive term in Congress.

Again I thank you.

POLITICAL RALLY AT CENTREVILLE ON NEXT SATURDAY

There will be a big political rally at Centreville, Ala., Saturday, April 28, from 9:30 to 3:30 sponsored by the Centreville Press.

All of the state, district and county candidates have been invited to attend this rally and many of them have been sent invitations to speak.

Hon. W. B. Oliver, candidate for reelection to congress from the Sixth District, has issued a challenge through the Centreville Press to Mr. Jarman, also a candidate for congress to meet him in joint debate on that date.. Mr. Oliver in his challenge to Mr. Jarman offers to let him speak first and last on the program.

The great University of Alabama "Million Dollar Band" will furnish music for the occasion.

The Athletic Association of the Bibb County High School at Centreville will have a barbecue at Centreville on that day.

All citizens who are interested in the political affairs of our state are cordially invited to be present Saturday.—J. W. Oakley, Editor Centreville Press.

CHESTNUT GROVE

We had Sunday school here Sunday. We heard a good sermon preached by Brother Hyde. His subject was "The Rich Young Teacher Came to Christ and Asked What He Could Do to Have Everlasting Life." It was a good subject. We should all ask ourselves that question. We do not know just when Brother Hyde will preach for us again as his time is filled at present. He says he will be with us again in the near future.

Mr. J. R. Hall and family and his mother and sister were guests of Mr. G. G. Nabors Sunday afternoon.

We have a real good subject for our Sunday school lesson next Sunday.

ENDORSES JOE E. COBB

Editor Union-Banner:

I have known Joe Cobb for several years and my personal contact with him away from home, has convinced me that he is gentleman. I first met him on public works in Birmingham. His manner of conducting himself commended him to me and when he first announced for office I gave him my support. He has used his office to lift up a higher standard of morals in the county, and too, has proven himself to be a good business man.

His experience has qualified him to be a better commissioner next term. Besides, it is customary to give a second term. Everyone makes a mistake and it is extreme folly to change because of minor mistakes, to try out a new man. Let's be fair to Cobb.—C. N. Eiland.

REFUGE NEWS

Last Saturday and Sunday were our regular preaching days. Each service was very well attended. Our B. Y. P. U. was just fine Sunday night, and our pastor delivered a wonderful message. So let's come to Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. next Sunday and Sunday night with well studied lessons.

Mrs. Claudie Easterling and two children have been real sick with the measles, although they are better now.

Mrs. Mollie Easterling, who has been in a hospital at Tuscaloosa for some time, has returned home in fairly good health. We hope she will remain the same.

We are going to practice singing and have prayer meeting every Tuesday and Friday nights if there are any visitors that would like to come, you are welcome at any and all times.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Mims and Bro. Wm. R. Baker were here to attend service Sunday.

PERRY GORE FOR COMMISSIONER OF SECOND DISTRICT

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County, Alabama:

I would like to make this appeal to all Republican voters of Chilton County for their vote and support for me as Commisioner of the Second District in the Republican Primary on next Tuesday, May 1st, 1934.

I feel that a great portion of the voters of Chilton County are personally acquainted with me, but to those who may not know, I wish to say that I have always voted for and actively supported the Republican ticket and have never held public office. I ran for County Commissioner in 1930 and was the second highest man in the race for that office; carrying my home beat by a good majority. Mr. J. M. Mims, who is now dead, was the highest man. I would like to say to the voters that I took my defeat without any hard feelings and have since worked for and supported the party.

I have considerable business experience and I believe if I am nominated and elected to this office that I can fill the office with credit, both to the Party and County and to myself. I ask you, therefore, to consider me when you cast your ballot and whoever the party might nominate I will do my best in helping him be elected in the general election. Yours truly, T. P. Gore.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

Our Sunday school met Sunday with about an average attendance. We would be glad to see more come and help carry on the Lord's work with us and learn more of the Savior's teachings.

Visitors are always welcome to be present and help us out in the different classes that might happen to be in of the Sunday school. Be present next Sunday at ten o'clock.

W. T. Bean For Superintendent

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

In making my last appeal to you before the primary, I want to ask that the Republican voters of this county put forth every reasonable effort to go to the polls on next Tuesday and cast their ballots for the man of their choice. It is of the utmost importance in winning the election next November that we make the best showing possible now. This election, for several reasons, is probably the most important election that has ever been held in the county. The effects of this election will be felt for many years to come; therefore, it is of the greatest importance that every Republican goes to the election and does his or her part to give the party a good send-off for the November election. I want to see a complete Republican ticket elected then.

In making my last appeal to you, I want to ask that the voters give the three men who are asking for the position of county superintendent of education a close and thorough consideration before casting your ballots, taking into account the service each of the three has surrendered to the party, the experience of the three men, and the interest of the schools as a whole; then cast your ballot according to your best judgment. If my ability in general, and my experience and success in this office and the school room measure up to that of my opponents, then I feel that I am entitled to first consideration, because I was honorably nominated for this position last May, and the Republican party could not shoulder its responsibilities to its nominee in the general election in June. I was defeated because over half of the Republicans who were due a poll tax were unfortunately delinquent and thereby could not vote for me.

Please remember that for the last twenty-two years I have been called upon in almost every campaign to use my entire strength in every honorable way possible to help the party, and not a man has lost in the general election during this time. Last year when I needed and expected the aid of the party, it was able to deliver less than 50 per cent of its normal strength, while the Democratic party was able to deliver about 93 per cent of its normal strength. I was made the scapegoat; I am the one individual who is having to bear the sting of an inevitable defeat brought about by the depressed condition of the party. If I am worthy and competent to fill this position, then I am earnestly asking that I be given a chance at the hands of the Republican party to redeem myself from this unavoidable defeat. However, the interest of the children should be put ahead of that of any individual.

While trying to see every Republican voter in the county, I have found that it was impossible to do so. I have not intentionally overlooked nor skipped any one. If I have not seen you during this campaign, know that I was deprived of this pleasure by lack of time. I want you to take this as a personal appeal for your vote and influence in the approaching primary.

Very Sincerely,
W. T. BEAN.

from
COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

By Dan Smith

With the close of school only about 3 weeks off, the final preparations for commencement are being planned. Mr. Warr and his efficient faculty are preparing to have one of the most impressive graduating exercises in the school history. It will be an impressive commencement due to the fine and successful Senior Class this year. The Baccalaureate speaker has not been selected yet, but it is certain that we will have one who is both a splendid speaker and a good man.

Two students have been awarded the high honors of delivering the Valadictory and Saluatatory addresses. The distinctive honor of being Valadictorian will go to Dan Smith. This honor goes to the student who has made the highest average for the entire four years in high school. The next highest honor, the Salutatorian, was awarded to Joe Moore, who possessed the second highest average for the four years. To be eligible to receive these oustanding honors, one must have attended C. C. H. S. for all of the four years.

Keep your eyes and ears open. Announcements for the Senior play (what a play!) are on the way.

Congratulations to the Junior Class of 1934 for giving one of the most entertaining, one of the most enjoyed, and one of the prettiest of banquets for he annual Junior-Senior entertainment. The theme of "The Last Round-Up," which was the name of the entertainment, was well carried out in the decorations and the program. Praising toast, songs, dances, playlets and music along with speeches by several guests were the features of the evening. The event was well planned and moved along with out any dullness whatsoever.

Tomorrow, Friday, the Chilton base ball team goes to Selma for their next game. On Wednesday of next week Centreville will meet Chilton here. Remember our boys haven't lost a game yet.

Chilton played Jemison at Jemison on Tuesday of last week. The final score was 16 to 8 in favor of Chilton. Starring in this game were James Tiffin, Ted Littlejohn and D. H. Wilder. Ted and D. H. got a triple apiece and James knocked a home run and a triple. Good work. Looks as if it was up to them to win the glove offered by Mr. Warr for the first home run on the local diamond.

The school and especially the base ball boys are encouraged by the interest that Clanton citizens are showing in our athletics. We wish to publicly thank Mr. H. S. Shaw for his generous donation to the athletic fund of the school.

Drive down and view the latest gift from the Senior Class to the school. The gift is a beautiful sun dial with a pair of benches. It is an attractive ornament and the school is justly proud of it and the Senior Class.

Booklets seem to be the thing according to the teachers here. This is instructive work and has brought out lots of hidden talent. The latest group to be on display on the bulletin board is that of the Senior II English class. These are about the play "She Stoops To Conquer," by Oliver Goldsmith. In a few days the booklets made by the members of the Senior III English class will be displayed. And when you get a chance examine them closely for each of them is well made. They show oroginality, neatness and ability for art.

We were glad to see the friendly face of T. H. Walker in town last week. Mr. Walker, who was formerly a member of the C. C. H. S. faculty, is now an active lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Corps.

Who am I? * * * Miss Ova Lee McCutcheon was the charming young lady last week. Now try this one. * * I am black headed. I play football and am remembered for my end runs. I am interested in furniture. Now, who am I?

The Seniors are now preparing for the presentation of their annual play, the last play of this school year. Every Senior, whether he is in the play or not, is cooperating heartily to make this play the most successful they have ever had. The class has one ambition in presenting this play, and that ambition is, to fill the house and satisfy the house. And with "The Attorney for the Defense," they will do it.

The graduating Seniors are now receiving catalogues and other literature from various colleges and universities over the country. Several have already selected the school where they will attend next year. We hope and feel sure that C. C. H. S. graduates will not be found wanting when the records are made at these schools.

Well! Well ! Well! * * * (These articles are in no way connected with the activities of the school.) * * * They sorta got their days mixed up and went to church Saturday night. * She got her camel (s) Friday night and a mile had to be walked, but it was walked for gas. * * * Three nights on a straight, appears to mean something. * * * All the above refers to certain Senior Two's. * * * He kept his word Saturday night—he didn't come back. * * * Another Senior Two. * * * Yes, he swore that he was through with her but it looks as if he is in circulation again. Well, you can't blame him. * * * That was a Senior Three. * * * And although he was through he came back for more. * * * A certain Senior Three is certainly stepping out lately. Two dances one week end and two more soon. * * * A certain Senior Two should have known that a whole package would have made him, her, or it dizzy. * * I wonder if a certain Senior Two knows what was done for him last Friday night?

To The Voters Of Chilton County

When I announced as a Candidate for Judge of the 19th Judicial Circuit of Alabama, which is composed of the Counties of Autauga, Chilton and Elmore, I realized that you knew my record and reputation as a man and lawyer, and knew that I had practiced law here for the past nineteen years, and that your knowledge of my ability, character and fitness for said office was such that I could not add anything that would aid you in making up your mind to vote for me. I then stated that I would appreciate your vote and influence and again wish to express to you my appreciation and thanks for your vote next Tuesday.

If you desire to have a judge from Chilton County and will give me your vote and influence I assure you that I will dispatch the business of the Court in a fair and impartial manner; the dockets of the Court will be cleared of pending cases, without delay; the Court will move with orderly dispatch and be operated as economically as possible and witnesses and parties will be given fair treatment.

If you think it fair that Chilton County have representation in furnishing the Judge then vote for me next Tuesday. Thanking each voter of the County for their vote and expressing my appreciation for the many kind words, expressed in behalf of my candidacy, I am

Sincerely yours,

ENDORSES J. P. BEAN

Editor Union-Banner:

Just a small space in your paper for the endorsement of Mr. J. P. Bean for Commissioner of the First Disrtict. I lived in this district two years during his administration. I found him to be a man of reason and of sound judgment. He worked in the interest of the working men, giving all a share of the money that was spent in his district.

Mr. Bean begun widening and graveling roads and made great improvements with what money he had at that time. If he had have had the RFC and CWA money I am sure he would have made as much improvements as anyone has. Now, voters, let me appeal to you to help us elect Mr. Bean to the office of Commissioner for this district. It was during Mr. Bean's administration that the road subjects were set free.

Mr. Bean is a man that attends to the duties of commissioner as promptly as any man I have ever known. Now, voters, don't understand by this that I have anything against the others that are running. They are all good men so far as I know, but I am sure you will make no mistake in voting for J. P. Bean. So help us elect the man we want in this district, and when the time comes to elect a man for your district, let us know who you want and we will help you.—Yours very truly, A. L. Carroll.

BETHSALEM NEWS

Our Sunday school met Sunday morning at ten o'clock with a large attendance.

A few of the Sunday school boys and girls put on a real good Missionary program which was enjoyed by all.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

FARM NEWS IN BRIEF

A preliminary conference of representatives of the beef cattle industry and of the Agricultural Adjustment Administratoin will be held at Chicago, April 26, for the purpose of initiating action on a beef cattle production adjustment program under the terms af the amendment to the Agricultural Adiustment Act.

The advance in business activity which has been under way since November appears to have slackened somewhat in the latter half of March with some declines occurring in the automobile and iron and steel industries after allowance for seasonal changes. The general level of industrial production in March, however, was higher than in February and the up-trend of activity in these industries was resumed during the first half of April. Indications are that the up-trend in business activity may be expected to continue at least during the spring months.

Because of his pioneer reasearches in the field of soil dynamics, Prof. M. L. Nichols, head of the agricultural engineering department at Auburn, will receive the 1934 Cyrus Hall McCormick Medal. Prof. Nichols and his staff have distinguished themselves nationally by their research in tillage and the mechanics of soils.

Sales of fertilizers in Conecuh County are more than three times as much as last year, according to County Agent P. L. Wright. Despite decreased acreages in this county planted to strawberries this year, Mr. Wright says that the outlook for this crop is he best in several years.

ABUNDANT SILAGE SHOULD BE GROWN ON FARM

Auburn, Ala., April 23.—An abundance of silage preserved in an inexpensive trench silo is the most economical answer to the problem of feeding dairy and beef cattle at the present low prices.

This is the opinion of F. W. Burns Auburn extension animal husbandman, who says that the only economical method of feeding is to use an abundance of roughage and a limited amount of grain. All beef cattle producers and dairymen with five or more cows will now find silage the most economical form of roughage to produce since it is no longer necessary to build expensive, upright silos.

"Instructions for making and filling a trench silo may be obtained at the extension service at Auburn, but the important thing is that an adequate supply of sorghum be planted within the next two weeks. County agents throughout the state are cooperating to the end that at least 25 new trench silos are dug in every Alabama county this summer in time to store the roughage for winter use.

"From now until the middle of May is the time to plant sufficient silage to have at least two tons for every cow on the farm. Texas Seeded Ribbon Cane Sorghum is recommended as it is almost equal to corn in feeding value and one may safely plan on producing from 8 to 10 tons per acre with a favorable season. Bottom land with plenty of available moisture is recommended for this crop. Barnyard manure is excellent to use as fertilizer if available, or 200-300 pounds of nitrogenous fertilizer applied at the time of second cultivation can be used. Approximately one neck of seed per acre will be required if you plant in 3½ foot rows. Cultivate like corn but do not thin much as tonnage is what you need in making silage.

ENDORSES T. A. MADDOX

Dear Editor:

Will you give me space in your paper to say a few words in regard to Mr. T. A. Maddox for commissioner of the second district. I am in favor of Mr. Maddox for I have worked under him as commissioner for two years and he was all O.K. to work for. I don't think thaf anybody can make any mistake in supporting him this time. I think that Mr. Maddox is the man for the place. Be sure and think of him on May the first.—Best wishes to the readers.—A. L. Bowles.

DAIRY FARMERS FOCUS ATTENTION ON PROGRAM

Marked progress has been made in focusing the attention of dairy farmers upon a national program for meeting the situation in their industry, in the judgment of officers of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration who attended regional conferences thus far held.

Dairy section members have almost completed study of the transcripts of the conferences, and in particular of alternative proposals and changes in the Administration's proposed plan, which were suggested in the conferences.

In the 15 regional conferences, a wide diversity of opinion was found, particularly as among regions, with reactions ranging from outright opposition to outright support, with keen interest locally in various alternative proposals.

The regional meetings were held to consider the facts of the dairy situation and to receive suggestions from farmers and farm organization representatives on solution of the problem. Administration officers returning from the regional meetings report large attendance and great interest in the offer of the Administration to undertake action on the problem of making adjustments in production. The need for some action to bolster the position of the industry was recognized at every meeting.

The processing-tax feature of the plan was sharply debated. Many questions about the theory and operation of the tax were raised and answered in the meetings. Critics of the tax contended that it would increase tre price to the consumer, and might result in decreased consumption. Others contended that the tax may be passed back to the producer. Administration representatives held that the effect upon consumption would be slight. The processing tax would be used to finance benefit payments to farmers who cooperate in a production adjustment and the tax would be a means of increasing the income of cooperating producers.

FARM WAGES AND LAND RENTS HIGHER IN STATE

Farm wages and land rents are higher in Alabama this year than they were last year, according to F. W. Gist, state and federal agricultural statistician, who reports farm wages at $15 per month without board and "all farm lands" renting at $3.14 per acre with "plow lands" renting at $4.23.

"A considerable change in the status of farm labor is found," Gist said, "the supply this year being 97 per cent of normal against 115 per cent last year, while the demand this year is 74 per cent of normal against 61 per cent a year ago.

With 14,684,00 bushels of corn on hand, Alabama farmers have about the same amount of corn as they had the first of April last year when they had 16,628,000 bushels. They have about 6,000,000 bushels less than they had at the same time in 1932 when the supply was 20,274,000 bushels.

Fewer young chickens are found on each farm in the state than a year ago. "An average of 35 young chickens per farm was found on April 1 compared with 51 a year ago," Gist said.

The condition of the peach crop was found to be 77 per cent of normal against 57 per cent last year. This indicates that no serious damage was done to peaches by the freeze in March.

The condition of Irish potatoes was found to be 72 per cent of normal against 69 per cent last year, and a ten year average of 77.

The production of milk was slightly less on April 1, being 1.27 gallons per cow milked against 1.35 last year.

"Waiter, here's a half buck for you.

"Yes, sir. Dou you want to reserve a table?"

"No, when I bring my girl friend in here tonight, tell us they're all reserved."

"You're a dog lover. I suppose you celebrated Be-Kind-To-Animals-Week in appropriate fashion?"

"Sure I did. I planted another tree in my back yard."

ERNIE LEE ROBINSON WINS ARCADIAN NITRATE OF SODA

Ernie Lee Robinson, F. F. A. member and student of the Jemison High School received 300 pounds of Arcadian nitrate of soda this week, as winner of first prize in a public speaking contest. The contest was sponsored by the Barrett Company of Atlanta, Ga., distributors of Arcadian nitrate of soda, and the F. F. A. Chapter of the Jemison High School.

Six boys entered the contest and spoke in the high school auditorium. Later, three went to Clanton and spoke before the Kiwanis Club.

The faculty and patrons of the Jemison High School are pleased with the efforts of these boys. Each boy presented a thesis that required considerable study and work, and delivered his speech in a manner that was very creditable to any high school.

The boys who entered the contest and their subjects are as follows:

Joyce Howard, "The 1934 Cotton Acreage Reduction Campaign;" Charles Nix, "The Tennessee Valley Authority;" Erdis Atkinson, "The Results of the 1933 Cotton Acreage Reduction Campaign;" Ervin Beasley, "The Federal Land Bank;" Ernie Lee Roinson, "The Agricultural Adjustment Act;"

The Barrett Co., Atlantag, Ga., distributors of Arcadian nitrate of soda, are to be congratulated on sponsoring a contest of this kind.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., April 23.—One of the fastest growing sportmen's organizations in the state is the Shelby County Conservation Association.

Organized March 9 with a charter membership of 81, the association now has close to 200 members. Dr. J. M. Kimmey of Columbiana, health officer for Shelby County, is its president.

I. T. Quinn, state commissioner of game and fisheries, was invited to attend the organization meeting and outlined a program of "wise use without waste" for Shelby sportsmen to follow.

Taking an active part in the creation of the organization were Paul O. Luck, Columbiana attorney, and Luther Fowler, editor of the Shelby County Reporter, both of whom are continuing their efforts to increase the membership.

Aims of the association are to save and build the soil by terracing and growing soil building crops; save the forests, study and learn their value and organize to fight fires; protect birds and game, make every incorporated town in the county a bird sanctuary, and obey and enforce the game laws; plant fish and protect them according to the laws of the state and the rules of good sportsmanship, and teach the principles of conservation to boys and girls.

Q—What should a hostess say in greeting a guest arriving at a reception?

A—Any casual inquiry like "Was your husband over to Gus's when you left?" will do.

Q—Is it proper when shaking hands to hold the hands high?

A—Not unless it is done to guard the chin in case the other guy takes a swing at it.

Q—Should a man ever tuck his napkin in the top of his vest?

A—Never. It should always be tucked in the collar, then he won't spill gravy on his tie, shirt or vest.

A New Orleans movie patron arose from his seat while viewing a picture and shot himself. We believe we have seen that picture.

I love the sighing summer breeze,
I love to hear a rooster sneeze;
I love airdales and Persian cats;

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

Professor Betts, head of the graduate research in the school of education at Northwestern University, recently sent a questionnaire to fifteen hundred protestant ministers in the vicinity of Chicago. More than seven hundred ministers replied to the questionnaire. Two hundred of the number were students in theological seminaries. A large percentage of these ministers said that they do not believe in hell, and many of them do not believe in heaven. A very large percentage of these ministers do not believe in a personal devil. Yet people are wondering what is the matter with America. America needs about six months of "hell, fire and damnation" preaching. People need to learn again that sin is sin and that sin damns. America needs to hear again the old time gospel which our fathers preached without apology.

"If you don't repent as it were and be converted in a measure, you might accidentally be damned to some extent," is what one preacher is quoted as having said in his pulpit one Sunday morning. That style is pussyfooting. John the Baptist shot at something when he preached. He hit the bull's eye. He lost his head but be saved his conscience. Jesus was never evasive. He used simple, plain, everyday words. People knew what He meant.

I thank God that I was reared in a community where the old preachers believed the Bible from cover to cover. There was not an evolutionist within twenty-five miles of my boyhood home. We were taught to reverence God. My mother died when I was fourteen years old and I promised to meet her in heaven. That has been more than thirty-five years ago. During this time I have sailed the seas and traveled in many lands, but I have the same philosophy of life today that I had in that simple little country home when I kissed my dying mother goodbye and promised to meet her in heaven. We don't need any new philosophy or any new religion. All we need is to get back to the God of our fathers.

Ralph D. Grant Makes Appeal

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

Because of the fact that I have not had the time to see all the voters of the county and because it is my sincere desire that the people of this county be enabled to cast their votes on May the first with some degree of satisfaction that comes only through knowledge of the candidates, and as one who is intensely interested in the welfare of this county in general and particularly in the education of the children, I again solicit your serious and conscientious consideration of the matter of taking this first step on May 1st, toward the selection of our officers whose duty it will be to perform the functions of this county during the next few years. This is not a matter of little importance. It should be a matter of serious concern to every citizen of this great county, and in order to have the assurance that the interests of all the people will be served, it is necessary that all who possibly can do so go to the polls on May first and cast their vote for the men they think are best fitted to perform the duties of the various offices of this county.

As already stated, my particular interest is in education. This is the work I am best qualified to do. I am offering my services to you as County Superintendent of Education and I am offering them upon my own record as a citizen and as a school man. I have not done or said anything in this campaign that would involve the personal character of anyone or that would prevaricate the real issues in this campaign. If I am elected to this office I expect to be able to enter into its duties with clean hands and a clear conscience.

I believe the education of the boys and girls of a democracy like ours is, or should be, our biggest business. The administration of this business is the duty of the superintendent. As I see it, he should have four primary qualifications for this office. First, he should be a man of character; second, he should be a man with educational vision and understanding; third, he should be practical minded; fourth, he should be a man with the capacity for hard work. I believe I have these qualifications.

Again, let me urge each of you to bear your part of the responsibility of selecting our Republican nominees, and then let us stand by them. Very truly yours.—Ralph D. Grant.

NOTICE

All parties interested in painting the inside of the Chilton County jail can file their bids in writing with L. H. Reynolds, Judge of Probate, on or before the 2nd day of May, 1934.

Make two propositions, one to furnish all material and paint jail inside and the other for the county to furnish all material and you do the work.

L. H. REYNOLDS,
Judge of Probate.

VOTER FAVORS CHARLES COOPER AS CHILTON REPRESENTATIVE

It affords me great pleasure to write a few words concerning the candidacy of Mr. Charles Cooper for representative.

I have known Mr. Cooper for a number of years and in my opinion he is well qualified to perform the duties of a representative. He is a man that really does things. He is also a sticker, not a quiter. His election means that he will, if he lives, serve his time out in a useful way. He will not serve a part of his time and then ask the people to elect him probate judge or governor.

Mr. Cooper has been in the building contracting business for a number of years, and up to the present time he has never quit a job.

The only motive that prompts Mr. Cooper in making this race is a deep personal desire to render some worthwhile service to the men and women of Chilton County who have to work for a living.

Mr. Cooper absolutely will not vote for any bill that will place any more tax on the people of Chilton County. He expects to do all in his power to get rid of the unreasonable taxes that the working people are now forced to pay.

Your vote for him means that you are helping to elect a man who will really have your interest at heart.—Very truly yours, Cecil Norris.

OLD FOLKS MEETING AT FRIENDSHIP 5TH SUNDAY

Mr. J. Dudley Collins of Friendship community asks The Union-Banner to announce that the annual old folks and ministers meeting will be held at Friendship church the fifth Sunday in April. This meeting last year was the best ever held up to that time, and it is hoped that this year it will be even better and more largely attended. An invitation is extended all old people and ministers of all denominations.

ENDORSES BEAN

As this will be the last issue of The Union-Banner before the oncoming primary, I wish to say a few words to the voters of our county in regard to Commissioners of the First District. For this office we have five men in the race. On next Tuesday, May 1st, we will have an opportunity to go to the polls and vote for the man we think is the best qualified to fill this important place. I have never taken an active part in politics, but I do want to use this opportunity to say a few words in behalf of Mr. J. P. Bean, of Beat 12.

As it is well known, Mr. Bean served us as Commissioner one term four years ago, and I think the record he made during that term deserves credit. I have only known Mr. Bean for the past few years. For the last four years I have been teaching at Mineral Springs near his home. I boarded with him a part of this time. Since then I have had the pleasure of being in his home a number of times. I have always found Mr. Bean to be an honest, upright and useful man in his community. And not only in his home community, but elsewhere. During the time I have been teaching in his community he has served as trustee of the school and is holding this place at the present time. Mr. Bean is a man who is always willing and ever ready to offer his services for the people in his community in any way that is possible.

Last fall when the new school building was being constructed he was appointed chairman of the building committee. The way he labored and sacrificed his time, and even neglected his own home duties in order to help to prepare a better building for the boys and girls of that community is enough to make anyone feel proud to have such a man in his or her neighborhood.

Mr. Bean seems to enjoy being of service to his fellowmen. But he is a man who thinks deep and gives careful consideration before acting on questions of business. Always having this great thought in mind, "Be sure you are right, and then go ahead."

In conclusion, may I ask that each voter will consider Mr. J. P. Bean's past record as a citizen, a business man and commissioner, and if you see fit to vote for him, I feel certain that he will, if elected, strive to serve the people in such a manner that you will never have just reasons to regret having done so.—James E. Harrell.

J. Z. Mims For Probate Judge

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am trying to see every one of you at your home; which is almost impossible, therefore, should I not see you or should I not speak to you otherwise about voting for me, please accept this as a personal appeal for your vote and influence.

I have no record as judge of probate to refer you to. That is what I am asking you to give me a chance to make. I have a record as a teacher, a business man, as clerk of the circuit court and as a citizen, all of which I am proud of, and the people in general know of them. I am not afraid nor ashamed of anything any man knows of me. He has my permission to tell it to whom he pleases, but when you hear some cheap politician telling what he has heard you may know what he is telling and why.

As clerk of the circuit court I have given the office my personal attention, and service has been my motto. I do not claim to have pleased everybody, but I have done what was right regardless of politics, race or color. Every state examiner has complimented me on the condition of my office, either in writing or verbally.

I defy any man to put his finger on as much as a penny that I have knowingly and intentionally collected or tried to collect that was not just and legal.

I did all I could and knew to do for the storm sufferers. I did not keep tab on it, but I waded mud and water and helped relieve the suffering just as long as anyone was suspected of being out, then I helped administer first aid the remainder of the night. I asked the court the next day to discontinue court, which was in progress at that time, and which discontinuance meant a loss to me at that time of five or six hundred dollars. I gave practically my entire year's work in 1931 to relief. I gave it the way that I chose to give it, but I am not asking you to vote for me for probate judge because of what I did to relieve suffering humanity in that crisis. You do not owe me anything for that. It was my duty and privilege to act then, and I will always do so in the future.

If elected probate judge I pledge myself to do all that is in my power to obtain all relief that may be given by the federal government or by the state government. I further pledge myself that if there be any relief given to Chilton County during the time I am probate judge, I will do all that is in my power to distribute such relief to the just and needy, free from politics and personal favors. I will not be in favor of anyone receiving relief who is not justly entitled to it.

I believe in a fair and economical administration of our county government.

I believe the education of our children and the health of our people are matters of prime importance.

With the amount of money now being collected by the county for road purposes, I believe we could and should begin immediately to build trunk line roads in our county. I believe the main roads to our smaller towns should be built.

I believe all of our roads, as soon as practicable, should be as nearly properly located as can be, and a road bed of proper width built with sufficient culverts to take care of the water. We can then dispense with some of our heavy, expensive road machinery and replace it with lighter surfacing machinery and with the savings reduce our taxes and at the same time build up a system of graveled roads in the county.

I believe the people living on a road can do the manual labor and gravel hauling on the road better and cheaper than any one and I favor them having a chance to do it.

I believe we should have a more definite road program or a reduction in road tax.

I have conducted my campaign upon a high plane. I have gone to you and discussed my ideas and plans with you personally as much as possible. I feel I am competent to perform the duties of the office to which I aspire. I have stood by the Republican party and organization at all times. I have never split nor scratched a ticket, neither have I ever left off a nominee of the party. I have never sponsored the nomination of any certain candidate but always relied upon the wisdom and judgment of the Republicans of the county to nominate our officers. I have lead my ticket in the general elections since my nomination to office. I received the largest vote for my re-election to the office I now hold than any one ever received for a county office.

If I obtain the nomination I will be elected in November.

If I obtain the office I will assume it as a servant of all the people. I can and will cooperate with your commissioners and give the very best service possible.

It is my political ambition to serve my people as probate judge. I am asking you to help me attain this ambition while I am in politics.

I have served my people in the office I now hold. The office to which I aspire is a great field for service. Will you not help me attain it? I will devote my entire time and attention to the office.

I insist on every Republican going to the polls next Tuesday, May 1, 1934, and cast your vote unbiased and untrammeled. I am relying on the fair and thinking people of our party and I hereby warn all of you not to be swayed by any undue means or methods to bias your vote. Go to the polls and vote your honest convictions and I will be satisfied.

Your choice now will be my choice in November.

Again solociting your vote and influence and assuring you that I will appreciate it, I am,

Yours for the success of the Republican party,

J. Z. MIMS.

(Paid Political Adv.)

J. N. DENNIS

Candidate for Probate Judge of Chilton County, Subject to the Action of the Republican Primary of May the First, 1934

Dear Voter:

At the request of many citizens I am offering you my service as Judge of Probate in the interest of a better harmonized and closer cooperating and united Republican party in our county.

I realize that the voters are the real thinkers of our County and that all reforms come from the voters and not from the officers and politicans. I believe that the voters know conditions and know the solution of our wrongs and abuses as well or better than the office holders and would-be advisors in our county.

I also desire to express to you my confidence in your ability to select the right men to fill your several offices, and to act on all matters affecting your county government.

If you see fit to place me at the head of the county government as judge of probate, I sincerely promise you that I will use every honorable means at my command to cooperate with you, as your servant, in every way possible to put our county in closer touch with its citizens, to assist in seeing that tax valuations are not unreasonable, but as near 60 per cent of actual values as contemplated in our law; also, in seeing that for each dollar of your tax money spent you get as nearly as possible a dollar's worth of value in service, or material for your county.

I believe in a more general distribution of our work among our citizens and that as much of the work as possible should be given to citizens adjacent to the work, and that as far as practical, work should be done by our citizens with their own teams, trucks and other equipment.

I am in favor of old age pension for our aged dependent citizens and in favor of such relief as can be given to our unfortunate worthy persons, but at the same time the interest of the producers and taxpayers must be protected. I believe that every home occupied by the owner should be exempt from all taxes and tax sales, provided it is not worth more than $2,000.

I have always been for every progressive move in the interest of our schools and supported them in every way possible and will continue to give the schools and the school officials my support and cooperation.

I favor a continuation of such good road movement as will give all our citizens roads in keeping with our high ideals, and modern mode of travel.

I am grateful for the support and help given me in 1908 in electing me to the office of tax collector, and electing me as your tax assessor in 1912 and 1916. Taxpayers at that time will recall that I saved this county many thousand dollars that they had been paying out on double assessments and other errors in the tax office prior to my election as tax assessor.

The offices held by me, as stated above, were of much help to me and I have tried to use such pay as was received in a way to be of service to myself and family as well as to enable me to render help and service to others.

I am 57 years old, was reared on a Chilton County farm and having grown a crop of my own each year since I was 18 years old. I certainly am familiar with many of the farmers' problems and farmers have my sympathy and good-will, and may expect sympathetic service.

As citizens of our county you know my past record, if I have made good, kept my promises and rendered such services as would entitle me to your confidence and support, I sincerely hope that you will honor me with your vote this time. I am not making and have not made this campaign by telling you that my opponents were not competent or worthy of your support, but as stated above I have the utmost confidence in your ability to pass upon all these matters in an intelligent manner, without instructions from any candidate or paid campaigner.

I again wish to promise you my full cooperation and support of such men and measures as you may designate by your vote in this as well as future elections.

Regretting that I have not been able to meet each voter and express to them in person my appreciation of any consideration they might give my candidacy, I am

Yours for harmony, service and cooperation,

J. N. DENNIS.

Everyone is busy planting crops and picking berries. Nobody seems to be idle.

We had an interesting Sunday school lesson Sunday. It was thoroughly discussed in each class, and a large number were present. We hope to go and grow each Sunday. It takes each member present to make it so. Come everybody, do your part.

Mrs. Lambert just returned from her daughter's, Mrs. J. Lee Yates, of Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Willis were around here Sunday and Sunday night.

Last but not least is about our B. Y. P. U. We are coming along fine now, and really have everyone interested. We had a rather deep program for last Sunday night, and was discussed throughout, and we hope it will do good, if they will take heed.

We sing every Wednesday night and welcome everyone. Folks, don't forget all our meetings and let's be on time with a well prepared lesson.

C. E. STAPP WILL MOVE TO SELMA

Accepts An Important Position With Dallas Compress Company

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stapp throughout Chilton County will be glad to learn that he has accepted a position with the Dallas Compress Company, and will be located in Selma in the future. This information was given out by Mr. Stapp while he was on a visit to Clanton Tuesday of this week.

Mr. Stapp has resigned as County Agent of Houston County, at Dothan, which position he has held since he left Chilton County last December. He will move to Selma and take up his new connection just as soon as the Extension Service can secure another man to fill his place at Dothan.

The capacity of Mr. Stapp with the Dallas Compress Company will be to serve as contact manager. He will be engaged in dealing with the farmers and the cotton trade in all counties of the territory around Selma, including the counties of Chilton, Bibb Dallas, Autauga, Perry, Marengo, Lowndes, and Wilcox.

The office of Mr. Stapp will be at the main office of the Dallas Compress Company. While here Tuesday, he said: "I am glad to announce to my friends that I have accepted a position with Dallas Compress Company, in Selma, in which capacity I look forward to a continued business association and interest in the people of Chilton County. I want all of you who come to Selma to call on me at my office at the compress."

Mrs. Stapp accompanied her husband on their visit here Tuesday. They were returning from Selma, where they had been to secure a home location. Mrs. Stapp also seemed delighted that they are to return to Central Alabama to live and to work among their old friends and acquaintances.

Opening Program Tuesday, May 8

New Sound Equipment To Be Installed At The Wadesonian Theatre

The Wadesonian Theatre announces that it will open Tuesday, May 8th, presenting to its patrons the new R.C.A. "High Fidelity" sound equipment. For the opening day program Joe E. Brown will be shown in "Son of a Sailor," with a sizzling comedy "Sitting on the Back Yard Fence."

A new giant loud speaker, capable of reproducing the entire range of audible frequences with the utmost fidelity, has been installed behind the porous screen, from which the sound emanates. With the new sound head and high quality amplification system in the projection booth, the stage is set for presenting the greatest advance in theatre sound since the advent of talking pictures.

Whereas, previous systems have been able to produce tones as low as 100 cycles and as high as 6,000, the new R.C.A. Victor equipment can faithfully produce tones as low as 60 cycles and as high as 10,000. The range of volume, too, has been improved so that the merest whisper of the wind in the grass or the great crescendo of a symphony orchestra may be reproduced with equal fidelity.

With the installation of this remarkable new R.C.A. high fidelity apparatus in the Wadesonian Theatre, motion picture fans of Clanton will enjoy sound of the high standard as that in the two finest theaters in the world, the Roxy and International Music Hall, of Radio City, in Rockefeller Centre, New York.

MELTON-EILAND

Miss Bess Marie Eiland and Mr. Harvey Melton were quietly married Saturday afternoon, April 21st, at the home of Dr. J. A. Bryan in Birmingham.

Mrs. Melton is the attractive and only daughter of Mr. C. N. Eiland of Clanton Route Four, and a graduate of Thorsby Institute. Mr. Melton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Melton also of Clanton Route 4, and a graduate of the Chilton County High School. He is now employed by the Comer Mills in Sylacauga.

After a brief honeymoon Mr. Melton will return to his work where Mrs. Melton will join him shortly.

TOM FRANK TEEL AND HIS COMEDIANS ARE BACK AGAIN

Tom Frank Teel and his troupe of comedians will put on their program at Collins Chapel schoolhouse Satday night, May 12th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The program to be put on will be a re-arrangement from the former presentations with one new person added and several new numbers. There will be plenty of good music, buck and wing dancing, jokes and fun. A small admission will be charged, sponsored by the Collins Chapel school.

PASTORS' MEETING

The Union-Banner has been requested to announce that there will be a meeting of the pastors of the Unity-Chilton Associations held on next Monday, May 7, at 10:00 a.m., at the Baptist church, Clanton.

Capt. and Mrs. Tom Rives passed through Clanton Tuesday and stopped off an hour or so with Mrs. Clara Curry. Mrs. Rives was formerly Miss Annie Spann of Montgomery, and they were returning from a visit there enroute to their home in Osborn, Ohio.

The friends of Col W. W. Fox will be glad to know that he was strong enough to go to the polls and vote Tuesday.

2,700 Votes Cast In Republican Primary

Nominations Made For Tax Collector, Tax Assessor, Sheriff and One Member of County School Board

With a total vote of 2,700 cast in Tuesday's primary, the Republican voters of Chilton County failed to settle the argument between many of the candidates for county offices. According to unofficial returns brought in Tuesday night, it appears that there must be a second primary on June 12, between the following candidates:

For Representative in the Legislature, Percy Pitts and W. L. Sanders.

For Probate Judge, L. H. Reynolds and J. Z. Mims.

For Circuit Clerk, H. A. Harris and Grover Bice.

For Superintendent of Education, W. T. Bean and J. E. Daniel.

For County Board of Education, D. S. Robinson and J. L. Smith.

For Commissioner First District, J. P. Bean and J. E. Cobb.

For Commissioner Second District, A. J. Davis and Perry Gore.

The following races were determined by the vote Tuesday, with Dewey Hughes gaining the nomination for Sheriff over both his opponents, J. D. Collins and V. T. Cobb. W. G. Culp for Tax Collector over his opponent, J. E. Easterling. Akins Collins for Tax Assessor over his opponent, S. M. Pate.

In the school board race, Martin is nominated, S. M. Yates is eliminated, and there will be a run-off between J. L. Smith and D. S. Robinson.

The nomination of Culp and Akins Collins is certain, as there were only two candidates in each race. The Sheriff's race might go into the second primary if the official count should alter the first figures only a very little. As now reported Hughes has a total of 1295 votes against a total of 1292 for both his opponents. This small margin might be changed by the official count.

The accompanying tabulation of votes in the various races is incomplete and unofficial. The figures shown were brought in by the returning officers Tuesday night, and may be altered some by the official count.

JIM BOSWORTH MANAGER OF MITCHELL DAM CASH STORE

The store formerly owned and operated by A. L. Robinson, at Mitchell Dam, has been acquired by the Taylor interests, of Clanton, and will be operated in future as the Mitchell Dam Cash Store, under management of Mr. Jim Bosworth.

Mr. Bosworth is already well known at Mitchell Dam, where he was formerly in charge of the club house of the Alabama Power Company employees. His many friends will be glad of his return to Mitchell Dam as manager of the community store.

"MISS CLANTON" HAS LEADING FEMININE ROLE IN SENIOR PLAY

Miss Ova Lee McCutcheon, who was chosen as the most beautiful girl in Clanton last year, plays the part of Dorothy Chandler in "The Attorney for the Defense." She, who is really a daughter of Joseph Hampden, works in Jimmy Carlyle's office as a spy for her father. While there she falls in love with Jimmy.

Miss McMCutcheon, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McCutcheon, Sr., possesses not only rare beauty but unusual talent in dramatics and seems quite suited to her part in the play.

Joe Hester left Tuesday for Troy, where he will take up a position.

JEMISON BOYS WON HONORS

Ernie Robinson and Charles Nix Awarded First and Second Prizes

The students of the Jemison High School won another great victory when Ernie Lee Robinson and Charles Nix won first and second essay prizes out of the five offered in their district. The district includes one-half of the vocational schools in the State of Alabama.

The title of the essay, "The Rarer Elements, Their Value in Soils and Fertilizers." These boys are members of the Future Farmers of America and their work in vocational agriculture, as well as other subjects, is outstanding. In addition to the honor that goes to the winners in a contest of this kind, Ernie Lee Robinson received twenty-five dollars as first prize, and Charles Nix received twenty dollars as second prize.

In preparation for this contest the students studied the results of twelve or more experiment stations in this country and of two abroad.

The contest was made possible by the Chilean Nitrate of Soda bureau who offered five prizes to each of the two districts in the state, comprising over 100 vocational schools. There was also one all-state prize of twenty-five dollars which was won by Seals Menefee, Ramer, Ala.

The Chilean Nitrate of Soda bureau has long claimed that Chilean Nitrate contained "Rarer Elements," elements other than nitrogen, that are necessary for the best development of plants.

Many Events At Close Of School

Annual Senior Class Play Is Foremost Among the Entertainments

The close of a school year at the Chilton County High School brings many significant events for the interest of the public. The foremost of these events is the annual Senior Class play, which by custom, is always the unequalled play of the year. This year the Senior Class of 1934 outdoes itself in bringing to Clanton a choice play, one full of tense, exciting and thrilling moments. The play to be presented by the senior class tomorrow night, May 4 at 8:00 o'clock is "Attorney for the Defense."

"The Attorney for the Defense," stands out from other plays in that it is a first class drama. The plot is superb, one that is not used in cheap plays. The story centers around a mean and unscrupulous prosecuting attorney, Joseph Hampden, who in an attempt to whip his lifelong enemy, sentences his own daughter, without knowing it. Jimmy Carlyle, whose family has had a feud with the Hampdens, defends the girl, Beth Winters, who turns out to be Hampden's daughter. The struggle between the straight playing Jimmy and the crooked Hampden will bring a new sensation to the audience. Not all of the play is dramatic, for hilarious laughs are caused by the timid Freddie and his sweetheart, Allie.

In short, "The Attorney for the Defense," which is the annual Senior play is a play that is as bright as an April day with alternate tears and laughter. It will keep you on the edge of your seat with its intense human appeal.

The admission will be fifteen and twenty-five cents. Don't miss it.

REPORT OF COUNTY BOARD OF REVIEW OPEN FOR INSPECTION

The State of Alabama, Chilton County:

Notice is hereby given by Akins I. Collins, Tax Assessor of Chilton County, Alabama, that the Board of Review of said County has returned its report and the same is now open for inspection in the Tax Assessor's office.

The Board of Review will sit at the courthouse of Chilton County on the first Monday in June, 1934, to consider such protests as may be filed by any taxpayer, as provided by law.

Any taxpayer who is not satisfied with the valuation of his property as fixed and entered upon the return list, may file objections in writing to such assessed valuations with the Secretary of said Board (Akins I. Collins) on or before the last Monday in May, 1934, and the taxpayer shall set out in such objections filed the description of each item of property and his reason for making objection to the assessed valuation as placed thereon. (Section 158 of 1923 Revenue Act).

AKINS I. COLLINS,
Tax Assessor, Chilton County.

BOB JONES

COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

A friend of mine who is a minister was urging laymen to go out and conduct services and win people to Jesus Christ. A prominent doctor of divinity said, "That is dangerous. Laymen might start heresy." My friend replied "Heresy doesn't usually begin with laymen. It usually starts with the preacher." My friend was right.

I have just returned from Chicago where I was engaged in an evangelistic campaign. I spoke at night in a large tabernacle and at noon I spoke in a downtown theatre under the auspices of a group of Christian business men. The noon day service was broadcast every day in the week over one of the radio stations in Chicago. For four years, every day, this group of business men bring in preachers to give the gospel to the people. They are doing a great work. One of the laymen said to me, "Dr. Jones, we are glad to have you preach the old time gospel. Nothing else will work. We have to be careful to avoid bringing ministers here who do not believe in the old time religion. We laymen want the gospel."

God is raising up laymen in many sections of this country. The Business Men's Evangelistic Clubs are doing a great work. Dr. O. C. Holland, the national secretary of the organization, lives in Cleveland, Tenn., in the very shadow of the Bob Jones College. Mr. Holland was for years one of the leading business men in Montgomery, Ala. A few years ago he was converted under the ministry of an evangelist. He is giving now his life to winning people to Jesus Christ and to organizing Business Men's Evangelistic Clubs.

Since modernism is getting into some of the pulpits of this country, and since old time gospel preaching is going out of date in some of our churches, it is my prayer as a minister of the gospel that God will raise up laymen to carry the message to the people. The country is filled with deserted churches and little community school houses. The people are hungry for the gospel. The laymen ought to be conducting services in these school houses and deserted churches and bringing the lost to Christ. God bless the consecrated laymen.

PAULINE PLYLER, CLEVER MAID IN "ATTORNEY FOR THE DEFENSE"

Miss Pauline Plyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Plyler, and popular member of the younger set, plays a most unique part in the Senior play Friday night. Miss Plyler brings out the role of Elsie, the clever maid, in a most splendid way.

Along with the other characters Miss Plyler makes this play the best Clanton has ever seen.

She—We'll get married or nothing.

Lesson for May 6

JESUS ACCLAIMED AS KING

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 21:1-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name.—Phil. 2:9.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Children Sang to Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Saviour-King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loyalty to Jesus, Our King.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Acknowledging the Lordship of Jesus.

The picture presented in this chapter is a very dark one. The common designation "Triumphal Entry" is most unfortunate, for it was only such in appearance. Back of the cry "Hosanna" was being formed the awful cry "Crucify Him." It may be possible that the awful word "Crucify" was uttered by some of the same persons who cried "Hosanna."

I. The Preparation (vv. 1-6).

1. The sending of the disciples for the ass (vv. 1-3). Jesus told them just where to go to find it and how to answer the inquiry of the one who owned it. This shows how perfectly Jesus knows our ways.

2. The fulfillment of prophecy (vv. 4, 5). Some five hundred years before, Zechariah made this prediction (Zech. 9:9). Christ's coming in this way was in exact fulfillment of this prediction. This is highly instructive to those who would understand as yet unfulfilled prophecies. The prediction of Zechariah 14:3-11 will be just as literally fulfilled as that of Zechariah 9:9.

3. The obedience of the disciples (v. 6). The request may have seemed unreasonable, but they obeyed.

II. The Entrance of the King (vv. 7-11).

1. The disciples put their garments upon the ass and set the Lord thereupon (v. 7). This act showed their recognition of him as their king (II Kings 9:13).

2. The action of the multitude (vv. 8, 9). Some spread their garments in the way; others who had no garments to spare cut down branches and did the same with them.

3. The city awakened (vv. 10, 11). It was a stirring time in Jerusalem, but a more stirring time awaits that city. This will take place when the Lord returns to the earth in power.

III. The King Rejected (vv. 12-16).

The immediate occasion of this rejection was the cleansing of the temple. A similar cleansing had been made some two years before (John 2:13-17), but the worldlings had gone back to their old trade. Exchange was not in itself wrong, but doing it for gain was wrong.

IV. The Nation Rejected by the King (vv. 17-46).

Having shown their unwillingness to receive Christ as their king when officially presented to them, the king now turns from them and makes known their awful condition in parables.

1. The barren fig tree cursed (vv. 17-22). It was on the morning after his official presentation as he was returning from Jerusalem that Jesus observed the unfruitful fig tree. Because of hunger he sought for figs and finding none, he caused to fall upon the tree a withering curse. The barren fig tree is a type of Israel. With its leaves it gave a show of life, but being destitute of fruit it had no right to cumber the ground. The nation thus stood as a mountain in the way of the gospel. Jesus encouraged the disciples by showing that if they had faith even this great mountain could not stand in their way.

2. The parable of the two sons (vv. 28-32). Both sons are told by the father to work in his vineyard. The one, like the profligate publican, refused outright to obey but afterwards repented and went; the other pretended a willingness to obey but in reality did not. The first one represents the publicans and harlots; the second, the proud and self-righteous Pharisees, the priests, and elders. Jesus declared the publicans and harlots would go into the kingdom before them.

3. The parable of the householder (vv. 33-46).

a. The householder. This was God himself.

b. The vineyard. This means Israel (Isa. 5:1-7; Jer. 2:21; Ps. 80:9).

c. The husbandmen. These were the spiritual guides, the rulers and teachers of Israel.

d. The servants sent for the fruit of the vineyard. These were the various prophets whom God sent.

e. The son sent by the householder. This was the Lord Jesus Christ. They knew him to be the son, but they did not show him reverence. They cast him out of the vineyard and slew him.

Value of Silence

The devotional value of silence is recognized in a retreat, which may be described as a period of silence spent with God, broken only by vocal meditation and prayer preparing for and arising out of the silence.

Serving God

"Let us serve God in the sunshine while he makes the sun shine. We shall then serve him all the better in the dark when he sends the darkness. The darkness is sure to come."

Mr. Harry Margolis of Uniontown visited relatives and friends here Sunday.

County Farm Agent's Notes

Compiled by J. W. Fant, County Farm Demonstration Agent for Chilton County

DAIRY PROGRAM IS ABANDONED

Auburn Ala.—There will be no benefit payment dairy production program for the present, it was announced last week by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration of Washington in a message to Dr. L. N. Duncan, director of the extension service of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

The message stated that the decision to not undertake a dairy program at this time was reached by Washington officials after a thorough study of the situation and an investigation of the attitude of dairy farmers, a substantial majority of whom were not ready to support the program.

The Adjustment Administration also stated that the decision is in accord with a fixed policy of attempting no adjustment program which does not have support of a substantial majority of those engaged in the industry.

The announcement from Washington said, however, that a limited program of diseased cattle reduction and relief purchases probably will be undertaken. The milk marketing agreement will still be used for benefit of fluid milk producers.

Representatives of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington will continue their investigations with a view to initiating a sound program if and when it appears that the dairy industry as a whole is in favor of it and ready to support it, the announcement said.

The regional conference at which the proposed program was discussed disclosed that fluid milk producers operating within the milk sheds blame their price difficulties largely upon surplus production from outside; while producers outside the milk sheds complain that restricted consumption and surplus supplies from within the fluid milk areas contribute to the greater quantity and lower price of butter, and other manufactured products.

NITRATE WILL ADD TO CORN HARVESTS

Auburn, Ala.—Side dressing of corn with a nitrate fertilizer about 40 days after planting is a timely farm job that should get the consideration of farmers at this season, according to J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Experimental data accumulated over a period of years indicate that an application of 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime will increase the yield of corn about 7 bushels per acre, the increase depending on the type of soil and the weather, Mr. Lowery said.

Though most farmers apply about 100 pounds of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime per acre, some apply only 75 pounds and some apply as much as 150 pounds with good results.

The Auburn agronomist pointed out that no nitrate application is needed for corn growing on land where a good crop of Austrian winter peas, hairy vetch, or crimson clover was plowed under. Winter legumes furnish the best fertilizer known for corn, giving an average increase the first year after turning of about 20 bushels per acre, Mr. Lowery said.

Reports show that farmers are now busy plowing in legumes on about 250,000 Alabama acres. These legumes will add to the soil on which they grew nitrogen equivalent approximatley to that contained in 35,000 tons of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime, which at present prices would cost near $1,250,000.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Reports show that farmers are now busy plowing into the soil winter legumes growing on approximately 250,000 Alabama acres, and that these legumes will add to the soils nitrogen equivalent to that in 35,000 tons of nitrate of soda or nitrate of lime, worth at present prices $1,250,000.

Farm real estate taxes per acre in Alabama and several other states for 1932 are compared as follows: Alabama, 23 cents; North Carolina, 48 cents; Georgia, 26 cents; Tennessee, 40 cents; Mississippi, 52 cents; Louisiana, 49 cents; Oklahoma, 34 cents; Washington, 52 cents; California, 94 cents; Massachusetts, $2.16; New Jersey, $2.30; Ohio, $1.02 and Iowa, $1.02.

There will be no benefit payment dairy reduction program for the present, according to the Agricultural Adjustment administration, because a careful study and survey of the dairy producers of the country revealed that they are not sufficient in agreement to support it.

On the first of April, 31,101,574 cotton spinning spindles were in place in the United States, according to an official report received by economists of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute from the Bureau of the Census at Washington. During the month of March, 26,503,876 spindles were operated against 26,355,498 in February, and 25,653,324 in January. In March a year ago only 23,488,134 spindles were operated.

GAME AND FISH NEWS

Montgomery, Ala., May 1. — Commissioner I. T. Quinn of Montgomery as president of the Association of Southern Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners, has appointed Judge Lee Miles of Little Rock, chairman of the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission, as the association's representative on the special committee being created to draft an American Game and Fish Policy.

The appointment was made at the request of F. A. Westerman, of Lansing, Mich., president of the American Fisheries Society, who has assumed the lead in the movement which was proposed at the sixty-third annual meeting of the Fisheries Society in Columbus, Ohio, last September by Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association.

The International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners, meeting immediately after the Fisheries Society, voted its cooperation and the twentieth annual American Game Conference, held in New York last January, adopted a strong resolution favoring the drafting of the policy.

It was further discussed by the executive committee of the Fisheries Society at the time of the Game Conference in New York and the Fisheries Society agreed to sponsor a plan for drafting an American Fish Policy along the lines of the American Game Policy.

It was agreed that the several nationally know conservation organization should be invited to participate in formulating the policy and that the committee should be a small one, preferably not exceeding 15 members.

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1 IN ALABAMA

Montgomery, Ala., May 1.—That the application of the term public enemy is not limited to professional criminals but may be extended to cover other harmful agencies is the opinion of the Alabama State Commission of Forestry. The commission rates as Alabama's Public Enemy Number One, the promiscuous burning of woodlands which, while greatly reduced in extent, still threatens the development and use of forests as one of the corner stones of the state's material welfare.

According to the Commission, two obstacles have existed in the past to the restoration of the woodlands of the State to their full productive capactiy. These cheif obstacles have been the premature cutting and turpentining of young timber and the indiscriminate use of fire. The utilization of immature trees is, in the main, a matter wholly within control of the individual landowner. Fire, however, may come upon him from the outside and is largely a resposibility of the entire local community and the general public. In these connections it constitutes a public enemy of first rank.

Landowners as a rule are working toward the elimination of both forest fires and premature utilization. The latter difficulty can be overcome almost at will, but the former depends upon the coordination of a great many factors. The landowner himself carries a great responsibility, since the control of fire in Alabama, if undertaken promptly, is a comparatively simple matter. However, the community and the state at large carry a very definite responsibility in the same connection.

The state's finances are at a very low ebb, but with the limited resources at its command and with the cooperation of the landowners the average annual proportion of woodland burned has been reduced from approximately forty per cent down to a current average of between six and seven per cent. This, however, is still much too high and more intensive work must be done by all concerned before it can be said that Alabama's public enemy No. 1 is under proper restraint.

FRIENDSHIP NEWS

The fifth Sunday old people's services were great at our old Friendship church. Not so many people present but everyone seemed to enjoy the entire day. We were all made to feel sad when the minutes were read and we were reminded that death had removed some of our old friends and soldiers of the cross such as Bro. Nelson, Bro. Parrish and others.

Several interesting talks were made in memory of those that have gone on to receive their reward in righteousness and was declared that they were not dead but asleep in Jesus and their power and influence for the cause of Christ lives in the lives of many people.

The 11 o'clock sermon was preached by Bro. Cox, a man from Texas. Bro. Lowery was chairman, and carried out his part well. Then a fine dinner was spread and greatly enjoyed.

The afternoon service was a song, testimony and prayer service, which brought many tears. At five o'clock Bro. Riley Robinson was asked to sing the closing song and his selection was "Abide With Me." We were dismissed by Bro. Lowery and all went home feeling that God had been glorified and we all had received a great blessing. May God bless the old people's day at Friendship for many years to come.—H. F. McCary.

CHECK UP HELPS MAKE COWS PAY

"The secret of profitable milk is getting it from cows that are above the 'money-making line'," says E. B. Powell, Manager of the Purina Experimental Farm at Gray Summit, Mo.

Each cow in any herd, according to Powell, has a definite money-making line—the point at which she pays for her keep. A cow doesn't clear a cent for her owner until she goes over that line.

"If the money-making line in a herd is 8,000 pounds of milk," Powell explains, "one 6,000 pound cow will eat up all the money that two 9,000 pounders can make. The average of all three reveals that their owner is milking the three for nothing. While two of them are profitable, the third eats what by right should go into the owner's pockets."

Producing profitable milk, according to Powell's experience at Gray Summit, is a matter of culling, feeding, and management. "Many cows only a short way below the line may be fed across," he says. "When a higher-priced supplement is used, the money-making line will be raised slightly, but with a better ration a good cow can cross a higher line much easier than she can cross a lower line without the proper feed.

Summing up Powell's statement on profitable milk, apparently it isn't GOOD FEED that one can't afford these days. Rather it is the feeding of cows that are below the money-making line, those producing unprofitable milk, that one can't afford.

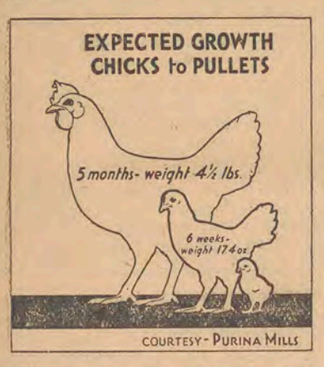
Expected Growth—6 Weeks and 20 Weeks

When a six weeks old chick of the lighter breeds can tip the scale at nearly 17½ ounces, there's something to talk about. And when that same chick at 20 weeks has a weight of 4½ pounds, there's a pullet which is going to be a money maker in the nest during the period of high fall and winter egg prices. These figures are not simply a supposition but are the average of records taken on nearly a million chicks—



925,427 to be exact—that were grown last year by poultry raisers in all parts of the country. And they are confirmed by records on more than a quarter of a million chicks at the Purina Research Laboratories and Experimental Farm.

The records show that chicks fed on Ration No. 546, developed by the Purina Experimental Farm, had 93% livability at 6 weeks of age. The light breeds averaged 17.4 ounces in weight at 6 weeks while the heavier breeds ran 19.2 ounces. That's a lot of chick in a short length of time. Going from that weight to 4½ pounds or better at 20 weeks, was an average easily attained by providing a good growing ration, show the records.

Obituaries and Poetry

The Union-Banner continuously receives a flood of long obituaries and poetry regarding deceased loved ones. Some of these we use and some we are compelled to leave out. We leave them out not because we want to but because we are compelled to. When we do fail to print such articles, we do not want our friends to get offended at us.

We know that the families and close friends of deceased ones like to see long eulogies about their loved ones, but we have to look at such things from the standpoint of the general public. In other words, we ask ourselves the question: "Will the majority of our readers be interested in reading these articles, or will it interest only the close relatives and friends of such party?"

We want to print a paper that is of as much general interest as possible to all of our readers. With this in view, we urge our friends over the county and elsewhere to make their obituaries and poems as brief as possible. Lots of papers charge for inserting such articles, and we may have to adopt the same plan.

MUSICAL CONCERT AT COOPER ON FRIDAY NIGHT, MAY THE 11

What promises to be one of the most outstanding musical events of the season is the concert to be held at Chestnut Creek, Cooper, Friday night, May 11th, as the closing exercises of Prof. L. M. (Red) Harden's singing school, which he is now engaged in teaching at Shady Grove church on Mitchell Dam road. Prof. Harden has been teaching school at several places in the southern part of the county for the past two or three months, and he has given concerts at the close of each. He has put on some good ones, but according to his predictions the one to be at Cooper will be the best.

A big feature of the program will be a negro sermon followed with a spiritual directed by the preacher.

The program will consist of popular numbers, sacred and secular songs, quartets, trios, duets and solos. There will be visiting singers and quartets to entertain the visitors. The price of admission will be 10c and 15c.

The concert was moved from the place of the singing school on account of Chestnut Creek church being roomier and better lighted.

Wheat Production

Walter Duranty, writing from Moscow to the New York Times, says that farm work in Soviet Russia is already far ahead of what it was at this time a year ago. The work is progressing with more enthusiasm, and the wheat sown last fall is in good condition.

According to news coming from various sources in Russia the Soviet crop of wheat in 1934 promises to be considerably larger than the one harvested a year ago. This is all very interesting in view of the strenuous efforts made in the United States to cut down wheat production.

So long as the American farmers raise more wheat than is consumed in our own country the price of wheat here will be regulated by the world price. The world price will depend not alone on the wheat surplus in the United States, but on the world total. It is a little difficult to see, therefore, just how it is going to help the American farmer to reduce the amount of wheat he raises, if other countries like Russia are to take advantage of the American program to raise more wheat. The price will be regulated on the world supply of wheat and he is very apt to find that his curtailed production means less money to himself and more to the European peasant.

Of course if wheat production in the United States is held down to the domestic consumption level, then the tariff will become fully effective and the farmer can depend on a higher price. But this is a little difficult to do, because higher prices always stimulate production, and in any event the administration at Washington seems to be turning toward the internationalist viewpoint. The farm problem has not been solved yet by governmental regulation and it is becoming evident that it may take more than one Brain Trust to find the satisfacory answer.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

Business indices, like bank clearings, car loadings and electri power consumption, continue to show a gain over the same weeks in 1933. This is in part accounted for, of course, by the fact that a year ago the banking situation was regarded as critical and we had only just come out of the nation-wide bank holiday. But aside from that there has been an undeniable pick-up in retail business and light manufacturing. Just how much of this is due to the spending of government money through relief agencies, and how much to the natural turn in the tide, which is being experienced all over the world it is impossible to state. Many financial authorities say that they will not feel entirely comfortable about the situation until there is a pick-up in the so-called heavy or capital goods industries, which are still in the doldrums. If such an acceleration comes in the near future we will undoubtedly be headed for better things in the near future.

Perhaps no industry in the country is a better barometer of general conditions along the people themselves than the dealing with motion pictures. There is a reason for this. The motion picture is the one great entertainment for the masses. Of course our cultured folks attend too, but it can be safely said that the movie is peculiarly the diversion of what William Jennings Bryan used to like to call the great common people. Even during the darkest hours of the depression, most of us found time and money to forget our troubles before the silvered screen occasionally. As Will H. Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association stated recently in a trans-oceanic radio address for the Cinematograph Trade Benevolent Fund:

"In the dark days of depression, the motion picture has been a great refuge for humanity. The doors of a motion picture theater are magic portals beyond which lie the restful country of our dreams. There, for a little time, one can lay aside worry and reality and live in a blessed land of make-believe. Motion pictures have made their contribution to the courage and sanity of nations."

Now, according to figures compiled by the motion picture industry, the motion picture attendance during the darkest days of depression averaged about 40,000,000 weekly. At the height of the boom, before the crash of 1929, the average attendance of motion picture theaters was 100,000,000 weekly. Now during the year 1933 the average attendance in the United States was 60,000,000 weekly. This means that at the time most of us thought things were entirely hopeless 40,000,000 people were buying tickets to motion pictures theaters of the country each week, in an effort to find relief from the gloom. Last year the average was 60,000,000 so that the attendance had climbed fifty per cent from the low. It can be estimated, while there are no figures for so stating, that normal attendance in the country now ought to be around 80,000,000 weekly, half way between the 1933 attendance and the boom period. This would mean that, if the theaters are any barometer, and they are undoubtedly a good one, the people as a whole are just now half way back on the road so far as normal spending power is concerned. And there are good indications that the business is improving further up to this time in the year 1934.

Of course it will not be wise to believe that the toughest part of the trip is over and that we are soon to be back to normal. There are many dangers to overcome, and many specters lurk in the background. But so far as present spending ability is concerned, the figures above given indicate that the people as a whole are considerably better off than at the depth of the depression. The question is where do we go from here? Let us hope that sound policies at Washington and in every state and community in the country will point the way upward.

Democracy on the Wane

The nineteenth century saw the rise of modern democracy. And it seemed that the high tide was reached during the second decade of the twentieth century. We were told that the great World War was fought to make the world safe for democracy, and after the drawing up of the treaty of peace it did appear that monarchy was doomed. New pseudo-democricies sprang up in Europe and kings and queens became decidedly scarce.

But the times have changed. Monarchs are not common but dictators are coming into their own. First there was Soviet Russia, then Italy, then Poland and Germany. Lately Austria has joined the parade and there are evidences now that more nations are to follow. The three great democracies left in the world are France, Great Britain and the United States. Many observers are predicting that France will move toward dictatorship before the end of the summer. Great Britain clings to its ancient traditions, but the Fascist party there is steadily growing, as is the radical labor party. In the United States there has been no change of governmental form, although a great many people are now wondering whether we are not now half consciously turning to something different from representative democracy. Only the future can tell.

But the trend from democracy toward state paternalism and dictatorship is apparent all over the world. There are two great forces arrayed against it, national fascism and communism. We are told that something new must take the place of individualism if civilization is to survive. But there can be no real democracy without individualism. State socialism in some form or other is the only alternative. And socialism as exemplified in Europe is only autocracy more or less veiled.

In our country, the change is very apparent. We started out as a nation of individualists. The framers of the Constitution gave certain powers to the federal governmnet and others were reserved to the people themselves in their state and local governments. So strong was the trend toward states' rights and against complete federalism, that a civil war had to be fought to prove that the rights of a state were not so broad as to permit it to withdraw from the Union.

But now, "state rights" seem to be about as dead a doctrine as could well be found in a day's search through the political arena. For a score of years the federal government has gradually been encroaching on the rights of the states. One local function after another has been taken over by the federal government, until now it seems that the time may not be far distant when there will be a paternal government at Washington powerful enough to regulate our very lives.

So this nation of individualists, which was made great by individuals who held firmly to their belief that they had the right to carve out their own destinies in accordance with their industry and their intelligence, is rapidly turning into a nation of governmental wards, which may make us after all not unlike the Indians from whom we took the country in the first place.

When we cease relying on our own efforts to succeed and depend on the government to order our lives and furnish our living, we will indeed, collectively, be a decadent nation. The history of the nations which have gone before, and vanished from the face of the earth, is abundant proof of this. A study of the record back to "the beauty that was Greece" and "the glory that was Rome" is decidedly illuminating.

The British Surplus

Recent dispatches from London have disclosed the surprising fact that the British government closed its official year with a surplus instead of a deficit. Business in Great Britain has been on the upgrade for a year and the empire has perhaps made greater strides out of the depression than any other nation on the globe. A great many American statesmen and newspapers have pointed out the fact that if Great Britain had made a regular payment on her debt to the United States instead of a token payment, her surplus would have been wiped out. This is true, and the fact that John Bull closed his year on the right side of the ledger would seem to argue that he ought to pay us what he owes us. For we certainly are not going to come out of this fiscal year on the right side of the ledger.

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington on the last day of March disclosed the startling fact that our government's operating dificit for the fiscal year which ends June 30, has arrived at the figure of two and a half billions. Emergency expenditures for the year had reached the staggering total of $2,824,000,000.

When John Bull reads these figures he ought to take pity on us and pay up. That would be the sporting thing to do and the Britishers claim to be the greatest sports of the world. The old fellow has been putting something over on us. While crying "hard times" and inability to pay his debts, he has gone steadily ahead pulling out of the depression, without any Brain Trust, and without any alphabetic organizations. The fact that he has been able to do this and to show a healthy surplus at the end of the year is a remarkable tribute to British business economic sagacity.

Even if he paid the whole sum due us this year, he would just about break even. Of course the payment would make only a small dent in our two and a half billion deficit, but every little bit helps, and under the circumstances we certainly have it coming. Brain Trusts cost money and John Bull ought at least pay us what he owes or show us how he gets well without one.

Having talked us into giving them recognition, the Russian Soviets now don't seem to care whether they buy from Uncle Sam or not, and will only do it if we lend them the money. Uncle Sam is sure the world's prize easy mark.

Governor Pinchot opens his campaign for the Pennsylvania Republican senatorial nomination by an appeal to the "plain people." Desn't he want the women to vote for him too?

Some Senators advocate a flat increase of ten per cent on income taxes for this year, to be called a "Recovery Tax." Since the proceeds would go to help pay for the CCC, the PWA and CWA, etc., why not call it the Alphabet tax?

Jack's Record

Through Sunday, April 29, Jack Hayes had taken part in nine games. He hit safely in the first six straight games. Here is the record through Sunday. Batting: At bat 33 times; 8 singles, 2 doubles; total, 10 hits; average, 303; 2 sacrifices; 5 runs scored; 4 runs batted in. Fielding: 17 put outs, 31 assists; total, 48 chances; no errors; average, 1.000; 3 double plays.

Chameleon

Another thing, have you noticed the complete change-over in the attitude of The Birmingham News in regard to the NRA and General Hugh Johnson. Not so long ago, when Northern industry, mines, railroads, etc., were having so much trouble with Gen. Johnson, The News deplored the fact that the North was failing to back the president in his recovery measures, and were quite willing, indeed, anxious, to have people believe that it was Republican sentiment that was stirring up the trouble, just in order to block, as far as possible, the recovery program. But of late, since the coal and steel industries in the Birmingham district have run afoul, and are kicking on the code that controls these industries, the News has joined in the fight, and have had quite a bit to say about the unfairness of the wage scale. Why this quick change? Now, who is trying to block things? If questioned about this, I imagine they would deny the charge that they are opposing the "new deal," but, just the some, it is the same scrap the Northern newspapers were putting up when their fight was on. How can they change their spots over night, like that? I do believe that the complaints of the workers in the Birmingham district are justified, but so were those of workers in other parts of the country. It is simply a case of misunderstanding of the situation in both cases. Government intervention in labor disputes in an advisory and mediatory capacity is good, but the present type of government intervention is purely autocratic and dictatorial. That does not set well on free people no matter where they may live. But how is it that the News can see two faces to the same picture. A bit inconsistent, we think.

Whipping the Depression

Have you noticed how we are whipping this depression? Now, we are really going places. I know you see all about you perfect contentment, plenty of money, good prices, no unemployment, and everything that denotes a boom, just as the Democrats promised. In a pig's eye. They said: "Give us a year, and we will show you plenty." They have — and how? The government figures, themselves, give a true relief picture. The national department in charge of relief tells us that it has on its rolls at present, 4,700,000 people, or about a half million more than at any time during those "bad old days" of the Hoover regime. And, after all that has been spent and allotted to provide for permanent jobs, less than a million people have received permanent employment. And how contented everyone is, too, since the NRA has begun to function. Every day brings more strikes and labor disorders. Yesterday it was the auto industry that was giving the trouble, another day the steel works industry shows up with a big strike, and then the coal fields blow up with the biggest strike of them all. Farmers are having their troubles, too. They find, now, that they must make concessions that just about puts them out of the way, so far as making a living is concerned. And prices—these have over doubled, on things we must buy—but have you noticed any of your products doubling in price? Yes, sir, we're certainly going places—maybe to the poorhouse. Who knows? But we'll whip this depression if it takes us a thousand years. And, come to think of it, at the present rate, it'll take just about that long.

Going After Them

I was out with a candidate a few days ago, and certainly had one good laugh at his expense. We had started out across a field to get to a voter and talk the matter over with him. On the way we came to a big ditch. I hesitated at it, for it was about six or eigth feet wide, and deep, too. I said: "Say, this ditch is a big one. Hadn't we better go around back up here to the road and cross there?" But about that time this candidate looked up and saw the voter turning, preparing to plow back to the back side of the field. It didn't take him long to make up his mind. Said he: "Naw, come on, this isn't a big ditch; let's jump it." And he did and I had to. We talked with this voter, and started back to the car. This time the candidate took the time to go around the ditch. That just goes to show how these candidates went after the votes. They let no chances slip.

Telling Him

I have always thought that one had to be particular about how he or she talked to officers of the law; but it seems that this isn't the case. A few days ago, a traffic officer in a big city stopped a woman for speeding. He was giving her a ticket to the court, and talking the matter over with him, when she interrupted with: "You can go to hell." He hailed her into court and told the judge all about the affair, including the direction she had given him to take. "Well," said the judge, "just because she told you where you could go to is nothing to fine her for. At that, she told you the truth. You can go to hell; and I have never sentenced a person yet for telling the truth. Case dismissed."

A Communistic Campaign

Astutely and wisely, quietly but firmly, without the blares of violence and campaigns of class hatred, a new communist offensvie has been launched in the United States. This offensive, unlike previous ones in the United States, has long range plans, and counts on a program of education rather than an immediate violent revolutions as its immediate objective is the school system of the United States, which it plans to secure by the power of persuasion rather than by the club.

The movement has originated, not in Russia, but in a small group of professors of education in the teachers' college of Columbia University. With the prestige of this great school behind it, this group, in the disguise of improving education, has begun its program. At the recent Cleveland educational conference its members took a prominent part, where, without the slightest fear, they urged the educators of America that the function of the educational system was to educate children to enable them to take their proper place in a collectivist social order which our country would see in the future.

The smartness and resourcefulness of this group is shown by the way it presents its program. They have seen the mistakes of violent Reds, and have realized the wisdom of selling their program in an attractive package called democracy. All that they urge is urged in the name of democracy, and the contents of the package they claim is that long sought Utopian "realized economy of abundance." Their success in propagating their program is shown by the fact that it was placed before the educational authorities of Arizona in the meeting of the Arizona Guidance Conference, a conference to discuss plans and technique of vocational guidance.

The true meaning of this "realized economy of abundance" is shown by the books listed on the Arizona Guidance program and reccmmended for reading. All of the books either condemn ownership of private property and the system of democracy America has seen or they are books exposing the errors of our society and insisting that the government must take over all instruments of production. The implication of a "realized economy" is communism. They differ little, if any, from the ideals of Lenin himself, save that Lenin insisted that such a program could be brought about only by violent revolution. In other words, the sponsors of this new idea of the purpose of education would have our educational systems become great institutions for propaganda of an economic and social system similar to that now in effect in Russia and they call it "democracy."

That a small, insignificant state like Arizona should have such ideas incorporated as a part of an educational conference shows the effectiveness of this newest communistic campaign. In a way, the Arizona educators are not to be blamed too severely. The bait was alluring. A fish when he bites at attractive bait does not expect to get hooked. And so this new communist campaign has the attractive bait of democracy coupled with "a realized economy of abundance," and its implications of so much of everything that there will be no competition, but little work, and no want of misery. In these desperate times such bait is doubly alluring.

If this new communist campaign has thus reached Arizona, what must be going on elsewhere in the country? It shows with more emphasis than ever before the need of watching educational programs to the end that schools be kept as educational institutions devoted to impartial instruction rather than as propaganda agencies for any particular clique.

As President Hutchins of the University of Chicago said in a recent interview in Tuscon, such a program is dangerous to the school and dangerous to the country. Let it not be repeated in Arizona.

Are Tariff Bargains Binding

The big debate over the bill to empower the president to make tariff agreements without supervision of congress seems about to commence, so far as the United State Senate is concerned. Just what kind of bill will come out of the Senate and be referred back to the house remains to be seen. The struggle over the bill bids fair to be one of the keenest which the present session of the senate has yet experienced.

If the tariff bill passes in something like its present form, there are many statesmen at Washington and elsewhere who think it will be another case in which the mountain has labored and brought forth a mouse. In other words, they are somewhat doubtful as to whether the administration will be able to get any satisfactory tariff agreements with other nations, under present conditions.

The reason which most of them give for this opinion is, that the house, in passing the bill provided that nothing in the act should be construed as giving "any authority to cancel or reduce in any manner any of the indebtedness of any foreign country to the United States."

Many so-called tariff experts believe that this provision, if left in the bill, will preclude the making of many satisfactory tariff arrangements, as they believe that none of the nations who owe us money will want to dicker on foreign trade unless something is done to scale down or cancel the war debts. Now, if this is true, as seems possible, it is equally true that it will be pretty difficult to get any bill through congress which would enable this or any other administration, to scale down these war debts. The temper of the present congress is such that there is not much chance of war debt reduction, so long at least as the nations which owe us keep to their present policy of defaulting or making "token payments."

Again, many other students of international affairs are wondering whether we would get much in the way of increased exports for our goods, even if we did scale down or cancel the war debts. "Suppose," they say, "we did cancel or scale down the debts on the promise of increased European outlets for our goods. What assurance have we that the nations making such agreements would live up to them? They have already repudiated debt agreements made in good faith, at a time when we had already cancelled a goodly portion of the obligation. Now if we cancel the balance of the debt on their promise to buy more of our goods, how do we know they will keep this agreement any more than they did the first one?"

All of which is, of course, well worth thinking over. If the debt is once cancelled, it is cancelled. If the nations so benefitted then fail to live up to their agreements to furnish us greater markets, we cannot revive the debts. Of course we are not getting much in payment now, but the accounts are still on the books as a lesson to any future American generation which may be so foolish as to consider lending money to European nations to permit them to blow one another to pieces.

Congratulations to Cohen Stapp both for re-receiving and accepting the offer to associate himself with the business of the Dallas Compress Company, in Selma. It is a deserved recognition of the splendid business ability of Mr. Stapp, and it is gratifying to his friends in Central Alabama to know that he is to remain among us. Furthermore, it is a good move on the part of the compress. Stapp will be worth a lot to them in a business way. No doubt he is the pick of the state, just as he was in Extension work.

Let us get ready for the boys and girls of the 4-H Club when they rally in Clanton the sixteenth of this month. County Agent Fant, and Miss Pardue, are making arrangements for a big day, and they want the assistance of the people of Clanton. It will be worth our while to get in with them and enjoy the day with our boys and girls.

The County Board of Education was unanimous in its approval of L. C. Warr for re-election as principal of Chilton County High School. Practically unanimous, also, was the endorsement of the school patrons and citizens in favor of keeping Wr. Warr. There was not enough opposition to seriously impress those who were charged with the duty of electing or rejecting him. If ever a man made a record that deserves his approval at the hands of his patrons, such is the case with Lloyd Warr.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

Services at the Congregational church next Sunday will be as follows: Morning service at 11 a.m., Sunday school, 9:45, Christian Endeavor 6:30, and evening service at 7:15. This will be a special service. Miss E. Jeanette Odell, an "unofficial ambassador of good will," from Turkey, will be with us. Miss Odell has for the past six years been head of the American school for girls in Merzifon, Turkey. She is now on furlough here in the south and has been traveling around with Miss Marguerite Davison through Tennessee and Kentucky and Mr. and Mrs. Ensminger have been taking her through Alabama and Georgia.

The following is an extract from D. P. Cushing, news editor, American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions: "Miss Odell states that Turkey is progressing rapidly and pushing on toward the ideal of Mashtapha Kemal Pasha, who said this fall at the tenth anniversary of the Republic, "We must continue to advance until we have elevated our country to the level of the world's most prosperous and most cultured nations."

Teaching Turkish girls how to make the most of life had been the interesting experience of Miss Odell, who is serving under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions: The school is called a "life school" or "Hayal Mektovi." Our concern is not that these girls are prepared for professions where they can earn money, but that they can become competent homemakers, capable mothers and leaders in their communities, says Miss Odell. To this end we stress homemaking with lessons in sewing, cooking, dietics, home planning and budgeting, child care, nursing, gardening, chicken raising and weaving. In addition to these more practical courses, the girls are also taught history, geography, mathematics, science and three languages. Many of the American school students board there, for they come from small towns in northwestern Turkey where they can return for vacations only once a year. A real family life is carried on with every phase of the students activities of interest to the teachers. The girls are so responsive, so intelligent and so industrious that this is no hardship. The school is directly under the supervision of the Turkish officials, with whom there is cordial relationship.

Miss Odell, who was born in Indiana, is a graduate of dePau University, and before going to Turkey taught in the mountains of southeastern Kentucky. Her first two years in Turkey were at Istanbul and the last four in Merzifon. She returned to America for furlough by way of Syria, Palestine and Italy.

There will be English services in the Lutheran church next Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

Last Sunday was a great day with the Congregational people of Thorsby, as they welcomed their new pastor, Rev. Lawrence Stanley, into the pulpit, having been without a pastor since the death of the well beloved Rev. Joseph E. Each, last January. The church people having carried on as best they could during this interval, they rejoiced to again have a leader. The Rev. E. W. Butler, a member of the church, has been the "mainstay" during the period of waiting. The other church people of the town, the Baptists and Lutherans, joined with us in welcoming our new pastor.

The chicken dinner given by the ladies of the P.-T. A. on Saturday at the town hall proved to be a great success, notwithstanding rainy weather. The dinner was fine and well served. It also proved quite a social occasion and the proceeds were all that were expected.

The P.-T. A. of Thorsby had its monthly meeting Friday afternoon April 20 at the grammar school with its new staff of officers present: Mrs. A. P. Villadsen, president; Mrs. Jim Higgins, vice president; Mrs. Claude Wallace, secretary and Mrs. J. L. Mixon, treasurer.

There will be a reception on Tuesday evening, May 1, given by the Congregational people to the Rev. Lawrence Stanley and family at the church. All in the community who would like to attend are cordially invited to be present.

The young people's class of the Congregational Sunday school, Rev. E. W. Butler, teacher, planned to have a picnic at Mims Ferry last Friday afternoon, but the rain was so persistent that they were obliged to change their plans. Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Sutlive invited them to have the picnic at their home. Twenty-two people were present. After the supper, games were played and a very pleasant, social time was enjoyed.

The Congregational Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Clyde Meade on Thursday afternoon, May 3.

Misses Carolyn Albert, Ruth Cosby, Christine Dopson and Mary Boring were the dinner guests of Misses Juanita and Lucille Each Sunday.

Mr. Roy Raybon and Mr. Ed Sims returned home Friday after working in South Miami, Florida, for about ten weeks.

Miss Naemi Turnquist of Selma spent the week end in Thorsby.

There are twenty-one students in the senior class at Thorsby Institute this year, 11 girls and 10 boys. The are Linnie Bell Reinhardt, Mary Louise Bates, Ida Lou Pate, Lorene McGlawn, Helen Albert, Winnie Boring, Mary Sue Porter, Nelle Tracey, Louise Robinson, Willodean Bean, and Edith Foss. The boys are S. E. Maddox, Lawrence Gerald, Preston Shaw, Conway Thornburg, Rasmond Sammons, Hal Broadhead, Melvin Dollar, C. B. Jean, Milton Higgins and Phares Raybon.

Miss Jennye Robinson left Tuesday to visit her sister, Mrs. Clarence Bice, at Pomona, Florida.

Miss Virginia Bice, who is attending the Birmingham Conservatory of Music, will spend the remainder of her school time with Mrs. A. P. Villadsen.

Miss Louise Fitzpatrick spent the week end in Thorsby with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Harper.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Moody of Birmingham and Miss Agnes Gerald of Guntersville, were the week end guests of Mrs. Gerald and the Sutlives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell spent Sunday in Birmingham. Mr. Moore returned home with them for a few days' visit.

A dinner was given Friday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Laurell's 19th wedding anniversary, at the home of Mr. and and Mrs. N. Laurell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mims of Birmingham visited Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Smith Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Miller from Clanton and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sims of Jemison were the Thursday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Wyatt.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meade with Helen Louise were dinner guests of Mr and Mrs. Walter Mastin Sunday.

Miss Marie Powers entertained on Thursday evening with bridge the following friends, Mr. and Mrs. V. H. Sutlive, Mr. Loyd Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Meade, Mr. Ernest Arant of Clanton and Mr. John Powers.

Mr. Earle Meade of Calera spent while in Thorsby last Monday with his brother, Clyde Meade.

Thorsby Institute News

The last open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society will be held next Saturday night, May 5, in the Institute auditorium. There will be an interesting program consisting of music, original short stories, original poems, a drill, dialogues, etc. Admission will be ten cents.

Monday morning Miss Jenkins, Mrs. R. H. Maddox, Ruth Foss, Mary Nell Pate, Ora Mae Tindal and Ruth McKee were invited by the Women's Guild of the Congregational community church, Birmingham, to give a program. Miss Jenkins introduced those who were to take part and made some remarks about the school. Ora Mae Tindal and Ruth McKee sang two duets. Mary Nell Pate gave a reading, Ruth Foss played a piano solo, and Mrs. Maddox, as one of the alumni, gave an interesting talk about the school. After the program a delicious luncheon was served.

ALABAMA HOMES USE MORE POWER FOR LESS MONEY

Birmingham, Ala., April 30—Homes served by the Alabama Power Company in cities and towns in Alabama paid electric bills in March, 1934, totaling $18,090 less than in March, 1933, but used 451,000 more kilowatt hours, a study of the new household rate reveals. Ten and seven-tenths per cent more electricity wa sused for 8.7 per cent less money.

The average price paid by home users in March, 1934, was 4.02 cents per kilowatt hour against 4.97 cents in March, 1933, a reduction of 19 per cent.

If the 451,000 more kilowatt hours used in March, 1934, had been paid for at the March, 1933 average price, it would have cost $45,513 more than was actually paid. The annual savings to Alabama homes for electricity on that basis amount to $46,000 compared to the estimate of $366,000 at the time the rates were reduced.

ECCENTRIC MALTED MILK KING IS PLAYED BY CARL JONES

The part of Jackson Multen, mean and wealthy malted milk manufacturer, could not have been given to a more suited person than Carl Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Jones. Carl plays the part of this eccentric and sly millionaire with the air of a professional. A fine treat is in store for those who see the Senior class play tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

Blessed is the man who can disagree with us and not get mad about it.

Riley Culpepper reports that when an egg failed to hatch, they broke it and found a chicken with two sets of bills. It only had one eye and that was in its mouth. The wings were growing out from its neck. Feet were about normal. Mr. Culpepper lives between Lomax and Cane Creek on Clanton Route 5.

VALEDICTORIAN OF SENIORS IN THE ANNUAL CLASS PLAY

Dan Smith, son of Mrs. Mamie Smith, who will be class valedictorian on May 23, will be seen in the annual Senior play as Mark Nelson, fond lover of Beth Winters and close friend of Jimmy Carlyle. Dan plays his role in a commendable manner and with the other members of the cast will give those who see "The Attorney for the Defense," their money's worth.

Who Is the Best Judge of Quality in Meat Scraps?

A white laboratory rat has never been known to get its name in the Hall of Fame or Who's Who. Yet this modest little creature has contributed as much to the advancement of scientific feeding knowledge as any other known factor, according to H. C. Schaefer of Puurina Mills' Research Department.

"A cage full of white rats," says Schaefer, "is a better guide to determining the quality and feeding value of chick feed ingredients than a room full of chemists no matter how well informed they may be. We have always known that the nutritive qualities of vitamins cannot be accurately revealed by tests in the chemical laboratory. Now we know also that such testing cannot of itself tell much about the feeding value of proteins, either.

In support of this statement Schaefer describes two samples of meat scrap.

"Both of these were purchased from the same manufacturer," he explains. "Chemical analysis showed no difference. Sample No. 1 analyzed 55.07% protein and the other sample varied less than 1% from that amount. Both samples looked alike, smelled alike, and cost the same.

"'Nevertheless', said the white rats in the laboratory, 'there is a difference.' A cage full of rats was fed a ration which included meat scrap No. 1. This was the only protein ingredient used. Another cage of rats received the same basic ration with meat scrap No. 2 as the sole protein ingredient. In seven weeks the rats on meat scrap No. 1 ration averaged 86 grams each in weight while the rats on meat scrap No. 2 ration averaged 116.4 grams—an increase of 35% over group No. 1. Where the chemists were unable to determine the relative values, the rats supplied the answer.

"Meat scrap is an important ingredient in poultry feed," Schaefer says. "Chemical analysis will not determine accurately the growth value of the meat ingredient. Separate feeding tests with growing animals must be made on each lot to supply the real answer to dependable quality. Similarly cod-liver oil and many modern additions to our livestock and poultry rations need more careful methods of analysis than were called for under feeding conditions of 20 years ago."

Mrs. Porter Williams visited her sister, Mrs. Horace Williams, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. J. P. Williams and daughters, Bessie and Jettie, and son, Clarence, spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Jones of New Cedron community.

Mrs. L. C. Dickinson and little daughters, Alta, Julia Sue, spent a few hours with Mrs. J. P. Williams Sunday evening.

Mr. Willie Brown of Clanton was the week end guest of his parents.

Miss Bannie McLean and Mr. Robert McLean, Mr. Clarence Smith, Mr. Kiaser Trott spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Bessie and Jettie Williams.

Several from this community attended the barbecue at Billingsley on Saturday. The reported a nice time.

MARALYN HARDY HAS AN IMPORTANT PART IN PLAY

The part of Beth Winters, who is the defendant in an embezzling charge, is splendidly played by Maralyn Hardy, daughter of Mr. J. R. Hardy. Beth, a quiet and sweet young lady who is framed into charge and convicted, is played in a most natural manner by Miss Maralyn Hardy.

Don't miss her in the Senior play tomorrow night.

THE PLAY OF PLAYS

The Jemison High School Senior play will be presented at the Jemison High School auditorium Friday evening, May 11, at 8:00 o'clock. If you are interested in wholesome fun, do not fail to attend the play of plays, "Listen to Leon."

The play is a drama, based upon the inveterate lies of Leon and the sympathetic understanding of Colonel Bryan. The rich uncle of Leon's chooses his companion whom Leon hates upon first sight. Anne and Carolyn make things end well. The friendship between Guiseppe and Leon is admired by the entire cast. Then there are those inevitable characters Archie, Nellie and Babe, who add the spice to the play.

Admission for this production is 15c and 25c. However, it is worth much more to see the play, "Listen to Leon." The characters in order of their appearance are:

Babe, Helen Quiderhock; Nellie, Frances Killingsworth; Guiseppe, Ernie Lee Robinson; Leon Bryan, Joyce Howard; Archie Darby, Leo Shaw; Carolyn Jamison, Josephine Adams; Anne Cushman, Mildred Caldwell; Colonel Bryan, Charlie Nix.

JOE MOORE, CLASS SALUTATORIAN IS THE HERO IN SENIOR PLAY

Joe Moore, who merits the honor of being Salutatorian for his class for this year, will play the part of Jimmy Carlyle in the Senior play Friday night, May 4.

Jimmy is a prominent young lawyer, who defends the heroine against her own father. The role of a quick witted young lawyer fits Joe Moore and he does not act the part of Romeo with Dorothy in a bad way at all.

Joe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts More and plays the leading role in "The Attorney for the Defense."

Just a word about the SERVICE at the

MOLTON HOTEL

FIFTH AVENUE AND TWENTIETH STREET

THERE'S a pleasant, friendly atmosphere about the Hotel Molton—a delightful informality and unobtrusively efficient service that appeals to discriminating guests. While Molton service is punctilious, it is entirely lacking in that stiff formality one often finds in larger metropolitan hotels. That's why the guests who stop here once, feel like they're coming home when they return to see us.

VERMONT SCHOOL

On tomorrow night, Friday, May 4, the graduating exercises of Vermont Jr. High School will be held in the school auditorium. This program was postponed two weeks on account of several members being sick with the measles. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. Dr. S. J. Ezell, pastor of the Clanton Baptist Church and Superintendent Luther E. Little will be the principal speakers for the occasion. This will be a joint exercise with both the sixth and ninth grades participating. Final examinations will be given Friday morning to those few who missed taking them the last week of school. All children are requested to come Friday morning and receive their report cards. The bus will make its usual round that morning.

The school picnic will follow on Saturday morning. All those who expect to go are requested to prepare your lunch baskets and meet at the school building not later than 9:00 o'clock. The two trucks and the several cars will leave promptly at the above time for the picnic grounds, which will be at either Log Cabin Beach or Lovers' Lane. We are expecting fifteen or twenty of the parents to accompany the merry little band of picnickers.

PROVIDENCE—BEAT 13

Our annual memorial day at this place will be the third Sunday in May. This has been an annual affair for several years and we are expecting another great day. The program for the day will be arranged later.

The people have been asked to meet on Thursday before the third Sunday and clean off the cemetery and do some work about the church.

There will be a box supper at the schoolhouse at this place next Saturday night, May 5th, and don't forget, Saturday night a beautiful quilt will be given away. So, folks, if you haven't got a ticket on this quilt, be sure to get you one Saturday night. Think of a brand new quilt for only 5 cents. Don't forget, all this goes for the church. Come and be with us Saturday night.

CARD OF THANKS

ANNUAL OLD FOLKS MEETING HELD AT FRIENDSHIP SUNDAY

The fifth annual old folks and ministers meeting was held at Friendship church the fifth Sunday in April.

The meeting was called to order by J. D. Collins at 10 o'clock, and a song was led by Emmett Wilson. Rev. W. P. Lowery was elected chairman for the day. A committee on arrangements was appointed, consisting of M. C. Wyatt, Robert Hand and H. F. McCary. A committee to adopt resolutions regarding deceased brothers and sisters was appointed and consisted of Joe Thomas, of Cooper, Glenn Sessions, of Collins Chapel and H. V. Honeycutt, of Friendship.

Rev. B. F. Cox, who lives a mile north of Clanton, preached the annual sermon, followed by Rev. W. H. Wilson, of Maple Springs.

At 12 o'clock a bounteous dinner was spread, and everyone ate to their stomach's content. There was plenty left to feed the crowd again.

The assemblage was called back at 1:30 with a song by Emmett Wilson. Devotional was conducted by Rev. W. H. Wilson. The remainder of the day was taken up in prayer and song service. The closing song "Abide With Me," was sung by Riley Robinson.

Resolutions

It is with deep regret that we, your committee on Deceased Brothers and Sisters, have to report the passing of our dear ones, who have been called from us since we met a year ago. Of our number the Grim Reaper has called Rev. J. T. Nelson, Rev. M. J. Parrish and Rev. F. A. Gibson; Sister Martha Yates and Sister Francis Hamilton.

We are perfectly willing to submit to God's will yet it grieves our hearts to have to give up such great and good men and women. The brothers were all ministers of the gospel who spent their lives laboring in the cause of God whom they loved so dearly. A great work has been done by these brothers. We feel as God's word teaches, "They are not dead but sleeping." If we will only obey God's word, we will meet them in the great beyond.—Joe Thomas, Glenn Sessions, Houston Honeycutt.

The people of Friendship community wish to thank the visitors and others for exercising so much care in keeping the house clean at dinner time. The weather forced everyone to eat in the house, but when all was over a man could have held all the scraps that were left scattered around in one hand. The people were very considerate in this respect.

COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM AT UNIVERSITY OF ALA.

University, Ala., May 1.—Final examinations for seniors who are to graduate in May are in full swing at the University of Alabama and will continue until next Saturday afternoon. The 103rd commencement program will begin Sunday, May 6, and continue through May 8.

One of the largest crowds to attend a commencement at the Capstone is expected. Arrangements have been made to hold most of the features of the commencement program in Denny Stadium which has a seating capacity of more than 12,000.

Commencement will open at 4 p.m. Sunday with a concert in Denny Stadium. At 5:30 p.m. the baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. John W. Frazer, pastor of the Church Street Methodist church.

Monday, May 7, has been declared a holiday for all students. The board of trustees will meet at 10 a.m., and the Alumni Council at 11 a.m. At 12 o'clock, Governor Miller and his taff will review a parade of the R.O.T.C.

The annual spring initiation of the Phi Bet Kappa fraternity will take place at the chapter banquet at 1 o'clock. At that time students, alumni, and honorary members will be taken into the society. The principal address will be made by Dr. Oscar Voorhees, national historian of Phi Beta Kappa.

At 2:30 p.m. there will be baseball between Alabama and Mississippi State, and at 6:30 p.m. the annual business meeting and banquet of the Alumni Association will take place with the Hon. Miller Bonner, president of the Association, presiding. The banquet will be given on Doster Hall lawn.

On Tuesday, May 8, Commencement Day, the Women's Senior Dinner will take place at 1 p.m. At 10 a.m. new student officers for next year will be installed. At 1 p.m. Beta Gamma Sigma, national scholastic fraternity in the school of commerce and business administration, will initiate new members at its annual spring banquet in the Peacock Tavern. This luncheon will be given at 1 p.m. with Dr. Lee Bigood, dean of the commerce school, as speaker.

The annual meeting of the Alumnae is set for 3 p.m. and the president's reception for the same hour. The final exercise will be held in the stadium at 5:30 p.m., when president Denny is to deliver diplomas to the graduates. Those expecting to attend the Alumni Banqeut are being asked to make immediate reservations by writing Tom Garner.

HELEN MOORE, POPULAR YOUNG LADY, IS IN COMEDY ROLE

The comedy in the Senior play tomorrow night at the high school auditorium, will be furnished by Helen Moore, who plays opposite Grady Reynolds, Jr., who is equally as amusing. Miss Moore, who is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Watts Moore, impersonates the giggling youthful Allie, whom Freddie, shy but "brave", is in love with.

These two will keep you laughing all the time in "The Attorney for the Defense" tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

MT. CARMEL NEWS

The Sunday school met with but a few present, but we went ahead with the lesson as best we could. Only one teacher was present and that caused a loss to the school by having to substitute for teachers.

The measles are raging among some of the ones who are faithful to attend S. S. May God see fit to heal them speedily so that they may come back soon.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., April 30.—Dr. John K. Norton, professor of education in the department of Educational Administration, Teachers College, Columbia University, has been selected to come to the University of Alabama for the purpose of delivering the main lectures at the Annual State Education conference, Dr. John R. McLure, director of the summer school, announces. The conference will be held during the week of June 18.

Dr. Norton is a native of California and a graduate of the Leland Stanford University. After graduation, he held positions as teacher, principal and director of personal research in city school systems of California. In 1922 he was called to Washington to the position of director of research in the National Education Association. He held this position until 1931 when he went to Columbia.

"Perhaps no school man in the United States has come to the front more rapidly during the last 10 years than Dr. Norton," Dr. McLure said. "His leadership has been particularly outstanding during the years of the great economic depression. He has been called up to serve on practically all important national committees, seeking to give the people the information about schools and how they could be saved from the disastrous effects of the depression. It is, therefore, peculiarly appropriate that Dr. Norton should be brought to Alabama at this particular time."

Dr. Norton is known nationally and internationally as a writer on educational topics, especially along financial and administrative lines. He wrote the chapter on "Education and the Economic Crisis in the United States" in the English publication, "The Education Yearbook" published in London, 1933; also the chapter on "The influence of the Economic Crisis on Education in the United States" in the "International Educational Review," published at Cologne, Germany, 1933. Among his recent writings are "What's Happening to the Schools?", Survey-Graphic," June, 1932; "A Sound Finance Program Will Save the Schools," "The Nation's Schools," November, 1933; "Education and the Depression," in "Religious Education," January, 1934; "Forgotten Schools" in Today, March, 1934. He also wrote the chapter on "Curriculum Construction and Revision," in the Cubberly Commemoration Volume, "Modern School Administration," Boston, Mass., 1933.

He served as psychological examiner in the United States army during the war, rising from first lieutenant to captain. He was a member of the American Olymphic team at Antwerp, Belgium, in 1920, himself holding the high hurdles championship from 1920 to 1927. He is a member of the White House Conference for Child Health and Protection, Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi.

Dr. Harvey B. Searcy, prominent Tuscaloosa physician, was elected to membership in Aypha Epsilon Delta, national honorary premedical fraternity at the University of Alabama. He was initiated April 28.

Dr. Searcy received his bachelor of arts degree from the University, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He received the M. D. from University of Michigan. He passed the American Board of Examiners in both orhthamology and otolaryngology, and is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

Following the initiation Dr. Searcy gave a lecture entitled "Diet in Nasal Conditions."

A farewell dinner in honor of sophomores of the University of Alabama Medical school will be given at 6:30 p.m., May 17, by freshmen medical students, it is announced. This is the first time that such a dinner has been given. The sophomores give an annual smoker in the fall, honoring men just entering the medical school.

CENTER HILL NEWS

Strawberry picking is all the go around here.

Sunday school was rained out Sunday.

We have had several good singings since the last writing—one at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lige Garner and one at Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Cobb's. Everybody seems to enjoy these practice singings at night so much.

Messrs. Leo Cobb and Leo Collum spent part of last week in Montgomery with Mr. Cobb's brother, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Cobb.

Mrs. T. J. Miller and son, Sewell, spent last week with her son, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Miller, of Pleasant Grove.

Miss Myrtle Armstrong, a nurse in the Central Alabama Hospital in Clanton, spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. V. T. Cobb.

Mrs. J. B. Price was called to Birmingham Friday on account of the death of her sister, Mrs. Bealie McGraw. Mrs. McGraw will be remembered by the older folks around here as Miss Bealie Webb. She was born and raised here, but has made Birmingham her home for several years.

A wedding of much interest to their many friends was that of Mr. Cecil Horton and Miss Catherine Killingsworth. The ceremony was performed by Judge B. L. Cobb at his home here in the presence of a few friends. Mr. Horton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Horton. Mrs. Horton is the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Berney Killingsworth all of the Providence community. These young folks have our congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Cobb of Oak Grove spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Cobb.

I think everybody and their kinfolks were at Oak Grove Monday night to hear Bro. Bryan, of Birmingham, speak.

Mr. and Mrs. Milard Yarbrough have moved from Jemison to the Bascomb Smith old place.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Lowery of Providence were the guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Mattie Hucks has moved to the Thornbro old place.

Wait a minute. Have you saved up your money for the Senior play tomorrow night? Better look and be sure so that you will be able to come because if you miss it you had just as well stop living. I mean it. This play is different! It sizzles with action, tense moments, laughs and romance. I'll save space by saying "beware of staying away from the Senior play tomorrow night." The admission is fifteen and twent-five cents and the curtain goes up at eight o'clock.

The parents are urged not to forget the P.-T.A. meeting at the school next Tuesday night, May 8. A very interesting entertainment in which everyone may become acquainted with the curriculum of the school has been planned.

The members of the "C" Club, their guests and the faculty enjoyed a delightful picnic at Blue Creek Camp last Thursday night. The "C" club has done fine work in promoting good sportsmanship and brotherhood between the atheletes of the school and should be and is spoken of with pride by C.C.H.S.

Yesterday Chilton played Centreville here. The scores of this game were not available at the time of this writing. The tigers are doing splendid ball playing. Watch for game announcements on the streets.

A short but instructive program was given in chapel last Friday by Roberta Cochran and Dan Smith. The theme of the skit was to explain in a simple way the inflation of currency. The dialogue, arranged by Mr. Warr, is briefly explained here. By using strawberries as an example the idea of inflation was made easy to understand. At first you have five dishes with ten strawberries in each but you can serve more people by using ten dishes with five strawberries in each. The strawberries represented the gold and the dishes represented the dollar bills.

We are pleased to note in one of the Birmingham papers last week that Pratt Busby was a star on the track team of Jefferson County High. We boast of the fact that Pratt was a former student at C.C.H.S. Good luck and congratulations, Pratt.

Graduating from the Junior High School has its significance also. The Junior Three class will hold their graduation exercises Thursday night, May 17, two weeks from tonight. They will have a valedictorian and salutatorian. Mary Ruth Goodman will deliver the valedictory address and Marjorie Nell Jones will be the salutatorian.

Final nanouncements for the commencement exercises will be made next week. Watch the papers for them.

The Senior One Class elected its who's who last week. BIRTHDAY DINNER

A birthday dinner was given in honor of Mr. T. B. Rainwater's seventy-seventh birthday last Tuesday, April 24, at his home at Pletcher. A bountiful dinner was served, including a beautiful decorated cake with 77 candles on it. In the afternoon several pictures were taken of those present.

Those present were Mrs. T. B. Rainwater and little grandson, Lester; Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Deramus; Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Rainwater, Mary Frances, Herschel, Herbert Lee and Charlie; and Mrs. Phrona Sewell from Pletcher; Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rainwater, Chester, Evelyn, Frankie and Bill; Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Rainwaer and son, Walter B.; Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Forman and little granddaughter, Catherine Creige, all from Montgomery; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rainwater and little son, Johnny Morris, from near Thorsby.

PATES CHAPEL

The health of this section is not very good at present. We still have some measles. The Robinson famiy and R. C. Hayes family have them now. We hope they will soon be well and out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Vastine Hayes are the proud parents of an 8½ pound baby boy, which arrived Saturday. They have named him, Aubrey Lee. Mother and baby are doing fine.

Everybody remember next Saturday night at 7 o'clock and Sunday at 11 o'clock are our regular preaching times. Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rainwater and son, Johnny Morris, spent last Tuesday and Tuesday night with his parents of Pletcher and Wednesday night with her uncle, Dr. J. B. Vines, at Bessemer.

Mr. and Mrs. Ethridge Williams and his father spent a while with his sister and Mr. Williams's daughter, Mrs. Vastine Hayes, Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Maddox visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hayes Sunday.

Gladys—How did you happen to quit teaching school to join the chorus?

Cloe—Because there's more money in showing figures to the big boys.

IN MEMORY OF CATHERINE TAYLOR OF MT. CREEK, ALA.

On the night of April 25, at 2 p.m. the death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Taylor of Mt. Creek and carried away their darling baby at the age of seven months and nine days. Those who were left to mourn her loss were her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Taylor, her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ward, and her aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Rother Culp, Mr. Robert Ward of Ft. Benning, Ga., and Mr. Albert Ward of Sylacauga; Miss Ruby Ward, Clyde Ward, Elaine Ward, Margaret Ward and Mae Dean Ward and several relatives and friends. We all are hoping to meet her in her heavenly home.

There is always praise to give to the dead, but there is much praise to give to Catherine Taylor. We have been so lonely since God took her away. But heaven will the brighter be since she has gone to stay. We miss her dear smiling face, we miss her all about the place, but since God took her on, I hope she will be happy in her heavenly home. Farewell, our dearest loved one, we will travel on in pain, and when our work on earth is done, we hope to meet again. We wish to thank all the friends that were so kind during little Catherine's sickness and death.—Written by an aunt, Ruby Ward.

BETHSALEM NEWS

Our Sunday school was rained out Sunday but if it is pretty weather let's all come next Sunday and have a good lesson.

Mr. Len Green and family were the Tuesday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wash Bowles.

Mrs. Myrtle Bowman was the Wednesday guest of Mrs. Mae Williams.

Mr. Bob Wright and family from Thorsby were the Saturday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melton Moore.

Mr. Howard Wilkins was the Saturday night and Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilkins.

Mrs. Nellie Bowles and little son, Fred, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Wilkins was the Sunday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hugie Williams.

The weather has been so bad here lately until the farmers around here are behind with their work, but we hope to have some pretty weather from now on.

Our B. Y. P. U. was rained out Sunday. Let's all come and help in Sunday school and B. Y. P. U. when the weather permits.

Little Eddie—What time does the next train come in?

Old Station Agent—I've told you five times that it arrives at 4:44.

Little Eddie—I know it, but I like to see your whiskers wobble when you say 4:44.

Club Rally Here Wednesday, 16th

Boys and Girls of 4-H Clubs Will Gather For Annual Event

A county wide rally of 4-H Club boys and girls of Chilton County is being planned at Clanton for Wednesday, May 16. Arrangements are being made by County Agent, J. W. Fant, and County Demonstration Agent, Miss Ruth Pardue.

Mr. Fant presented preliminary plans for the rally to the meeting of the Kiwanis club of Clanton last Thursday night, and received the unanimous consent of the club members to cooperate with him and Miss Pardue in carrying out the program and entertainment features.

Through the courteous response of Mr. Wade, the club boys and girls will have a free program given to them by the Wadesonian Theatre in the afternoon, which feature will conclude the activities for the day.

John Hollis, chairman of the Kiwanis Club Committee on Boys and Girls work, will be actively engaged in helping to carry out the program. Under his direction presentation of the Kiwanis trophy for the Boys Club doing the best work for the year will be made.

The Pilot Club of Clanton has also expressed their interest in the event, and will be active in helping in many ways. It is expected that the occasion will bring several hundred boys and girls here from all over the county, and will prove a stimulant to increased activity among the clubs during the coming months.

DEFINES BANKERS' PART IN RECOVERY

Head of American Bankers Association Assures the President of Confidence and Desire to Cooperate Among Bankers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Roosevelt in his address before the NRA conference here on March 5 announced that he had received the following telegram from Francis M. Law, President of the American Bankers Association:

"On this your first anniversary please allow me in behalf of the country's banks to express our full confidence and our sincere desire to cooperate in your courageous efforts to bring about recovery. The banking structure of the country is sound and liquid and banks have never been in stronger position to function effectively. Conditions have improved to the point where it is no longer necessary for banks to be super-liquid. There is a definite call now for banks, not to extend loose credits or to make improper loans, but for a most sympathetic attitude toward legitimate credit needs and for a recognition of responsibility for their proper and vital part in the program of recovery."

The Soundness of Banking

In an address before a recent trust conference of the association's Trust Division in New York, Mr. Law said:

"A depression cannot long survive a sound banking structure if the banking structure is responsive to legitimate needs and functions in a way that is virile and alive. The most cheering fact of the present situation is the knowledge that banks are in strong position.

"Recovery, even to the most pessimistic, is no longer a myth or a rumor, nor is it merely psychological. Abundant evidence and proof lie on every hand—tangible proof. With a return of confidence the wheels have begun to go round and a great many well managed businesses may look for a profit during this calendar year with fair assurance at least. For what has been achieved let us thank the President, who has labored with courage and patience and vision. Let us thank the Congress, whose members during the emergency have put the public welfare above partisanship. Let us thank one hundred twenty-five million of our own citizens who have refused to be stampeded, but rather who have kept alive the divine spark of faith and hope.

Cause for Confidence

"We may reasonably expect that the recent action of the government in stabilizing the dollar will have a marked tendency to encourage industrial and other business commitments. Business men need not be so exclusively engaged in taking counsel of their fears now that uncertainty does not haunt them.

"Much has been said about the loosing of credit by banks. During the acute period of the depression banks for the most part have not been lending normally, nor should they be blamed. With public confidence shattered the banker was properly concerned in liquidity, having in mind his primary obligation to pay off deposits. The situation has improved to the point where superliquidity no longer seems necessary. Conditions have materially changed. Banks will desire, for every reason, to return to a more normal lending policy. This means a sympathetic attitude and a recognition of responsibility for his proper part in the program of recovery by the banker as he passes upon and meets sound credit requirements of business as it swings into and continues on the upward turn."

Seventeen Cars Berries Shipped

Returns Net Two Dollars A Crate to Growers So Far

In spite of the unfavorable weather of the past week, shipment of strawberries from Clanton has continued with fairly satisfactory progress.

It was stated by Mr. L. E. Diefenderfer Tuesday morning that a total of seventeen cars have been shipped, the returns from which will net the growers a little better than two dollars a crate.

Not only has local weather conditions caused the loss of perhaps many carloads of berries, but freezing weather at the northern markets has materially interferred with distribution of the product at those points.

A telegram from Detroit Tuesday morning stated that a car of berries had been on the railroad tracks there for a week, with weather so cold it was impossible to open the car and take the berries out. Similar conditions have prevailed at other northern cities where our berries have been sent.

With prospects of better weather this week, it is indicated that picking and shipping will get under headway again soon.

PILOT CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

The annual election of officers of the Clanton Pilot Club was held at the regular meeting last week. New officers were Miss Bess Thomas, president; Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, vice president; Mrs. Zora Guy Smith, secretary; Miss Lillian Thompson, treasurer; Mrs. Mamie C. Smith, reporter. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Gertrude Calloway, retiring president.

EILAND-PRICE

The marriage of Miss Jessie Lee Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Price, of the Mt. Pleasant community, to Mr Tipton Eiland, of Mobile, son of C. N. Eiland, of the Mt. Pleasant community, was quietly solemnized on Saturday, April 28, at the home of Dr. S. J. Ezell in Clanton.

Mrs. Eiland is a graduate of Chilton County High School and completed a two-year teacher's course at Jacksonville Normal School. She has taught for several years in the county schools.

Mr. Eiland has been employed for several years as a seaman. Mr. and Mrs. Eiland have a host of friends who extend heartiest congratulations.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES TO BE NOMINATED

Meetings To Be Held at All Schoolhouses, Friday, May 4th, at 2:00 P. M.

The patrons of each school in Chilton County are herewith requested to assemble at their respective schoolhouses at 2:00 o'clock p.m., Friday, May 4th, for the purpose of nominating school trustees.

The attorney general in an opinion dated September 15, 1932, held unconstitutional House Bill No. 191, General Acts of 1931, page 672, providing for the election of school trustees for terms of two years beginning the first Saturday in May, 1932, and ending the first Saturday in May, 1934.

In an opinion dated September 16, 1932, the attorney general held that in view of an opinion declaring unconstitutional the act of 1931 providing for the election of trustees, the appointment to these positions will be governed by section 133 of the Alabama School Code of 1927. It now, therefore, becomes the duty of county boards of education to direct the patrons of each school under its jurisdiction, both elementary and secondary, including the county high school, to assemble on a uniform date for the purpose of nominating six discreet, competent and reliable persons of mature years from among the patrons of the school, from which number the county board of education will select three residing near the schoolhouse to serve as trustees for a period beginning the first day of July, 1934.

Only patrons of the school may participate in the nomination of the six persons from which list the board will select three as trustees.

A patron has been defined by the attorney general in an opinion dated February 20, 1931, as "those persons residing in the definite territory served by the school, who are parents, guardians or custodians of children, who are in attendance upon such school and who are eligible to so attend. A patron may or may not be an elector."

In order to be eligible for appointment as school trustee, ap erson must be a patron of that particular school within the above definition but need not be a qualified elector.

HEN LAID A GRENADE

One day last week Floyd Little, from up about Cane Creek, brought to The Banner office a large hen egg with a curious looking elongated appendage attached to the little end. When Cleve Powell saw it Saturday he remarked: "That is the first egg I have ever seen with a fuse to it. Maybe the hen was trying to make a hand grenade out of it."

CLANTON STUDENTS WIN HONORS

Theda Wyatt and Mary Armstrong have the honor of winning first places in the music contest held last Saturday at the Jefferson Davis Hotel in Montgomery. Each year the Federation of Music Clubs sponsor a contest for the Junior clubs of each state. The contestant is required to play certain compositions selected by a committee from the National Federation of Music clubs.

Since a high standard of excellence must be met in order to win, the Junior Music Club of Clanton feels signally honored that two of its members have the distinction of winning first place.

Mary Armstrong won first place in the hymn playing contest. Theda Wyatt won first place in the piano contest. Both Mary and Theda are pupils of Mrs. Barney Roberts.

SELLING THE CROSLEY SHELVADOR REFRIGERATOR

Mr. Herbert Klinner, manager of the E. L. Klinner Furniture Store here, is announcing in a big display adv., this week the addition to his line of furniture and house furnishings the famous Crosley Shelvador Electric Refrigerator. This Refrigerator is a well advertised article, always being considered among the best. Mr. Klinner will be glad to figure with you if you are in the market.

Mr. Maurice Foshee of Lakeland, Fla. formerly of Clanton, was called to the bedside of his sister, May, having undergone an operation for appendicitis at St. Margaret's hospital in Montgomery. He was accompanied by his sister, Gertrude Foshee, and father, W. H. Foshee. After a few days visit they will go back to Lakeland, where Maurice will take up his job with the Wm. P. McDonald Construction Co.

Airport & Drainage Now Going Forward

Two Projects Resumed Monday Morning. Others To Start Later

Mr. W. A. Cone, director of work, in connection with the Emergency Relief Administration of Chilton County, gives the following information:

Work is going forward on two projects, the Clanton airport, and Clanton drainage continuance, the old CWA project No. 11-C-742, below Dake's old mill. Employment is being given to 118 men on the airport, who work from 8 to 24 hours per week. The drainage project employs 167 men on the same hour basis. The rate on both projects is 30 cents per hour.

Mr. Cone stated that a meeting was to be held by the director of works and the director of relief, after which it is expected that work will begin on the school buildings at Cooper, Isabella and Enterprise.

He stated also, that skilled men will be given a chance to prove their ability, after which they will be employed as skilled labor.

At present it is not known just how many projects will be opened, nor how many men will be employed, but as soon as such information is available it will be given to the public.

HARDEN'S CONCERT FOR FRIDAY NIGHT IS MOVED TO VERBENA

Prof. L. M. (Red) Harden, who has been teaching a singing school at Shady Grove for the past month, announces that for good and sufficient reasons his concert will not be held at Chestnut Creek church as previously announced, but instead will be held at Verbena high school building. The date remains the same—Friday night of this week, May 11th, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Prof. Harden assures everyone who attends a couple of hours of good wholesome entertainment. The program will consist of sacred songs, quartets, trios, duets, solos, spirituals and a negro sermon. All may attend with the assurance that the program will be clean in every respect. There will be fun but nothing undesirable to the most fastidious. An admission fee of 10c and 15c will be charged at the door. Everybody cordially invited.

GRANT-JOHNSON

The following announcement appeared in last Sunday's Birmingham News:

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Grant, of Verbena announce the engagement of their daughter, Bertie, to Robert B. Johnson, of Jemison, the wedding to take place in June.

NEW DRY GOODS AND GROCERY STORE TO OPEN SATURDAY, 19

Arrangements are fast being made for the opening of a new dry goods and grocery store in Clanton. It will be a Yellow Front Store, owned and operated by Sumpter Farm and Stock Co. This company owns and operates thirty-five stores in Alabama. They have one at Maplesville, one at Centreville, Brent, Columbiana, Uniontown and Demopólis. Mr. O. J. Henley of Tuscaloosa is manager in Alabama for the stores. Their warehouse and wholesale business is in Tuscaloosa. Mr. Fleetwood, also of Tuscaloosa, is district manager.

The new store will be located in Mr. Wade's building, next to the Clanton Postoffice. The manager will come from some other place, but the clerks will be hired locally. The opening date will be Saturday, May 19.

67,000 SMALL FISH PUT IN MITCHELL LAKE PAST WEEK

Messrs. Black and Ingram, of the state fish hatcheries at Eastaboga, were in Chilton County the past week. They, together with J. Mell Martin, Bob Sumner, M. L. White and H. M. Simpson, stocked the tributaries of Mitchell Lake with 67,000 fingerling bass. Thirty-seven thousand were planted Monday and 30,000 Saturday.

BARBECUE AT MAPLESVILLE

There will be a barbecue at Maplesville school on May the 18. Come and hear your candidate speak. We will have baseball and plenty of fun. Everyone is urged to come. The barbecue will be sold for 25c per plate.—Mrs. Floyd Dorsey and Mrs. F. A. Shanks.

BIDS ON SCHOOL BUS ROUTES

The Board of Education of Chilton County will receive sealed bids until noon, May 25, 1934, for operation of school buses during the term of 1934-1935. Persons desiring information regarding number of children and the length of routes, should see Superintendent Little. All persons interested in change of routes, should see Superintendent Little, and submit the requests in writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Maddox of Sheffield visited friends in Clanton Sunday. Mr. Elijah Jones, Mrs. Maddox's father, and Mrs. Billy Maddox returned with them for an extended visit.

Graduating Exercise Begins Thursday, 17

Dr. Zebulon Judd, of Auburn, Will Deliver Baccalaureate Address

The Commencement Exercises of the Chilton County High School for 1934 will begin with the Junior High Graduating exercises Thursday night, May 17 at eight o'clock. A well planned program will be presented and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Friday night, May 18, will be turned over to the Senior Class for the annual class night. On this night the prophecy, the history, the last will and testament, giftorian and similar items will be on the program.

The commencement sermon will be delivered by Dr. S. J. Ezell at the Methodist church Sunday morning, May 20, at eleven o'clock. Dr. Ezell will address the graduating seniors with a message no one should miss.

On Monday night, May 21, at eight o'clock, the most important of the events at the close of school will occur. This event is the presentation of diplomas. Of interest to all on this night will be the baccalaureate address. This year Dr. Zebulon Judd, dean of education at Auburn, will honor the school as the baccalaureate speaker.

In keeping with the time honored custom of inviting a speaker of outstanding note in the field of education to speak before the people of the community at this time of school, Chilton County High feels that they have indeed made a wise selection in the personage of Dr. Judd. Dr. Judd is a scholar in the true sense of the word. He is thoroughly familiar with the many and varied problems confronting education at the present time and he will deliver an interesting address.

Dr. Judd has enjoyed a wide range of different experiences in education. Before coming to Auburn he was superintendent of schools and on the faculties of the University of Florida, afterwards becoming superintendent of secondary education in Florida. He also held the same position in North Carolina. Dr. Judd has made a special study of the "forgotten child"—the child whose opportunities are not as promising as his neighbor's.

Also on Monday night three students will be honored. Two of these are Dan Smith and Joe Moore, who are valedictorian and salutatorian respectively. The third student will be the one to whom the distinguished honor key will be presented. The name of this student is never revealed until the night of graduation.

The public is cordially invited to attend all of the commencement exercises and is especially invited to hear Dr. Zebulon Judd's speech on May 21.

The names of the seniors who are candidates for graduation will be published next week. Also the names of those who finish the Jr. High will appear.

Judge Carr Holding Circuit Court Here

Hon. G. W. Andrews Serving as Solicitor For State Here Now

Circuit Court of Chilton County is being held at the courthouse in Clanton this week. On account of the illness of Hon. F. Lloyd Tate, Judge R. B. Carr, of Anniston, circuit judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, is in charge of the court. Hon. George W. Andrews, of Union Springs, solicitor of the Third Judicial Circuit, is serving the state as solicitor.

The following cases were taken up Monday morning and disposed of up to Tuesday afternoon:

Ethel Crawford Lampkin, burglary, continued, defendant in penitentiary.

James C. (Chap) Horton, manufacturing whiskey, continued to next term of court.

Elijah Thomas, burglary and grand larceny; jury and verdict of guilty, sentenced to penitentiary for term of two years to two years and six months; took appeal, bond fixed at $1,000.

Irona Carter, attempt to murder, continued on account of absence of a witness.

Josie Johnson, manufacturing whiskey and possessing still, jury and verdict of guilty; sentenced to penitentiary for a term of one year and one day to 18 months and one day; took appeal, bond fixed at $500.

COUNTY REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TO BE HELD SOON

On May 16th at 2 p.m. there will be held at the courthouse at Clanton, a delegated Republican County Convention, to elect delegates to the state Republican Convention to be held at Birmingham, Ala., on June 27th, 1934, as per resolution passed by your county Republican Executive Committee, in session on March 30th, 1934. —J. N. Dennis, Chairman of Chilton County Republican Executive Committee.

SCHOOL TEACHERS WILL GET THEIR FULL PAY SOON

A federal appropriation of $1,260,000 has been made for Alabama to pay school teachers. This appropriation is to take care of payrolls for schools in towns of less than 5,000, and followed an audit of the state department of education by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Superintendent Luther Little advises us that Chilton County's share of this appropriation is approximately $10,000, and that the payroll has been sent to the state department. He is expecting the checks in at an early date.

LOANS WILL CLOSE MAY 15

Approximately two hundred farmers have applied for government Emergency Loan, the total amount being about ten thousand dollars. Two weeks ago we published an article saying that the time for making applications would close May first. This time was extended to May 15, but it seems now that the time will close with this date, so any person interested in making application for an Emergency Loan should call at the County Agent's office before May 15. All applications must be in the Memphis office on or before May 15th.

THE SACRED HARP SINGING CONVETION AT NEW HARMONY

The spring session of the Chilton County Sacred Harp singing convention will be held at New Harmony, Lomax, the third Sunday in May. The singers of Chilton County are expecting singers from several counties and are looking forward to a great day.

We invite all singers to come, and lovers of Sacred music have a special invitation to come also. Bring your Sacred Harp song books and don't forget a basket of dinner.—Myrtle Jackson, Secretary.

JEMISON HIGH SCHOOL TO STAGE PLAY

The Senior III Class of Jemison High School presents "Listen to Leon" Friday evening May 11 at 8:00 o'clock. Admission will be 15 cents and 25 cents.

DEESTRICK SKULE POSTPONED

"Deestrick Skule," at Maplesville auditorium for May 12 has been called off indefinitely.—Mrs. F. A. Shanks.

Dr. C. O. Lawrence, Dr. E. E. Upchurch and Mr. W. M. Wyatt have been spending the first part of this week at Bon Secours Bay on the Gulf of Mexico, where they have been fishing.

REPORT OF COUNTY BOARD OF REVIEW OPEN FOR INSPECTION

The State of Alabama, Chilton County:

Notice is hereby given by Akins I. Collins, Tax Assessor of Chilton County, Alabama, that the Board of Review of said County has returned its report and the same is now open for inspection in the Tax Assessor's office.

The Board of Review will sit at the courthouse of Chilton County on the first Monday in June, 1934, to consider such protests as may be filed by any taxpayer, as provided by law.

Any taxpayer who is not satisfied with the valuation of his property as fixed and entered upon the return list, may file objections in writing to such assessed valuations with the Secretary of said Board (Akins I. Collins) on or before the last Monday in May, 1934, and the taxpayer shall set out in such objections filed the description of each item of property and his reason for making objection to the assessed valuation as placed thereon. (Section 158 of 1923 Revenue Act).

AKINS I. COLLINS,
Tax Assessor, Chilton County.

CHAS. COOPER EXPRESSES THANKS TO THE VOTERS

I take this method of expressing my most heartfelt thanks to the more than five hundred men and women who cast their ballots for me in the recent primary.

To those who voted for my opponents, let me say to you that I do not hold any ill feeling towards you at all. I am very sorry it was impossible for me to see and talk with more of the voters before the primary.

In looking over the tabulations of the votes I notice that the most of the votes I received were in the communities where I had the opportunity to talk with the voters. I still feel confident that the most of the people of Chilton County want a three dollar auto tag; homestead exemption, and cheaper school books. So let us hope that whoever represents Chilton County in the lext legislature will do all he can to get the above items written into law.

In conclusion let me ask that each Republican voter remain loyal to our party and not get mift-up because he failed to get enough votes or because his particular choice fell just a little short of votes in the final check-up.

Again thanking you, I beg to remain yours for the success of our entire ticket this fall.—Charles Cooper.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Mrs. Sarah Gray Boockholdt acknowledge with grateful appreciation your kind expression of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during the sickness and death of our dear mother.—The children.

MT. CARMEL. NEWS

Our Sunday school met with but few present owing to bad weather and sickness. We do hope that those hindered owing to sickness will soon be with us again, and those old measles will die a natural death, never to revie again. We had a few visitors with us. We were proud to have them. We welcome visitors at any time, and may it be that more will see fit to visit our Sunday school.

Our singing society is, it seems, to be on a drag but maybe it will take a jumping start and get started again soon, and not be any need of applying brakes. We need to sing praises unto God more than we do anyway, I think. May it be that we can all meet together more with the same minds and accords. God help us to do this and that the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be acceptable in Thy sight, Oh, Lord, our strength and our redeemer.

CANE CREEK

Services at this church for next Saturday and Sunday will be as follows:

Preaching Saturday at 11:00, Saturday evening at 7:30, Sunday at 11 and Sunday evening at 7:30. We are also going to have a mother's day program which will be between Sunday school and preaching. We will have Sunday school at 9:00. So everybody come early and attend all the services.

Next Sunday is also our singing afternoon. Everybody is cordially invited to attend all services, and don't forget B. Y. P. U. each Sunday night.

Lesson for May 13

CHRISTIANITY AND PATRIOTISM (Temperance and Good Citizenship)

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:15-22; 34-40.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus said unto him, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Matt. 22:37-39.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Great Commandment.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Christian Patriot.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Citizen.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Citizenship.

The committee has made the lesson unit to embrace chapters 22 and 23. Objection may be offered to this because of the great scope and also the dissimilarity of material. It is better to confine the lesson to chapter 22:15-22, 34-40. However, verses 1-14 provide the necessary background from which to view the teachings of the lesson. The parable of the king's marriage feast stresses the necessity of a right relationship to God, which is essential for a life of temperance and good citizenship.

I. The Tribute Money (vv. 15-22).

1. The subtle question (vv. 14-17). The Pharisees and Herodians purposed to entrap Jesus and thus bring him into conflict with the Roman government. Therefore they came to him with the subtle question, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar or not?" To have answered this question by either "yes" or "no" would have involved difficulties. "Yes" would have conveyed the impression of endorsement of all that the Roman government did. "No" would have at once brought him into conflict with the government. There are times when it is difficult for a Christian to determine his right relation to civil government. Some ministers have failed in their work because of their failure to solve this problem.

2. Christ's reply (vv. 18-21). The principle set forth in this reply when properly understood and applied is the final word on the Christian's relationship to civil government. The obligation of the Christian citizen is to render obedience to civil authority in all matters which do not violate God's law. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's" means that within the realm of the rights of government the Christian should yield glad and free obedience. Christ's answer not only sets forth the Christian's relationship to government but also the correct principles governing all lives. Those enjoying the benefits of civil government should support that government, and those enjoying the blessings of God should render full allegiance to him.

II. The First and Great Commandment in the Law (vv. 34-40).

For the third time in one day the Lord was tried by hard questions. While these questioners were prompted by wrong motives, we should be forever glad they were put to the Lord because of the invaluable truths disclosed by his answers.

1. The Pharisees' question (vv. 34-36). With a lawyer as their representative they asked which is the great commandment in the law.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 37-40). In this answer he summarized the law and set forth the sum total of a human responsibility. This embraces two commandments.

a. The first commandment (vv. 37, 38). "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all they heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." This means that supreme and undivided love to God is the first and great commandment. It shows that man's supreme obligation is to God. It is utterly wrong to evaluate man's character on the basis of his morality as expressed in his relation to his fellow man. Real righteousness is doing the right thing with God.

b. The second commandment (vv. 39, 40). The second commandment is like unto the first in that it centers in love. It is not said that it is equal unto the first, which would be untrue. A man may love himself but not supremely. The measure set is love for self. We are under obligation to love God better than ourselves because he is the supreme one and worthy and demands all of our affection. The command to love our neighbor is involved in the command to love God. To attempt to establish a brotherhood among men without the recognition of the Fatherhood of God is utter nonsense. Men become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ. The only way to bring in the brotherhood of man is to preach Jesus Christ to the race and secure acceptance of him.

Cleanse Each Step

The stairs between us and our ambition may be smeared with filth or stained with blood, but we can avoid soiling our feet by cleansing each step as we proceed. We need not wade through filth to win.

Mental Discomfort

All mental discomfort comes from our minds being in divergence from God's; when the two are agreed, no warfare occurs, for they work together.

LIBERTY HILL

Next Saturday and Sunday are our regular preaching days here. All members are requested to be present and bring some groceries or anything you have to spare to eat to help pay up the pastor's salary. If you wish to enjoy mother's day come and bring something.—Board of Deacons, D. W. Ward, chairman.

M. D. FOSHEE EXPRESSES THANKS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my heartfelt thanks to those that supported me in the recent primary. While I was defeated, I will always have a warm spot in my heart for those who supported me. And to those who saw fit to vote against me, I have no ill feeling.—M. D. Foshee.

THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space to thank the voters who supported me in the primary of May 1st. I want to say they did so without pay or promise of any special favors, and I know they are my friends. I want to say too, that I appreciate your vote and influence just the same as if I had been nominated.

I said in the beginning if I could get the majority honestly and honorably I wanted the office, but if I couldn't, I didn't want it. So the people said they wanted Mr. Cobb or Mr. Bean, we don't know which one it will be, yet, but I will vote for one of them on June 12, and be satisfied with the results.

Wishing the party much success and thanking you again for your support, I remain as ever,—A. Perry Robinson.

OAK GROVE

Preaching and Sunday school at this place were fine Sunday. We also had a good singing Sunday afternoon. Quite a large crowd of visitors from other communities helped out with the singing.

Rev. Jones from Thorsby rendered us a wonderful sermon Saturday night. We are sorry the weather was so bad that he didn't have a full house.

A goodly number of the Oak Grove people attended preaching at Oak Hill Sunday night. Bro. Brasher Northcutt preached a real good sermon.

We were very glad to have Bro. Horace Neighbors with us at Church Saturday night.

Bro. Tunnell and wife spent Saturday night with Oak Grove friends, enroute to their home in Birmingham.

Mr. Forrest Glass of Birmingham spent the week end with home folks.

Miss Lillian Martin of Sylacauga was visiting home folks last week.

Mr. Bill Cofer of near Birmingham attended the singing here Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ida Matthews of Jemison dined with Mr. and Mrs. Ealon Cobb Sunday.

Everybody in Oak Grove community are complaining with sore knees these days. Wonder what's the trouble?

Listen, everybody, and remember, lest you forget. We are presenting a play at Oak Grove Saturday night, May 19th, "Miss Topsy Turvy," for the benefit of the church. Everything will be "topsy turvy" on that date, so come and be with us.

"NO BRIDE FOUND"

A marriage license issued to J. R. Chamblee and Katherine Spear, of Route 3, Crossville, was returned on Tuesday to the probate judge's office unexecuted. On the outside of the certificate written in a boyish hand were the words "No Bride Found." young Chamblee had represented the girl's age as being 18. Her father protested she was only 15, and it is presumed prevented the marriage.—Collinsville New Era.

GERALD HUBBARD THANKS VOTERS FOR DENNIS SUPPORT

During the recent Republican Primary campaign Mr. Gerald Hubbard, of Beat 9, was an ardent supporter of Mr. J. N. Dennis, candidate for Probate Judge.

Mr. Hubbard requests publication of the following statement to his many friends:

"I want to say to my friends throughout Chilton County that I most heartily appreciate the fine support you gave to Mr. Dennis in his campaign for the Republican nomination for Probate Judge. While we did not win, we are nevertheless much gratified at the support accorded Mr. Dennis. I regard it as a favor to me that so many of my friends joined with us in our contest."

THE addition of an Electric Refrigerator to your household is a wise investment in health, convenience and economy. It assures food freshness and safeguards health every day of the year. This is especially important in homes where there are growing children! For grownups an Electric Refrigerator means convenience — freedom from worry—frozen salads and desserts—an abundance of ice cubes. For children it means sparkling health, vigor and vitality — an abundance of pure, fresh milk at all times. Of course an Electric Refrigerator saves money, but the health and comforts it brings to your family are far more important than that!

CENTER HILL NEWS

The people around here are bad behind with thei rplanting, owing to so much rain.

There was nothing doing here Sunday except Sunday school. Not so many were present. Several officers were absent. Come next Sunday and let's try to have a good Sunday school and a large crowd as that is our regular preaching day.

We have set aside the fourth Sunday in June as the time for our all day singing.

Our weekly singing was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Cobb last Wednesday night.

The people of this and adjoining communities were made to feel sad last Thursday morning when they learned of the death of Mrs. John Webb of Jemison. The funeral was conducted from the Jemison Baptist church of which she was a member, with burial in Center Hill cemetery Friday afternoon. Rev. Jones of Thorsby officiated, with Martin, of Clanton, in charge. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, John Webb, one son, Curtis, of Birmingham. The beautiful flowers were a token of the love and esteem the people had for this dear lady.

Mrs. Louis Gillespie and son, Berney Wayne, of Clanton, spent part of last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Cobb.

Mrs. Franklin Miller of Free Springs visited Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Miller Saturday.

Miss Gladys Cobb of Oak Grove spent Tuesday night with Miss Mildred Cobb.

Mr. and Mrs. Lem Sims of Sylacauga spent the week end here visiting his and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sims and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scott.

Mrs. W. C. Erwin and daughter, Lois, and sons, Eugene and Earl, of Calera, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Buster Scott Sunday afternoon. They were accompanied by Mr. Grady Gillespie of Clanton.

Messrs. Joe Cobb and T. J. Miller and Misses Mable Cobb and Olean Miller visited the old time singing Sunday.

Messrs. Ben Tom Haynes and V. Miller made a flying trip to Birmingham Monday.

Mr. Houston Ray was the dinner guest of Mr. Leo Collum Sunday.

Messrs. James Gentry and R. H. Davis were the dinner guests of Mr. Leo Cobb Sunday.

Mrs. Louanna Houldritch of Wetumpka attended the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Webb, here Friday.

Mr. Leo Cobb is in Birmingham this week.

Don't forget next Sunday is our preaching day.

Misses Ila and Lila Ellison have returned to their home at South Calera, after spending several days with Misses Mary and Eula Price.

Mr. and Mrs. George Thornbro (nee Irene Dennis) of over in Perry County, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Dennis, last Tuesday.

Mesdames Essie Collum, Viva Corey and Etta Miller were the guests of Mrs. B. L. Cobb Sunday afternoon.

Mesdames Dennis and Marie Thomas visited Mrs. Bernice Scott Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Childress visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Cobb, Sunday afternoon.

JEMISON LADY BURIED FRIDAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice A. Webb, 52, wife of J. M. Webb, who died last Thursday at 8:30 a.m. at her home, near Jemison, following a paralytic stroke, were held Friday at 2 p.m. from the Jemison Baptist church, of which she was a member, with the Rev. J. W. Jones officiating. Martin & Sons were in charge.

Although Mrs. Webb had been in poor health, since suffering from a paralytic stroke about three years ago, her death came unexpectedly to her family and friends. Returning from Birmingham, where she had attended the funeral of a relative, Monday afternoon, she became ill before she reached her home and never regained consciousness.

She was born and reared in Chilton County and had lived for many years at Jemison, where she was an active member of the Jemison Baptist church.

Surviving her are her husband, J. M. Webb, Jemison; and one son, J. C. Webb, of Birmingham.

Mrs. Renfro Mullins and daughter, Gene, are spending this week in Huntsville.

PERRY GORE EXPRESSES THANKS TO THE VOTERS

The Union-Banner:

I wish to say through your paper that I appreciate the consideration given me in the recent Republican primary. I am indeed grateful to everyone who saw fit to cast their vote for me for commissioner from the second district.

To those who saw fit to vote for my opponent, will say that I gladly grant you the privilege of voting for your choice. — Sincerely, T. Perry Gore.

YATES THANKS VOTERS

Editor Uunion-Banner:

Through your columns allow me to express my deepest appreciation to my friends who supported me on May the first, for member of the board of education.

I thank each one for your vote just as much, though defeated, as if I had been successful and also to those who saw fit to vote for others, I hold no ill will. Your choice is mine. Yours for the success of the ticket in November.—S. M. Yates, Jr.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

University, Ala., May 8.—Perhaps underlying the unhappiness of our recent years in America, the surfeiting of fat years and the starving of leans, lies the unpleasant fact that in significant respects we have permitted the degradation of the ancient American ideal in education, Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of the Washington and Lee university, stated in the annual Alumni Day address at the University of Alabama Monday evening.

"Today we seek to restore fundamental purposes. We are developing a new technique designed to introduce men to the problematic fields of pulic concern; to open new channels, operative both ways, between the centers of learning and the performance, whether it be in the mode of political service or as the ultimate achievment in private effort."

In conclusion Dr. Gaines said that today, after the tumult of our greatest war, we have no other resource than education for the recrystallization of our social aspiration.

The commencement exercises were held at the University of Alabama May 6, 7 and 8. The commencement program was begun Sunday afternoon, May 6, with a band concert, directed by H. H. Turner, in Denny stadium. Following the concert, Dr. John W. Fraser, pastor of the Church Street Methodist Church, of Selma, preached the baccalaureate sermon in the stadium.

Monday, May 7, was a holiday for University students in order that they might attend the Alumni Day exercises. Included in the program was the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees; installation of students association officers for next session; meeting of the Alumni Council; review of the cadet corps by Governor Miller and staff during which annual Governor's Day awards were made; the Phi Beta Kappa andn Beta Gamma Sigma (scholastic fraternities) spring luncheons for initiation of new members; baseball game between Alabama and Mississippi State; the alumni senior banquet on Doster lawn, the final ball; and a mineral exhibit in Smith Hall

Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, spoke in Morgan Hall at 8:00 p.m. Monday evening to alumni and graduates of 1934.

The program for Tuesday, May 8, consisted of the senior women's luncheon in Doster Hall; the annual business session of the alumnae association in Doster Hall, the president's reception for faculty, seniors and friends of the University.

At 4:45 p.m. the academic procession formed at the Alabama Union and marched to Denny stadium for the final exercise. The University band played Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," the Rev. Dr. George Lang of the University's department of religion and philosophy, gave the invocation, the band played Rachmannioff's "Prelude in C Sharp Minor," Major E. H. Underwood, commandant of cadets, awarded commissions in the United States Army Reserve Corp to graduating members of the R.O.T.C. and President Denny presented diplomas.

A purposeful future makes for a zestful today, Dr. John W. Frazer, of Selma, told the graduating class of the University of Alabama in the baccalaureate sermon delivered in Denny Stadium Sunday afternoon. Urging them to aim toward some form of work which would be congenial throughout their lives, Dr. Frazer drew upon the life of St. Paul of Tarsus to enforce his baccalaureate sermon.

Dr. Frazer closed his sermon with the thought that idealism and abandonment to a single high purpose still have a place and are needed in the material world of today.

The exact date upon which Alabama Alpha chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was founded at the University of Alabama has been definitely established as July 5, 1851, Dr. Oscar M. Voorhees, national historian of the society of Phi Beta Kappa, reported at the annual spring luncheon of Alpha Monday, May 7. Dr. Voorhees stated that the records of the chapter had disappeared, and that the date of Alpha's founding had been lost until four months ago when he discovered documents which had rested undisturbed in the archives of the Alpha of Rhode Island for more than four score years. Among these documents was found a letter from Dr. F. A. P. Barnard in which he reported the installation of the chapter. But this chapter became inactive during the war between the states and remained so until August 18, 1912, when the chapter was revived.

The "Mobile Hi Times," student news publication of Murphy High School of Mobile, Ala., has been awarded first prize in the 1934 contest for Alabama high school newspapers sponsored by the University of Alabama extension division, officials announced Thursday. Bernard Burch is editor of the paper.

The extension division also announced that "The Tatler" of Woodlawn High School, Birmingham, Robert Jones, editor, took second prize; and "The Mirror" of Phillips High Birmingham, with Claude Chilton and Clinton McGee as editors-in chief, was awarded third place.

Honorable mention went to the Perri-Kinkle, of the Perry County High School at Marion, Ala. Miss Mary Thomas Ward is editor-in-chief.

The Murphy high paper will receive a trophy presented by the extension division. The presentation is to be made early next fall.

Judges in the contest were most favorably impressed by the general excellence of "The Mobile Hi Times." With respect to both appearance and content, it unquestionably ranks among the outstanding high school publications of the country, it was said. The runners-up also were complimented for the same noteworthy characteristics.

The department of high school publications of the University of Alabama extension division of which C. E. Cason, head of the University of Alabama department of journalism, is director, holds two contests annually for Alabama high school publications. One is for annuals published by the secondary schools of the state and the other for school papers.

Editors of the school annuals are again being invited to submit samples of their 1934 publications to Prof. Cason for judging and for constructive criticism.

Leon Sanford and Douglas Nelson of Montgomery were among the visitors here Sunday.

LOVELADY REUNION

The Lovelady family reunion was held on May 6th. Relatives and friends met at Mr. and Mrs. Marsh Lovelady's to celebrate his 60th birthday. All laughed and talked and had a glorious time until 12:30 o'clock. Then the good ladies spread the dinner on the table out in the yard, where everybody came around and enjoyed a most bountiful dinner. After dinner they laughed and talked of the good time they had had and all went home rejoicing, hoping to meet at the above date next year.

Those present were Willie Claud Friday and family; King Nichols and family; John Carter and family; Joe Davis and family; Johnnie Lovelady and family; Rother Harrison and family; Willie Lovelady and family; Buck Carter, Leo Lovelady, Mr. and Mrs. Lum Keener, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Keener, Mrs. Bedie Hambric, Mrs. Annie Hambric, Misses Ollie Lovelady, Gladys Samples, Mattie Herman, Francis and Margaret Terry, Hillard and Mason Gay, J. D. Lovelady, Lem Roysturn and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Lovelady.

May God bless the one for whom this day was celebrated.—A friend.

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

If you want to GET RID of Constipation worries—

The unwise use of harsh laxatives may drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the wrong choice of laxatives often does more harm than good.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:

First: select a good liquid laxative. Second: take the dose you find is suited to your system. Third: gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

THORSBY SECTION

(Mrs. S. E. Norton, Manager)

There will be regular services at the Congregational church next Sunday, Sunday school at 9:45, preaching service at 11:00 and Christian Endeavor at 6:30.

There will be preaching both morning and evening at the Baptist church next Sunday.

Services will be held in the Lutheran church next Sunday as follows: Sunday school at 9:45; Swedish services at 10:45; English services at 7:30 p.m.

The Baptist Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. J. W. Jones on Thursday of this week.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Johanna Lefsted on Thursday afternoon, May 17.

At a special business session by the Lutheran Congregation held after services last Sunday it was decided to ask Rev. Fant to return to Thorsby after his visit with his family in Illinois. Rev. Fant expects to leave for Illinois about May 28.

Circle No. 1 of the W. M. U. of the Thorsby Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. E. R. Piper Tuesday afternoon.

A social event of last week that was of much interest was the miscellaneous shower given on Saturday by Mrs. S. J. Davenport in honor of Miss Mary Louise Bates. The home was beautifully decorated with roses. Miss Bates was lovely in a white crepe dress. Mrs. S. J. Davenport received the guests at the door and Miss Lois Primm displayed the gifts. Mrs. Luther Callaway of Cooper presided over the bride's book and Mrs. Herman Robinson and Mrs. Cecil Cleckler served punch and sandwiches to the guests. There were seventy-two present and forty gifts were received from those who were unable to attend. Miss Bates is one of our most beloved young ladies and we wish her much happiness.

The following announcement which appeared in a recent edition of the Montgomery Advertiser and the Atlanta Constitution will be of interest interest in Thorsby:

Mrs. Ada F. Arthur, of Midland City, announces the engagement of her daughter, Annie Lou, to Jones Taft Gill, of Meansville, Ga., the wedding to take place at an early date.

The following women enjoyed a birthday party at Mrs. Goddard's Monday afternoon: Mrs. Joseph Each, Mrs. C. M. Williams, Mrs. Burt Higgins, Mrs. Bob Davenport, Mrs. Malcolm Manning, Mrs. M. E. Willis and Mrs. Martin Peterson.

Mrs. S. M. Connatser left Friday to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Louise Scott, in Birmingham.

Mrs. Joseph Each and three daughters, Juanita, Lucile and Marie, spent Friday night and Saturday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Maddox and Mrs. Maddox's sister, Miss Annie Lou Arthur, who is visiting her for a few days, made a trip to Birmingham Saturday.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald spent Friday night and Saturday in Birmingham visiting with her children, who live there.

Rev. and Mrs. Lawrence Stanley, son, Sherwood and daughter, Jane, were the Sunday dinner guests at the dining hall.

Mr. C. R. Foss, who has been the manager of the Cash Grocery Store the past year, is now leaving that position to go in business with his father in the meat market. Mr. M. Edwards will assume the management of the Cash Store. Mr. and Mrs. M. Edwards come from Columbiana. They have rented the Nels Peterson house and will move in there today, Tuesday.

Mrs. Joseph Each will entertain the faculty of Thorsby Institute and a few others on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Hattie M. Gerald visited in Clanton Sunday and Monday, returning home Tuesday morning.

Mrs. A. P. Villadsen and son, Henry, spent Thursday in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Peddicord and daughter, Frances, from Chicago, are visiting their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. N. Laurell.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Laurell, Mrs. Love and daughter, Christine, spent Friday in Birmingham with Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Moore.

Thorsby Institute News

Last Saturday night the last open meeting of the Helen Keller Literary Society was held. Part of the members were contested. They were a tie, but the Pushmataha Club won the banner, as they won the point for attendance.

At the 30-minute period Monday, Miss Odell, a missionary on furlough from Turkey, spoke in a most interesting manner. She showed the costumes of the different women and men, and spoke principally on the social customs.

Tuesday morning, May 8, at the chapel, the last music program was given under the direction of Miss Phillips. The Girls Glee Club sang two numbers, a piano solo was played by Mae Pearl Sorrell, a song was given by the Girls Trio and the Boys Trio.

A week from Saturday, May 20, at 3:30 p.m., will be the music recital by Miss Phillips' pupils. Everyone is invited.

A week from Sunday the Baccalaureate service will take place at 11 o'clock in the auditorium. Rev. A. T. Fant of the Lutheran church will preach the sermon.

Wednesday night, May 23, at 7:45, the Senior Class will have its play and class night. Admission will be 25c and 15c.

Thursday morning, May 24, at 10:30 the commencement exercises will take place. Rev. A. W. Dycer, D. D., pastor of the Community Congregational Church, Birmingham, will give the address. There will be a community dinner on the grounds. Each family will please bring some food to contribute to the dinner.

REYNOLDS THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County, Alabama:

I wish to express my most sincere appreciation to those who voted for me for Probate Judge in the Republican primary of May 1st.

My campaign was made before the people in an open and candid manner, with what I conceived to be a fair consideration toward all persons and their interests. I did not resort to any means unfair to my opponents, and I did not introduce any unfair issues. My official record of the past and my own policies for the future were made the basis of my campaign and my appeal to the voters.

You expressed yourselves, and I deeply appreciate the confidence and support of every voter who supported me. I hold no ill will toward those who voted for my opponents. I have always tried to be fair to everybody, and upon the foundation of fairness to build and hold the friendship, respect and good will of my fellow citizens.

I dare say that every voter who supported me was approached from one to many times with high pressure methods seeking to turn them away from me. I am gratified that 1,149 of you stood with me against all odds. I know that none of those who voted for me were unduly influenced to do so, and that they supported me for what I have been in the past and what they knew I would do in the future.

I felt that this being a primary and a contest within the Republican party to nominate its officers to oppose the Democrats in the general election that the campaign would be conducted fairly and openly without any untruths or misstatements against any candidate, but I have had numerous reports that some office holders who were not candidates in the last primary and others went over the county misstating the truth and misrepresenting the records in the Commissioners Court and mistating the truth regarding certain transactions of the Commissioners Court in the past year. I think the people should have the truth regarding this and it shall be my intention to place this matter fairly and squarely before the voters before the second primary. It is reported that one of these Republican officials has openly and publicly stated that if certain men were not nominated he would not support the Republican party in the general election and this same person has been conspiring with and from time to time advising with certain Democratic candidates for the purpose of betraying the Republican party next November. I think now is the time to bring this situation before the Republican voters in order that they may not be misled.

It is no secret that night riders went over Chilton County on the night before the election with false literature and other misrepresentations and untruths against Mr. J. N. Dennis and myself and necessarily without giving either of us a chance to answer these false statements. I have hoped that the Republican party in Chilton County would endure throughout the years to come, but it cannot unless it stands for clean politics and a free and untrammeled ballot.—Respectfully, L. H. Reynolds.

Corn-Hog Report For Chilton Cn'y

We have two government rental projects in this county. You have heard more of the cotton program than anything else for the last five months, but the farmers of Chilton County will realize a neat little sum from the Corn-Hog program. The total amount that will be received by 21 hog growers in the county is $3,-134.10. One payment of this amount is about $1,000.00 will be sent to the growers as soon as the contracts are completed and sent to Washington. Another one-third payment will come to the growers in December of this year, and the final payment will be made in February, 1935.

Corn - Hog Contract Statements of Members of the Corn-Hog Control Association of Chilton County, State of Alabama:

The following is a statement of the basic information on corn acreage and hog production submitted by individual producers of Chilton County, Alabama, who have signed contracts under the 1934 Corn-Hog Production Adjustment Program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

Any person may make a confidential report, oral or written, to the county allotment committe or to the community committee if he finds any statement here which he believes to be inaccurate.

J. E. COBB THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me to express through your paper my sincere thanks for the support given me in the campaign just closed. I realize that there were so many candidates for the same job that it made it kindly hard for the voters to choose from but now there are only two and I am asking that you consider my record as Commissioner and if you see fit cast a vote in my favor next election, and it will be appreciated very much. Being that the second primary is so close, I won't be able to see near all the voters and am taking this means of asking for your support.

Thanking you again for your suppoort and influence.—Yours truly, Joe E. Cobb.

OAK HILL NEWS

Rev. J. N. Green filled his regular appointment at this place Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning. And as usual he did his excellent best and gave the Sunday afternoon preaching hour to one of our home boys, Rev. Brasher Northcutt, to preach his first sermon, having been licensed by the Alabama Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Brother Northcutt took as his text "Light," which was a very appropriate subject in this day, since so many of our spiritual lights have grown dim and some have gone out.

The church was filled to its capacity as our neighboring churches, Oak Grove, Union Grove and Mt. Pleasant omitted their services and came to hear him. The Oak Grove Quartet was present, rendering several beautiful numbers. They were requested by Brasher to sing "Hold Out the Light," before he began his sermon. Brother Brasher is to be complimented on this, his first sermon. As he was well poised, his words were well chosen and full of meaning and he delivered the message in the manner of an experienced speaker. He is a very promising young minister, as he is a deep thinker and a Christian every day of the week. "Let Your Light So Shine That the World May see Your Good Works."

On the first Sunday afternoon in June another of our home boys will preach at this place, Rev. Amzi Thrash, who was licensed by the Alabama Conference of the M. E. Church. We invite everyone to come and hear him. We are very proud, indeed, of these young men and hope they will be the means of other young men and women in making a start for a better life.

We have a visiting young minister with us who will preach tonight, May 8th, Mr. Julius Carpenter, grandson of Uncle Jack Glasscock. We hope people do not go just for curiosity, but to get a blessing. We are told that this young man preached his first sermon last Sunday afternoon in Sylacauga. We are glad to have these local ministers of the gospel with us.

The young people of this community attended the singing at Oak Grove Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Almon Glass are the proud parents of a baby girl named Ponillia Joe. Mother and baby are doing nicely.

Miss Emma Atkinson entertained with a kid party Friday afternoon.

The Epworth League has a special Mother's Day program for Sunday afternoon. Everybody invited to attend.

BIG SINGING AT WALNUT CREEK

Remember the Mothers' Day Singing at Walnut Creek Church on the Second Sunday in May. We invite all singers in the county to come and bring their books. Bring a basket filled with good things to eat.

Rev. J. H. Limbrick will preach the special sermon at eleven o'clock. Everybody is invited to come and be with us.—C. N. Nolen, Pastor.

A birthday party was given Dr. S. J. Ezell at the Baptist church Monday night. All the deacons of the church participated and donated the beloved pastor a nice present.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huett of Enterprise were in Clanton Wednesday.

INK DROPS

from COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL

By Dan Smith

On the front page of this paper you will find the announcement of Commencement Exercises at C. C. H. S. for 1934. The faculty and students extend a cordial invitation to the public to attend their Commencement Exercises.

The baseball season for C. C. H. S. this year is nearing the close. Only a few games are left to be played. Up to the present time Chilton has a splendid record, one to be proud of. Wednesday of last week our nine went to Centreville where they met their first defeat of the season 10 to 3. Last Friday Marbury met our boys on the local diamond and Chilton lost by a score of 4 to 1. Yesterday Centreville met our boys on the local diamond. Friday Chilton goes to Montevallo. Yea Chilton!

Miss Clyde Smilie's Junior Two History Class presented an educational program in chapel last Wednesday. The program was about famous men in our history. The lives of such men as George Washington, Andrew Carnige and Thomas Edison were told.

The Senior play was a big success. The entire program has brought highest praise to Miss Frances Gulledge, the director, and those who took part. The presentation between the acts won many fine comments due to the fact that they were new and different. Yes, sir, the Seniors gave their last high school play last Friday night and it was a perfect ending.

Final examinations will begin next Wednesday. Every student should make the best of the few days left to review. Time is valuable now for there are only five days left in which to prepare for the final examinations.

Congratulations to two C. C. H. S. students that we are very proud to claim—Theda Wyatt and Mary Armstrong. These two girls entered the District Music Contest in Montgomery Saturday and each won first prize in their specefic field. Theda won first prize for piona soloist and Mary won the first prize in the hymn playing contest.

The Senior play revealed quite a bit of hidden talent that was in C. C. H. S. James Tiffin's act has been commented upon by many and those girls who sang at the piano, Maralyn Hardy, Myrtis Smith, Frances Rasberry, Mary Charles Cox, Frances Davis and Frances Higgins, sounded like professionals. The stunt by Bernice Powell and Leonard Popwell was fine too.

Every student should hear Dr. Zebulon Judd's address at the graduation Exercises Monday night, May 1.

With only about two chapel periods left we should like to have the pastors down to give us another of their appreciated and well-liked talks.

Who Is She? * * * Alice Petty was the unlucky one last week. Now try this one, I'm sure you won't guess it. * * * She is beautiful. She has charming manners. She is a young lady. She isn't a Senior. She has brown eyes. You can't say too many good things about her. She's a darl——. I had better stop before I tell who she is.

The school wants to thank William Arthur Willis at the University for the nice picture of Woodrow Wilson. This picture is now hanging in the Senior I room.

A. J. DAVIS THANKS VOTERS

I want to especially thank each and everyone who gave me their vote and influence in the past election. I will also appreciate anything that anyone can do for me in the coming election. If I am your nominee I will assure you that I will do what I can for the best interest of the people.

Thanking every one again, I am,—Yours truly, A. J. Davis, Jemison, Alabama, Route 1.

W. L. SANDERS THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to express my thanks for your support in the primary of May the first. Was sorry that conditions were such that made it impossible for me to see many of you, but hope it will be possible for me to see you before the primary of June 12th.

I have made the race thus far on my own merits and the principles I shall advocate and support if elected.

Some have accused me of being lined up with some political faction, this accusation I wish to say is untrue. I have made the race for representative and have made no fight for nor against any candidate or group of candidates.

There were also rumors that I was disqualified on account of not filing certain papers with the proper authorities. I wish to say that I have a receipt for all papers necessary to be qualified and that I have been qualified all the while. Such statements were not put out to hurt anyone, but often they are used for that purpose.

I shall continue my race on my merits and with all fairness to my opponent. Your continued support and influence in my behalf will be greatly appreciated.

Yours truly,
W. L. SANDERS.

MRS. T. D. POTTS HONORED BY MRS. H. M. NIX AT SURPRISE TEA

Mrs. T. D. Potts was honoree at a surprise tea Sunday afternoon from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m. honoring her eighty-sixth birthday at the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the beautiful decoration of cut flowers, including roses, weigela and begonias. The large cake with eighty-six candles and decorated with eighty-six roses and plumosa fern arounr the cake. The receiving line consisted of Mrs. Potts, honoree; Mrs. Sallie Shanks, Miss Margaret Walker, Mrs. Deramus, Mrs. Jennie Foshee, Mrs. Bobbie Saportus, Mrs. Bill Nix, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Nix, and Mrs. F. A. Shanks received the guests. Miss Mary Dee Potts served over the guest book. Misses Annie Laurie Potts and Helen Nix persided at the punch bowl. The well-arranged program by Mrs. Floyd Dorsey was beautifully rendered. "Happy Days," by all; solo, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," by Mrs. P. W. Boykin, Mrs. Dorsey, pianist; duet, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," by Mesdames Stanley Hayes and Dudley Nix; reading composed and dedicated to Grandmother Potts, by Mrs. Francis Maples Camp; solo, "Love's Old Sweet Song," by Mr. Morgan Wallace; solo, "Barbara Allen," by Van Potts.

J. Z. MIMS THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Permit me, through the columns of your paper, to express my sincere thanks to the Republicans of Chilton County for their splendid support in the primary on May the 1st.

I worked hard for the nomination, I tried to see every Republican at their home and discuss with them personally my views and plans on county government.

I conducted my campaign on a high plane and as fair as I know. This being the case I can the more appreciate the splendid vote I received.

To you who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents I hold no ill feeling, for they are both good men; but since there was not a nomination made on the first of May for the office of Judge of Probate, it appears that I will be in the race for the nomination in the primary on June the 12th, 1934.

Now my fellow Republicans, if you believe good honest and efficient service, which I have tried to render in every place to which I have been assigned duty, deserves promotion, I ask for your vote and influence on the 12th of June.

I have never failed in any responsibility I have assumed. I have given as faithful and humble service as I know how.

I have always stood by the party in defeat as well as in success. I have at all times sought the advice and counsel of my Republican friends and have at all times been willing for the people to speak and say in matters concerning the expenditure of their money and the manner of their government.

I again thank you for your splendid support on May the 1st and ask for your continued support; also for the support of those who saw fit to support my opponents on May 1st. I assure you that your choice on June the 12th will be my choice in November. I beg to remain, yours very truly,—J. Z. Mims.

BROUGHT 61 RABBITS IN 17 MONTHS

Jesse Mitchell of Verbena Route 2, living on the east end of the Poplar Springs road, is a noted rabbit raiser. He reports that one mother rabbit, a black Belgian-Zealand, now 17 months old, has given birth to a total of 61 little rabbits. There have been seven litters. If you need meat in a hurry, get you some rabbits.

American Colleges to Meet In Long Crew Race in June

Coach Ulbrickson of Washington Eight, a Strong Contender in 4-mile Row, Skilled in Conditioning Men.

SPRING prophets of rowing are keeping close watch on the University of Washington crew this year. Last year all three Washington eights defeated strong California crews, and the Varsity won the National Intercollegiate Championship at Los Angeles into the bargain. All of which points to a strong contender at the reinstated Poughkeepsie, N. Y., rowing classic of America's leading colleges in June.

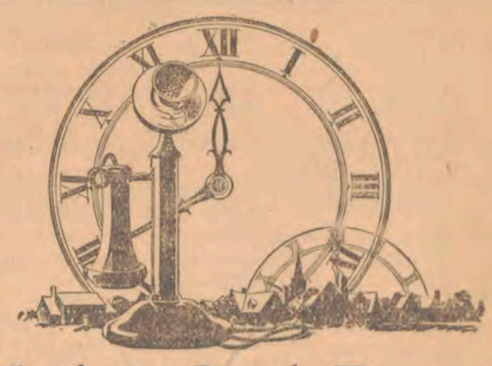
In the last five years Washington crews have defeated their favorite opponents, the California Golden Bears, in three out of five races, and won at Madison, Wisconsin, both times entered.

Washington purple and gold first appeared on the Hudson River in 1923 and took the race. The following year another Washington crew placed first, and another in 1926. Second places came to them in 1925, 1927, and 1929; third places in 1928 and 1931; and sixth in 1930.

A record like this points to pretty careful grooming, as well as to native strength. Coach Ulbrickson well knows that physical condition means almost everything in the gruelling test of a race. Washington crews have one advantage over many eastern eights in that Lake Washington, which adjoins the campus of the University, never freezes in the mild winters of the Pacific Northwest state, and boatmen can practice outdoors the year round.

In addition, Al Ulbrickson is skilled in the fine points of conditioning. For several years, the diet of his oarsmen has included fresh yeast, which he also arranges to have delivered to them on their transcontinental trip and during the stay on the Hudson.

Eastern crews are in full swing of spring practice also, and from the present outlook the thirty-four year old classic will probably present a strong lineup in spite of last year's interruption.



Mothers Look Forward to this Hour...

"It's the hour when sons or daughters or old friends call them from some distant place by telephone. How happily they look forward to this time.

Thousands of families are doing this, not only on special occasions like Mothers' Day, but regularly each week . . . enjoying a short, inexpensive voice visit by telephone with members of the family in other cities. Because your voice is you over the telephone, such visits are as satisfactory as though you were together in the same room.

Visiting loved ones at regular intervals by long distance telephone is a delightful way to keep family ties alive at small cost.

WHAT TREE IS THAT? FLOWERS BEST GUIDE

Montgomery, Ala., May 8.—The identity of tree specimens is often in doubt due to the absence of the flowers from the parts submitted for examination, says Colonel Page S. Bunker, Alabama State Forester. The flowers of trees and other plants are organs which are little affected by environmental influences and contain particular combinations of characters that in most cases readily distinguish a particular species from all others.

The trees of any limited locality may exhibit strongly contrasting forms of leaves, bark and habits of growth, and in such instances it is often possible to identify a species by these characters. However, over larger areas there may occur other species whose leaves or bark resemble those of such trees so closely that these parts do not comprise distinguishing features. It is not at all uncommon to find trees, say, in tropical Africa with leaves that are practically exact replicas of those of certain North American species. In all such instances, recourse to the distinctions shown in the flowers will quickly determine real identities.

In the gathering of tree material for classification, therefore, foresters recommend that wherever possible the flowers be obtained along with the leaves, buds and specimens of both old and young bark. The fruit or other bearing part is also very desirable. With all of these parts from the same tree availale for examination, it is usually possible to make a very accurate identification.

Miss Hilda Hart from Alabama College spent the week end here with her parents.

FORESTS ARE JUSTIFIED FOR EROSION CONTROL

If we use the lessons we have learned and increase at all our per acre production, it is not likely that we will need more land in cultivation than the seven million acres harvested annually now. Suppose, too, that we proceed to curb erosion on these acres which is a laudable undertaking for individuals, groups counties, or states, we have not only to reckon with the water falling directly on this land, but that which may find its way down to it from higher grounds.

In planning an attack on erosion it seems that there are two facts which should be borne in mind—that of the rainfall over all the land, whether in crops or not, must be effectively disposed of and that the larger the collected volume of water the more difficult it is to dispose of for the safety of the land. To provide artificial erosion control measures on the necessary portion of the 7,000,000 acres in cultivation and several million is pasture is going to tax the resources, both mental and physical, of those interested. Then we have 6½ millions in woods and over a million idle acres to consider. What about those acres? Research is showing that where abandoned land is losing as much as 88 tons of soil per acre on some soil types, the same type adjoining but covered by trees is losing none. This may be accounted for by the runoff after rains which shows abandoned land with a runoff of over 44 per cent and land under mature forests losing slightly over ½ of one per cent. The top soil under forests is also shown absorbing water fifty times as fast as in the open field.

The brief conclusion here is, trees will control the rainfall on non-cultivated land. Protected forests are our natutral solution to the control of the water falling on land above our cultivated lands. The soil must handle 50 inches of rainfall per year. When the water is put under control where it strikes the ground it is no problem, but a servant. When it is not controlled and gathers volume and speed it is a menace. Artificial means will control it on cultivated lands. Natural means must be depended upon to control it on the remaining land, and it will, with a chance.

BRIEF RURAL TOPICS

A field in a fence is worth two in the open.

A well filled silo will turn January into June for dairy cows.

A dime's worth of garden seed is worth a dollar's worth of medicine.

The cow that jumped over the moon was probably looking for better pastures.

Legumes for soil building are justified by 2,500 years of successful use. That much testimony can't be disregarded.

Blanks on which to apply for individual cotton allotments will soon be in the hands of producers, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced.

Farmers who are planning to construct a poultry house should be sure to obtain a copy of the plans, specifications, and explanation on poultry house construction published by the extension service at Auburn. It may be had from county agents. It is titled "A Combination Farm Poultry and Brooder House," Pamphlet No. 4, and will be off the press within a few days. A complete bill of material is also included in the pamphlet.

Misses Ernestine Childs and Jane Roberts of Womans College spent Sunday with friends and relatives here.

EASTERLING THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to thank each of you who voted for me in the recent primary election. Although I was not the nominee, I assure you that it did not make me any the less a Republican, but that I will do all I can to help elect our entire ticket in November.

Again thanking you for the support you gave me, I am,—Gratefully yours, J. E. Easterling.

BETTER COTTON ADDS TO INCOME

Auburn, Ala., May 8.—The cotton improvement program promoted by the extension service of the Alabam Polytechnic Institute and cooperating agencies has saved Alabama farmers several million dollars during the last three years, official reports show. It has been estimated by cotton men that Alabama farmers were penalized seven to eight ten million dollars in 1929 and 1930 because of the high per cent of cotton stapling shorter than 7-8.

Through introduction of seed of better staple varities, holding gin days, and organization of one-variety communities the amount of three-quarter has been greatly reduced, the figures being 44.8 per cent shorter than 7-8 inch in 1929, 38.3 in 1930, 10.0 in 1931, 15.4 in 1932 and 8.6 in 1933, according to J. C. Lowery, extension agronomist.

Coates' Bend and Alford's Bend in Etowah County and Lily Flagg in Madison County are definitely organized one-variety communities. A one variety project has been started at Slocomb in Geneva County and in two communities in Butler County.

Farmers in the vicinity of the substations and experimental fields are cooperating in multiplying pure seed.

"Heavy losses are being sustained by farmers because too many varieties of cotton are being grown, Mr. Lowery said. "As high as 15 to 20 different varieties are grown in some communities. The result is crossing in the field by insects, mixing seed in ginning, and planting of bales of good staple with very short staple. Soon the farmers say their cotton has run out and buy new seed.

"The remedy is to grow a good producing variety of 7-8 inch staple and keep it pure by organizing the community into a one-variety community; or, if this cannot be done, grow a seed patch isolated from other varieties and keep the seed pure at the gin."

REFUGE NEWS

We hope everyone will soon be able to come back to Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Connel and Mr. Jodie Connell and two children from Sycamore were here Saturday and Sunday visiting relatives.

Rev. Lockhart filled his appointment at Pates Chapel Sunday. Rev. Durbin didn't get to fill his appointment at Poplar Springs Sunday night on account of the weather.

It is being rumored that our annual all day singing is put off until the third Sunday in June, although this is a mistake. Our singing will be the third Sunday in May, which is only two weeks off. So if you like to sing or hear good singing come to Refuge the third Sunday in May. All singers and listeners are cordially invited. Don't forget the date, the third Sunday in May.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Hayes and children spent the week end in Clayton with relatives.

THE CORINTH SINGING

One of the best singings ever held at Corinth was held there last Sunday. It was an annual affair, and was well attended in spite of the rain most of the day. The opening song was sung by Archie Jones, and prayer was offered by Rev. Hightower. Prof. L. M. Harden was elected chairman. Those directing were W. M. Devaughn, C. F. Hull, Akins Collins, W. G. Culp, L. T. Grant, O. L. Devaughn, I. D. Huett, Richard McKinney, J. Z. Mims, Archie Devaughn, Herman Dubose, Rufus Miller, A. M. Jones, Dewel Jones, Orde Brown, Lee Grant, Dewey Hughes, Orbid Hughes, Jean Wyatt, Paul Hughes, Floy Devaughn, G. C. Weldon, Steve Stanley, Raymond Jones, Dr. J. B. Williams, J. B. Crew, J. W. Cagle. Each director sung one song each. Several numbers were sung by the Clanton Quartet during the day, as well as some other specials, solos, etc.

Several of the directors were young people, and they are due the encouragement of the older people. The people of Corinth thank all the visitors for their help, and invite them back again.—W. A. Jones, Secertary.

Pruitt—Believe it or not, three different men tried to buy my car this afternoon.

Turner—You can't fool me. I guess I know there are only two junk dealers in this town.

W. G. CULP EXPRESSES THANKS FOR SUPPORT IN THE PRIMARY

Editor Union-Banner:

I wish to take this opportunity to express my thanks to the people of Chilton County for the splendid vote given me in the primary of May 1st. I am grateful from the bottom of my heart for this loyal support which made me the Republican nominee for another term as tax collector. I feel deeply touched by this evidence of your continued confidence in me, and assure you that I shall do everything in my power to justify it and demonstrate to you my appreciation by giving the very best service I am capable of.

Should I be elected in November the same policies that have been in effect during my present administration shall continue, that is, giving the best service possible to all alike. I have known no politics in discharging my official duties. My political convictions are Republican, and I will spare no time and effort in working for a bigger, better and more united Republican party in Chilton County.—Yours gratefully, W. G. Culp.

V. T. COBB THANKS VOTERS

Editor Union-Banner:

Please allow me space in your paper to express my appreciation to the voters who gave me their support in the election of May 1st. To the ones who supported my opponents, I hold no malice or ill feeling.—Yours truly, V. T. Cobb.

DRIVER OF CAR WHICH KILLED NEGRO SUBMITS TO ARREST

Accompanied by his attorney, J. W. McEathern, of Clanton, who is said to have run over and killed Will Powell, 50-year-old negro, at Mitylene Thursday night, went to the county jail yesterday and submitted to arrest on a charge of manslaughter. He was released under a bond of $500. McEathern came to Montgomery with Grady Reynolds, attorney of Clanton and former U. S. district attorney.

According to Deputy Sheriff Addie Moseley, who made the investigation, McEathern suddenly swerved his car off the highway to escape crashing into a passenger train. Powell and another negro are reported to have been standing several feet from the road, flagging the train to stop to pick up a batch of mail.

McEathern will be given a preliminary hearing in the Court of Common Pleas next Friday.—Montgomery Advertiser.

ISABELLA HIGH SCHOOL TO HAVE CLOSING EXERCISES

Isabella High school will close its work Monday, May 21, for this school year. Due to the fact that the auditorium is incomplete, both the sermon and address before the graduating class will be held in the Baptist church. Due to the same fact there will be no other exercises except the two addresses.

On Sunday morning, May 20, at 11 o'clock, Rev. Cochran will deliver the commencement sermon and on Monday evening, May 21st, at 8:00 o'clock Hon. J. B. Atkinson will deliver the address before the graduating class.

PROVIDENCE—BEAT 13

Our annual memorial day at this place will be the third Sunday in May. This has been an annual affair for several years and we are expecting another great day. The program for the day will be arranged later.

The people have been asked to meet on Thursday before the third Sunday and clean off the cemetery and do some work about the church.

There will be a box supper at the schoolhouse at this place next Saturday night, May 5th, and don't forget, Saturday night a beautiful quilt will be given away. So, folks, if you haven't got a ticket on this quilt, be sure to get you one Saturday night. Think of a brand new quilt for only 5 cents. Don't forget, all this goes for the church. Come and be with us Saturday night.

H. A. HARRIS THANKS VOTERS

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I want to express to you, through The Union-Banner my sincere thanks and appreciation for the splendid vote given me in the primary election of May the 1st. I assure you that I will always be grateful and appreciative of your support. Since I did not receive a majority of all votes cast in the election, I will enter the run-off election, June the 12th. I did, however, receive a greater number of votes than any other candidate for Circuit Clerk, and, therefore, ask and solicit your continued support and influence.

To you who voted for and supported some other candidate, I have the highest respect and commend you for so doing, but now I ask you to carefully consider me in the June election and I assure you that I will appreciate your vote and influence. I promise to show my appreciation by rendering honest and efficient service, kind and courteous treatment at all times.

Being a teacher and in school until April 20, I did not get to see all of you personally as I had intended, and therefore, appreciate your vote the more. It is my desire to see you before the election, especially those whom I have not seen and talked with in person, but should I fail to do this, I assure you that it will not be intentional and that I will appreciate your vote and influence more than words can express.

I highly commend the Union-Banner and all of the candidates for the quiet, courteous and gentlemanly campaign and only hope that it may continue on the same high plane.

Again soliciting your vote and influence, I am respectfully,—H. A. Harris.

PROVIDENCE—BEAT 16

There will be a special sermon preached at Providence Church, Beat 16, on May 13, at our regular meeting, by our pastor, Rev. J. D. Hughes. He cordially invites everybody that can come to hear him. His subject is a special sermon dedicated to the aged members of Providence Church. —Thos. M. Powell, clerk.

HUGHES THANKS VOTERS

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I wish to take this means through the Union-Banner to express my thanks to those who worked so faithfully and voted for me, May 1st, and those who saw fit to vote for either of my opponents, Mr. Collins or Mr. Cobb, I hold nothing against you for doing so, for I believe in everyone voting for their choice, but I want to ask you now to help me in my race November 8, which I believe you will do gladly.

With best wishes to everyone and success for the Republican party, I am your friend,—Dewey Hughes.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

When Christ asked pointedly what His disciples thought of Him, Peter boldly declared, "Thou are the Christ, the Son of the living God." Matt. 16: 16. Christ blessed Peter, and in reference to the truth of his statement, said, "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." Matt. 16:18. Here notice three things plainly. 1. That Christ said that He would build His church, not that He had built it already, but would build it some time in the future. 2. That it would be His church. He called it, "My church." Christ is the builder and owner of His church. 3. Christ said that He would build His church upon the truth that He himself is the Son of the living God. Christ is the chief cornerstone of His church.

The above facts are clearly stated or taught in various parts of the New Testament. That Christ built (established) His church after His death and resurrection is shown by many facts some of which follow: 1. He purchased it with His blood. (See these references: Acts 20:28; Luke 9:20-21. It is a blood bought institution. 2. He forbade His apostles to tell any man that He was the Christ till He was raised from the dead. Matt. 16:20. 3. The plan of salvation had not been perfected and was not perfected till His resurrection. Rom. 4:25; 1 Cor. 15:17. 4. Peter said that the holy spirit fell on them at the beginning, Acts 11:15. And the holy spirit fell on them at Pentecost, fifty days after the resurrection of Christ. Acts 2nd chapter.

Now that Christ is the owner and builder of His church is also shown by many other scriptures, some of which follow: 1. He is the head over all things to the church, which is His body, the fullness of Him that filleth all in all. Eph. 1:22-23. His body is His church. Col. 1:18. 2. Christ was given authority in heaven and in earth after His resurrection family in heaven and in earth named. Eph. 3:15. 4. There is no other name given under heaven whereby we must be saved Acts 4:12. Thus, Christ is not only the builder, but is the owner of His Church.

Christ is not only the head, authority, and owner of His church, but the truth that He is the Son of the living God is the foundation that is immovable, which hades could not shake. In Him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. Col. 2: 9. To be continued next week, R. L. Huffman.

SANDERS RESIGNS REPUBLICAN POST

Washington, May 3.—The Republican national committee today made public a letter by Everett Sanders saying he had decided to resign as chairman.

The letter given out by the committee contained a call for a special meeting of the Republican National Committee for 10 a.m. Tuesday, June 5, at tthe Palmer House, in Chicago.

This meeting the letter said, would act on his resignation, elect a successor and fill vacancies on the committee.

The text of the letter follows:

"To members of the Republican National Committee:

"I have decided to tender my resignation as chairman of the Republican National Committee, to take effect upon the election of my successor.

"I therefore, in accordance with the rules adopted by the Republican National Convention held in Chicago June, 1932, governing the procedure of the Republican National Committee, do hereby call a special meeting of the Republican National Committee for 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Palmer House, Chicago.

"At that time, in addition to acting upon my resignation and the election of my successor, the committee will be called upon to fill vacancies on the committee for which nominations have been made, and to transact such other business as may come before it.

"Your presence is earnestly requested at this meeting, and I hope to receive early advice of your intention to attend.

"Yours very sincerely,
"Everett Sanders, chairman."

The resignation of Sanders was forecast a week ago but were vigorously denied then by Bennett Gordon, research director for the national committee who said he was speaking for Sanders.

BICE THANKS VOTERS

Voters of Chilton County:

I am deeply grateful for the good vote given me over the county in the recent primary. I've never asked for an elective office before, so I realize some of the voters never had an opportunity to form an opinion of my ability to serve the public. Notice my home beat, 9, stayed by me with their loyalty. They know I served them courteously and faithfully as their postmaster and if elected your Circuit Clerk will serve the people of Chilton County with the service you have a right to expect.

I appeal to you who voted for me to stay with me and use your influence for me in the primary of June 12, and to those whose choice was my opponents, I appeal to you for your vote and influence in the primary of June the 12th.

My age is 45 years. I have shown you my endorsement from the business men of Thorsby, whom I served and came in contact with daily as their postmaster my character, fitness and ability to serve the public.

My opponent held an elective office while I served the World War over sea. Now, my friends, consider these facts and give me a chance to hold an elective office.

To those who get The Union-Banner and have neighbors who do not, please show and discuss these facts with them. Your vote and influence will be deeply appreciated.—Sincerely yours, Grover A. Bice.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PARDON OR PAROLE

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Ross Ford, who was convicted in the Circuit Court of Chilton County in January, 1933, on a charge of manufacturing whiskey and sentenced to the penitentiary for 18 months, will apply for a pardon or parole.—Ross Ford. 5-3-2tp

GRAGG THANKS VOTERS

To the Voters of Chilton County:

It is a great pleasure to me to know that I received a very respectable lead in all three counties of the Fifteenth Senatorial District. I feel especially grateful for this vote and desire to express my thanks to all who so loyally supported me in the primary just past. My home county, Chilton, having given me a total of 1081 while one of my opponents received 317 and the other 594.

I regret very much that business duties prevented my making a complete canvass of the district, but hope to see every voter face to face in the near future, and be able to personally express to you my thanks for your support.—Yours very sincerely, V. J. Gragg.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES AT PROVIDENCE IN BEAT 13

The following is the program for the Memorial Day Services at Providence, Beat 13:

10:00—Devotional service, by J. H. Martin.

10:30—Welcome address by Bro. J. C. Thomas.

10:45—Response.

11:00—Preaching by Bro. John T. Martin, Brent, Ala.

We epect to have several good songs during the day. Singing will begin at 1:15 in the afternoon. We are expecting to have some good singers with us to do plenty of singing. This is an annual affair and we invite everyone to come over and be with us.

We ask the people who are interested in the cemetery at this place to meet with us on Thursday of next week and help clean off the cemetery.

The box supper at this place Saturday night was good, considering the weather. We are sure most everybody had a nice time. The quilt that was given away was won by Armond Holdreck. What a lucky boy! The quilt brought $47.30. We really thank everyone that helped us on this quilt.

Now don't forget the third Sunday. Come and be with us. Bring your new books and don't forget everybody bring dinner.—O. B. Martin.

W. T. BEAN THANKS VOTERS

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

Through the medium of this paper I want to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to every one who saw fit to vote for me on last Tuesday. I wish it were possible for me to express to you in a more personal way my full appreciation of your vote and make you know just how thankful I am of the splendid vote I received. To those who did not support me, I wish to say that I have not the least ill-will toward you. To vote just as you see fit is a privilege that belongs wholly to you, and I trust that everyone used this privilege to the best of his or her judgment.

Since I am to be in the next primary, which will be held on June 12, I want to kindly ask that those who voted for me before stand by me and hold up my hands to nomination. To those who did not vote for me in the recent primary, and especially to those who voted for my esteemed friend, Ralph D. Grant, in the election last week, I want to ask that you give my candidacy a close and earnest consideration; and if you find that I am competent to fill the office of county superintendent of education successfully, and if you find that I have made a success of my own business to such a degree as to warrant your support, and if you find that I have been a life-long loyal Republican, I most earnestly solicit your vote and influence in the coming primary.

May I say in closing that I have waged my campaign wholly on my own record and wholly independent of any line-up with or against any other candidate or set of candidates, and I will continue my campaign throughout the coming primary, as heretofore, absolutely independent of any line-up or combine. I believe that every man who asks for an office should run on his own merits, letting his moral character, his competency to fill that particular office, and his loyalty to the party at whose hands he is asking for election, be the determining factors upon which he is to stand or fall.—Sincerely yours, W. T. Bean.

NRA NEWS

Washington, April 27.—Administration officials today emphasized that employers, not yet under approved codes, but, who desire to continue to display the Blue Eagle are not required to apply individually for extension of their reemployment agreement with the president.

Under the President's Executive Order of April 14, offering a blanket extension of the agreement to the less than 5 per cent of industry and trade whose codes have not been approved, it is only necessary for such employers to continue to comply with their obligations under the original agreement display of the Blue Eagle will indicate they have renewed their agreement with the president and are complying with its terms.

The text of the executive order which was issued in connection with the announcement of plans for distribution of distinctive Blue Eagles for each industry or trade now under an approved code was as follows:

Executive Order

"By virtue of the authority vested in me under the provisions of title I of the National Industrial Recovery Act, approved June 16, 1933 (Ch. 90, 48 Stat. 195), and in order to effectuate the purposes of said title and in extension of executive order No. 6515 of December 19, 1933, entitled "Extension of the President's Reemployment Agreement to April 30, 1934," I hereby offer to enter into the president's agreement with the head of every business establishment as to any part of his business not subject to an approved code of fair competition, for a further period beginning May 1, 1934, and ending when that part of his business becomse subject to an approved code of fair competition.

"Employers who shall have signed the President's Reemployment Agreement before May 1, 1934, may accept this offer of extension by display of the Blue Eagle on or after May 1, 1934, and such display by them shall be deemed an acceptance of this offer. Employers who shall not have signed the president's reemployment agreement before May 1, 1934, may accept this offer of extension by signing the president's reemployment agreement.

"All substitutions and exemptions approved, and all exceptions granted to particular employers, before May 1, 1934, will apply to the President's Reemployment Agreement as so extended.

"I hereby authorize the administrator for Industrial Recovery to make such rules and regulations as he may deem necessary to supplement, amplify, or carry out the purposes and intent of this executive order.—Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The People Do the Paying

"Who pays the processing taxes?" The Consumers Guide is asking this simple question. It is produced and circulated by the consumers' counsel of the AAA, which, as every schoolboy knows, the Federal Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The Guide announces that this is a "different kind of tax" with "a different face and feel." The idea seems to be that the public does not know it is paying the processing taxes.

Whatever the "face and feel" of the processing taxes they are paid by the common people. If they do not know they are paying them they choose to be deceived. Every tax of every sort, kind and description is paid by the common people. In one form or another all taxes are passed on to the ultimate consumer. If they weren't those who seem to be the taxpayers would not long continue in business. It is true that numerous taxes imposed by the Federal and State governments are not deductible by payers of income taxes. In this state gasoline, candy and tobacco taxes are frankly passed on to the consumer, but they cannot be deducted on income tax.

The day of reckoning is just ahead and when it arrives the common people will have no doubt that they are paying processing and all other taxes, however, sugar-coated the governments words are. Politicians have preached economy while they have practiced extravagance. They will be chary of what they say to the common people when they appeal for their suffrage. If the common people choose to be fooled, that it their businses. — Charleston News and Courier.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

(By Frank P. Litschert

We have heard a great deal during the past few years about the men who cannot find jobs. There is no question that they deserve a great deal of sympathy and that everything which can be done ought to be done to relieve their unfortunate condition. But while we are doing this let us not forget how much depends on the many millions who have jobs in this country of ours. They are, of course, in a position to be envied by those who are idle but would work if they could. At the same time let it not be forgotten that a great deal depennds on those who are still working. It is they who must carry the burden of the costs of the recovery, because after all they are the consumers and the taxpayers. They furnish the funds which keep the government going. Without them and their ability to stand taxation, we would be in a sorry plight indeed. If the time ever comes when mounting costs of government render them unable to sustain the tax burden, revolution will be at hand.

We have had a great many schemes for putting the idle back to work. Some of them have helped and others have not. But in the end we must go back to this fact: after all, the man who does the most to relieve unemployment is the employer who furnishes the money to make out the payroll. Without the employer, be he individual or corporation, we would be facing economic chaos. As Dr. T. N. Caver, professor of economics at Harvard, said the other day: "The accumulation of capital is necessary if industry is to be equipped. The only person who contributes to the relief of unemployment is the man who actually offers jobs to waiting labor and pays wages out of receipts.

There can be no questioning the truth of this statement. Employment furnished by private industry is the kind which will eventually overcome the depression. The government may develop schemes for emergency employment, designed to keep the idle from suffering through a period of crisis, but after all this is only temporary and it is accompanied by a bigger burden of public debt which must sooner or later be paid by the taxpayers of the nation. The kind of employment which counts is that which is offered by the factory, the mine, the farm, the store, the office and the public utility. As the payrolls in these private institutions go up in volume we know that we are making progress out of the depression. Artificial prosperity, stimulated by government spending may bring temporary relief, but great care is to be exercised if the remedy does not result in new conditions worse than the old.

Perhaps we ought to devote a little more time, therefore, to giving encouragement to the employer. If he can arrange things so he can raise more capital where necessary, employ more men and so create new business, we will start on the path leading to prosperity again. We cannot do this by hedging him around with more restrictions and greater handicaps to be overcome, before he can get going normally again. Accelerated business and actual profits by private concerns ought not to be looked down upon, so long as we continue to live in an individualistic society. If we destroy the profit motive we must go in for socialism and all of the regiment and the final decay which it presages. But if we desire to continue as a nation of free, self-governing individuals, let us think more about the fellow who provides the jobs. Certainly we cannot prosper so long as we hold him under the pump.

Grover's Days Are Over

When Grover Cleveland was president, the good Democratic state of Texas had a droughth and a corn crop failure. Congress passed a bill appropriating $25,000 to buy seed corn for the stricken farmers. Cleveland sent the bill back with the following message:

"I veto this appropriation because there is no warrant in the Constitution of the United States for taking the funds which are raised from the taxes and giving them from one man to another, and I further veto it in order to teach the lesson that, while the people support the government, the government does not support the people."

Different lessons are taught today, from different text books. Congress, president and courts are finding ample warrant in the Constitution for handing out public funds to private individuals, something which was not done all through the "hard times" of the nineties.

Poor old Grover! How very old fashioned he was!

Traveling in Circles

One of the complaints commonly heard on every hand is that we have solved the problem of production but that our system of distribution has broken down with the result that we now have great surpluses of food, cotton and manufactured goods, and at the same time millions of hungry and poorly clad people.

It would seem that there could be little argument with this assertion. Yet it is to be seriously doubted whether the methods now adopted to remedy the situation really go to the root of the matter. Just now it seems to be the fashion to attempt to remedy the siuation by regimenting production, in an effort to get rid of the surplus. But it is doubtful whether such a method, even if it can be successfully carried out, will really bring about the desired result.

In the first place, while so many people are hungry and poorly clothed it is a difficulty to determine just how much overproduction there is and how much of the trouble may be due to under consumption. Perhaps if all the people had what they needed the surplus would disappear and it would not be necessary to destroy pigs, plow under wheat and cotton, and pass a law designed to force the farmers to raise less of the last named staple.

Reduction of crops, if we can really induce reduction, tends to increase prices and increase them before the people at large are able to pay the greater cost. And there are other factors at work tending in the same direction. We have only to mention the processing tax on wheat as an example.

This tax has already brought an increase in the price of flour, and of bread, and this has resulted in curtailing rather than stimulating consumption. One has only to listen to the views of the housewife in the city to realize that she resents this increase in the price of flour and feels that she is being taxed for the benefit of another class of citizens. On the other hand the farmer, when he pays more for the goods he buys in the city, under the NRA provisions, resents this, on the theory that he is being taxed to help the man in town. The general result is rising prices before wages in the city and incomes on the farm have caught up with the procession.

The present processing tax on wheat amounts to $1.38 a barrel and there are reports now that the tax may be increased from 30 cents a bushel to nearly forty cents. This will mean another rise in the price of flour and more resentment from the housewives, with a consequent curtailment in consumption.

Of course everyone knows that in periods of rising prosperity we have rising prices, just as we have declining prices in times of depression. But these rising prices heretofore have always come from a healthy demand due to increased buying power on the part of the public at large.

Just as we hear that the price of flour may be lifted by an increase in the wheat processing tax we get a statement from members of the master bakers association, meeting in New York, that as a result of the new baker's code about to be signed, there will be another rise in the price of bread, perhaps even as much as two cents a loaf. This can only result in further curtailed consumption and an increase rather than a decrease in the wheat surplus.

It would seem that one way to reduce the surplus would be to induce the people to eat more rather than less bread, to use flour in greater rater than in less quantities. It is doubtful whether raising the price through processing taxes and codes will offer any such stimulus.

Weeds in the Garden

There are thousands of persons throughout the nation, and a small army of lawmakers in city councils, state legislatures and congress, who seem to feel that the way to bring about recovery from depression is to destroy private business and undermine public confidence in capital.

Their theories remind one of the weeds in a garden—they flourish until the owner realizes that they are sapping the strength of the productive plants on which they depend for a living. And then they are quietly removed.

The people may find it necessary to do considerable weeding in their political gardens before long if they wish to retain time-tested American traditions and ideals.

Congress has ordered an inquiry into the relative cost of electric power generated by private and public plants. The value of the inquiry will depend entirely on the accuracy and impartiality with which it is conducted. An honest, impartial, factual report, made up by engineers who have no bias in any direction, would be immensely valuable. The sooner the inquiry is initiated and completed, the more valuable it will be to all concerned.

MAN IN THE MOON

Looks Over All—Overlooks None

Jack's Record

Following is the record of Jack Hayes, through Sunday, May 6: Batting—13 games; 45 times at bat; 9 singles, 3 doubles, 1 home run, total of 13 hits; percentage, .289; sacrifices, 3; 7 runs scored; 7 runs batted in. Fielding—25 put-outs, 43 assists, total of 68 chances; no errors; percentage, 1.000; 4 double plays.

"Red" Hayes Is On the Way

News comes to me of the exploits of another of the Hayes family in the baseball wars. Alex, brother of Jack, a student at Gulfport Military Academy, is making a name for himself down there. But, whereas. Jack was always the sure and reliable infielder, and made a name for himself in this respect, his kid brother, known at the academy as "Red" Hayes, is building his rep on his hitting. On top of this, Alex also is a fairly reliable infielder. Dr. J. P. Hayes, father of the two boys, has brought to me two clippings of newspapers in the Biloxi, Miss., region, which give young "Red," quite a send-off. "Red" has been sending them out "where they ain't", and is building quite a reputation as a home run swatter. Doc says he intends writing to Jack and telling him he had better wake up and start something, or else the kid will be up there showing him the way it's done before long. Doc is proud of his two boys, and justly so, but he seems to believe that his "freckle-faced rascal," (that's Alex) may be the better of the two after a while. All right, we've all pulled for Jack, and we'll be pulling for "Red" too, to make the grade, and go to help his brother up in big time baseball circles. That's not idle hope, either; it's a probability.

The Short Ballot

In his race for governor, Maj. Dixon has advocated the short ballot, making many of the state officers appointive instead of elective, as is now the case. Much has been said pro and con in regard to the matter. Those in favor of it claim that it will insure competent officers to take care of the many departments of the state's business. They claim that the rank and file of voters, not knowing the several candidates, can not reasonably be expected to pick the best man, whereas, by appointment of the governor, a competent man would be insured for every office. Those opposing say that, inasmuch as the people's money goes to pay these officers the people should be allowed to vote for them. Both sides have good points. But here is a new and funny angle to it all. A few days ago, in Jefferson County, after the election officials had been literally buried for hours in figures, in trying to round up the returns or the many, many candidates one of them stretched wearily, and remarked to the world in general: "Well, I wasn't so much in favor of the short ballot until now, but I certainly do wish we had used it in this election. We would have been done counting and in bed hours ago."

Shaves Going Up

Rumor has it that the barbers are contemplating increasing the price of shaves. They say that since there was such a crop of candidates, several of them were sure to be beaten, and were. And when these beaten candidates came in for their next shave, the barbers noticed quite an increase in territory to be scraped. Their faces were just that much longer. These barbers know, also, that there is yet another primary, and there will be another crop of long faces after that. And then next fall, after the grand scrap, there will be yet another crop. With so many faces being lengthened makes lots and lots of extra work for the barbers. It would not be so bad if the candidates were the only ones who wore long faces, but then, there are the close followers of the fellows who lost. Their faces lengthened also. And the boys who put up the long green in the different elections and lost, together with those who will bet and lose in the near future all go together to make a big long-faced army. You can't blame the barbers. After all is said and done, they will have to scrape acres and acres of extra dry jowls, and they ought to be paid for their work. Maybe they will charge by the square inch in order to get the right amount out of each shave. Recent reports are that the fellows are all expected to get over the election, however. At first it was feared that some of them wouldn't, but better hopes are held for them now.

Our Russian Friends

When the United States government asked the Soviet Russians to send an envoy over to talk over the matter of recognition, it provoked a storm of protest from all over the nation. But that did no good. The brain trust, that hand-picked bunch of socialistic substitutes of Constitutional government thought it would be a grand gesture to recognize the reds. The members of the brain trust pointed out that by recognizing Russia, friendship between that country and the United States would be strengthened, and they would buy our surplus cotton. That was the one and only plea upon which they based their action in recognizing Russia. They also made the Russians promise to leave off spreading their red propaganda. Now, what has happened? Instead of letting up on the spreading of propaganda, red efforts have been intensified, as was expected by all except the brain trust, knowing the reds as we do. And now the Russians, instead of buying our cotton, as the plans called for, have double-crossed us again, and have boycotted American goods—not only cotton, but all other American goods that they can possibly get along without. The reason is that America has stopped further loans to the Russians. That's how the Russians actually feel towards us. So long as they can soak us for dollars and more dollars, we're their friends, but as soon as we stop, their friendliness stops. Another "grand experiment" has exploded, just as the others have done, one after the other.

Benjamin Jackson Sessions

Benjamin Jackson Sessions, rural letter carrier on Clanton Route No. 7, was born in rural Tallapoosa County, 18 miles northwest of Dadeville, Ala., on November 6, 1880. He was reared on a farm until almost grown. He began his schooling during the days of the old blue-back speller, learning his three R's in the 1-teacher schools during terms of 4 and 5 months each year. Mr. Sessions attended Mill Town High School in Chambers County, and finished the 11th grade there. He went to Dadeville Training School, and prepared for a teacher's certificate, later attending Lafayette College for a short while. In addition to this, he had about 5 months training for a teacher's certificate in the Clanton Gramma School. His first teaching was in the same school in Tallapoosa County that he attended for the first of his own study, teaching there 3 years; later he taught 2 years in Chambers County. In the fall of 1905 he came to Chilton County as a teacher, teaching 4 years at Littlejohn School, then moved over to Baker School, where he taught 3 years. He entered the postal service as carrier on Route 7, in September, 1912, and has served this route continuously ever since. In October, 1907, he married Miss Cynthia Littlejohn; they have 3 children, Ruth (Mrs. Samuel Martin), and Misses Dorothy and Sarah Nell Sessions. He was recently elected President of the Chilton County Letter Carriers Association. He is a member of the Clanton Baptist Church, also a deacon, and President of the Men's Sunday School class there. He is a Mason and has passed most all the chairs in this order; he is a Shriner. Mr. Sessions is a Woodman, and has passed all the chairs in Woodcraft. He has also passed all the chairs in Odd Fellowship. In fact, according to Mr. Sessions' own words, he has been a "joiner" in all good orders. He had this to say: "I know what it means to plow a jar-head, drive an ox, know saw mill work, know how to thresh wheat or haul logs. I like to fish and hunt, like baseball, and would like football if I could learn to understand the game—I get a great kick out of it any way. I have enjoyed my 22 years of 'Service With a Smile' in the postal service. I have fine patrons; I like them and they like me. They have often helped me out of mud holes and ditches, and helped me repair breaks, etc., and have never charged me one cent. They are my neighbors. I buy, beg, borrow and receive free gratis from them many good things to eat, such as fruits, watermelons, peanuts, pop corn, vegetables, etc. And oh, ye Man in the Moon, and Mr. Editor, when hog killing times comes around, how the spare ribs, back bone, and 'chitlins' do tickle my palate. I want to thank the commissioners for their work on my route, in making it a thing of beauty, and, I trust, a joy forever; they have done some fine work on my road. Now, Man in the Moon, say anything you know that is good (if such there be) about me, but if you know anything bad, please let the others find that out for themselves. I do not use intoxicants. I do not use tobacco in any form; and have not seen the use of profanity. If I have an enemy in the world I do not know him, and I try to be a friend to everyone. In short, I just try t obe 'Old Ben' every day." I believe that last statement, too. I have know Ben for a long time, and he has just been "Old Ben" every time I met him; if he has ever been angry, I do not know it. I know Ben as an upright man, honest and dependable, having the utmost respect for all his fellowmen, while his personality commands the same from them. But why continue? Ben is a prince of a fellow, and a dandy carrier.—Man in the Moon.

The Matter with Agriculture

A great deal of the farmer's trouble is due to the fact that there has been too much governmental experimenting with his welfare during the past twenty years, according to Charles H. McIvey, who writes in a logical manner of the subject in the current issue of the National Republic, under the caption, "Sing 'Heigh-Ho the Dairy-O." In part Mr. McIvey says:

"Just where did the idea of governmental efficiency originate? The answer to that question is one of the unsolved mysteries. The record of the government in handling the farm question is a case in point. During the years immediately after the World War the rest of the world turned to rehabilitation and was aided in every way by our government at Washington. Breeding stock of all kinds, machinery, seed, all were sent to the erst-while combatants, urging them to raise their own foodstuffs. In our own country, farm agents continued to urge the farmer to increase his production, teaching that a farm was a factory, often advising each farmer to concentrate on one crop and buy all other necessities from others. In a short time the countries of Europe, Australia, South America, were raising bumper crops, while the United States was still raising enough food to 'feed the world.'

"The army of employes of the Department of Agriculture who, in most cases, could not plow a straight furrow or milk a cow, but numbering more than the United States army before the Spanish-American War, swarmed over the country. Aided by government funds they carried on a regular propaganda teaching the farmer to forget all that had been learned through centuries of experience and advising him to become a one crop farmer. Like all one-crop producers, he was soon at the mercy of the market over which he had no control.

"The recent farm troubles have been the result of the farmer's trying to regain control of his market, again urged on by farm agents and agents of farm cooperatives. The farmer, puzzled and bedeviled by conditions over which he had no control, reacted just as have other bewildered men the world over. In some cases he resorted to violence—and the recent disorders are results of these conditions, not mere radicalism. As if this condition was not bad enough, 'came the depression,' and with it increasing pressure on the farmer to pay his debts, with the subsequent farm mortgage riots.

"In one instance, and in one only in my opinion, has the government shown intelligence in dealing with the farm problem, and that is in the establishment of the Federal Farm Loan. It has saved many a farm to its rightful owner; but the advantage of this will soon be lost if the government insists upon carrying out the program now outlined by the Department of Agriculture with its insistence upon destroying crops and killing breeding stock which will take years to replace. The idea advanced is that there is a surplus of farm products—but there is no surplus where hunger exisits.

"In the first place, government propaganda is responsible for any surplus existing today. Had the farmer been left alone, he would have been forced to reduce his crops and the problem would have been solved. Who urged the farmer to increase his crops? The government. Who told the farmer that a farm was a factory? The government. It was the government through its farm agencies, and many leaders are now urging an unsound money plan upon the farmer, and through their positions of advantage in farm organizations, claiming to represent the farmer, whereas most farmers cannot afford to attend such meetings. But the farm 'leader' can go; his expenses are put down to his expense account and he goes and elects his representative, so the farmer is misrepresented, and being inarticulate, is not able to tell what is the trouble."

Is it Still "King" Cotton?

A great many political observers at Washington believe that the bit of legislation by this session of Congress which will have the most far reaching political importance in the long run is a bill which has so far aroused comparatively little interest in the country outside of the South. The legislation indicated is that for the compulsory control of the cotton crop. At the start, the government sought to increase cotton prices by a voluntary limitation of production. But the voluntary agreement didn't work and there was every indication that the cotton surplus would increase rather than diminish. Then some of the statesmen and theorists started to talk about real regimentation—government control of the cotton crop. The Bankhead cotton bill was the result.

It is remarkable that so revolutionary a bit of legislation should get through with so little discussion, but it is a fact that it did. From now on individualism is out, so far as raising cotton is concerned. The cotton farmer, be he big and powerful or poor and insignificant, will have to obey the government and grow just as much cotton as the AAA tells him. A grower who exceeds the fixed allotment is to be penalized by a heavy tax on every bale of excess production.

It is a noteworthy fact, however, that some of the so-called conservative statesmen in the South supported the bill, though many others were against it. It is also noteworthy that even some of the members of the so-called Brain Trust were not enthusiastic for it. In an address delivered at Nebraska City, Neb., on April 23, Secretary Wallace said:

"Those who talk most about regimentation usually refer to the Bankhead bill, which was recently passed by Congress. Probably I have more fear of regimentation than 90 per cent of the people of this audience. I trust you will vigorously oppose the application of regimentation to the products of the North and West unless and until you have indicated, as did the farmer of the South, that 95 per cent of you are in favor of the use of centralized governmental control for purposes you understand and approve. I may say, for my own part, in spite of the fact that of the 40,000 cotton farmers of the South to whom we sent questionnaires 95 per cent voted in favor of what amounts to compulsory marketing of cotton, I still have my fingers crossed." Then later in his speech Secretary Wallace again urged "the farmers of the West and North not to start doing a similar thing for wheat, corn or hogs, or any other of our great northen staples until we have at least had opportunity to benefit by the results of this southern experiment."

It does indeed seem to be an ironical fact that the first commodity taken over by the federal government for control by regimentation, should be the staple crop of the South, of that section of the country which a generattion or so ago was willing to go to war to preserve state rights, and that this should be done with the approval of a majority of those interested. Certainly times do change.

Of course the latest step is one which might be logically expected once to embark on a program of governmental control. Voluntary supervision fails, then only governmental compulsion is left. No matter how long the wheat, and corn, and hog farmer think about it, they must inevitably come to the conclusion that governmental regimentation must become complete, to be effective, once the first step is taken.

In the meantime if we regiment our farmers, cut down production, this decreasing tangible wealth, and reducing employment, what are we going to do if the rest of the world fails to follow suit? We are asking the farmers to raise less wheat to reduce the surplus, while England and Germany are carrying on campaigns urging their farmers to raise more wheat. We are regimenting our cotton crop and word comes that Poland is turning to Russia for its supply of cotton. What can congress and the Brain Trust do about that?

BOB JONES COMMENTS ON HERE AND HEREAFTER.

In a northern state there is a great college. This college has honored the writer by conferring upon him an honorary degree. The institution has been known for ninety-seven years as an old time, orthodox, evangelical college. It has been known as an institution of high standard educationally and morally. Imagine the surprise of the writer when recent there appeared an associated press story saying that this famous old college "has lifted a ninety-seven year ban on dancing and card playing." The president of the school—so the report says—found that the majority of the patrons of the school are not opposed to dancing and card playing.

It is not the purpose of the writer at this time to argue against dancing and card playing. Personally, he doesn't think Christians should do that sort of thing. He believes that God should have the benefit of the doubt in all things. To say the least, there is a question in the minds of a large percentage of Christian people about whether they should dance and play cards.

The thing which distresses the writer is the fact that an institution will lower its standards to satisfy a majority of the present patrons. What about the saints who are dead and gone who built something to them. What about the ministers of the denomination which is back of the school who do not believe in dancing and card playing and who have raised money to keep the school going and who have sent students to them to keep the enrollment up?

There is too much lowering of standards today in schools, churches, and society. We had better keep the standards up even if we don't live up to them. We should not drag the standards to our low plane of living. If religious schools and denominational institutions are not going to be different from state institutions, then why should people be asked to support these schools and give their hard-earned money to keeping the institutions which are sometimes no more Christian than tax-supported state insttiutions. Personally, I would prefer to send my own child to a state institution rather than to send him to a religious institution which lowers its standards as a matter of temporary convenience to satisfy even a majority of the patrons of the college. A Christian college has an obligation to God and to the saints who have built the institution. Our business is to hold up standards and not to pull them down.

JARMAN THANKS VOTERS

I yield to no man in the world in my appreciation of and love for my friends. Having personally congratulated Mr. Oliver on his victory, I next desire to thank most sincerely my many friends in Chilton County, as well as in the other counties of the district, for your magnificent efforts in my behalf.

Contacts have been made and friendships formed during this campaign which will, I am sure, add much pleasure to every remaining year of my life.

Needless to say, I harbor no ill will toward those who opposed me.

My supporters have thoroughly cooperated with me in conducting our campaign on a high and honorable plane, for which I heartily commend you. We have nothing of which to be ashamed. I want you all to know that I will ever be appreciative indeed of your fine interest in my behalf, and I hope to see much of you during the remainder of our lives.

PETE B. JARMAN.

PERCY PITTS THANKS VOTERS

To the Republican Voters of Chilton County:

I am again under deep and lasting obligation to the voters of Chilton County for the splendid vote given me on Tuesday, May 1, in my candidacy for the nomination of representative in the legislature to succeed myself. According to the tabulation of the votes in The Union-Banner of May 3, in the final count I lacked about one hundred votes of receiving as many votes as both of my opponents. This will necessitate a run-off between me and one of my opponents on June 12.

The vote given me is all the more appreciated since it was not possible for me to make a county-wide candidacy. I consider the gratifying vote that I received, somewhat of an endorsement of my record in the past as your representative. Should I again be favored with your vote and influence I will earnestly and vigorously endeavor to carry out my platform which I have submitted to the people through the Union-Banner.

To those who voted for my two opponents I have the highest regard and hold no ill will, and to the many who voted for me I am grateful and will continue, as in the past, to serve my county and state to the best of my ability should I be your choice in the coming election and be reelected. I hope each and everyone who cast their ballot for me will consider this a personal note of thanks for their favoritism.

We have one of the best counties morally, educationally and financially in this state. And should I again be your representative I will be ever mindful of the wishes of my constituents.—Gratefully yours, Percy M. Pitts.

SINGING AT HIGHLAND CHURCH

The singing convention in the Christian Harmony and Sacred Harp books met at Highland church the first Sunday and Saturday before, on May 5th and 6th. We met on Saturday with a small crowd, but had a glorious day. Opening song was sung by vice president Mr. J. W. Hayes. Prayer by Rev. W. S. Cox. Directors for the morning service are as follows: Mr. J. W. Hayes, Mr. W. B. Cooper, Mrs. Sarah Bates, Mr. T. C. Jackson, Mr. J. M. Williams, Mr. G. W. Ackers, Mrs. Ruth Henley, each one using three songs.

Dismissed one hour for noon. Then called to order at one o'clock by the chairman. Went into business meeting. Elected new officers. Mr. W. B. Cooper, president; Mr. T. C. Jackson, vice president; Mrs. Ruth Henley, secretary, with the understanding that Bro. Jones is to act as chairman when he can be with us. The same directories led four songs each in the afternoon. Closing song by chairman. Closed with prayer by Bro. Dickey.
